A rainfall of 1 inch on a roof of 3,000 square feet would mean a total of 250 cubic feet, or about 41.5 barrels of 45 gallons each, enough to fill a cistern 8 feet in diameter to a depth of 4.97 feet. This does not consider possible loss from splashing, etc.

192,612 MOTOR VEHICLES REGISTERED IN STATE, 6,017 MORE THAN LAST YEAR

More motor vehicles were registered in Connecticut in the first half of this year than in the entire year 1923, it is shown by the report for the past six months completed at the state motor vehicle department. Up to the first of this month, 192,612 cars had been registered by the department, an increase of 6,017 over the number registered during all of last year.

Registrations have been issued at the rate of over 1,000 a day, or more than two a minute, since the first day of the year, far exceeding all previous records. Of the machines registered thus far this year, 29,142 were trucks, an increase of exactly two over the number of such registrations in the previous twelve months. Private owners' registrations, which classification is made up wholly of passenger cars, reached a total of 156,621, the remaining registrations being of trucks, motorcycles, jitneys, taxicabs, trailers, tractors, airplanes and hearses. Incidentally, 139 hearses are registered in the state. It is the first year that hearses have been registered under an independent classification, having previously been listed as commercial motor vehicles and, although there undoubtedly has been an increase in the number of such vehicles, the department records offer no comparison. Twelve airplanes are registered and 309 jitneys, a slight falling off from the total for the calendar year.

The department receipts for the six months past aggregate $4,545,130.30, an increase of $215,693.14 over the receipts for the last calendar year. According to statute, the receipts are turned over to the state highway department for road improvement.

The increase in operators' licenses issued has not been proportionate with the gain in motor vehicle registrations. In the six-month period, 212,583 operators were licensed, which falls 312 short of the total for the calendar year 1923. Gasoline licenses have been issued for 3,772 stations, which is about 300 over the total issued in 1923.

MADE BRAVE RESCUE AT GROTON LONG POINT

The Bulletin's Mystic correspondent writes:

A near tragedy occurred Friday afternoon at Groton Long Point when Mrs. E. L. Latimer of Norwich, her young son, a young girl visiting her and another young girl visiting at the point narrowly escaped drowning while bathing. It was quite rough at the time and the party in trying to swim had evidently been carried further from the beach than they realized and toward that portion of the beach where there are rocks and some holes. Suddenly they found themselves beyond their depth, having stepped into a hole. There were a good many people on the beach at the time and while several afterward said they heard them shouting it was thought to be in fun, and it was quite a few minutes before their cries were heeded.

Raymond L. Snell, of this place, who runs the Groton Long Point casino, heard their cries and started to the rescue, plunging into the water with his clothes on. He discovered Leslie McCuen, a New York attorney, who was at the beach with his family who are spending the summer in Mystic, and who had hastily thrown aside his coat and dashed for a boat on the beach, pushing the boat toward the party in distress. The two men together finally succeeded in getting the boat out and Mrs. Latimer and the two young girls into it. It was no easy matter to get the boat out where the party were for there were no oars in it and the waves were rough and it was with difficulty that the party was rescued. Mrs. Latimer, who can swim, succeeded in keeping the girls above water until help arrived, and her son, who can also swim, was able to make shore himself, although it was said that the boy went down twice while near the rest of the party. It was a very close call for the three people and much praise was given Mr. McCuen and Mr. Snell for their bravery in making the rescue. All those who participated in the affair were about as usual on Saturday, apparently no worse for the experience.

LOAVES AND FISHES GOSPEL FR. MAY'S SERMON THEME

For the sixth Sunday after Pentecost, the gospel read in all the masses in the Catholic churches Sunday was Mark VIII. 1-9, narrating the miracle of the multiplication of the loaves and fishes. The rector of St. Patrick's church, Rev. Michael H. Hay, in his instruction on this gospel at the 7.30 mass considered that phrase, "And taking the seven loaves, giving thanks He broke, and gave to His disciples," etc. as the text for a practical sermon on grace before and after meals.

"Grace"—the Latin gratias, implying gratitude, appreciation, is supposed to be said by every Catholic before breaking bread. Every Catholic child learns in his catechism the little prayer called grace before meat: "Bless us, O, Lord, and these Thy gifts, which of Thy bounty we are about to receive. For Christ's sake, Amen." Also the prayer of thanksgiving after meals.

Father May censured that haste which omits all expression of obligation and gratitude to God for His boundless mercies. Such expression is certainly due from the rich, but it is equally due from God's chosen poor, who can follow the example of their Saviour, by giving thanks, as He did for the few loaves and fishes, for even their meagre fare.

Such praise to God will bring, not alone physical well-being, but spiritual health as well.

Father May, assisted by Rev. Myles P. Galvin, gave Holy Communion to a great number of members of the congregation, including the Rosary society.

Report on Supt. Hutchins.

Word was received at the W. W. Backus hospital Sunday that the condition of Supt. F. Leon Hutchins, patient in a specialist's hospital at Rochester, Minn., is considered only fairly satisfactory. It is hoped by hospital authorities and the many friends of Supt. Hutchins that the report for today (Monday) will be of better nature.

WOMAN IS FINED FOR EAST SIDE FIGHT

In the city court Saturday morning, Judge Arthur F. Libby gave John Brewer charged with intoxication, a suspended sentence of six months, to allow the defendant to get out of town.

Adlea Demicco, charged with breach of the peace was fined $10 and costs and received a suspended sentence of five days in jail. She was arrested Friday night on complaint of Mrs. Rosina Forgello who had received a beating at the hands of Mrs. Demicco. The fight followed an argument over rent, Mrs. Forgello refusing to leave the Demicco house on the East Side after being ordered out for being two months in arrears in rent. When the automobile owned by Mr. Forgello was attached the fight started, Mrs. Demicco claiming that she hit Mrs. Forgello when the latter called her vile names.

In court there was considerable disturbance, witnesses talking out loud and denying testimony given, causing the court to rap for order several times.

George Lally of this city, brought back Friday night from Scranton, Pa., by Officer Charles Smith, was charged with non support of his wife and minor child of 7 months. He left them three weeks ago.

The court is not inclined to be lenient with a man who deliberately goes away and leaves wife and child behind him without any means of support and Lally was sentenced to 60 days in jail. Others charged with similar offenses are to be dealt with similarly by the court.

FOUND NOT GUILTY OF LARCENY FROM HIS WIFE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Sterling, July 20.—Perhaps the most interesting criminal case ever tried in this town was before Judge C. B. Montgomery today. Frank W. Hazard grand juror.

William N. Sweet of Reno, Nevada, formerly of this town, was charged with larceny of goods from his wife, Grace A. Sweet of Oneco, and non-support since October, 1922. J. J. Desmond of Norwich appeared for Mr. Sweet and Attorney Morgan of New London assisted the grand juror. A large number of witnesses were called but not one of them added one word to the testimony of Mrs. Sweet. The court house was filled to the utmost, about 150 being present, and gave the closest attention to the splendid arguments pro and con by Attorneys Desmond and Morgan, also the careful examination of witnesses by Grand Juror Hazard and the justice. From 9 a. m. until long afternoon every inch of the ground was carefully gone over by the two expert attorneys and when the justice in summing up suddenly said "Not guilty" the crowd broke into a tremendous round of applause.

This case is one of a number that have grown out of divorce proceedings brought some years ago by Mr. Sweet against his wife, who secured a divorce in the Windham county courts, afterwards taken away by Connecticut supreme court, and who then moved to Reno, Nevada, where he lived the regulation time and has now secured a decree that his wife is once more trying to have set aside.

James McLaughlan, also of Reno, Nevada, came east with Mr. Sweet who gave himself up last week and was placed under bonds until today.

CROSSWALKS PAINTED IN BUSINESS SECTION

The street department continued its programme of making crosswalks and safety zones in the streets in the business section Saturday, painting the white lines that indicate the places where pedestrians are expected to cross the streets and where automobiles are forbidden to stop when they draw up to the curb.

Drivers of machines will need to keep an eye open lest they inadvertently stop on a pointed crosswalk at a spot where there is nothing to indicate a crosswalk except the white lines in the street.

A no parking place was marked out opposite the door leading to police headquarters at the court house by painting a white line along the curb at this point. Automobile drivers have frequently parked directly in front of the door so that the motor patrol wagon has been unable to drive up there.

ELIJAH LATHROP IS RECOVERING AFTER ACCIDENT

NEW STATE ATTORNEY PREPARING FOR DUTIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 20.—Arthur M Brown, the state's attorney who succeeds the late Hadlai A. Hull, is taking an automobile trip that he may have a needed rest before he enters upon his active duties the last of August in preparation for the opening of the September criminal term of the superior court for New London county. The court convenes at Norwich with Judge Avery on the bench the 2d of September. The docket is a fairly long one with some very important cases to come to trial and to prepare them the state's attorney will be occupied a few weeks before the term opens. New London will furnish some liquor law violation cases that will be watched for with interest for they involve some complicated phases of the law. The case against Schleifer, which has been carried over a year or more, and which involves the most violent attack upon the shopmen of the New Haven railroad who remained at work at the time there was a strike in the shops, may come up for disposition. Schleifer addressed a meeting of strikers in New London and used the most incendiary of talk to influence the men to resort to violence against the workers who stuck to their jobs and against the operation of the road, the allegation being that Schleifer told his hearers to wreck trains and to use lead pipe on the heads of the men who remained at their work. The case has been put over term after term. Schleifer is held in a bond of $2500, he having deposited a United States bond with the court in New London.

AUTO WHEELS SMASHED AT BROAD ST. CORNER

Louis E. Tobey of 991 Broadway, Everett, Mass., who had come here to visit his wife who is in the hospital, had two wheels of his automobile smashed Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock as he was driving down Cedar street onto Broad street and Arthur Ouillett of this city, who was riding with him, received a cut in the chin when his head punched a hole through the windshield.

Mr. Tobey was unfamiliar with the locality and allowed his machine to get too much momentum on the Cedar street down grade. He could not make the turn at the corner and ran up on the sidewalk on Broad street.

Mr. Ouillett had his cut chin attended to at the Backus hospital.

WILL ANSWER CHARGE OF RECKLESS DRIVING

Clifford Gagnon, 246 East 30th St., New York city, will appear in the police court this (Monday) morning to answer a charge of reckless driving after a collision Saturday night between his motorcycle and automobile driven by John F. Doyle of 23 Hamilton avenue.

Doyle was driving up Broadway. He turned into the street at the southerly end of the little park and claimed that he was run into by Gagnon's motorcycle which had a sidecar attached. He accused Gagnon of reckless driving and Capt. D. J. Twomey summoned the New York man to court. The damage to each machine amounted to about $3.

CANNOT EXAMINE BOOKS OF PATY SCHWARTZ CO.

William Schmauk of New London, a heavy stockholder in, and former treasurer of the Paty Schwartz Co. of that city, is refused permission to examine the books of the company, in a memorandum decision filed by Judge John R. Booth of the superior court. Schmauk had applied for a writ of mandamus compelling the concern to permit him to inspect the books, and a hearing was held on June 26, at which time Attorney Morris Lubchansky, counsel for the Schwartz company, made a return, charging that Schmauk's only reason for inspecting the books was for the purpose of covering up alleged defalcations, and characterized any move of Schmauk to so inspect the books as being against the interests of the Schwartz Co.

Attorney Lubchansky charged the former treasurer of the company with falsifying checks, check stubs, and ledgers; drawing checks to himself and charging them to the corporation as for alleged transactions of the company, and in other ways defrauding the company.

Counsel for Schmauk had demurred to this return, claiming that the facts presented were not specific, and claiming that said return offered no legal reason why the books should not be inspected by Schmauk.

In his decision overruling the demurrer, Judge Booth states that the return alleges that the books of the corporation have been and are now open to the inspection of the relator, Ida Schmauk, and that she has made no demand at any time for such inspection.

These allegations then present an issue of fact, and not of law, so that the demurrer can have no application to the first two paragraphs of the return. The remainder of the return is given over to allegations relating to the rights of the relator, William Schmauk, to such inspection. These in substance, allege that the inspection is not desired for the purpose of determining the financial condition of the corporation or the value of the stock, but rather to prepare a defense to the alleged defalcation, and therefore is hostile to the interests of the corporation. An inspection for the hostile purpose will not be granted.

The return therefore having set up such a purpose, is sufficient and the demurrer is overruled.

FINDS SHIPPING BOARD OWES MORSES $2,572,955

The United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet corporation is found to owe the sum of $2,572,955.12 to the Virginia Shipbuilding corporation, the Groton Iron Works and other Morse interests, according to a report just submitted by C. E. Nichols, special commissioner to the United States court for the Eastern District of Virginia, by which court he was appointed a year and a half ago to hear the claims of both parties. With the report of Commissioner Nichols, litigation involving the Groton plant, the Virginia plant and other Morse subsidiaries, which has occupied the attention of various United States courts for the past several years passes into its final stages.

Judge Waddill, before whom the case was brought nearly two years ago, referred it to Commissioner Nichol, and the latter has been holding hearings, examining records and taking testimony ever since.

The original action was brought by the Virginia corporation against the shipping board in an effort to collect approximately $5,000,000 claimed to be due it and subsidiary concerns, including the Groton Iron Works, for vessels taken over by the shipping board. Ten vessels with a total tonnage of 94,000 were involved in the seizure.

In his report to the court, Commissioner Nichol finds that the evidence reviewed by him warrants the fixing of the price of the vessels at the time of seizure at $185 per ton.

According to court etiquette the prisoner comes before the judge.

AMERICAN ASSISTANCE IN REHABILITATION OF EUROPE

American Aid Will Be a Private Matter and Not Governmental—Assurance Given by Secretary Hughes in Address at Pilgrims' Dinner, London—Declares That Adjustment of the Dawes Plan Should Be Such That Americans Would Participate in the Absolutely Essential Loan—Mr. Hughes Spoke as "a Sympathetic and Unofficial Observer."

London, July 21—American assistance in necessary measures for the economic rehabilitation of Europe may be counted upon, Secretary Hughes of the American State Department said here tonight, speaking at the Pilgrims' dinner.

"It does not matter that this aid is not given by the government," Mr. Hughes continued. "I may give it as my conviction that had we attempted to make America's contribution to the recent plan of adjustment of a governmental matter we should have been involved in a hopeless debate and there would have been no adequate action.

"We should have been beset with demands, objections, instructions. This is not the way to make an American contribution to economic revival.

"You have the Dawes plan and you have had the participation of American experts with the liberty of constructive effort which was essential because it was undertaken in the only way in which success was possible. When you deal with economic rehabilitation you doubtless have in mind such contribution as America may be able to give as disinterested advice, and later in participation in the absolutely essential loan.

"The important, indeed the indispensable thing is that methods should be contrived and that your disposition should be such that assistance of that sort can be rendered.

"All discussions will be futile unless the arrangements ultimately made satisfy the investing public. We appreciate the difficulties, but we believe that the Dawes plan opens the path of confidence and prosperity. For that reason we are deeply interested in its prompt execution.

"My confidence that a way will be found to surmount all the existing difficulties lies in the fact that failure would invite chaos. There is no gain to any one in that. On the other hand, going forward with reasonable measures to put the plan into effect gives hope to all."

Mr. Hughes led up to his specific reference to the deliberations now in progress in London in an effort to find a way to put the Dawes plan into effect by saying that he was "off duty tonight," and that his status was that of a "sympathetic and unofficial observer." He was also, the secretary continued, returning in an informal way the visit of the Prince of Wales to the United States and took the opportunity to reaffirm President Coolidge's desire that there should be further conferences for the limitation of armaments "as soon as the time is opportune."

The American secretary then undertook to explain the reasons that compelled the United States to make its aid in the reparations tangle available as a private matter and not through governmental action. The American press, he said, expressed American sentiment from all points of view; American finance spoke for American investors who did not "look to the government for either advice or security," and American philanthropy needed "no government spur."

"These are the potent voices of America which do not wait for political action," Mr. Hughes said, "these are the outstretched arms of helpfulness which do not depend upon the muscular reactions of government."

When the question was raised abroad as to what American would do or say, Mr. Hughes continued, it must also be asked: "To what America do you put the question?" Whether to American finance, sentiment, philanthropy or the American government. It did not make for better understanding he added, to arouse expectations "which cannot be satisfied."

"It must be quite apparent to you," the secretary continued, "that in the international field our capacity for governmental action of a sustained character depends upon a predominant sentiment which brings the authorities of government into union of effort. There is no promise of helpfulness abroad in division at home."

Great Britain and the European nations, Mr. Hughes said, have clearly perceived national interest "often supported by a keen racial consciousness."

"We too have our interest," he continued, "but in the field of European controversies they are more remote than yours, not as direct as yours, and, with respect to such controversies, we have a different tradition. When American interests are directly involved and clearly perceived by our people, we are capable of unity of sentiment and action and in such a case our constitutional methods are no hindrance to efficiency as we showed in the great war. But when as a nation we are relatively disinterested, the very fact of that disinterestedness which may excite your appeal gives opportunity with us for the most acute divisions of sentiment among a people drawn from many races and countries who are still bound by ties of sentiment and interest to many lands.

"Dominant sentiment, I am quite sure, is absolutely opposed to commitments which would promise the action of congress in unknown contingencies. Our people insist upon their liberty to form their decisions as contingencies arise. But our people have a passion for peace; you may count upon America's devotion to this cause, and upon our purpose to cooperate with you and with others in every way that is congenial with our institutions in the interest of peace."

Mr. Hughes said he was especially glad to assure his hearers that they could count on American support, "on fair terms of institutions of international justice."

He pointed to "the platforms of both the great political parties upon his subject," as well as to utterances of President Coolidge in this connection.

DEFAULTS AND SANCTIONS CRUX OF REPARATIONS.

London, July 21—(By the A. P.)—Upon the reception which world financiers accord the report of the committee on defaults and sanctions, for the first time officially published tonight, will depend further developments in the inter-allied conference, which is seeking to launch the Dawes plan to solve the problem of German reparations.

This was the view expressed by careful observers after it was learned that the financial delegates to the conference had a prolonged meeting this afternoon with Sir Montagu Norman, governor of the bank of England, and Thomas Lamont representing the firm of J. P. Morgan and Co., of New York.

Meanwhile, the atmosphere about the conference continues one of hopeful anxiety." There are no grounds for pessimism, but clearly the note of optimism in order to carry weight now must come from the financiers who are to advance a loan of 40,000,000 pounds to Germany with which to finance the Dawes plan. As the committee report, now available to bankers, sets forth safeguards to surround this loan, the bankers themselves must be the judges of their sufficiency.

"The momentous character of the issues at stake—since it is admitted on all sides that the Dawes report must stand or fall on the loan—forbid prophesy, except on the part of prospective underwriters.

The text of the report of the committee on defaults and sanctions confirms the digests of the provisions already carried in these desaatches. It is provided that the reparation commission, enlarged to include an American member, shall be the sole judge as to whether Germany has made a default under the Dawes plan. This report, which it is proposed to incorporate into a protocol, further provides that in any contingency, including both default and resultant sanctions, the holders of the proposed German loan shall have a priority claim on all of Germany's state assets. Provision is made that the American member of the reparation commission shall be appointed by that commission within thirty days after adoption of the protocol.

"In the event of the reparation commission not being unanimous," says the text, "the appointment shall be made by the president for the time being of the permanent court of international justice at the Hague.

"The person appointed shall hold office for five years, and may be reappointed. In the event of any vacancy the same procedure shall apply to the appointment of his successor.

"Provided always that if the United States is officially represented by a delegate on the commission, any American citizen appointed under the foregoing provisions shall cease to be a member of the commission, and no fresh appointment under these provisions shall be made so long as the United States is so officially represented."

In the event the reparation commission adjudges Germany in default, the governments interested must confer at once on the nature of the sanctions to be applied, and "the method of their rapid and effective application." During the currency of the loan the allied powers agree not to apply sanctions unless the reparations commission declares a default, after taking the opinion of the agent-general for reparation payments and the representative of the foreign bondholders.

All the existing rights of the signatory powers under the treaty of Versailles in conjunction with the Dawes report are reserved.

GERMANY IS AWAITING OFFICIAL NOTIFICATION

Berlin, July 21.—(By the A. P.)—Until the German government is officially apprised by the London interallied conference that the presence of its representatives is desired there in connection with current discussions, no announcement will be forthcoming from official quarters regarding the personnel of the German delegation. Up to a late hour tonight the foreign office was still without positive information that an official invitation was under advisement in London.

Inspired communiques appearing this evening in the newspapers indicate that Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann would only proceed to London if Germany were afforded an unobstructed opportunity to negotiate over the method in which the Dawes plan is to be put into execution. Neither would undertake the trip if the presence of Germans in London were required merely for the purpose of ratifying an inter-allied pact which had been arranged without Germany's previous approval or consent.

The continued absence of definite information from the conference leaders with respect to the role to be assigned Germany in the current deliberations, and the general apprehension that Germany is merely to be called in to "sign on the dotted line," provoke much comment in papers of all partisan shades. While an authentic draft of the resolution reached on the question of sanctions is not yet available here, this phase of the London parleys, as reported in the press despatches, constitutes the chief source of German impatience, which finds free expression in the editorial comment.

The extremist organs refer to the sabotaging and mutilating of the Dawes report in connection with alleged decisions reached with reference to the imposition of future sanctions and the question of evacuation. They urge that unless the conference in plenary session makes an emphatic and unequivocal declaration on both points in keeping with the spirit letter of the Dawes report and the British note of August, 1923, disavowing the right of a single allied power to inflict territorial and other sanctions, the only answer at Germany's disposal in a categorical "No."

LEOPOLD AND LOEB HAVE PLEADED GUILTY AS MURDER

Chicago, July 21—(By the A. P.)—The fate of Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., kidnappers and slayers of 13 year old Robert Franks, was today placed in the hands of one man—John R. Caverly, chief justice of the criminal court of Cook county, when they pleaded guilty.

Apparently the only question remaining to be decided is whether they shall hang or be imprisoned for a double crime without parallel in this jurisdiction.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, reiterated his intention of asking the death penalty for the two college students.

Clarence S. Darrow and Benjamin Bachrach, attorneys for the defense, announced in court their purpose to save their clients "safely incarcerated for life."

"We have had no intention of trying to restore them to society," explained Mr. Darrow.

Thus he answered a question that has been widely discussed since the killing—whether the combined wealth of two of the oldest and richest families of Chicago, estimated to have resources of more than $10,000,000, would be used to try to set free their two minor sons.

The unexpected denouement stunned a courtroom crowd of attorneys, newspapermen, court attaches and a few privileged spectators and upset all plans for the trial which had been scheduled to begin August 4.

Instead of starting Wednesday, there will be a judicial hearing before an empty jury box.

That the defense was content to await the developments from this hearing was emphasized by the story silence that was maintained by all concerned with the defendants. The boys themselves, their parents special counsel of the families and the active defense attorneys all declined to discuss the proceedings. The prosecution was a bit more communicative.

"The plea of guilty admits the sanity of the defendants," said Mr. Crowe tonight. "The question of insanity is entirely out of the case now. All the defense can offer at the hearing is evidence tending to mitigate the punishment. Whether they can establish that remains to be seen.

"I am going to ask the death penalty in the interest of society. I have about 75 witnesses and will present all the facts in the possession of the state so that the court may be fully advised as to the exact nature of the crime. It will take from ten days to two weeks to do this."

DIVIDED ON RIGHTS OF PROHIBITION AGENTS

Boston, July 21—The right of federal prohibition agents to serve search warrants was upheld today by the United States circuit court of appeals through a decision by Judge George H. Bingham, with Judge Charles F. Johnson concurring, but it was denied in a long dissenting opinion by Judge George W. Anderson. Judge Anderson said in part:

"They (prohibition agents) are merely the hired assistants of various subordinates, employed and discharged at pleasure. Their position carries no assurance of care and responsibility in exercising the extraordinary powers conducted by such warrants, which are easily capable of oppression and abuse. Victims or their misdoings under claim of federal power are remediless unless the wrong-doer happens to be financially able to respond in damages—which will be rare.

"Only plain language would warrant us in holding that congress intended to vest such a power in a mass of employes selected, as the prohibition officers are to deal with misdemeanor only, I find no such plain language, but the reverse."

The decision was on an appeal from the district court by Peter Iliani F. Keenan of Rhode Island, who was convicted of violation of the federal prohibition act.

PERSIAN GOVERNMENT PROMPT IN PUNISHMENT

Washington, July 21—Prompt action by the Persian government in punishing those responsible for the murder of American Vice Consul Robert Imbrie and the serious injury of Melin Seymour, also an American, at Teheran, was indicated today in dispatches from Joseph S. Kornfeld, American minister to Persia.

The dispatch said that Khalosi Zodeh, a leading religious dignitary and 200 others suspected of participating in the attack had been arrested.

"The entire press," it added, "is filled with denunciation of the murder at a time when the cordial relations between Persia and the United States were unrivalled."

Rep. Campaign is To be Nation-Wide

Leaders Are Not to Seek Sectional Support Through Concentration.

Washington, July 21.—Intention of republican leaders to conduct a nation-wide rather than sectional campaign in behalf of Coolidge and [illegible] was announced here tonight by William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee.

"We do not propose to seek support in one section of the country through concentrated and obvious effort, and to try to gain it in another section by silence and evasion of issues,' Mr. Butler said in a statement issued at headquarters of the national committee after a day of conferences.

The statement added that "the suggestion that the campaign must be centered here or there to assure success, or that we must bombard any particular state or group of states, can come only from political parties or candidates that lack national appeal and view point.

Arriving here early today, Mr. Butler had a brief conference with President Coolidge at the White House and then went to the national committee headquarters where he engaged in a series of political discussion with party leaders, including Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, and former Representatives F. C. Hicks of New York.

Announcement later was made that Mr. Hicks, who represented the first New York district in the sixty-fourth to sixtiy-seventh congresses, would take charge immediately of the eastern headquarters which were opened by Mr. Butler last week at No. 2 West 46th street, New York city. Mr. Hicks before leaving Washington conferred with President Coolidge.

Some indications were given today that the president might make more speeches than originally had been planned.

Possibly eight to ten in rather widely separated cities, but it was declared flatly that no final decision had been reached as to the number and not even a tentative decision as to the cities.

Mr. Butler in his statement, after announcing the selection of Mr. Hicks as chairman of the party's eastern headquarters, said:

"July forecasting is hardly an achievement. I will say though that judging from the character of the letters, telegrams and messages which I have received as well as interviews which I had in Chicago and in New York, there is no lack of confidence among the republicans of the country. I have been particularly pleased in receiving a large number of communications from men and women who admit that their interest in past campaigns has only been incidental, but who are now anxious to participate in the present campaign.

"I am almost ready to make on prediction, namely, that the November election of this year will show a larger total participation than any election we have ever had. I anticipate that not less than thirty million men and women will vote. The signs seem to be in the air and I have every expectation that President Coolidge will gain by this increased total vote.

"The presidential campaign will be nation-wide. We do not propose to seek support in one section of the country through concentrated and vious effort, and to try to gain it in another section by silence and evasion of issues. We have a party platform and a presidential ticket that make it possible to conduct a campaign everywhere in the open, as energetically in one part of the country as in another, and to present our cause with the utmost frankness."

KLANSMAN'S HOME ATTACKED BY ANTI-KLANSMEN

Naugatuck, July 21.—A masked group of anti-Ku Klux Klan men, shortly after 10 o'clock tonight attacked the home of Charles Dwy, said to be a member of the Klan. After breaking windows of the house and doing other damage, the men fled when Dwy, armed with a shotgun, threatened to shoot into the crowd around the porch. Dwy's six months' old child was nearly hit by stones.

Dwy first answered a knock on the door and refused to go on the lawn when asked. He invited the men inside and three men rushed at him. His wife then got the gun and handed it to him and the masked men ran away.

While the sticks and stones were being hurled at the house, said Dwy, another group of men with handkerchiefs over their eyes, were attempting to disconnect the telephone wires. This also stopped when Dwy appeared with the gun.

A hurried call to police headquarters resulted in the sending of a policeman to the house after the crowd had gone. Dwy demanded police protection, declaring that he is a law-abiding citizen. He told the police that he was attacked because he attended the recent klan meetings at Watertown and Cheshire. He did not say whether he is a member of the invisible empire.

Charles Messner, also reputed to be a member of the klan, was attacked near the home of Dwy, whom he had been to see earlier in the evening. He suffered a broken nose and other injuries. Prosecuting Attorney C. I. Tolles and the chief of police have already started an investigation of the affair.

Five Persons Hurt In Auto Collision

On the Colchester-New London Highway Two Miles South of Colchester

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Colchester, July 21.—Five people, three from New Haven and two from Springfield, Mass., were injured this afternoon about 4 o'clock when two automobiles crashed head-on, on the Colchester-New London highway, about two miles south of this place. The New Haven people were picked up by a Norwich man who made a quick run to the Backus hospital in Norwich, while the Springfield people were rushed to the Lawrence Memorial hospital in New London for treatment.

Just how the accident occurred was not explained but it was said that both cars were traveling at a fair rate of speed when suddenly the Hupmobile coupe, from Springfield veered to the left and struck the Franklin sedan from New Haven, wrecking both machines and injuring several of the occupants of both cars.

The people taken to the Backus hospital were Harry Rasisruher, Irving Flesch and Miss Claire Schoenberger of New Haven, the first two suffering cuts and bruises, the young woman having a broken arm in addition to other bruises. After receiving treatment Miss Schoenberger was taken back to New Haven by ambulance, being accompanied by her mother, Mrs. William Schoenberger, who was uninjured. Other members of the party were also discharged from the hospital early in the evening.

Those taken to the Lawrence Memorial hospital were Mrs. Mary Pulairenti of Springfield, Mass., and her daughter, Miss Inez Fossa. The former suffered injuries about the head, the nature of which had not been determined late Monday night. Her daughter was suffering with minor injuries.

SLUMP IN PROSPECTIVE PRODUCTION OF COTTON

Washington, July 21.—A slump in the prospective production of cotton this year, due principally to excessive rains in the Carolinas during the three weeks between June 25, and July 16, was shown today in the semi-monthly cotton report of the department of agriculture. A forecast of 11,934,000 equivalent to 500 pound bales as compared with a crop of 10,128,478 bales last year, was made by the crop reporting board. That is approximately 100,000,000 pounds less than forecast on July 8, and represents a hypothetical loss of probably $25,000,000 or more to southern cotton growers.

North Carolina was hardest hit, loss in prospective production there amounting to about 50,000,000 pounds. Washing rains and hail storms greatly damaged the plants in North Carolina and some abandonment took place there. Excessive rainfalls harmed the South Carolina crop also. In Louisiana protracted drought in the northern and northwestern parts of the state was the cause of deterioration.

The late-planted crop in Texas is in the balance and unless rain comes soon it will not amount to much. The cotton flea is doing more damage in the southern part of the state than the boll weevil and grasshoppers are still damaging crops as they are in Oklahoma.

Georgia's cotton prospects are better than they have been for several years.

MORGAN SAILS SATURDAY FOR ANNUAL VACATION

New York, July 21—J. P. Morgan will sail next Saturday on the Minnewaska for his annual vacation in Europe. His holiday, as usual, will include the autumn hunting season in Scotland.

While the banker denied that his trip had any connection with the forthcoming German loan, the financial district considered that the presence of Mr. Morgan in Europe would lead European experts to seek his advice regarding its floatation. If arrangements are concluded for an offering this year, the American portion of the estimated $200,000,000 total probably will be marketed through a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.

Thomas W. Lamont, another member of the Morgan firm, is now in Europe and it is expected he and Mr. Morgan will confer in London.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 21.—The Niagara Falls end of what is believed to be a nationwide counterfeiting plot was revealed this evening by the arrest of Joseph Sottile, one of the best known Italians in the city. Sottile was arraigned before a federal commission by Edward J. McHugh of the United States secret service and held in $10,000 bail.

The specific charge against Sottile is possessing and mailing counterfeit plates and other material used in counterfeiting. It is alleged that the plates mailed here were intended for the use of a gang now flooding large cities in the east with counterfeit bills.

Secret service men making the arrest would not discuss the case, but it is understood simultaneous arrests will be made elsewhere.

STEAMSHIP BOSTON RAMMED; CALLS FOR ASSISTANCE 2 1-2 MILES OFF POINT JUDITH ALL PASSENGERS PUT OFF IN LIFEBOATS

Report Says That Four Passengers Were Killed When the Boston Was Rammed by the Oil Tanker Swift Arrow—All Passengers and Crew, Except the Captain and Wireless Operator, Were Taken Off in Boats and Are Being Picked Up by the Swift Arrow—Collision Was Due to Heavy Fog—The U. S. S. Ascushnet Has Abandoned Rum Row Patrol and Under Forced Draught is Speeding to the Assistance of the Disabled Steamer—Steamers in New London Are in Readiness to Put Out This Morning to Render Aid.

Newport, R. I. July 22—The loss of four passengers in a collision early today between the passenger liner Boston, of the Eastern Steamship's Boston-New York service and the oil tanker Swift Arrow, two and one half miles southeast of Point Judith, early today was reported by radiograms.

It was stated that all the other passengers, who may number from 100 to 900, were off the stricken steamship. The Boston was without lights, without steam and unable to use her signal whistle.

All the passengers and crew, except the captain and the wireless operator, were taken off in the boats, and were being picked up by the Swift Arrow, which was only slightly damaged and the other ships.

Although the first messages said that the Priscilla, a Fall River liner was involved, later messages established the identity of the vessel that rammed the Boston as the Swift Arrow, a tanker, bound for San Francisco from Fall River, Mass.

It was stated that the Boston was leaking badly, and that the Swift Arrow was standing by whistling for help.

The messages conaining word of the loss of four lives indicated that they were passengers on the Boston.

Radio messages picked up here early today said that the Eastern steamship liner Boston carrying passengers from Boston for New York, was in distress.

The Boston is a new twin screw steamer on the Boston-New York service, alternating trips with her new sister ship the New York.

Her course took her through the Cape Cod canal in the early evening, thence down Buzzard's bay into Narragansett bay and Block Island Sound.

Immediately upon receipt of the word of accident, arrangements were made to dispatch naval vessels from the station here.

The steamer Boston normally carried nine hundred persons and the traffic between Boston and New York at this season of the year is at its height.

Calls were sent to a steamer referred to as the "C. A. Smith," apparently in the vicinity, to come up to the Boston's position, with the request that she whistle when she approached.

This was accepted as an indication that conditions aboard were not serious at the moment.

The collision apparently was due to fog, which was reported heavy along the Block Island sound waters.

The messages gave no hint as to the identity of the other vessel involved in the collision.

The coast guard cutter Acushnet detached herself from duty along rum row in Block Island sound and hastened to the Boston's aid.

REPORT SAYS FOUR PASSENGERS WERE KILLED

New York, July 21—Distress signals from the steamer Boston received here by naval communication late tonight stated that the ship was in need of immediate assistance, and that all the passengers had been put off in lifeboats.

The wireless call picked up here said that the Boston had been rammed by another ship, the name of which was not learned, east of Point Judith. The U. S. S. Acushnet left Narragansett under forced draught immediately upon receipt of the S. O. S. calls, it was stated at the naval communications station.

The Boston, a combined freight and passenger ship, has accommodations for 1,068 passengers, it is not known how many were aboard tonight.

The S. S. New York, a sister ship of the Boston, was launched last January and a week ago rammed a ferryboat in the Hudson river off Warren street, New York city. No one was injured but a large hole was torn in the side of the ferry.

Later information received by the Independent Wireless Telegraph company, at East Hampton, N. Y., stated that four passengers had been killed when the Boston was rammed amidships.

The Commonwealth and the New York asked the Boston by wireless to blow her whistle, to indicate her exact position in the fog but the rammed ship replied that she had no steam, and therefore could not comply.

The Boston was rammed in a heavy fog which prevented the other ship from being seen until it was within a few yards of the passenger liner. The S. S. Commonwealth, and the S. S. New York, a sister ship of the Boston, immediately answered the distress calls and were standing by a short time later.

The fog was so heavy that the rescuing ships dared not approach the Boston too closely, and drifted about playing their searchlights over the water. The radius of visibility was reported as extremely short, and the steamers could only pick up passengers whose boats happened to come within the circle of light.

The Boston navy yard picked up a message reporting the steamship Boston in distress, asking for assistance, 2 1-2 miles off Point Judith, R. I.

The Boston, launched on October 27, 1923, at Sparrows Point, Md., is 402 feet over-all; beam over guards, 72 feet; speed, nineteen knots; has cubic freight capacity, 90,300 feet; and sleeping accommodations for 960. Her propelling machinery consisted of single reduction geared turbines, driving twin screws on six single Scotch boilers. She is an oil burner.

The Boston was sponson sided, with complete double bottoms. She has seven transverse water tight bulkheads carried up to the main deck. She was plated with light steel between the main and hurricane decks and the saloon deck amidships, and from the stem aft sixty feet.

WILLIMANTIC

William J. Burke, of Uncasville, was charged in the local police court with breaking and entering a flat at 133 Union street occupied by Henry Cyr. Burke said that he was not guilty of breaking but appeared willing to state that he was guilty of entering. His case was continued until this (Tuesday) morning at 9 o'clock under bonds of $500. Burke is charged with breaking the lock on the front door of the Cyr flat, entering the place and stealing a gold watch, a diamond ring, a pair of earrings and a few other trinkets. The act was committed on the afternoon of July 16. The police were notified by a woman that a man whose right hand had been cut off had been seen in the hallway of the building on the afternoon of the date mentioned. Burke answered to the description in every detail and he has been sought by the police since that time. Burke was questioned on Main street, Sunday afternoon by Traffic Officer Lariviere but was not taken into custody. Early in the evening he was spotted by Lieutenant Frank McLean who took him to police headquarters where he was identified by the complainant. Up to his identification Burke had denied having any connection with the break, but he later confessed to the theft, although insisting that he did not break the lock. Burke said that he had sold a diamond ring for a small sum to a Norwich jeweler the day after the break and the police are investigating this information.

The new fire sirens installed at the corner of Bank and Main streets and at Lincoln Square were put into practical use for the first time shortly before 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, when members of the Bank Street Engine company No. 1 answered to a box alarm. The call was for a grass fire on the Chapman street side of the Hillhouse & Taylor coal yard and it was believed that one of the sheds was afire. An accident was narrowly averted by the expert driving of Charles A. Reynolds who operated the LaFrance pumper when a Rhode Island Ford machine stopped in the street just as the big pumper was pulling out of Bank street. The driver of the Rhode Island car was under trying circumstances as he could hear the siren and the oncoming fire apparatus but failed to find a parking space due to a long fleet of cars which lined the curb. Assistant Chief Henry J. Kelley also rode on the pumper. The hook and ladder truck also answered the call under orders of Chief Tighe. The fire was quickly extinguished.

He was fined $15 and costs amounting to $22.15 and was placed on probation for three months.

The Baptist Sunday school picnic was held Saturday afternoon at Pachaug Fair Ground one hundred and forty attending. Games arranged by George H. Prio rand Robert A. Wilbur occupied the time. Francis Campbell umpired the ball game, and the only friendly criticism to offer was that a pair of spectacles was not provided for him, that he could discriminate between a ball and a strike. Other committees which made the picnic a success were; on refreshments Miss Alice A. Brown's class; lemonade, Charles F. Gardner's class, time and place, C. F. A man coming over the state road from Plainfield the other day reported two effective breeds of scare crows in a class by themselves. One man had six inch squares of bright new tin, tied to strings stretched across the lot. These tins are kept whirling by every draft of air, and when the sun is shining the effect produced is remarkable. Flashes of light moved at every angle all around the field. A crow or any other marauder bent on pilling corn, would have to wear smoked glasses or be blinded. Another device near the railroad track is seen in a big field of corn that is covered with foot squares of paper fastened to the ground with wooden pins driven through the middle. When the wind blows, especially at dusk, the moving papers are an unusual sight and have kept the corn robbers away.

The Basic Economy of the Cadillac

It is perhaps true that the average purchaser of a Cadillac is not concerned, primarily, with its economy.

And for just that reason, as he drives the car year after year, he finds added cause for satisfaction in his investment.

He discovers,—what veteran owners of the Cadillac have long realized—that its longevity, its constant, enduring performance, is the truest form of economy.

Because of Cadillac materials, Cadillac engineering and Cadillac craftsmanship, the new V-63 lasts as long as an automobile can last, and with reasonable care out-lives two ordinary cars.

It is practicable to drive it throughout this long range of life, if one wishes, because even after years of service the Cadillac remains consistently fine and fashionable.

Moreover, daily operating costs are moderate, and Cadillac dependability is such that thrifty performance is a rule and even minor adjustments are a rarity.

* * * *

Thus, the four factors which constitute TRUE economy—freedom from repairs, long mileage at low cost, slow depreciation and high resale value—are so well combined in the Cadillac that many consider it the most economical car.

PALACE BOWLING ALLEYS ARE BEING REMODELED

The Palace alleys in the Thayer building owned by Peter Gustimachis are being remodeled and will be opened for business on Wednesday. The whole layout of the alleys in the basement have been changed allowing more space for pool and billiards and also giving more space for the bowling. The alleys have been pushed back about forty feet so that the pits are now at the north end of the building where the pool and billiard room was formerly located.

The south end of the basement has been partitioned off given a large and light pool parlor with six tables. The run to the bowling alleys has been lengthened by the change and there is more room for spectators. The lighting arrangement has been changed so that all alleys are flooded with a white light. The alleys themselves have been resurfaced and are now in the best of condition.

The walls are to be redecorated and a new sanitary toilet has been installed so that in every way the alleys are most up to date.

Breed Theatre

Can a wife win freedom and happiness and disregard her home duties? Is the question asked in the photoplay version of A. S. M. Hutchinson's newest novel, This Freedom, which was shown for the first time Sunday at the Breed theatre. It would seem from the dramatic story presented in this picture that the author is right and that only the exceptional woman can be successful both in a job and in her home life. This book was the most discussed novel of the year and has been transferred to the screen in a manner that makes the characters seemingly step right out of the book. In presenting this picture William Fox has given us another classic of the screen to rank with his production of If Winter Comes. Hutchinson's other best seller. The photoplay seems to be perfect in every detail and includes some unusually fine photography. Denison Clift, an American director, filmed the picture in England on the exact locations selected by the author who also titled the picture. This Freedom is a picture well worth seeing. It strikes a popular chord and appeals to all classes. The picture will be shown at the Breed theatre until Tuesday.

A Kinograms completed a delightful program.

PALACE REVIEW

Most of the audience who came yesterday to witness the opening of Elinor Glyn's How to Educate a Wife, at the Palace theatre, were not disappointed. On the contrary, they got the treat of their lives.

The acting of Marie Prevost and Monte Blue in the leading roles is a thing worth seeing. Marie as the wife who tries to help her struggling husband to success by flirting with his clients, and Monte as the husband who likes the idea of educating his wife to help him, until the moment when his jealously masters him, and he sees red. Good, too, was the acting of Claude Gillingwater, Vera Lewis, Betty Francisco, Creighton Hale, Edward Earle and Nellie Bly Baker.

Barnum Jr., two reel comedy, Pathe News and famous Palace orchestra complete this high class program.

Coming Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Elain Hammerstein in The Drums of Jeopardy with Jack Mulhall and Wallace Beery.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The profits to be made on a successful trip are the chief lure of such rumrunners as were rounded up on the Jewett City-Taftville road the past week by State Officers Comstock and Stephens of the Danielson barracks. Had such a load of alcohol as that captured gone through safely the rum runners, it is understood, had a profit of approximately $250 on each car full. Belgium alcohol such as they were running is selling, it is stated, for about $4 a gallon in Rhode Island. It is said to bring a much higher price than that in New Haven. It may be readily seen that two trips a week, if successful, would net a rum runner $500, or enough to pay such a fine as was imposed upon them in the Lisbon court. A desperate game is that of the rum runners, but they are a hardy crew, inclined to take all kinds of chances to get what they consider easy money. They are much after the type of the buccaneers of old. Of interest in considering their calling is the fact that they use high-powered, high-speed cars and it is asserted on good authority that one of those taken in by Officers Comstock and Stephens last week is capable of doing 75 miles an hour—and the man who has sat back of its steering wheel doesn't hesitate to make it do that when occasion requires.

Some cases growing out of the motor vehicle regulations relative to headlights claimed attention, at Monday morning's session of the town court, Judge W. Fenner Woodward presiding. Thomas Caffery of Killingly and Joseph Tibeault of Goodyear were each fined $5 and costs, a total of $15.74, for having lenses in their machines not approved as legal.

The case of Theodore Saucier of the Mashentuck section was again continued until today. Monday his brother, Raymond Saucier, was arrested to face a charge similar to that filed against Theodore. It is alleged against them that they are involved in the disappearance of about 150 chickens from the Henry Smith place in Mashentuck. About 100 of the chickens smothered in the bags in which they were taken away. The live chickens have been recovered. Both Sauciers were at Brooklyn jail Monday, in default of $500 each.

Another case that will be before the court this morning has to do with an alleged violation of the motor vehicle laws.

To be opened in a very few days is the new vacation house, Kingswood, in Kingswood Manor, in the ancient Church street section, not distant from Old Trinity church. The new structure is a three-story building and will have accommodations for 30 girls. It is located on a beautiful estate of 200 acres formerly known as The Elms and named in honor of the giant trees near the highway.

Miss Jane M. Camp will be in charge of Kingswood.

Miss Morgan has been engaged for the past 30 years in doing wonderful things like this for working girls. The girls who have been at her place in Brooklyn for a number of years past have come largely from Hartford.

The Meaning of Negro Migration will be the subject of an address to be given in the Congregational church here Thursday evening of next week by Rev. Henry Hugh Proctor, D. D., pastor of th Nazarene Congregational church of Brooklyn, N. H. Rev. Mr. Proctor is a leader among the colored preachers of the denomination and of the country.

Danielson people are af the Douglass camp meeting this week—the 50th anniversary meeting—and there will be other visitations from this place during the camp meeting period.

PUTNAM

Nearly $150 has been received in contributions for the board of children from the east side tenement districts of New York, who will arrive next month for a two weeks' outing in the country as guests of the New York Tribune's fresh air fund. This will take care of 15 children but it does not by any means mean that only 15 or 20 children will come to this section. For the past several years many people have thrown their homes open to these little ones and they will do it again this year, without doubt. The money will be used in paying board at the rate of $4 a week, barely enough to cover expenses in families that do not feel able to stand the whole expense themselves. All the contributions thus far are from private individuals except one, that of $40 from Putnam lodge of Elks. Mrs. W. J. Bartlett is chairman of the work in Putnam, Mrs. Frank Decker, Thompson, Miss Lelia Holt, Woodstock and Miss Eleanor Mathewson, Pomfret.

Members of the Putnam Women's Coolidge club, formed but three days ago, are already active in securing members, also in inducing women to be made voters. Printed cards requesting the signer to be enrolled in the club are being generously distributed as are applications to be made voters and for enrollment on the caucus lists. The women republicans certainly have a start on their husbands and brothers in the campaign, for so far there is no organization to which men are eligible, either in the republican or democratic parties. The republican women of Putnam are certainly taking campaigning seriously and will have a well running organization within the next few weeks.

Members of the merchants' committee of the Putnam chamber of commerce are to meet today (Tuesday) to discuss the advisability of having free band concerts on Union square again this year. A canvass of the merchants relative to financing the concerts has been made and it is understood did not meet with much encouragement, especially from those whose stores are not in close proximity to the square. These merchants feel that, while the band concerts attract people to the city, the location is so far from their places of business that they get little benefit. Some of them say that as soon as the concert starts up people hurry from their store and go up the street where the band is playing.

Last year hundreds of people came to the city and the folk dancing in the square was greatly enjoyed. Citizens generally hope that the concerts may be arranged again this year, but the point of view of the merchants however is plain. It is a business proposition with most of them and if they cannot feel that they get some return for their investment there is no more reason why they should be under added expense, especially with the present depressed business conditions, any more than any other citizen. It would be a benefit to all to have the concerts and the financing might be done by the city, especially as no entertainment has been provided for the public on any of the holidays thus far this year.

A number of Putnam lawyers are on their summer vacations. As far as can be learned Putnam will not be represented at the summer meeting and luncheon of the State Bar Association at the Griswold, Groton, Wednesday.

The Plainfield Bowling Club went to Baltic and was defeated in a tournament by the club of that town by 44 points. This is the second match between the two teams, Plainfield taking the honors in the first game by a margin of 78 points. The rubber will be played at the local green in two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Swanson and John W. Davis motored to the Pier Sunday.

Miss Lillian Crooks has returned after spending a few days with her friends in New York.

Automobile drivers can take warning about speeding in either village of the Lawton Mill property. If they should desire the company can make it impossible for reckless drivers to run their cars on the mill property. Some drivers seem to think that corporation expended a few thousand dollars to make speedways for automobiles rather than to improve the property by putting all overhead wires underground and making lawns for their tenants.

Before the roads were moved they ran up to the steps in both villages, making it hazardous for persons coming out of their houses. It is not so perilous for the grown ups as it is for children. Barring jay-walkers an older person will generally look out for his own safety, but children can not be depended upon.

A few speeders who were reported to the mill officials were given due warning as to what would happen should such another report be made against them.

The Plainfield Shooting club held a meet Saturday when the following scores were made: Dr. Chase 24; Dr. Adams, 22; George Babcock 19; William Bradford 12; William Cantwell 16; William Gorman 18; Mr. Dawley 15; Lester Salisbury 16; Dr. Adams made a score of 71 out of 75 but this does not go on record.

The children joined in various games and went in swimming during the day. Irene Evans exhibited her endurance by swimming the width of the pond, which is over a mile.

The majority of the children carried lunches and enjoyed them under the shade of the trees. Father Morrissey furnished ice cream, soda, hot dogs and buns for the children.

Miss Eva Higgenbotham spent the week end with friends in Block Island.

The usual concert by Plainfield Band, supposed to be played at Frink's Wednesday evening, is being postponed on account of the carnival.

NEW LONDON'S NEW MOTOR CAMP TO BE IN CHARGE OF E. E. KENERSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 21.—At a meeting of the city council held this evening it was voted to establish a motor camp at Riverside park. Superintendent Elmer E. Kenerson will be in charge of the camp and the fee of 25 cents that will be charged each autoist will be the salary Kenersot will receive. The fee will permit the motorist to erect a tent in the park and enjoy all other privileges there.

Mrs. Eugene A. Fuller, from Shelter Island, is being entertained by her cousin, Miss Georgia Reeve, of Blinman street.

Pete Peterson, 511 Willetts avenue, was arrested this afternoon by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock and Traffic Officer William Corcoran for using the sidewalk as a place of parking his automobile. The car had been driven partially upon the sidewalk instead of being parked alongside the curb. Peterson will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

James Casey, of New London, was before Justice of the Peace Marion R. Davis this evening at Niantic charged with reckless driving. He was taken into custody by the state police when detected operating his automobile at an excessive rate of speed. A fine of $5 and costs was imposed Casey paid about $25.

Adrian Murray, of Jefferson avenue was taken into custody this morning by State Policeman Robert Anderson of the Groton barracks charged with reckless driving. The case was continued a week when it was called in the police court this morning Murray was arrested as a result of the automobile he was driving Saturday midnight being in collision with a car owned and operated by Charles Ramage of Uncasville, on Williams street extension. Both cars were smashed and amage is under treatment at Lawrence hospital suffering from a fractured left arm and lacerations, while Murray is nursing a lacerated head and numerous bruises of the body and legs. Murray places the responsibility for the accident upon the driver of a third car, who made his get-away following the crash. Murray asserts that the driver of the third car, which was proceeding southerly and in the same direction as the accused, struck Murray's car and caused its course to be diverted and made it plunge across the highway and into the front end of Ramage's machine.

There is a report in circulation that the Kresge company, of Detroit, Mich., which has leased the Avery estate property on State street, will erect a modern structure intended for the conduct of heir business. The lease of the property, it is understood, is for a term of 99 years, but the exact terms will not be revealed until the lease is filed for record, the Kresge company desiring that the contents of the lease be not made public. However it is reported that the company will have a modern building erected upon the site with an entrance constructed in the rear leading from one store to the other as the intended new building will surround a structure not included in the lease.

Abraham Katz, proprietor of a grocery store corner of Harrison and Tenth street and who occupies a portion of the building as a residence, reported to the police early this morning that the place had been entered during his absence and that a considerable amount of plunder, including two diamond rings of the value of $200, a diamond scarf pin, valued at $50, two watches of the aggregate value of $60, knives and forks, worth $25, and $15 in cash had been stolen. The police conducted an investigation but could not find any evidence of the place having been entered. Shortly after noon today Mrs. Katz informed the police that she had found some of the jewelry reported as having been stolen, and also the knives and forks and it is the belief of the police that the other jewelry and money alleged to have been stolen will also found. Katz and his wife left their home about 10.30 oclock, going for an automobile ride. They returned about an hour later and upon entering the house, they assert, they found everything in confusion and that thieves had ransacked the store and house. Katz informed Patrolmen George McCaskey and Dennis Murphy of the supposed break, but the officers were unable to obtain any clues to substantiate the claim of Katz.

Announcement is made of the engagement of George Albert High, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. High, of Providence to Miss Dorothy Leslie Jewett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S Jewett, of Phillips street.

Alfonso Swire, a negro who has been a shoe shiner at the barber shop in the Crocker house building for a considerable time, will be there no more until after Labor day, if indeed he receives his mail there after that time. Police Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh has been keeping an eye on Alfonso because the policeman was of the opinion that Alfonso was doing business with booze. He possessed this notion when he observed strangers enter the Swire house in North Bank street late at night—very late. These strangers came away from the house within a few minutes after they entered. Sunday night Lonnie Marx also colored, rushed up to the Swire tenement and in ten minutes was hopping out like a sparrow. He hopped right into the clutches of Policeman Hill, who was on watch by assignment of Sergeant Cavanaugh. Hill asked Marx to disclose what he had in his pocket. "Why that's gin that I bought from Swire," was the substance of the reply from Marx. Marx was locked up and then the policemen searched the Swire house. They found no liquor, but when Swire attempted to convince Judge Prince this morning that Marx went to the house to get an empty bottle at 12.30 at night he attempted foolish task. The court would not believe the statement, especially as Swire is now on probation, he having been convicted of selling booze last September. Today Swire was fined $200 and sent to jail to stay thirty days.

Moss Allard, colored, was charged with an assault upon his wife and was sentenced to three months in jail for it. Mrs. Allard needs his support though, and the court suspended execution of the judgment for a year that Moss might be tried as to his promise to reform. His wife said he was all right when he did not hoist in booze, but that when he drank liquor he was "just a terror."

Harold Alvord was charged with neglect to conform to the rules of the road while operating an automobile past intersecting streets. He is to come to court Tuesday to tell about his experience.

Fred Berger was to have been there today for violation of the automobile laws, but he failed to appear and $15 that he deposited as a bond when he was taken into custody was forfeited.

Dave Podden was fined $5 for intoxication. A couple of tramps who rode into town on a train without paying any fare were ordered to get out of town without delay.

Moses Zagha, a Syrian, was fined $5 for peddling dry goods without a license so to do.

In an effort to put an end to speeding of automobiles at the corner of Jefferson avenue and Broad street, where numerous accidents and one fatality has occurred of late, Sergt. Clifford Gorgas, of the Groton barracks of the state police, has caused an officer to be station at the danger point the greater part of the day and evening. Officer Robert Anderson was on duty there Saturday night and while watching the passing of the hundreds of cars the officer espied a car, owned and operated by John McMahon, 27 Bigelow street, Thompsonville, pass the intersecting highways at a speed of approximately 42 miles an hour. McMahon was overtaken by the officer several miles from the danger spot and ordered into the Waterford town court this morning. When presented before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton a fine of $25 and costs was imposed on a charge of reckless driving. McMahon did not have sufficient money in his possession to pay the fine and costs, so he left his automobile in the custody of Justice Morton while he went to Thompsonville and secured the necessary funds to liquidate, returning to Waterford this afternoon, paying the fine and costs and taking charge of his car.

An automobile owned and driven by Richard Morgan, 71 Blackhall street, and a car owned and driven by Richard Losier, 57 Pleasant street, Brockton, Mass., and with Mrs. Losier as a passenger, collided last night at the foot of Logger Hill. Both cars were damaged, but the occupants of the machine escaped injury. Both Morgan and Losier were taken into custody charged with reckless driving. When given a hearing before Justice Morton this forenoon both drivers escaped prosecution, their cases being nolled as Morgan agreed to pay the cost of repairing Losier's car. Where the accident occurred a dangerous curve exists and drivers unfamiliar with the highwhy are liable to accident, no matter how carefully they operate their cars. There was no evidence to show that either driver was operating his machine at a high rate of speed and with Morgan willing to assume the responsibility for the accident by defraying the costs of making repairs to Losier's car and with this adjustment being satisfactory to the latter, the case was thrown out of court.

E. D. Patterson, manager of the Packard garage, 391 Williams street, reported to the police this morning that some time last Thursday night or early Friday morning a Rickenbacker coupe was stolen from the garage.

Isham Chappell, Waterford's oldest resident celebrated his 94th birthday today and throughout the afternoon and early evening Mr. Chappell received felicitations from many acquaintances. Mr. Chappell, who is in apparent good health, was born at Lakes Pond June 21, 1830, the son of the Rev. Gurdon T. and Mary Ann Avery Chappell. In 1862 Mr. Chappell married Ellen Avery, whose death occurred eighteen years ago. There are two children, Mrs. Frank P. Rose of Waterford and Mrs. Lillian Cone, of Brooklyn. An automobile owned and operated by W. A. Reynolds, 8 Cottage street, Groton, and a machine owned and driven by Harry Gordon, 35 Thames street, Groton, were in collision Sunday night, near the submarine base. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Platt of Springfield, Mass., are spending a fortnight with Mrs. Platt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Graves, of Williams street.

An automobile owned and operated by George Randall Smith, 251 Pequot avenue, a musician at the Crown theatre, was damaged this afternoon when it was bumped by a car owned and operated by Charles Deeley, 30 Walton street, Dorchester, Mass. Smith lodged complaint against Deeley and the latter was arrested charged with reckless driving. Deeley will be given a hearing in the police court Tuesday morning. Smith was operating his car through State street to go to the driveway in the rear of the post office. As Smith made the turn to enter the driveway, the machine operated by Deeley crashed against the side of the turning car.

A three-cornered automobile collision occurred on the New London approach of the Thames river highway bridge late this afternoon, and in neither instance was the damage of great consequence, although two of the cars suffered disfigurement. A commercial car operated by George Gadbois of Montauk avenue, was in the lead of cars operated by Miss Josephine Murray, School street, and Emilio Falconi, Noank. Gadbois' machine came to a sudden stop, causing the car operated by Miss Murray to strike the rear of the commercial car with considerable force and Miss Murray's car was struck by that of Falconi.

William Tracy, 38 Meore avenue, a World war veteran, was painfully injured while swimming at Ocean Beach Sunday night for in making a dive from the raft Tracy came in contact with a submerged object and sustained lacerations of the face and two fractured ribs. He is now under treatment at his home. As a result of the accident the Merritt-Chapman-Scott company today dispatched a diver to the location of the accident for the purpose of attempting to locate the object against which Tracy made his dive but no spile or other similar obstruction could be found. Tracy made the dive at a point where he had made other entrances into the water within a short space of time. The final dive was made at nightfall and when the swimmer arose he was bleeding from an ugly gash on the cheekbone that extended to the neck. He was given medical attention, after which he went to his home. That the object that caused Tracy's injury was afloat, although submerged, there is no doubt, for the point where the accident occurred has been entered by thousands of swimmers this season and without injury to any of them.

Miss Ruth K. Pimer, 230 Willetts avenue, complained to the police this afternoon that while her car was motionless alongside the curb on Broad street, near Brainard street, a car operated by Mrs. Sadie Spits, of 360 Montauk avenue, collided with the former car and did considerable damage.

HOW MANY KNOW HOW?

Life savers are not simply those who may be able to get a person from the water. That is of great importance, even after a person has gone down for the last time, but the chances of reviving a person who has been in the water for some minutes are such that frequently an hour or two is devoted to such efforts and with success in some instances.

But how many are there who know how to resuscitate a person who has been apparently drowned, or who know how to try to? Likewise it might be asked how many know what to do and how to do it in case a person has been rendered unconscious by electricity?

This is a summer of many drownings, and Norwich is having its share of them. Where it is possible to get the body soon after it goes down experience has shown if it is a case of drowning and not heart trouble that prompt and diligent efforts have restored life. There was a time when rolling a person on a barrel to eliminate the water from the lungs was the accepted method. Today there are methods of working the arms and body that will restore heart and lung action.

There are probably few who learn this life saving measure that ever have a chance to make use of it, but it is also probably true that many hundreds who might render such timely aid know little or nothing about it.

This, it is believed, is one of the requirements of the Boy Scouts tests. Through them it seems probable that a greater number than ever will in time be taught the principle and be required to prove their knowledge of it. In the meantime it is something which many others should learn. Certainly it cannot be regarded as a waste of time to learn what to do, and how to do it, in order to try to resuscitate a drowned person.

It must be regarded as in keeping with the idea of maintaining lifeguards, life ropes, life preservers and pulmotors at points where they may be needed and where they will be of service when they are wanted.

GENERAL BUTLER'S WORK.

Widespread interest has been manifested in the effort of General Smedley Butler to clean up Philadelphia. He undertook the job with confidence, but it was apparently a bigger job than he has anticipated. Perhaps he had expected greater cooperation than he has received, and if he had been given it his accomplishments would have been greater by this time. But whatever he may have regarded as his problem it is undoubtedly true that he has found that the wetness and the crime of the Quaker city are more than superficial. They have prevailed so long that they have got firmly imbedded in the machinery of that city's government. They are well worked into the makeup of the police system of the city to such an extent that a reorganization of the department and a redistricting of the city is called for to get them out.

That General Butler has hit upon the sensitive nerve of the situation is indicated by the opposition which he has now encountered. He has set about the reconstruction of the police system. He hasn't dried up the city and he hasn't banished crime. Conditions have improved but there is still enough of the undesirable to call for continued effort. Now it is a question as to whether Philadelphia is going to stand by the director of public safety who was drafted from the head of the marine corps. Indications are that some of those who have been standing loyally back of him are wavering. They are feeling the pressure that is coming from the police system which he is about to break up. There is an unwillingness to have him go farther. Opinions may differ as to whether this is due to the fact that he is getting down to the real trouble or whether they are convinced that he is going too far and the measures he is carrying out are not warranted.

The situation has gotten to the point where the dismissal of Butler is threatened. Convinced that he is right he refuses to resign and insists that he must be fired if he is stopped in his work. Philadelphia's clean-up has taken longer than he considered necessary, but is Philadelphia afraid that General Butler is at last on the right track and going to succeed? On the other hand does Philadelphia want to throw away the good work that has already been done?

THE IMBRIE AFFAIR.

Ugly possibilities seemed to loom up as the result of the beating to death of Vice Consul Imbrie at Teheran, but the expression of regret by the Persian government, the declaration of martial law and the apparent effort to run down and punish the guilty give indication that the matter will receive a peaceful adjustment.

Considerable vagueness surrounds the circumstances. It is well known that the Persians, like many other people of similar religious fervor, het [illegible] and [illegible] the idea that foreigners are interfering with them and their religious rites. It is not difficult to understand that if pictures were being taken of their religious ceremonies against their laws that they would be considerably incensed, regardless of whether such an act would be considered as justification for such resentment in this country.

From such reports as have been obtained it hasn't been established that it was a demonstration against Americans or this country, but rather an outbreak directed against those who were, or were believed to be, violating their sacred laws. That is not to be regarded as having justified the killing, but it places it in a class with the killing of foreigners in any country by desperate individuals, whose acts must be regarded as cause for punishment on the part of the government under whose jurisdiction they occurred.

The prominence of a vice consul under the circumstances gives greater interest under the circumstances. His was apparently not the only death, since officials appear to have been killed in an effort to check the mob and furnish protection, but steps which have been taken and the attitude shown by Persia indicate that no international difficulties are likely to result from the deplorable affair.

THE CHILD LABOR FIGHT.

Thus far only southern states have taken action on the child labor amendment to the federal constitution, and of the three states which have acted two are opposed to one in favor. Louisiana is the third state to act and it joins hands with Georgia in refusing to ratify, leaving Arkansas as the only state thus far favoring ratification.

Should 13 states refuse to ratify the amendment would fail. Whether the two states that are in opposition to it express the sentiment of the southern states in general remains to be seen. It would not be surprising if they did for it is for the purpose of reaching the conditions that exist in southern states that the amendment is sought. They fought the child labor laws in congress and it will be surprising if they do not do their utmost to defeat the amendment.

What the opposition will be from those who are opposed to federal action of this character and those who believe that too much authority is being granted to congress when it is given control over the labor of all under 18 years cannot be predicted but it is known that there is much sentiment against ratification in states where there is strong opposition to child labor. This is due to the belief that a mistake has been made in placing in the amendment the age limit of 18, and the abandonment of the state's rights which would ensue if the increased federal authority is extended. Thus it is entirely possible that the south will not be the only section that will refuse ratification, or at least put up a considerable fight against it. Correcting child labor conditions and giving congress the right to control the labor of all up to 18 years are decidedly different propositions.

WIRELESS ON SHIPS.

Wireless in this day and generation is of such importance that no vessel can afford to be without it. Certainly it is not affording those aboard proper protection if the advantages of such connection with those near and far are not provided.

In connection with the foundering of the Japanese freight steamer Matsu Yama Maru off the coast of Japan, when 57 lives were lost, it is declared that it was an old vessel and did not have wireless equipment. It is fair to presume that had the steamer been equipped as others are that it would have been able to summon help and to have reached other vessels within that locality so that while the ship might have gone down those aboard it might have been saved.

Because the ship was old does not mean that the human cargo should not have received some consideration. There was the time when wireless was not available, and unfortunately there are some vessels today which are not equipped to protect themselves or to go to the assistance of others in time of distress.

Had the Japanese steamer been engaged in the transportation of passengers it would doubtless have been required to furnish wireless protection, but there is no sound reason why members of the crew should be subjected to dangers like rats in a trap just because they were seamen.

The vessel that is not equipped with wireless these days should experience difficulty in obtaining a crew. If it is an old steamer there is all the more reason why it should be fitted out with additional safeguards. In case of disability, serious illness or disaster the wireless furnishes invaluable service that should be available to all who go on ships.

AT THE FRONT DOOR

Myra was changing the shelf paper in the pantry when Florence stepped in. "Good morning," she said. "I notice your diningroom window is out. Burglars or bombs?"

"Neither," giggled Myra. "Madge called up last night," she explained, "and asked us to play bridge. Frank said we would be delighted, and we could come at once, as our youngsters were already sound asleep."

"I don't see how you can leave them alone like that," reproved Florence.

"I had taken them to the circus in the afternoon, and they missed their nap, so they would sleep all night through. And we were only going across the street, anyway. We had a jolly time and left at about 1 o'clock. When we got in our vestibule, Frank was going through all his pockets frantically, and finally confessed: 'I have forgotten by keeys.'

"There we were, stranded in the vestibule, our children locked in the apartment, and 1 o'clock in the morning.

"'Let's ring the Browns' bell, and ask them to let us in the hall,' I suggested.

"'No, that won't help any,' said Frank, 'for if we make any noise in the hall we may wake the children up, and then there will be the dickens to pay.'

"We tiptoed to the back of the house, and Frank tried to force the kitchen and pantry windows, until I remembered bolting the dining-room door.

"'I'll find a long ladder and climb up and open a window,' suggested Frank.

"We went down and tried the basement door. It was securely locked. Then we searched the neighboring yards for a ladder. No luck. I became hysterical. What if the baby should wake up and want a drink? Not getting me, he would cry lustily and wake Peter up. Peter might get up and turn on the water in the bathroom and flood the family below. The baby might attempt to leave his bed and get his little foot caught in the bed railing. Oh they might do this or that other terrible thing.

"I turned on poor Frank. 'You are irresponsible,' I cried, 'you have two keys, and yet here we are keyless.'

"'Now, my dear,' he begged. 'I

"'These windows are locked,' he called down.

"'Smash one,' promptly came from Frank.

"He did, and in a moment had the front door open. I rushed to the children. They were sleeping peacefully. But my dining room! The falling window glass knocked of the tea-cart tray and six ice-tea glasses and spoons and broke them into a thousand splinters.

"I brushed up the broken glass, and then went to double lock the front door. The knob turned so loosely that I examined the latch, and found it set so that the door could be opened from the hall without a key. Then I remembered that before dinner I had stepped across the hall to return a book, and had fixed it so. On returning I forgot to snap it back.

"Stealthily I slipped it back. Did I tell Frank about it? Not yet!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

General Lawrence D. Tyson, who is a candidate for the democratic nomination for United States senator from Tennessee, has been identified with the politics of that state for a quarter of a century. He was speaker of the house of the Tennessee general assembly in 1905; the democratic choice for United States senator in 1905; the democratic choice for United States senator in 1913, and a candidate for nomination for the vice presidency at the San Francisco convention in 1920. A native of Greenville, N. C., Gen. Tyson was graduated from the West Point academy and served for some years in the army. In 1905 he resigned his commission and entered into business in the city of Knoxville, where he has been instrumental in bringing the south to the fore as a textile manufacturing center. In the Spanish war he served as colonel of the Sixth United States Volunteers and in the World war he had command of the Fifty-ninth Infantry brigade of the Thirtieth, or Old Hickory division.

NEW BOOKS

A Gentleman of Courage, by James Oliver Curwood, with illustrations by Robert W. Stewart. Cloth, 342 pages. Published by Cosmopolitan Book Corporation. Price $2.

Because he has made a study of it and knows his northwest James Oliver Curwood is not only able to write about it fascinatingly, but he gets everyone who reads his books quite as deeply interested in that region and the characters he so cleverly places there.

His new novel, A Gentleman of Courage ranks well with those which have preceded it. There is a thrill of adventure and there is an entertaining love story. No matter how sophisticated you may be there's like to be moisture in your eye as you follow 14 year old Peter McRae and make your way to the bedside of his playmate, Mona, lying sick unto death. Thrown together by misfortune they find they are not happy apart. The child romance is one of those rare things that linger in the memory and the rest of the plot holds the reader to the end—through desperate fights against men and elements and against laws hard to enforce with these sons of pioneers for whom chivalry is greater than law. Curwood has done this before in The Alaskan, The Rivers End and The Country Beyond. Now young Peter McRae, a Gentleman of Courage steps into line with his other vigorous heroes.

Stories That Recall Others

Probably Didn't Use Dye.

Dorothy, five years old, is a decided blonde, so had been all her intimates until she went to visit an aunt and there met a new playmate, Virginia, her cousin of her own age and a decided brunette. One day Dorothy looked at Virginia's dark locks and asked:

"What did you ever do to make hair so black?"

The Reason.

Sally was enjoying the lunch provided by her employer, except the bread and that remained untouched. When questioned why she did not eat the bread she replied that she did not eat gunpowder.

"Gunpowder!" exclaimed her astonished employer. "Why, Sally, that is poppyseed on the bread. What ever made you think it was gunpowder?"

"Well," exclaimed Sallie, with characteristic drawl, "you know they used to feed gunpowder to the soldiers down south to make them fight, and I thought you was feedin' me gunpowder to make me work."

Johnnie, the canary owned by Mrs. Nye Farley, a singer, lixing in Santa Clara, Cal., has been trained to sing popular melodies. He is limited only by the range of his notes. Among the several tunes he has in his repertoire is Listen to the Mocking Bird, which he introduces with the exception of one low note he can not reach.

Macdonald "The Most Unpopular Man"

When James Ramsey Macdonald decided to be a barrister there seemed to be obstacles in every direction; when he had overcome the many hills of adversity and had fought his way into Parliament there still were mountains of trouble awaiting him.

Born in the little fishing village of Lossiem, Scotland, the son of a farm servant, he suffered the cruelties inflicted by poverty and helped in stables, ran errands and worked in factories to earn money to help with the home expenses.

By night reading MacDonald developed into a village school teacher. Later he went to London and secured work as clerk addressing envelopes at $3.00 a week. He studied at night and the double work broke down his health. Next he was secretary to a Liberal member of Parliament and afterward a "free lance" writer for newspapers.

He plunged into Socialism and, at 28, was editor of the party publication, putting them financially on their feet. He became a leader and helped combine the Socialists and the trade union members of other parties into the Labor party. He ran for Parliament and was defeated.

At 30 he married the daughter of a distinguished scientist and the happy couple spent several years in travel. Back in London in their two-room flat, he wrote and prepared to enter politics.

Elected to Parliament at 43, he headed a delegation of 40 Labor men of middle age who comprehended nothing of parliamentary procedure, and he knew little more than to speak forcibly, so that for eight years he accomplished hardly anything. His wife died soon after the loss of a daughter and his home was darkened.

When the World War broke out he favored peace and argued strongly for it. He became "the most unpopular man in England," and was defeated for reelection. His health became broken and a medical specialist said he could not live. He was expelled from clubs and his children suffered ostracism.

His career seemed ended. Even his party followers revived the charges that he never had been a working man that he was not an orthodox Socialist. He ran for Parliament in 1918 and was defeated by an ex-soldier. He also was unsuccessful in 1920. He tried again in 1922 and won by an overwhelming majority, was elected in 1923 and now is Premier of England.

WHOLE FAMILY ENDORSE TANLAC AS BEST TONIC

"Tanlac has been our constant friend for years, and my wife and myself and eight children are all enjoying wonderful health, largely due to this medicine," is the remarkable statement of Harry H. Pistole, 310 Archer St., Waco, Texas.

"In my own case Tanlac has done what seemed to be impossible. When I began taking it my stomach was in such a bad fix that I had to live on a milk and egg diet and I was almost a skeleton. I had been flat of my back in bed and under treatment for 18 months and felt that my time was about up.

"After my case had been given up as hopeless and I thought I was beyond redemption a relative put me on to Tanlac, and the result is, I gained 20 pounds, and enjoy as good health as anybody could wish.

"My wife was all broken down in health. But now she weighs 156 pounds, and is strong and well and I am giving Tanlac credit for it. We give Tanlac to the children to tone them up and make them grow, and nobody ever had a healthier set of children than we have.

"Tanlac is certainly the greatest medicine on earth for anyone whose life is wrecked by bad health. We sure do have a great deal to praise Tanlac for at my house."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Meadow Lark

Do you remember where we left off in the last story, my dear little reader? I'm sure the bunny did for he has hopped right into this story to find Meadow Lark's nest.

Pretty soon, not so very far, that little bird stopped. "Here's my nest," he chuckled. "I've arched it over with the tall grass to hide it from view. I build my nest on the ground, right here in the middle of the Sunny Meadow, but nobody finds it because the grass hides it."

"You're a clever little fellow
In your shiny nest of yellow."

answered the bunny boy in rhyme. Wasn't that clever of the little rabbit? Well, I guess yes three times.

Then the bunny boy stooped down, because he could see nothing but grass at the top, you know, and peeked in close to the ground right in front of the nest. Then he saw it all right. Yes, indeedy.

"Don't tell anyone," begged Meadow Lark. "You can keep a secret?"

"From everyone except Mother," answered the little rabbit, truthfully. He always told his mother everything, just the same as you do, dear little reader.

"That will be all right," answered Meadow Lark. "Every one trusts Lady Love. Everyone loves her, for she loves everyone. Then, away he flew to perch on the highest limb of a nearby elm tree. He's a shy little bird, but when on the ground, where his colors blend with the dead grasses, he lets you come quite near him before he flies away.

"Now, what shall I do?" thought the little rabbit, and he looked here and there, when all of a sudden, he heard the tinkle, tinkle of the bell, on Mrs. Cow's leather collar.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the bunny boy. "I'll say good morning to her. She's very kind. Just think of all the little girls and boys she makes happy. I wonder if they thank her when they drink a glass of milk," and away he hopped to the kind lady cow.

Her little calf had now grown to be a big fellow and Mrs Cow had no worries, except to swish away the flies with her tail.

"Tinkle, tinkle, little bell,
All the world is very well."
said Bobbie Redvest from the apple tree.

"Good morning," nodded Mrs. Cow as the bunny boy politely raised his khaki cap. "How's mother?"

"Oh, mother's happy as can be. 'Cause I love mother and mother loves me."
sang the little rabbit, hopping over a buttercup. He didn't want to break the pretty flower Dear me, no. So over he hopped on his little pink toe.

"Dearest me!" as kind Uncle Lucky, the old gentleman bunny says, my typewriter is again talking poetry. But what happens after this you must wait to read in the next story.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

VENERABLE VARNA

Jamestown, Virginia, had a tercentenary in 1907. Plymouth, Massachusetts, celebrated the 300th anniversary of her settlement in 1920. Varna, Bulgaria, plans a modest commemoration of her 2500 years this month.

"Varna was born in the century that Egypt was made a Persian province, that saw Cyrus take Babylon, that heard Solon's plea for reforming the Athenian constitution, and experienced the founding of the Roman Republic," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"In point of continous existence the Bulgarian seaport ranks with the ancient cities of the world; it flourished when the famous cities of Europe—London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow—were yet unborn.

"It nestles on the hilly north shore of the Bay of Varna, near the border of Rumania. That country's acquisition of Dobrudja was a blow to Varna's shipping.

"It was having its 300th birthday when a strip of territory now roughly comprised in Bulgaria and Serbia was known as Moesia, a not very conspicuous province of the Roman Empire. The Romans are reputed to have acquired this region about 25 B. C. from the Celts. Indeed, a colony of Milesians is supposed to have been located there. Since the Milesians are a legendary early Irish race Varna might appropriately invite an Irish delegation to help her celebrate.

"What is more to the point with Bulgarians of today is that Varna is in a very literal sense the Plymouth and Jamestown of their country. Along with the Slavs and the Avars the Bulgarians swarmed into Europe in the sixth century, and the Bulgarians formed a thriving kingdom in south Russia between the Volga and the Danube. In that same century a colony of these Bulgarians pressed on south of the Danube and established themselves at Varna.

"Like the Franks in France, they gave their name to the country they founded but, as a pure stock, they disappeared. And like the Normans, in England, the conquerors were absorbed by the conquered. Today they are accounted a Slavic people.

"Varna is strangely modern for so ancient city. Its break-water and its quays, its public library, woman's college, and branch national bank, and various other business and official buildings are new—new since Bulgaria gained an autonomous identity in 1878.

"Between that time and the loss of Dobrudja Bulgaria has had a stirring military history in which Varna has been conspicuous. It formed a corner of the so-called 'Varna quadrilateral.' This quadrilateral comprised, besides Varna, the cities of Shumla, Rustchuk and Silistria, the last mentioned now being in Rumania.

"At Varna, in 1444, the romantic Wladislaus III, King of Poland and Hungary, was slain by the fanatical Murad II. The former met an untimely end because he regarded a treaty as a scrap of paper.

"In 1915 Varna was bombarded by a Russian fleet.

"Despite the loss of Dobrudja business, Varna continues a busy port—shipping out cattle and dairy products, grain, skins, and breweries and distilleries. It also has important tanneries and cotton factories."

THIS WOMAN'S MARVELLOUS RECOVERY

All Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Truman, Minn.—"I was badly run-down and had pains in my side and back; sometimes I couldn't hardly move around in bed. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking it I was so much better I could do my work again. I do my housework, have a garden, raise chickens and in harvest time I worked in the field and helped pick corn. Sometimes I do chores and milk. I took the Vegetable Compound before and after my four children and baby was born, and it has always helped me wonderfully. I believe there is no better medicine made for women, and I have many friends who will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. Anthony E. Wawrzonek, R. No. 2, Box 94, Truman, Minnesota.

Women suffering from troubles so common to their sex should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

ISSUES PAMPHLET WITH FIGURES ON GAS & ELECTRIC DEPARTMENT

The special commitee of the common council has prepared for presentation to the citizens a pamphlet with the title Facts Concerning the Gas and Electrical Department, 1924, which gives a tabulated arrangement of the financial history of the department.

The pamphlet contains the following introduction:

To the Citizens of Norwich:

We are presenting herewith for your consideration a report which was prepared at the request of the Mayor and a special committee of the Court of Common Council by Mr. M. H. Jensen, a former member of the Board of Gas and Electrical Commissioners. This report gives in detail the financial history of the Gas and Electrical Department from the day of its purchase by the City to the close of the last fiscal year, ie: April 30, 1924.

You undoubtedly know that there is at this time under consideration by a special committee of the Court of Common Council two proposals, submitted by the Eastern Connecticut Power Company.

The first is an offer to purchase the plant at its book value and means the complete transfer to corporate or private ownership.

The second is an offer to sell the Department electric current for distribution to you and other users of electric service. This would call for the closing down of the generating plant in Greeneville and the dismantling of the same.

We hope that you will find those reports of sufficient interest to give it careful study. Following the report you will note some additional information concerning the department. This is presented to you in the form of questions which are followed by brief answers. The questions are ones that are frequently asked but are left unanswered due to lack of sufficient information.

Respectfully submitted,

MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor

For Special Committee.

FACTS
About the Gas & Electrical Department

Question: What is the Gas and Electric Department?

Answer: The Gas and Electric Department is a public utility, operated under the laws of Connecticut governing public utilities, and owned by the City of Norwich.

Question: What is its value?

Answer: The book value, that is the money invested less depreciation is $1,286,764, but the actual value is much more for the reason that state law requires that the book value be decreased by 5 per cent each year to allow for wear and tear, ageing and so forth. This allowance is too much; does your house, land, and other property lose 1-20th of its value in one year? Doesn't it sometimes increase value?

Question: Did the city pay $1,286,764 for the business?

Answer: No. The city paid, in 1904, $227,000—cash for the property subject to $400,000 first mortgage bonds. Thus the whole amount was $627,000.

Question: Was the money raised by taxation or assessment?

Answer: No. Bonds were issued for $277,000 with interest at 4 1-2 per cent. and this interest has always been paid out of the earnings of the business as has been interest at 5 per cent. on the $400,000 first mortgage bonds.

Question: Why do the voters at the annual city meeting appropriate money for the Gas and Electrical Department?

Answer: Every year the department estimates what will be taken in the next year in cash for gas and electricity sold by the department to its customers. This can be done fairly accurately because the gain in business each year is steady. At the city meeting, the department asks permission, or a formal permit, to spend this money which it will take in. This formal permit is called an appropriation.

Question: For what does the department spend this money?

Answer: To pay for coal, oil, and all products entering into the manufacture of gas and electricity, to pay wages and to replace worn out machinery to keep its property in good repair, to extend its gas and electric lines and to pay interests on the money invested and to care for sinking fund and reserve.

Question: Is the business profitable?

Answer: Yes. The profits, except $24,139.66 which was used by the city for other purposes, have been used to make the property bigger and better. This is shown by the following fact:

The difference between the value of the property and the indebtedness of the department shows that there is money invested in the business that was neither there when acquired by the city nor since obtained from bond sales, or loans. This extra investment has been derived from the profits. In addition thereto there are now cash balances in the sinking fund and reserve accounts amounting to $82,934.73. The profit and loss balance amounts to $654,314.90.

Flashing Beacon at Norwich Town

The new flashing beacon at the northerly corner of the Norwich Town green was in operation for the first time Monday night. Automobile drivers who attempt to hand out the same rough treatment to this as they used to employ against the faithful barrels and red lanterns that gave up their lives at this corner will not get off scot free.

THAMES SQUARE BEACON SUFFERS FROM DRIVERS

The square concrete base to the flashing beacon at Thames square is gradually having its corners chipped off, as inexpert or indifferent motor vehicle drivers do not seem to be able to get around it without scraping it with the hubs of their cars.

The police would like to catch one of the guilty drivers to make him pay for the damage he does. At the rate the chipping process is going on, it will not be a great while before the beacon has a round base instead of a square one, and that would be an improvement, according to some of the drivers.

DAVE MORTON SHATTERS RECORD FOR NORWICH GOLF CLUB COURSE

Dave Morton, one of Norwich's best golfers, on Monday evening shattered the course record at the Norwich Golf club turning in a card of 69 for the eighteen holes which clips one stroke off the record set by Teddy Gow several years ago.

Morton has been playing extra fine golf this season and only a few days ago equalled the course record of 70, a feat that has not been accomplished since the record was hung up by Gow. Teddy Gow was at one time professional at the Norwich club.

Mr. Morton was playing around with Frank P. Welch and Frank Lathrop and on the first nine holes turned in a 34 and then set out to lower the mark, having to get a 35 on the last nine holes to do which is quite some task for any golfer on the Norwich course. When it became known that Mr. Morton was out [illegible] followed him and were well rewarded to break the record a large group for he was playing exceptional golf. His drives and approach shots were beyond reproach. His putting was good and several times he had long putts to sink to maintain his record.

Time after time his approach shots were laid within a foot of the pin. His best golf was perhaps played on the 18th hole which is a long hole when he needed a 5 to break 70. His golf here was good, his drives being accurate and his approach shot landed within a foot of the pin, an easy putt and the record was his.

His card was as follows:

Out—4 3 3 4 4 4 3 4 5—34

In—4 3 4 4 4 4 3 4 5—35—69

DODGERS SHARE HONORS IN DOUBLE WITH PIRATES

Pittsburgh, July 21.—Brooklyn and Pittsburgh divided a double bill here today, the visitors taking the first 6 to 3 and Pittsburgh the second, 4 to 2. In the first game Vance was effective, allowing only six hits while in the last affair Kremer's giants were too much for the dodgers.

J. Johnston, Brooklyn shortstop was carried from the field in the first game when he injured his knee in a close play at second. He probably will be missing from the lineup for several days. The scores:

LANDIS GIVES APPROVAL OF GIANT-WHITE SOX TOUR

Cincinnati, July 21.—Permission to tour Europe was granted the New York Giants and Chicago White Sox today by Commissioner K. M. Landis, Manager John J. McGraw of the New York team announced here tonight.

The trip abroad by the two teams had been technically agreed upon some time ago, but consent of the baseball commissioner was held up pending a vote of the members of both leagues. This vote, Mr. McGraw said, was unanimously in favor of the proposed tour.

REDS WIN HARD FOUGHT GAME FROM THE GIANTS

Cincinnati, July 21.—Cincinnati won one of the hardest fought battles of the season from New York today, 8 to 7 in 11 innings. Watson was knocked out of the box in the first round, but Nehf pitched well and Luque allowed a tie score in the seventh without a hit on his wildness and an error by Critz. In the ninth, New York scored three runs off May. But the Reds tied it in their half. In the eleventh, the Giants scored a run on Pitsch's triple and a single by Kelly, the first time Rixey had been scored on in 34 innings. In the last half of the eleventh, Roush reached third on a pass, a balk by Jonnard and an out. With two out, Kelly took his foot off the bag before receiving Jackson's good throw on Fonseca's grounder, which would have retired the side without scoring. The error allowed Roush to score the tying run and then Pinelli put Fonseca over with a triple to right. Thirty-nine players took part in the game. The score:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

Ninth inning. Score 3 to 1, in favor of the home team. The visiting team is at bat. Two are out. No one on base. A left hand hitter comes up.

How should the pitcher pitch to him?

A great many pitchers get careless when a close game like this is being played and in this situation they try to work on the batter so he will hit a bad ball. The pitcher should always try to put the ball over the plate in order to make the batter hit it. The thing he should avoid is pitching such a batter anything inside. In case there is a short right field fence.

ROSSIE A. A. BEATS MONTVILLE INDEPENDENTS

The Rossie A. A. defeated the Montville Independents on Rossie field by a score of 22 to 8 in an old fashioned slugging match on Sunday.

The home team made twenty three hits off the visitors' two pitchers, knocking Burrows out of the box after making 11 hits in four innings.

Brewer and Wilhelm led with the stick each getting four hits, one of Brewers being a homer and one of latters being a double and another a triple.

Chappell after having a safe lead retired in favor of Tedford who pitched finely and Marchand split his index finger and gave way to Walsh who also did finely.

Next Sunday the Rossie team play the Taftville A. A. at Mystic. Score:

DEMPSEY'S RIGHT ARM IS OUT OF CONDITION

Los Angeles, Cal., July 21.—Jack Dempsey's famous right arm, the one that has contributed so heavily to his world heavyweight pugilistic crown, is out of commission following an automobile accident Sunday night, according to attending physicians.

The fighter's list of injuries, suffered in the automobile smashup at San Juan Capistrano, south of here, include:

Dislocated right elbow, strained ligaments in neck, abrasion on right knee, cut on scalp.

Dempsey will be confined to his room several days, the physicians said. The champion admits that he escaped death "by a miracle," when his heavy sedan, carrying himself and two or three friends, was side swiped by a speeding motorist who kept going after he had tilted the Dempsey car from the highway into the ditch.

"It was winner's luck, that's all," Dempsey remarked.

The party in the wrecked automobile gave their names as "Mr. and Mrs. Lee," were taken to the Santa Ana hospital and later came on to Los Angeles.

Tigers Lose to Valiants

The Valiants A. C. defeated the Taftville Tigers Sunday at the Old Cranberry grounds by a score of 12 to 7. Battery for the Valiants was Marsi Ruffo pitch and Sam Mingo catch. This is the second game that the Valiants won from the Tigers.

FIRPO HAS DIFFICULTY IN GETTING INTO COUNTRY; COMES AS "VISITOR"

New York, July 21.—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, who arrived in the United States today on board the American Legion to fulfill an engagement to meet Harry Wills, negro challenger, was admitted to the country as a "visitor" by immigration authorities after having been detained at Ellis Island in company with other members of his retinue and a Miss Blanca Lourdes who says she is a friend of the South American heavyweight but not one of his party.

Firpo and Miss Lourdes were committed to Ellis Island after failing to satisfy the immigration officials aboard the liner concerning the visas on their passports. Eduardo Carbone, listed as Firpo's secretary, and Miguel Ferraza, a sparring partner, were detained as "material witnesses."

Later Firpo was released following a sitting of a special board of immigration inquiry to review his case but Miss Lourdes was held until tomorrow when, immigration officials said, she would be liberated upon a deposit of a $500 bond, guaranteeing her appearance on board the next boat for Cuba, for which her ticket reads. Commissioner of Immigration Henry H. Curran said that the technicality which involved Firpo's detention was waived by the board and he was admitted at 4.40 o'clock after having been held since 10.30 o'clock this morning, the docking time of the American Legion.

Miss Lourdes, who it is said was with Firpo during his last campaign in this country, claimed to have met Firpo on board the American Legion when the liner sailed Thursday, July 3, purely by accident. Firpo denied that Miss Lourdes is a member of his party, that he had contributed to any extent to her maintenance on board or had paid her passage. He claims to have known her for the past "six or eight months." Members of the crew however, alleged that Firpo and Miss Lourdes were extremely friendly during the 18-day voyage.

Immigration authorities denied that Firpo's brief detention on Ellis Island had any bearing on Miss Lourde's case. They treated the two cases as separate, they said, denying that they had found any connecting link between the two and classifying both cases under a technical "insufficient visa" heading.

Miss Lourdes, a Cuban by birth, according to her passport, is bound from Buenos Aires to Havana, Cuba, via New York. She is a comparatively stout woman, close to six feet tall, weighing about 180 pounds. She wore a long black cape which stretched to her ankles over a light brown dress. Heavy ear-rings studded her ears.

During the examination on board the liner, Firpo kept away from Miss Lourdes but he was apparently intensely interested in the outcome of her case. She appeared indifferent to the stream of questions by the immigration officials.

Her passport, according to the immigration authorities, contained the name of Herman Bushell, a New York lawyer, as a possible sponsor for her entrance into this country as a "visitor." Bushell, who appeared at Ellis Island soon after the party was committed there, denied acquaintanceship with the woman, at first, but later, upon hearing that his name appeared on her passport, admitted that he knew her "slightly" and that he had met her in a New York hotel when she was here with Firpo last fall. Bushell attempted to intercede for Miss Lourdes but his efforts to gain for her her freedom tonight failed and he departed from Ellis Island in company with Firpo and the other members of the party.

N. L. CITY LEAGUE LEAD IN BALANCE TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 21—First place in the City league hangs in the balance, pending the outcome of this (Tuesday) evenings game between the Knights of Columbus and the Corticelli Silk company nine. With the Knights but a step ahead of the Fort Trumble Stars who are fast crowding them for the top rung of the ladder, the climax of the City league is expected to be reached on Tuesday evening. The Corticelli nine which is third in the standing and but a full game behind the league leaders and but half a game behind the Fort Trumbull Stars has a chance not only to better its own standing but to throw a wrench into the machinery by a victory. The team will be drawn so tightly together in an event of a Corticelli victory that the future winner will not be decided upon for some time to come.

It is the banner game of the season and a banner crowd is expected to be present. The teams have a large majority of followers and are always good showmen which is expected to bring out the largest crowd of the season to watch two fast teams go at it. Artie Chappell, who in addition to holding a victory over the Taftville A. A. nine and other notable victories, will essay to take up the pitcher's burden for the silkmen. If past records are a criterion, there is little doubt that Chappell will not return victorious

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, July 21.—The upward movement of stock prices today entered upon its sixth consecutive week with favorable reparations news and western reports of reviving business tctivity providing the stimulus for the day's advance. Trading was on a broad scale, 51 issues, including 30 rails and eikht coppers establishing ney high records for the year.

Heavy investments buying of high grade carrier stocks was one of the day's features, New York Central, Atchison, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Rock Island 7 per cent. prederred, and Atlantic Coast Line all bettering their previous top prices of the year. Speculative buying of low priced isues sent Erie common and first preferred, Chicago Great Western and Omaha to new peak prices. "Big Four" jumped 5 points to a new top at 135 1-2.

United States Steel common regained the leadership of the standard industrials by moving up two points to 102, a new high on the movement. Baldwin, Studebaker and American Can each gained about a point. General Electric touched a new top at 250 and then eased to 247 7-8. Revival of activity in Allis Chalmers, which crossed 58 to a new maximum price for the year, was the indirect result of the recent buying of stocks of public utility companies which are among its best customers.

Strength of the copper shares was attributed to reports that the surplus of the red metal is at the lowest point in years, the rising trend of metal prices and indications of the extensive use of silver, an important by-product of most copper companies, for coinage purposes by European countries. Utah led the advance in that group with a net gain of 2 3-4 at 75 3-4 and was closely followed by Anaconda, which closed 2 1-3 points higher at 34 3-4.

Steward Warner climbed nearly 5 5 points to 56 1-2 on declaration of a quarterly dividend of $1.25 as against the previous payment of $2.50 Wall street apparently having expected a sharper reduction.

Further outstanding strong points were American Woolen, Air Reduction, Gulf States Steel, Loose Wiles Biscuit, National Biscuit, Mathieson Alkali, Remington Typewriter and Transue & Williams, all up to 25 points.

New highs were recorded by Mack Truck and Famous Players.

Oil issues displayed a fire tone despite the announcement of further readjustments of crude and gasoline prices. Cosden, Houston, Skelly and Sheil Union each closed about a point higher and a number of others improved fractionally.

Call money continued to rule at 3 per cent. Time money rates eased slightly in the absence of any great demand for funds, loans up to 60 days being arranged at 2 1-2 per cent. with most borrowers unwilling to pay more than 2 1-2. Longer dates ranged from 2 3-4 to 3 1-2 per cent., depending upon maturity.

Foreign exchange rates stiffened in reflection of the progress reported at the London conference on reparations. Demand sterling crossed $4.39 and then eased around $4.38 3-4 and French francs ruled slightly higher around 5.16 1-2c.

BOND MARKET.

New York, July 21.—Strength of foreign obligations, industrial and low priced railroad issues contracted in today's uneven bond trading.

Favorable reports on the progress of the reparations conference indicating that the way was being cleared for the accord of European nations on the Dawes plan, stimulated buying of foreign issues, notably the French government's obligations, which advanced 1 to 1 1-8 points.

With higher price levels prevailing in the speculative rail group, several new peak prices for the year were recorded, the list embracing New Haven, Chicago & Alton and Seaboard mortgages. Gains of a point or so were made by various St. Paul and Rock Island liens, while Third Avenue Railway adjustment 6s jumped 2 1-2 points to a new 1924 top price at 57 1-2.

Increasing consumption of copper and the rising trend of metal prices contributed to the improvement of copper company bonds, in which Anaconda, Magma and Chile issues shared, gains ranging from 1 to 2 points inculded these liens as well as Kelly-Springfield 8s, Wilson first and convertible 6s, Virginia-Carolina 7s and 7 1-2s and Sinclair Oil 7s.

The upward tendency of Liberty bonds was attributed partly to reports that another reduction might be made this week in the federal reserve bank's rediscount rate.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, July 21.—Rain both north and south of the Canadian boundary led to lower prices for wheat today and the market here closed 7-8 to 1 3-8c net decline. September $1.25 5-8 to $1.25 3-4 and December $1.28 3-8 to $1.29 12. Corn finished 1 1-4 to 2 1-4c down, oats 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 off, and provisions showing a setback of 20 to 50 cents.

It was generally assumed that the rails would prove beneficial to the spring wheat crop, although some advices said no amount of moisture could greatly change the situation in the drouth stricken area in Canada. Considerable selling appeared also to result from opinions in some quarters that a reaction from the big advance of late was to be expected. There was also more or less selling which was attributed to hedgers. In this connection it was pointed out that the movement of wheat in the southwest was heavy, receipts at Kansas City alone being 1,289 cars, Against 589 a year ago.

Numerous rallies, however, were witnessed in the wheat market here, a good deal of buying being based on the fact that values both at Winnipeg and Buenos Aires were, about the widest promium of the season as compared with Chicago. Besides, gossip was current that some export business in the United States wheat had been done, the shipments to be made by way of Gulf of Mexico. On the other hand, buying of future deliveries here seemed to be confined largely to taking advantage of breaks in prices.

Hight temperatures had a decided bearish effect on new crop months in the corn market. Nearby deliveries were mean while depressed by enlarged receipts. Oats trailed lower with corn and wheat.

Provisions were buoyant, hogs having touched the highest point today since October, 1923.

CURB.

New York, July 21.—Trading in today's curb market was on a broad and active scale with the price trend uniformly upward.

Further cuts in crude and gasoline prices were without influence on the oil shares. Standard Oil of Nebraska jumped 7 1-2 points, Swan & Finch and Sota Refining 5 each and Standard Oils of Indiana, New York and Ohio, Vacuum, Penn-Mex Fuel and Magnolia Petroleum 1 to 3 points.

A six point jump in Gillette Safety Razor, which carried it above 300, was the feature of the industrial group. Dubilier Radio touched a new top at 52 1-4, buying of this issue being influenced by the announcement of large orders for condensers from electrical manufacturers. National Tea moved up 3 points to 234.

Bonds showed moderate improvement on heavy trading.

Saturday afternoon at four o'clock a meeting of those interested in gardens and nature studies was held at the home of Mrs. H. C. Cornwall, on Cliff street, and a new club to be known as the Nature club was formed. This gathering was the result of a meeting held the Saturday evening previous at the home of Mrs. Louis P. Mrs. Walter T. Fish motored to Orleans, Mass., last week with friends and spent a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Norman White.

Mrs. Annie Butterworth of Tampa, Florida, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Frink.

Mystic Congregationalists who attend the Road church from time to time are interested in hearing that word has been received from Rev. Joseph L. Peacock, former acting pastor of that church, that he and his daughter Carolyn are now in Scotland where they will spend a short time before returning home the middle of the month from their trip abroad.

Following the meeting a visit to the delightful garden of Mrs. Wolcott Main in Wequetequock was made.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The past week showed a slight decrease in the amount of new building recorded at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton, there being only four building permits granted during the week. Of these four permits one is for a bungalow to be erected by Frank Gelino on Oakridge street, two are for garages and one for the extension of a present building. The value as placed on the new work is approximately $7,000.

Work has started on the Mohican Co. building on Main street where a new building is to be erected on the site of the present building. The staging is up preparatory to demolishing the present building and the work of tearing out the front has been started.

In the basement of the Thayer building where the bowling alleys have been located for a number of years extensive alterations have been made. The alleys have been shifted around and the basement has been rewired for electric lights and the walls have been redecorated.

At the Norwich State Hospital good progress has been made on the new ward buildings. On the Canterbury turnpike the house for Elkin Smith has been practically completed and the house for Daniel Polsky is ready for occupancy. Several other houses are in the process of erection in this section.

The building permits issued by Fire Marshal Stanton during the past week are as follows:

To Frank Gelino to erect frame bungalow on Oakridge street. The bungalow is to be 24 by 32 feet with stone and concrete foundation. There will be five rooms and bath. The exterior will be finished in composition shingles and the interior will be in plaster and hardwood.

To George Mosessian to extend the present frame building on Hamilton avenue. The extension will be 12x32 feet.

To George W. Allen to erect a frame garage on Laurel Hill avenue for Benjamin Abrahamson. The garage will be 18x18 feet.

To Robert W. Otis to erect frame garage on West Main street. The building will be 20x40.

NEW LONDON

Despite the present apparent slump in building operations in this city it is an established fact that the total amount of new construction started here in the first nine months of the current fiscal year is considerably in excess of the total for the entire fiscal year ended Sept. 30 1923. Figures made public by Building Inspector Benjamin Linnicus show that during the nine months ended June 30, permits were issued for $1,017,210 in new construction. This compares with a total of $979,625 for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1923. The amount of the permits issued by months are as follows: November, $40,050; December, $24,865; January, $334,475; February, $83,100; March, $113,300; April, $129,400; May, $82,305; June, $136,065.

Ground has been staked out at the corner of Hempstead and Mercer streets for a dwelling for A. C. Fuller. The proposed house will be of frame construction, arranged bungalow style for one family.

A. Benvenuti & Co., 62 Hempstead street, have finished the mason work for the dwelling being erected by Veto Bellucci on Fuller street. They also have a large force of men at work at Fort Wright, Fishers Island, N. Y., where they have the contract for extensive concrete work at the military camp of the New York National Guard. Other contracts which they now have on hand are: Foundation for a cottage for A. J. St. Germain, Bank street, on the Niantic river, Waterford; concrete block garage for Samuel S. Palmer on Ledyard street.

Applications for Building Permits

E. Greenblatt, garage, Squire street $500.

A. S. McFarlane, garage, Montauk avenue $700.

Joquin Burges, addition, 11 Briggs street, $300.

Donald B. Battels, dwelling, Farmington avenue, $8,500.

Number of permits issued for the week, 7; estimated cost of buildings, $10,300.

WILLIMANTIC

The contract has been awarded to E. C. Johnson & Co., Willimantic, for the office building to be erected on North street, Willimantic, for Dr. Owen O'Neil. The building will be 35 x65 feet, two stories high, of brick and steel construction. It will be arranged for professional office purposes. The entire first floor will be occupied by the owner. On the second floor there will be four three-room suites.

E.C. Johnson & Co., 99 Lewston ave., have the contract for the proposed office building on North street for Dr. Owen O'Neil. The plans call for a two-story building, 35x65 feet, of brick and steel construction. WESTERLY

Returning to New London from Westerly about 2.30 o'clock Monday afternoon, Carlo Spataro, of New Britain, was operating his Ford automobile, loaded with fish, when just beyond the entrance to Wequetequock Casino, the wishbone broke. The automobile became unmanageable and swerved from the roadway to the electric car tracks beside the highway at the same time the load of fish was scattered in the road. Crossing the tracks the automobile crashed into a stonewall completely wrecking the machine. Spartaro the driver was thrown against the wall. Dr. John E. Ruisi of Westerly was summoned to attend the injured man, found that he had sustained a fraction near the base of the skull and bad lacerations on the forehead and chin. After receiving treatment the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps was called and took the injured man to the Home Memorial hospital, in New London.

Operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor Sunday night, about 11.30 o'clock brought Wilbur R. Earl of White Rock, R. I., and John Riley of Westerly before Judge William A. Wilcox, at a special session of the town court Monday morning. The trouble occurred on the Stonington road out of Westerly and just beyond the old Moss farm barn, when the Ford touring car 37-291 R. I., owned and operated by Earl and bound, to Westerly, ran into the rear end of hte Buick roadster of Harry W. McKenney of 27 Main street, New Haven, throwing the New Haven man against the wall as he was attending to trouble in his automobile which was parked by the roadside.

On complaint of Stonington Town Attorney George R. McKenna, Earl was charged with operating an automobile on July 20th while under the influence of liquor. Asked by Clerk A. G. Martin what his plea was, the defendant replied, "Well, I had two drinks, I suppose I was under the influence." Pressed for plea the defendant said "Guilty."

Connecticut State Traffic Officer R. E. Honeyman of Groton barracks testified that he having finished his patrol was returning to Groton when he came across the two automobiles in collision. He learned that the Buick roadster, of McKinney of New Haven was still by the roadside when the Earl auto crashed into the back, denting the Buick back. The gas tank beneath the tire rack was broken.

Dr. Michael H. Scanlon testified that he was called to the Liberty street lockup to examine Earl and that his talk and actions were like those of a man who had been drinking. The men admitted to him that they had had a drink at 6.30 and again at 10 o'clock.

Harry W. McKenney of 27 Main street, New Haven, told the court that he wsa going to Westerly when his engine went dead and had lost the spark. He pulled the car over to the side of the road so that but one wheel remained on the hard surface. He was trying to locate the short when he had to pick himself up on the stone wall where he had been thrown when struck by the Earl automobile. He claimed that his running lights and rear light were burning. He said that when he remonstrated with Riley the latter pitched into him and started to mop up he road with him, until neighbors called a halt. He turned around in time to drag Riley from an approaching automobile.

In his defense Earl claimed that there were no lights burning on the Buick, not even the tail light. Attorney McKenna said that regardless of whether the lights were burning or not he was convinced that Earl was under the influence of liquor and that in view of the fact that the man had spent 7 or 8 hours in jail he would ask for the minimum fine—$100 and costs.

Judge Wilcox fined him $100 and costs of $27.07, amounting to $27.07, amounting to $127.07 in all. A friend of the accused in court was not able to pay the fine and as the accused was not able, a mittimus was issued and Earl was taken to New London county jail by Officer Honeyman.

John Riley, who accompanied Earl was charged with intoxication. He pleaded guilty. Attorney McKenna, in view of the man's large family asked for a light fine. Judge Wilcox imposed a fine of $2 and costs of $25.06, amounting to $27.05 for which payment was arranged and the defendant returned to Westerly.

Loose stones in the section of Broad street, opposite the new Washington Bank building, which would take but 15 minutes to rake off, may be the cause of a several thousand dollar damage case against the town of Westerly. It is a daily occurrence for the stone sent sideways to the sidewalk by passing automobiles to hit pedestrians on the walk, to say nothing of a repetition of broken show windows, as was the case with loose stone on High street when they were allowed to remain in the center of the highway not long ago.

Suit has been brought by Oscar H. Main of Norwich against William E. Miner of Varetyville, R. I., to recover the purchase price of a cow. Suit is brought by Attorney John F. Gallagher for the plaintiff who alleges that the agreed price was $85 and that the cow was purchased with the understanding it was to remain on the farm for a time but—the cow died. The case will come up in a regular session of the Third district court in Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Bailey of Norwich were automobile visitors in Westerly Sunday.

The work of repainting the flagpole in front of the Westerly High school building was begun Monday.

Mabel G. Trotter of Manchester is the guest of the family of George Smith, on Clark avenue.

Patrolman Charles W. Connors of the Stonington police force will resume his duties in Pawcatuck today after an absence from duty, while receiving treatment at a hospital in New London. During his absence West Side patrol duties were cared for by Supernumerary Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon.

George R. Degan of Alfred, N. Y., was a Westerly arrival Monday, enroute to Pleasant View.

Miss J. W. Day, M. Noonan and S. F. Glancy, all of Bridgeport, have been at the Andrea, Pleasant View Beach.

All records for bathing beach patronage at Watch Hill were broken Sunday when the largest number of people in the history of the Hill were gathered at one time on the bathing beach.

A Connecticut state traffic officer on the stretch of highway between Groton and Mystic bridge on Sunday reports the automobile traffic that day as the greatest so far this year. At one time his motor cycle was set at 20 miles an hour as he came over to the bridge and at that point he stopped and counted the automobiles following, when 41 passed him without a break in the line.

The Westerly town clock refused to strike on Sunday morning and it could not be learned whether it had union works or not.

STONINGTON

Monday morning the voting lists to be used in the election next Monday were hung in front of Chesebro's. The printed lists are more up to date than they have been in some time as they were made up last season. Clerk Charles B. States has placed them on a new set of boards.

Benjamin Chesebro and John D'Amico took out fishing parties early Sunday morning and both reported an excellent catch of mackerel.

Repairs are being made on the roof of the high school building where some of the slate has become loosened.

Part of the force at the Atwood Machine company was laid off Monday night for a brief period.

A Pawcatuck young man was in the borough court Monday morning on the charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

PLACES NO BLAME FOR ACCIDENT ON AVIATORS

The board of inquiry appointed to investigate the airplane accident during war maneuvers at Niantic on Friday, in which Lieutenant Arnold Rasmussen of Waterbury, pilot of the plane and Lieutenant Allen B. Stanhope of Niantic, observer, were injured and the house of Lewis Hall was damaged, will free the aviators from charges of carelessness and direct responsibility for the crash, according to Major Talbot O. Freeman, who heads the board.

The state is to accept full responsibility for the property damage and the matter is to be adjusted through the adjutant-general's office. The extent of damage and amount of remuneration has not been determined. It is expected that Mr. Hall will present his claim for damages to the investigating board.

Major Freeman, who commands the 118th Observation Squadron, C. N. G., said that the formal report of the board, to be submitted to Brigadier General Morris B. Payne, will show that the accident was due to causes beyond the control of the pilot of the plane.

In commenting on the accident, Major Freeman, said that under ordinary circumstances the plane would not have been allowed to fly on Friday as air conditions were very bad. A strong gusty wind was blowing at the time of the flight, and this with the contributing factor of a small and rough landing field, was responsible for the crash.

He said that the pilot made a fine landing on the first attempt, hitting all "points" at once. In attempting to jockey the plane to a standstill, rough ground swerved the machine so that it would have crashed into spectators if the pilot had not sent the plane back into the air. At the second attempt to land the plane had lost so much speed that a depression in the ground caused the plane to turn about and face down wind. On the next attempt to fly, the plane was blown toward the Hall house into which it crashed before it was finally stopped.

Father McLean's Big Parish

A new church at Devon, known as St. Anne's, was opened Sunday to the public, with Rev. Peter H. McLean, S. T. L., pastor of St. Mary's church in Milford, and outlying missions, at its head. Because of the absence of Bishop Nilan, the dedication will not take place until the middle of August. At this time an impressive ceremony will be held, formally dedicating the new edifice, which has accommodations for 400 worshippers. Only the basement has been completed for the time being, the structure being so constructed as to allow the addition of the superstructure at a future date.

Father McLean was assistant at St. Joseph's Cathedral several years ago under Rt. Rev. Michael Tierney and was appointed head of the Connecticut Apostolate by him, when the diocese of Hartford had its own missionary band. He is now in charge of what is said to be the largest summer parish in the state, being pastor of St. Agnes' church, Woodmont; St. Gabriel's church, Walnut Beach, and St. Anne's church, Devon, providing in all, twelve masses on Sundays for these shore parishes.

Following his ordination Father McLean served as a curate at St. Patrick's church, Norwich and at St. Andrew's Colchester.

NINE YEAR OLD BOY DROWNED IN SHETUCKET

Frank E. Smith, Jr., 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Smith of 11 Elm street, was drowned Monday noon in the Shetucket river when he fell off the rocks below the embankment near the New Haven railroad freight station. The boy was attempting to recover a stocking that had fallen off the embankment, onto the rocks.

Two little boys who were with him, too young to assist quickly spread the alarm when they saw him fall into the water. The police were notified and Officers Myron Morgan and Michael Carroll were sent to the river. Grappling irons were secured and after a search the body was brought to the surface but it was too late to save the boy's life.

The boy, who is known throughout the center of the city as "Sonny" was a favorite among all with whom he came in contact. He was of bright and cheerful disposition and easily made and kept friends.

He was born in Norwich, September 11, 1914, and besides his parents is survived by one sister, Anna May Smith. The news of the death of "Sonny" will be learned with regret by his many friends and to his parents will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of many understanding friends.

TOTAL ECLIPSE OF ALL LIGHTS IN CITY

The city was in total eclipse for five minutes Monday night from 11.15 to 11.20 when the substation of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. at Greeneville "tripped," according to General Manager C. W. Taggart of the city gas and electric department. The automatic circuit breakers operated to relieve the station, and all the electricity for street and service circuits was cut off.

Automobile headlights were the only illumination of the streets while this period of blackness lasted. As soon as the switch was thrown back by the attendants at the station, the lights came back.

The city gets its electric service at night from the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. and from the Scotland dam plant of the Uncas Power Co.

HOLLYHOCKS

Calm and dignified and tall,
They stand against the garden wall.
Now the breeze comes flirting by,
Full of dash and coquetry,
Calling with a tempting smile
And a merry roundelay,
"Follow me a little while,
Life your skirts and dance away,"
Tripping to the lilting tune,
Of all gardens talk in June."

With temptation thus beset
In these pagan summer days,
Still they never can forget
All their modest, maiden ways.
So they bow with courtly grace,
Each one standing in her place,
Ladies in a minuet.

But when fairies kiss my eyes,
Then I see in glad surprise
They are no longer standing so
In the quiet, sober row.
But stepping out across the lawn
(In the twilight — the flowers,
When there's one who [illegible]
Lapses of propriety.)
Rosy reds and pinks and creams,
They glow as softly as my dreams,
Pinks and creams and rosy reds,
The glory of the flower beds,

And ladies with their silver locks
Walk among the hollyhocks.
Smiles and laces duly set
They join the stately minuet.
Move sedately through the maze—
How I love their quaint old ways!—
Ladies with their silver locks
Dancing with the hollyhocks.

Calm and dignified and tall,
They stand against the garden wall.
Pinks and creams and rosy reds,
The glory of the flower beds.
Rosy reds and pinks and creams,
They glow as softly as my dreams.

The July Garden

It's July in my garden: and steel-blue are the globe thistles.
And French grey the willows that bow to every breeze;
And deep in every currant bush a robber blackbird whistles.
"I'm picking, I'm picking, I'm picking these!"

So off I go to rout them, and find instead
—I'm gazing
At clusters, of delphiniums—the seed was small and brown,
But these are stars that fall from heaven and caught the most amazing
Colors of the welkin's own as they came hustling down.

And then some roses catch my eye, or maybe some sweet Williams
Or pink and white and purple peals of Canterbury bells,
Or pencilled violas that peep between the three-leaved trilliums
Or red-hot pokers all aglow on poppies that cast spells—

And while I stare at each in turn, I quite forget or pardon
The blackguards—and the blackguards
—that keep robbing me of bliss;
For what do such things matter when I have so fair a garden,
And what is half so lovely as my garden in July?
—Robert Ernest Vernedè.

DEADLOCK CONTINUES ON GERMAN LOAN GUARANTEE

Premier Theunis of Belgium Failed in an Endeavor to Dissolve the Deadlock—Frank B. Kellogg, American Representative at the Inter-Allied Conference Has Proposal Which Will Be Made Public Today—The Kellogg Plan Would Prevent Application of Sanctions Without Consulting Five American Members of the Dawes Committee.

London, July 22 (By the A. P.)—Premier Theunis of Belgium today tried vainly to break the deadlock in the inter-allied conference on the guarantees for the German loan and, when the bankers refused his proposal, Frank B. Kellogg, American ambassador and American representative at the conference, came to the rescue with an alternative proposal, the fate of which will not be known until tomorrow when the proposal drafted for the allied premiers and the British and American bankers will be under consideration.

M. Theunis suggested that the present machinery for declaring Germany in default under the Dawes plan be increased by five members of the Dawes committee. When this proposal failed to satisfy the bankers, Mr. Kellogg submitted his plan whereby the sanctions could not be applied without consulting five Americans who presumably would be the members of the Dawes committee.

The Kellogg plan also required that in applying the sanctions, nothing be done which would impair the service of the loan to Germany. This plan will be considered at an important conference at Downing street tomorrow morning.

BERLIN PLEASED WITH OBJECTIONS OF BANKERS

Berlin, July 22 (By the A. P.)—Reports that British and American bankers have indicated their objections to an arrangement whereby the reparation commission will have the final say in the matter of sanctions in the event of German default under the Dawes plan, are received here with great satisfaction as the bankers' reported attitude coincides with that of the German government which has made no secret of its distrust of the reparation commission as the arbiter of Germany's destinies.

It is emphasized in official circles that in order to make the loan a success, the good will of Germany is essential and such good will can scarcely be expected if Germany can at any moment be subjected to sanctions for alleged failures by what is regarded here as a prejudiced and not impartial tribunal.

Another important point on which the German delegation to London will demand enlightenment will be the question of the military evacuation of the Ruhr because it is extremely doubtful whether any government could survive one week without being able to tell the reichstag, which opened today, that some kind of an arrangement for the military evacuation of the Ruhr had been made a part of the general agreement.

The delegation will also object strongly to the presence of 3,000 Franco-Belgian railwaymen in the Ruhr on the ground that this would mean that the German economic sovereignty as stipulated in the Dawes report, would not be restored.

Unless a satisfactory solution is found for these questions, the Marx-Stresseman government will undoubtedly be faced by serious internal difficulties which might easily lead to a political crisis and to the replacement of the present government by another which might be far more difficult to deal with than the present one.

KELLOGG AS MEDIATOR IN REPARATION DEADLOCK

London, July 22 (By the A. P.)—With the inter-allied conference on the Dawes reparation plan not yet a week old, the American ambassador, Frank B. Kellogg, has been called upon to play the delicate role of mediator, which all the delegations confidentially predicted would be his sooner or later when the statesmen opened their parleys here last Wednesday.

Mr. Kellogg's opportunity came this afternoon when the French ideas of security were found to be out of harmony with the guarantees required by American financiers who are expected to take up a considerable portion of the 440,000,000 loan to Germany, with which the Dawes plan is to be inaugurated.

The situation, although tense tonight, is regarded by most observers as capable of amicable solution through the office of the American ambassador and his colleagues. On one principle all the delegations seem still to be agreed—that the Dawes plan affords the only solution for Europes ills, and that the alternative is chaos.

Accordingly, the position is one of anxiety, but not of despair, and the delegations do not regard the hitch which has occurred because of the bankers' demands for protection of the loan in the light of a crisis. It is emphasized that the conference, which has made such remarkable progress during the first six days, will yet find a way for the restoration of the accord which characterized its earlier important decisions.

When it was finally determined at the meeting of the allied finance ministers with the American and British bankers that the safeguards unanimously agreed to by the committee on sanctions and defaults respecting the German loan were considered insufficient by the financiers, Premier Theunis of Belgium is understood to have advanced the first alternative.

M. Theunis proposed that a German default, which the first report stated might be adjudged by the reparation commission, could be declared by that commission only after consultation with five members of the Dawes committee, who would act in an advisory capacity. This is understood to have proved wholly unsatisfactory to the American bankers.

Then it was that Ambassador Kellogg's alternative proposal was brought forward. It is not concerned with the declaration of a German default but deals entirely with the manner of application of sanctions to Germany. It proposes that sanctions may not be applied until recommendations for a default have been made by the agent general of reparations and the bondholders' trustee, and also by five members of the Dawes committee, who would be called in. Then the question of sanctions would be put to the reparation commission, and if there was a unanimous vote in favor of sanctions all the allies would join in imposing them.

The hitch comes in the possibility of the reparations commission's vote not being unanimous; the question would then arise as to whether the nations voting in favor of sanctions would take them. Or whether they could be held back by the nations which had voted against the taking of penalties.

A feature of Ambassador Kellogg's plan is calling in five of the experts who aided General Dawes to work out his reparations scheme. They would likely be M. Parmentier, of France, Dr. Alberto Pirelli, Italy Emil Franqui, Belgium, Sir Robert Kindersley, director of the Bank of England, and Owen D. Young, United States.

An American financial authority informed the correspondent of the Associated Press tonight that the only problem from the financiers' viewpoint was that if any nation voted in the reparation commission for taking sanctions, it might be difficult to restrain independent action on the part of that nation, and as long as this was possible the basis for credits was not sound. He expressed the opinion that the difference was not a serious one and that a settlement would surely be worked out from the Kellogg plan within a week.

In American official circles it is taken on that the Kellogg proposal precludes separate action by France, but the same spokesman said that the details would have to be thoroughly worked out to satisfy the bankers. At the close of the afternoon conversations between the financial experts and the bankers, the French delegates reiterated that France was irrevocably committed to the Versailles treaty, and the interpretation regarding separate action, with which France has made the whole world familiar through her invasion of the Ruhr. That implication in Mr. Kellogg's alternative plan is as abhorrent to the financiers as at yesterday's conference, the views of the financiers were laid before the allied finance ministers and their expert consultants by Thomas Lamont, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Sir Montagu Norman, governor of the bank of England. In behalf of American investors the conferees were asked to remember that Germany has a bad reputation in America with respect to her debts, that she is already regarded as in default of her obligations and that therefore a German loan could not be made an attractive investment if there remained the possibility that, with the Dawes plan operating, any nation could by separate action jeopardize the whole scheme and nullify the loan's security.

The French delegation for their part, as one of the observers again emphasized tonight, must always bear in mind their political opponents in Paris, who are looking for an opportunity to make capital out of any action M. Herriot may take here which they consider detrimental to France's interest.

French spokesmen advance the view that France's real salvation rests in unanimous action by the allies in enforcing the Dawes report, and that it is hardly conceivable that a situation could arise in which France would desire to invoke separate sanctions.

THREE BODIES RECOVERED OF SEVEN MISSING CHILDREN

Bridgeport, July 22.—Three bodies were recovered today of the seven children that started out last Thursday from St. Mary's-by-the-Sea in a canoe. The recovery was made within two hours after an unavailing search of five days and nights. The first two were found but a short distance from where the party started. They were Ernest Peterson, 8, the youngest of them all, and Walter Bergquist, 12. Both were picked up by Fire Captain Thomas F. Bly, who has been patrolling Fairfield beach ever since the volunteers took up the search. The third body was that of Florence Benson, 15, the oldest of the seven. It was found floating off Seaside Park, a few hundred feet below the main bathing pavilion where hundreds were in swimming at the time, Park Officer William Halpin sighted the body.

The fathers of the two boys found first were on the shore when the bodies were brought ashore and had to be held back by force to prevent their rushing into the water to the boat.

Hunt for the remaining four—Ethel Bergquist, 14; Alva Nordquist, 13; Clinton Nordquist, 12; and Alva Anderson, 14—goes on with large reinforcements of volunteers, encouraged by the recovery of the three.

12-YEAR-OLD GIRL DROWNED IN BRANFORD RIVER

Branford, Conn., July 22.—Anna Anderson, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Anderson, of this town, was drowned in the Branford river this afternoon. The girl in company with several other companions, had been picking berries. As she could not swim, her friends tried to persuade her not to go into the water when the group decided to go in bathing. The Anderson girl was soon in deep water and despite efforts of the other girls to save her, was drowned. The body was recovered.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Discuss Among Wagnerians.

Beyreuth, Bavaria, July 22.—Frau Wagner's refusal to permit "Tristan and Isolde" to be sung in the Wagner festival has been the subject of much discussion among Wagnerians who are here attending the first revival of the festival since it closed so dramatically at the beginning of the war. Rumor has it that even at the ripe age of 86, the widow of the great Wagner is still jealous of Mathilde Wesendonck, the friend of Wagner when he was an exile in Switzerland, who is supposed to have been the inspiration for the opera based on the unhappy love affair of Tristan and Isolde. Several of Wagner's most celebrated songs were written to poems by Madame Wesendonck.

HELD FOR KILLING MAN IN FIGHT ON RUM SHIP

Atlantic City, N. J., July 22.—Pursuing him like a wraith from the grave, the anxiety of a mother in Dublin, Ireland, for the fate of her son whom she had not heard from since last November, results in the arrest in New Orleans, of Louis Chalmers, alias "French" on a charge of murdering Robert Pike, 24, on Rum Row off the Jersey coast.

According to the mother's letter to Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, Robert had been a dutiful son and had regularly written to her and sent her money up until November of last year. As time went on and she heard nothing from her boy, whom she knew had been shipping out of Kingston, Jamaica, Mrs. Pike failed to learn anything of his whereabouts until she applied to the British legation in Washington.

At about the same time a private detective agency in New Orleans notified the police of this city that a man by the name of Chalmers had told someone in New Orleans he had shot and killed another man in a cafe here, and asked if they should arrest him.

As soon as the connection between the two investigations became apparent, and inquiry was made of people known to have dealings on Rum Row, City Detective Edward Mulhorn was sent to New Orleans and Chalmers was placed under arrest there. From a visit to the rum ships it was found that a fight had occurred on the steamer Genevieve on November 25, 1923, in which Pike was shot and killed and his body sewed up in a canvas sack and buried at sea.

Chalmers is being held in New Orleans to await the action of the British authorities.

WOULD NOT TOLERATE THE ODOR OF LIQUOR

New York, July 22.—Employers throughout New York and New Jersey are urged to discharge all employes possessing liquor or even alcoholic breaths, in letters being prepared today by R. Q. Merrick in charge of prohibition enforcement in this territory. The missives were inspired by the receipt of a copy of an order posted recently in all Henry Ford plants, shops and offices. Mr. Merrick cited the Ford documents as an example of good citizenship and said he would communicate with Roy A. Haynes, federal prohibition director, in an effort to make the letter writing national in scope.

CITY DRIVE TO FORCE LOWER GASOLINE PRICES

Chelsea, Mass., July 22.—A city-directed drive to force lower gasoline prices got under way today when Mayor Quigley opened his first municipal station. The mayor's price was 17 cents a gallon for gasoline and 12 cents a quart for oil.

"The city has more than 8,000 gallons available for sale," said F. D Cowley, mayor's secretary. Although declining to reveal the wholesale price, Cowley said the city would "more than break even above all expenses."

DEPUTIES PROTECTING NEGROES FROM MOB

Cairo, Ills., July 22.—In answer to an urgent call received here today from Sheriff L. J. Hudson, of Pulaski county, requesting aid in dispersing a crowd gathering about the county jail there, in which two negroes, suspected of slaying Daisy Wilson, of Villa Ridge, Ills., are imprisoned, Chief Deputy Sheriff Leslie Roche and eight deputies left for that city.

The deputies carried riot guns.

LAFOLLETTE HAS BUT FEW FOLLOWERS IN CONNECTICUT

Hartford, July 23—Connecticut followers of Senator Robert M. LaFollette and Senator Burton K. Wheeler, candidates for president and vice president, are hard to find. Luther H. Trieschmann, of East Hartford, is about the only one who has stepped forward and announced his readiness to go into a campaign for the ticket and, while presumably there are voters similarly inclined in the socialist party, which has endorsed the ticket, Trieschmann is evidently doubtful as to how to proceed.

NEW MEXICAN EDITOR COMMITTED FOR CONTEMPT

Las Vegas, N. M., July 22.—Carl O. Magee, editor of the New Mexico State Tribune, was committed to the county jail today for three months, after having been held guilty of contempt of court by District Judge D. J. Leahy because of editorials in Magee's paper criticising decisions of the court. Judge Leahy refused to allow Magee a stay of sentence to prepare a writ of habeas corpus.

SHENANDOAH TO MAKE TEST FLIGHT THURSDAY

Lakehurst, N. J., July 23.—Commander Zachary Yansdowne, of the navy dirigible Shenandoah, tonight announced that the ship will leave its hangar here Thursday about noon for another 24-hour test flight over cities in New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania. No definite itinerary has been prepared. Visits will be made to Scranton and Binghampton because of receipt of invitations.

A cow belonging to W. H. Ryan, of Lawrenceville, Kas., shortened up so perceptibly on her milk supply that one of his sons sought to do some sleuthing to catch, if possible, the culprit redhanded. He did. From a shielded point he saw a young fawn in such a position as to solve the riddle. When the fawn saw him it took to the woods, and to his additional surprise followed the fawn.

Coolidge Campaign Secondary to Duties

President is Expected to Make Less Than a Dozen Speeches—No Extended Tour.

Washington, July 22. — Participation by President Coolidge in the national campaign is expected to be limited to less than a dozen speeches and to involve no extended campaign tour. This announcement was made today at the White House.

Development during the campaign may cause an alteration in the present plans for the president's campaign activities, but it now is the strong belief of Mr. Coolidge as well as William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, that executive duties must receive first attention and campaign requirements be relegated to a secondary place. Such a position is expected by republican leaders to recommend itself generally to the American people regardless of political affiliations.

Definite plans such as dates and places, for the addresses to be made by Mr. Coolidge have not been formulated. Some of the addresses probably will be made by radio from Washington but it still is the plan for the president to deliver several out-of-town addresses after September 1.

One address, probably the most important the president will make during the campaign, will be delivered at the notification ceremonies here Aug 14. Mr. Coolidge also has an engagement to speak at the dedication here early in October of the First Division monument, and he then probably will make his only address of the campaign to a soldier audience.

Mr. Butler gave out a statement, in which he said he regarded the campaign as really opened; that the republicans were ready to wage the contest either on the basis of personality of candidates or of party records and pledges; that a branch headquarters probably would be established in the west, and that the republican campaign management was planning a contest in which all the people might have a part and which would seek to stir the stay-at-home vote out of its apathy.

The location of the western headquarters had not been decided on when Mr. Butler left here. Announcement also was made that a speakers' bureau would be established in the eastern headquarters at New York to handle the speaking campaign in the eastern states.

The national chairman again stressed his declaration that the republicans would conduct a nation-wide campaign.

"As a result there is more sober serious thinking of the campaign as something vitally connected with the prosperity of the nation rather than merely a contest for office between candidates," he added.

ACTION TAKEN BY STATE BANKING COMMISSION

Hartford, July 22.—The state banking commission today denied the application of the Ansonia Bank and Trust company, later changed to the Peoples' Bank and Trust company, of which Governor Templeton was one of the original incorporators, for a certificate of authority to do a general banking business at Ansonia and granted the application of the Home Bank and Trust company to establish a bank at West Haven.

In denying the application it was given as the opinion of the commission that public convenience and advantage would not be promoted at the present time by the establishment of another bank and trust company at Ansonia.

The commission decided that the establishment of another bank at West Haven would be to the public advantage and convenience.

ROOF COLLAPSED AT CLARK UNIVERSITY

Worcester, Mass., July 22—A large portion of the roof of the main building at Clark University, probably weakened by the recent high winds, collapsed today. No one was injured as the building was empty at the time.

Valuable historical prints and pictures are believed damaged beyond recovery. The history museum was situated directly below that portion of the roof which fell. The loss is placed at 10,000.

Fire probably was prevented by quick action of custodians who immediately shut off electric light circuits and gas mains.

Inspectors, after a survey, gave their opinion that a loosening of portions around the main skylight by recent high summer winds was responsible. No other part of the building is in danger, they declared, and no one could be held responsible.

MRS. NORA BRADLEY KEANE DEAD A TAGE OF 109 YEARS

Waterbury, July 22—Mrs. Nora Bradley Keane, probably the oldest resident in the state, died at her home in Newtown, late last night at the age of 109 years. She had been in failing health for the past two years, but performed her ordinary household duties long after she passed the century mark. Mrs. Keane was born in Ireland, in May, 1816, and had been a resident of Newtown for the last 86 years. She attended the first mass celebrated in Newtown back in 1841 and was the last survivor of the original congregation of 12 members that formed the parish of St. Rose's church. Her funeral will be held from that same church tomorrow morning.

STERLING REACHES HIGHEST LEVEL IN YEAR

New York, July 22.—Recent progress made in the inter-allied conference, coupled with America's promise of assistance to Europe and report of a compromise on the security for a German loan, which would be acceptable to bankers, today caused a brisk rally in sterling to the year's highest level. On heavy buying orders the demand rate mounted to $4.41 5-8, eclipsing the previous 1924 high mark of $4.40 established on April 23. Dutch and Swiss currencies also achieved new peak prices and French france were firm.

Bequests in Will of Mrs. "Jack" Gardner

Venetian Palace is to Become a Public Museum in the Hands of Seven Trustees.

Boston, July 22.—The Venetian palace of Mrs. Isabella Stewart Gardner, in The Fenway, storehouse of paintings, tapestries and plants that form one of the finest collections in the world, will become a public museum in the hands of seven trustees under the will of its founder, filed for probate today. For the privilege of seeing the art treasures that she gathered a fee must be charged so that the public may better appreciate them.

The income from $1,200,000 of the funds disposed of is left to the trustees to maintain the museum. If at any time the trustees shall place on exhibition there any works of art other than those that Mrs. Gardner herself collected, or shall rearrange the exhibits, building and contents will go to Harvard college, with the requirement that they be sold and the proceeds used to increase the salaries of professors or to establish scholarships.

Mrs. Gardner's will provided also for relatives and for household servants who had been with her for years. The list of relatives remembered is a long one, the amounts ranging from $5,000 to $40,000. Servants will share in a fund of $10,000 turned over to the trustees for distribution.

Pablo Casals, cellist, is bequeathed a rare violin cello. Morris Carter, director of the museum, is confirmed in that place to the end of his days unless he shall become incapacitated, and a $5,000 salary is provided for him, together with occupancy as his residence of the fourth story and attic of the museum building which comprised Mrs. Gardner's personal apartments. Two servants are provided for him.

The trustees named in the will are Harold J. Coolidge, Grafton D. Cushing, William C. Endicott, Francis L. Higginson, Jr., Arthur F. Johnson, all of Boston; and Arthur Pope and Henry D. Sleeper of Gloucester.

The trustees are required annually on April 14 of each year to hold a memorial service for Mrs. Gardner in the chapel which is a picturesque part of the museum building. It is provided that those who attend the Christmas mass in the chapel each year may conduct two services a year there for their relatives or themselves.

Directing that no great expenditures be made in maintaining the museum, the will provides that any surplus in the hands of the trustees after five-year periods be paid to the Boston Lying-In hospital and the Massachusetts General Hospital. Public bequests are largely to Boston institutions. The residue of the estate is left to the Industrial School For Crippled and Deformed Children; The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, The Animal Rescue League and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, in equal shares.

The Animal Rescue League is required to expend $75 a year for a free stall in memory of Mrs. Gardner's dogs. The M. S. P. C. A. is required to provide free stalls for her three horses and free kennels for her two dogs.

TRYING TO LEARN IDENTITY OF MASKED ACID THROWER

Lebanon Junction, Ky., July 22.—In an effort to learn the identity of the masked acid thrower, who seriously burned Mrs. Lillian Woodridge, 44, and her aged mother, last evening, in a mysterious attack, police officers tonight were endeavoring to trace the purchase of the acid used.

The assailant, dressed in woman's clothing, entered the yard at dark, stepped to the porch where Mrs. Woodridge, divorced life of Joseph Woodridge, traveling salesman, and her mother sat.

"Take this," said the assailant, as the liquid was thrown from a quart can at the two women. Mrs. Emma Ellison, 75, her mother, said the voice was that of a woman, but Mrs. Woodridge was uncertain.

Rushing into the kitchen, Mrs. Woodridge covered her face and neck with lard and fainted. Mrs. Ellison was burned on one arm. Her daughter suffered severe burns on the chest and thigh and painful injuries to her back.

No progress toward establishing the assailant's identity was made during the day.

CONJECTURE ON FATE OF LEOPOLD AND LOEB

Chicago, July 22.—(By the A. P.)—Fixing of the degree of "moral turpitude," may be the legal problem by which will be determined the ultimate fate of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, who kidnapped and killed young Robert Franks for a thrill.

Upon the development of this question, legal experts say, will hinge whether they shall hang or go to the penitentiary. First steps in arriving at a solution of the question will be taken tomorrow when the youths, who yesterday pleaded guilty, will appear in court for a hearing preliminary to their formal sentences.

Admission of the crime by the two sons of Chicago millionaires before Judge John R. Caverly, wiped out the possibility of a plea of insanity, at least until after sentence has been passed.

CONSIDERING PERSONNEL OF LA FOLLETTE COMMITTEE

Washington, July 22.—Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, and his advisers failed today to reach a final agreement on the personnel of the committee which will have charge of his presidential campaign. One is two of the eleven places remain to be filled.

Agreement has been reached that Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, who is in charge of the campaign with leaders in Chicago, is to be committee chairman. Of the other ten members Senator La Follette and Senator Wheeler of Montana, his running mate, are choosing five and the conference for progressive political action a like number. It was predicted today that two members probably would be women.

NARRATIVE OF EXPERIENCES ON RAMMED LINER BOSTON

Several Persons Tell of Narrow Escapes—S. K. Paige of Winchester, Mass., Was Chopped Out of His Bunk—Men Praised the Calm Behavior of Women Passengers—One Young Woman Powdered Her Nose As She Climbed Into a Lifeboat—Many When Rescued Were Without Shoes or Stockings—Three Persons Were Killed and One Fatally Injured.

New York, July 22.—Five hundred and twenty-eight men, women and children, passengers on the Eastern Steamship Company's sound liner Boston which was rammed by the tanker Swift Arrow late last night off Point Judith, arrived today with dramatic stories of their rescue at sea in a dense fog.

Four hundred and eighty were landed by the Priscilla, and the others by the Providence, both of the Fall River line, which picked them up from crowded lifeboats some time after the crash. A few were slightly injured.

The passengers, many of whom were without shoes or stockings, seemed to take their experience cheerfully, and as soon as the steamers docked hastened ashore to telephone or telegraph their families that they were safe. Most of the messages added: "Please send along some clothes."

Several persons on the Boston said they had narrow escapes, but probably none came nearer death than S. K. Paige, Jr., of Winchester, Mass. Mr. Paige was awakened when the bow of the Swift Arrow crashed into his stateroom and stopped against the side of his bunk. Other passengers chopped him out with axes. He was slightly hurt.

Every man who had been on the Boston had only praise for the calm, almost casual, behavior of the women passengers, none of whom, it was said lost ser self-possession. One young woman was observed powdering her nose before she climbed over the ship's side into a life boat. Another party danced to phonograph music while awaiting to be taken off.

Three Boston men, James Driscoll, A. A. Barrett and John P. Murray, described how the first life boat was lowered from the damaged liner nearly two hours after the crash.

"When the first boat, filled with women and children hit the water," Mr. Murray said, "it immediately began to fill. Driscoll, Barrett and I jumped down among the women and discovered that the sea plugs had been removed. These we stuffed with clothing and the boat made the Swift Arrow safely."

In response to allegations of some of the passengers that the Boston's life boats were awkwardly handled, J. Alfred Coates, vice president of the steamship company, said he had received several complaints that the negro stewards who had shown inefficiency in handling the life boats and the oars. The stewards, he added had not been trained for such work which was the duty of the seamen.

First Mate W. D. Todd of the Boston, praised the presence of mind of the passengers.

"It was almost miraculous," he said "for so many people to keep their heads and without direction quietly to take their places in the boats, running away from the ship in the blackness of a foggy night. A panic might have resulted in a terrible disaster."

The Eastern Steamship Company announced that the baggage of the Boston's passengers, most of which was left aboard, would be forwarded to the owners.

THREE VICTIMS OF COLLISION IDENTIFIED

Newport, R. I., July 222.—(By the A. P.)—The fact that three persons were killed and one fatally injured in the collision between the oil tanker Swift Arrow and the Eastern steamship liner Boston off Point Judith late last night was definitely established today. The bodies of a woman and two men were brought here on the Boston when she was towed into the harbor and beached. Charles L. Copeland of Brookline, Mass., rushed into port on the coast guard cutter Acushnet, died later at a hospital.

The woman's body was positively identified tonight by a brother as that of Mrs. Rose Green, a weeks' bride of Oscar Green of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Green was among the survivors landed at Fall River, slightly injured, and later went to Boston. He was separated from his wife after their stateroom was crushed in.

The other bodies were those of a man about 30 years of age, medium build and dark complexion and a man about 50, six feet tall and weighing 200 pounds, of sandy complextion and wearing a wrist watch.

A representative of the United Shoe Machinery corporation viewed the bodies in an unsuccessful attempt to identified one of them as that of Joseph Stout, son-in-law, of W. R. Sampson of Boston, general manager of the corporation. He said that Mr. Stout had occupied a stateroom close to the spot where the Swift Arrow, rammed the Boston.

The Swift Arrow, which had stood by the Boston until daylight and had taken aboard many passengers who later were put aboard other steamers, proceeded to Fall River this afternoon. Her bow was stove in but the damage was above the water line and she was able to make port without assistance. The Boston had a big hole in her portside amidships and naval vessels stayed alongside after she was beached to keep her pumped out.

It was believed tonight that all of those who had entered the lifeboats had been rescued by the numerous assisting craft. Naval airplanes scouted over the waters in this vicinity during the day to help in locating these boats.

Port Captain C. T. Snow of the Eastern Steamship Lines in a statement said that at the time of the collision the Boston was going very slowly. When the tanker was sighted the Boston blew one whistle to go to starboard. The Swift Arrow blew two blasts to go to port.

"The rule of the road," he added, "called for us to go to starboard."

He said the Calvin Austin would be transferred from a Maine route to the Boston-New York run.

REBELS DEFEATED BY BRAZILIAN GOV'T TROOPS

Santos, Brazil, July 22 (By the A. P.)—Reliable information received today from Sao Paulo is to the effect that the government forces have recaptured several outlying sections of the city from the rebels and are bringing up heavy artillery, and placing it at strategic points commanding rebel strongholds.

Monday night there was a brisk artillery duel between the federals and the rebels which lasted 12 hours. The rebels failed to dislodge the government forces, who are now surrounding the city on three sides, leaving the rebels only the west for retreat.

It is claimed that the effective marksmanship of the government gunners, who are landing shells on the barracks of the rebels, is beginning to break the morale of the rebels.

Arminium T. Haeberle, the American consul, is sticking to his post in Sao Paulo. He reports that there have been no American casualties up to the present.

The steamer Pan-American left Santos today, having on board more than 100 Americans from Sao Paulo, some of them are going to Rio Janeiro and some to the United States.

TO BUILD MINE LAYER AT PORTSMOUTH NAVY YARD

Washington, July 23.—Secretary Wilbur announced today that the navy department plans to build the hull of the mine laying submarine authorized by the last session of Congress at Portsmouth navy yard while the engines will be constructed at Brooklyn Navy Yard.

The submarine will be the first of the mine laying type to be constructed for the navy and will be built under plans made after extensive study of the war experience of Germany and the allied powers with this type of undersea craft. It will have a surface speed of about 15 knots and a submerged speed of eight knots and is intended as an experimental vessel in order that the navy department may determine from practical operation the most desirable type of vessel to meet American naval needs.

Congress fixed the limit of cost for hull and machinery of the ship at $5,300,000 and allowed an additional $850,000 for armor and armament.

PAINTERS IN BRIDGEPORT FELL THREE STORIES

Bridgeport, July 23.—Two men fell three stories from a scaffold outside the Underwood Typewriter company plant, where they were painting the walls and windows, just before quitting this evening, and one of them, Joh Edward McCullough, 37, of 11 Calderwood place, died shortly afterwards, while Frank Hawkins, 40, of 40 Cortland street, who well on top of McCullough, escaped in the 60-foot fall with scarcely more than slight bruises.

According to hearsay evidence on which the bureau of investigation is working, the two men were either arguing on the scaffold, or jostling each other in fun, before they fell. None of the steel cables which support the scaffold are broken and according to officials of the Underwood company, all the lumber is in place.

WILLIMANTIC

Twelve residents of Windham Center are listed as complainants in a case which will come up in police court here this (Wednesday) morning, when John Thompson of that district will be charged with harboring dogs which create a disturbance by barking during the day and night time. Mr. Thompson is breeding pedigreed police dogs on his farm. A warrant was made out for his arrest and Tuesday evening he was notified by the local police to appear in court. The complainants, a number of whom will appear as witnesses are: John P. Beckwith, Anna G. Claassen, Maud Stokes, Robert M. Yergeson, C. F. Raymond, W. S. Maine, Richard E. Watrous, Frances Campbell, Isabel F. Watrous, Mrs. Margaret Rourke, Ida Buream, William Popple.

The usually quiet and peaceful part of this city known as the Hill Section is having its innings having something of neighborly interest to talk about of, late according to some of the residents. It is said that that class of young motorists who spend hours and consume gallons of gasoline riding about the streets are seeking female companions have formed a habit of congregating on the Hill section. They have been blamed for accosting some of the young women who reside of the hill and inviting them to ride. Other subjects of discussion which go well with the first mentioned is regarding to skunks. A number of families of those pretty but odoriferous animals have settled on the hill, along with the select families of the city. As they roam through the yards, some of the baby skunks were mistaken for kittens; but since some unfortunate discovered that he made a slight mistake a campaign is on to repulse their advances.

The feature of the weekly meeting of Willimantic Rotary Club, Tuesday noon was the introduction of an original Rotary song, the words and music for which were composed by John T. Quinlan, the club pianist. Mr. Quinlan is widely recognized as an accomplished piano player and his display of unusual talent in song writing was received with applause by the Rotarians. The members practiced up on the new selection and under the leadership of George Hickey had the tune well under control at the third repetition. The club is now well equipped with singers who have long since been graduated from the barber-shop quartet class and four of these, President Standish, Ray Parker, John Pickett and Doc Jones, established a good reputation by rendering Carry Me Back to Old Virginny. John Ahern was in evidence as song leader. "Valentino" Murphy appeared on the scene long after the diners had been seated and he was decorated with the monkey-cap, also required to give a plausible excuse for his tardiness. Fred Avery, undertaker, was asked why he had come to the meeting without his mustache and he duly replied that he had often been mistaken for a local veterinary surgeon and so had his upper lip bobbed as a distinguishing mark. President Standish presided over the business session. Secretary Charley Hill read communications, including one from the New Haven railroad making reference to a campaign to reduce the number of grade crossing accidents. President Standish announced that the club stood third, according to the last report of the 30th district attendance. It is planned to have another attendance contest in September. On request, Frank M. Smith introduced his newly arrived grandson, James Thomas Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Smith of Elmyra, Ohio. John Riley was hailed with greeting cheers as a new member of the club. Breed Theatre.

Another treat for the motion picture fans of this city is assured in the announcement of a monster double feature programme for Wednesday and Thursday.

The latest Mae Marsh picture "A Woman's Secret" has been booked as the main attraction. In "A Woman's Secret" Miss Marsh is seen as the mischievous, fun-loving daughter of a wealthy merchant in the latter days of her boarding school days. She shows an amusing talent at getting into the most unheard of school-girl scrapes, and in these scenes simply is at her best in her comedy characterizations.

"Radio-Mania," scheduled for the second feature at the Breed theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, promises film fans something different in the way of entertainment. The story is a comedy based on Marconi's latest experiments of endeavoring to talk to Mars. It tells of a young radio "nut" who wins two thousand dollars as a prize for an essay and how he spends it all in building a radio machine with which he hopes to talk to Mars.

PALACE THEATRE

Last times today Elinor Glyn's, How to Educate a Wife, with Marie Prevost, Monte Blue, Betty Francisco and Creighton Hale. Elinor Glyn at her best makes you know the rest. Also comedy, news and orchestra.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Drums of Jeopardy, the screen adaptation of Harold MacGrath's famous Saturday Evening Post serial and novel, in which the lovely Elaine Hammerstein plays the leading role comes to the Palace theatre three days starting tomorrow.

A truly all-star cast supports Miss Hammerstein in the picturization of Harold MacGrath's renowned story. As the secret agent of the Russians, a part particularly adapted to his splendid capabilities, Wallace Beery will add to his fame as a delineator of this type of character. Jack Mulhall, another star in his own right plays opposite Miss Hammerstein, as Johnny Two-Hawks, who is in reality a Russia prince. Others who appear are David Torrence, Eric Hayne and Maude George.

Added attractions, new story of H. C. Witmer, Cosmopolitan Magazine gems of the screen, The Telephone Girl, story No. 5, with Alberta Vaughn.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Many exceptionally fine acts will put in their appearance at the Broadway theatre starting Thursday.

Leading the vaudeville bill is The Four Horsemen, not a moving picture, with Joe, Jenny by, William K. Wells. It is a very amusing and entertaining novelty that must be seen to be appreciated.

Ruby Royce and Peggy O'Neil in Fast and Speedy offer an excellent act.

Sure fire fun is assured when you see Bob George, nature's laff. He also sings and dances.

Carl and Valeska Winters present an unique novelty entitled Trying to Cop-per.

Something of the speedy action in in Fast Company, which comes to the Broadway theatre commencing Thursday, can be imagined from the fact that persons who have seen it call it "a serial in feature length." That is a true description although it contains none of the hokum which usually prevails in chapter pictures.

In the company beside, Talmadge, known as "the man of a thousand thrills," are Mildred Harris, Snitz Edwards, Douglas Gerrard, Sheldon Lewis, Jack Herrick and Charles Clary, all players of prominence.

Six miles on a Kansas zephyr was the ride taken by a woman's hat. It was part of the display in a Pretty Prairie millinery store window, which was smashed by the gale. The wind scattered toques, bonnets and turbans all over town. The farthest a single hat traveled was to a pasture six miles out of town, where it was found next morning, much the worse for wear.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Three cases were disposed of at Tuesday morning's session of the town court. Charged with the theft of approximately 180 chickens from the coops of Henry Smith in the Mashentuck district of the town, Theodore Saucier and Raymond Saucier, brothers, admitted their guilt, agreed to make restitution and, accordingly and in view of the circumstances, were shown leniency by the court, each receiving only 30 days in jail, whereas they might have been held for trial at the superior court with the likelihood of conviction there nad the prospect of receiving state prison sentences.

The Sauciers were taken to the county jail at Brooklyn, following the session of the court.

The raid on the Smith coops was made on a night during the past week. About 100 of the chickens that were taken away were smothered in the process of packing them in bags. Those that lived were taken to a place on the West Side, to the home of an entirely innocent party, and left there, later to be taken to Providence and sold. The chickens that lived have been restored to their rightful owner.

State police officers who worked on the case cleaned it up in record time. Officer Merrill KelKth had special charge of the investigation that led to the arrest of the Sauciers, Theodore being apprehended the past week end and Raymond early this week. The fact that both are young married men and have families depending upon them, figured in the consideration shown them by the court.

Another case disposed of in the town court Tuesday morning was that of Emil Kaiser of Killingly, charged with violation of the motor vehicle laws. He was fined $5 and actual costs.

A new code of ethics has been developed to meet a need of a phase of modern life. This code appears to be in line with old saw that necessity is the mother of invention. This code has to do with prohibition-time drinking and drinkers. It is of special interest as news matter in view of the fact that a great many people do not drink intoxicants, but like to hear things about the people who do. In fact, the majority of people like to hear newsy things about any group if there is nothing to be learned about some particular individual or some bevy of individuals.

The prohibition-drinkers' code of ethics appears to have been evolved from experience, now dating over a period of something more than five years, and from the exigiencies of the times. It is an interesting code.

For instance, drinking has become something of a ceremony, if not a rite. It is not indulged in by the great majority of indulgers as promiscuously as many suppose. This little comment has nothing to do with that class who rush for a one-piece bathing suit when someone suggests having a drink. It is more promiscuously concerned with numberless types of kindred spirits who, otherwise, may have no business, social, economic or other important close relations. They just naturally drift together when someone suggests having a little party.

It appears that a first requirement for entering this circle of drinkers is control. Drunkards are neither wanted nor tolerated. A second essential is that it isn't good form to buy drinks in Connecticut. There are other states —and Danielson happens to be very close to two of them.

Having had their few drinks, wherever they may go, the group starts homeward. Once in the home town talking about the expedition is extremely bad form. Nothing is said about a trip—at least very little—after it is over, even among those who participated in it. If there is any discussion about such events it is likely to pertain to some future trips.

Prohibition is seldom discussed, nor more than is the possibility of the tires on an automobile giving out. Hundreds here and hereabouts have learned to take things as they are and adjust themselves to condition. As has been remarked, they say little about it, but they are neither worried about dying of thirst for lack of such beverages as they desire. This may be sad news to the ardent advocate of a national Sahara, but it is nevertheless a fact. The summer of 1924 finds those in this corner of the state who are at all interest in the matter giving little or any attention to the fact that LaFollette is reported to be about ready to announce himself in favor of light this or heavy that. The interested are all set.

Danielson readers of The Bulletin observed with interest Tuesday announcement of the arrest in New London of Oliver Bessette of the West Side to face a charge of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant. It was recalled here that Bessette created a sensation in Danielson one night last fall when he failed to stop when state police officers ordered him to do so, and that thereafter they proceeded to bring him to a halt by shooting at his car, the affair throwing Danielson into a turmoil.

Just ahead—on the first Monday in August—comes the adjourned annual borough meeting at which the tax rate for the year will be fixed. This tax usually is payable during September.

Whoever is responsible appears to be playing with fate in failing to carry out the unanimous vote of a special town meeting that a certain row of trees in Reynolds street between Main and Broad be removed. The selectmen have given such authority as was required of them in the premises for the removal of these trees, and the affair is now said to be squarely up to the state highway commissioner. The section of street referred to—on the trunk line to Providence—is a death trap. Possibly it will not be necessary to repeat the fatal disasters that occurred on Dark Lantern hill, when there were no warning signs there, before suitable warnings were erected in handling the Reynolds street problem, but chances are being taken every day now. Apparently the unanimous vote of the town in the matter counts for nothing.

Danielson people and others in this territory would like the benefit of excursion rates such as the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. gave to Norwich and New London people on last Sunday's special trip to New York and return are still voicing the opinion that they should get similar consideration, but they would, in the majority of cases, prefer a trip to Boston rather than New York—because of the distance to be traveled in one day.

"The crows have left the country." That is the declaration of many of the Rod and Gun club members who have been shooting up the crows of late and find it very difficult to get anywhere near them the past week.

Frank A. Millerton of Hartford visited with friends in Danielson on Tuesday.

Alfred L. Reed was in Boston Tuesday on a business trip.

Danielson's health situation continues to be highly encouraging and the indications were on Tuesday that all quarantine regulations on individual families, of which there are only a few concerned, likely can be lifted within two weeks, giving Danielson a clean bill of health. No new cases have been reported since a week ago Sunday.

Huckleberries by the hundred of quarts are being garnered from pastures in territory within a few miles of Danielson. There is a big crop of these berries this year and it so happens that many people have ample time to pick them.

The Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross has appropriated $50 to be forwarded to Lorain, Ohio, the city swept by a tornado very recently with a great loss of life and destruction of property.

Another accident between motor vehicles at what is no better than a one-way bridge on the trunk line highway at Central Village, simply emphasizes that such bridges have no place in the modern scheme of things on important motor routes. Another bridge equally as dangerous is on the trunk line through Almyville, a section of Moosaup.

PUTNAM

Clarence Booth, professional at Putnam Country club, is among the entrants in the tournament of the Professional Golfers' association, in Providence this week. Booth has improved his game wonderfully this season and is surprising the best players in the country with the length and straightness of his drives. He has had a poor season on the greens and his putting has kept him from among the first division. Booth recently made the Putnam course in 32 for nine holes, establishing a new record. The present match is being played at the Wannamoisett Country Club.

Improvements are being made on the O'Leary block, Main street, recently purchased by Mrs. Remi Delage, following litigation in the superior court.

Committees in charge of making arrangements for Chautauqua next month are busy. The city has been divided into districts with the following captains: Ward 1, Miss Helen Sharp; ward 2, Dr. H. L. Pease; war 3, D. B. Gilbert; ward 4, Mrs. S. Nikoloff; Pomfret, H. H. Davenport; Woodstock, Albert H. Williams; Thompson, Alexander Maitland; captain charge of all teams, Mrs. W. J. Bartlett. The committees realize that local conditions are such that they will have to do harder work than in former years to put Chautauqua over the top but the enjoyment that is afforded the citizens of Putnam and towns surrounding who stay at home during the summer season repays the effort.

Attorney Joseph Love of Webster was in Putnam Tuesday morning, on his way to New London to represent Eddie Ostrowski before the motor vehicle commissioner. Ostrowski wants his driver's license restored to him. The license was taken away flolowing an accident in which Ostrowski's automobile collided with a bicycle ridden by Al Lundstrom, of North Grosvenordale, well known throughout New England as a wrestler. Lundstrom died at a Worcester hospital from injuries received in the accident.

..The fatal accident happened early in the morning about three years ago. Lundstrom was on his way to Wilsonville to work and Ostrowski was proceeding south from Webster. The accident happened less than a hundred yards from the Massachusetts-Connecticut state line, giving Connecticut jurisdiction.

Following a coroner's inquest Ostrowski was arrested and spent several days in the county jail before a bond was raised for him. He was taken before a justice court in North Grosvenordale and was held for the superior court.

Liquor did not enter into the case in any way and upon a careful examination of the evidence by the state's attorney it was felt that the state's case did not warrant a triel. It has always been understood that Ostrowski did what he could in a financial way for the mother of the man killed.

Ostrowski, whose home is in Webster, was engaged in carrying passengers into Connecticut and for this reason he wished to have his Connecticut driver's license returned to him.

Captain John J. McGarry of the Putnam headquarters company of the 43rd division, C. N. G., recently returned from camp, stated Tuesday that he is more than pleased at the showing the new company made. With an expression of pride in his command Captain McGarry said that he was complimented by staff officers on several occasions for the showing of the company and for the intelligence displayed. The members of the company were assigned to various duties about headquarters such as orderlies, messengers, postal clerks and the like. "Take the lieutenant and men assigned to the post office work at headquarters as an example" said Captain McGarry. "The report from headquarters officers relative to these men was that they never had to be told how to do a thing but once and not a single complaint was lodged in the postoffice department at headquarters during their term of service."

Captain McGarry is taking no credit to himself for the excellent showing made by a company organized and equipped scarcely a month before going into camp. However, those in touch with the company's affairs know that it was through instilling his enthusiasm into the new company that the members to a man agreed to intensive training of two night a week and make one of the best records in the state for attendance during the twice-a-week training period. The agreement for the double drill was voluntary on the part of the men.

From now on the company will go back to the required schedule of five drill night a month. The headquarters company does not drill with guns and much of its drilling is in the line of instruction in the various duties which men in a headquarters company may be called upon to perform.

Torrey leave this (Wednesday) morning for their summer cottage at Crescent beach where they will remain until about the middle of August when Mr. Torrey, who is public defender for Windham county, will have to return to prepare for the September criminal session of the superior court.

Putnam horsemen will watch with interest the performance of two Putnam horses that will start in Greenfield this week on the Bay State Short Ship circuit. They are Peter Boriel and Fairworthy, of the Hilltop stables. One is a pacer and the other a trotter. Several Putnam horsemen are planning to be at the track in the western Massachusetts city, while others will wait until the horses come nearer home and will watch them in Worcester next week and in Norwich the following week. A third Putnam horse, Patience Volo, owned by John O. Fox, is entered to start in Worcester next week. At least one or two of these horses will be given a chance to show speed on the mile track at Readville during the season.

Health Officer Peter A. Gardner said Tuesday afternoon that he was informed that there were but two cases of smallpox remaining in Danielson and that these patients are about ready to be discharged from quarantine. The health officer said that not a single case had developed in Putnam, which he considers fortunate in view of the fact that there is much travel back and forth to Danielson. While it is believed by many that some people have been unnecessarily alarmed over the situation, there is no occasion at all for any uneasiness. The vigil of the health officer will however be continued until there is absolutely no possibility of any cases of the disease in Putnam.

Six officers of the South Manchester tribe of Red Men were in Putnam and installed the new officers of Wappaquasset tribe of this city. Those installed were: Sachem, Joseph Beaudoin; senior sagamore, Charles Woodward, junior sagamore, Peter Bruneau; prophet, Frank Cloutier. The visitors addressed the Putnam warriors during the campfire on matters pertaining to the order. Refreshments were served.

The Adams Manufacturing company on upper Main street has started its plant on a day and night schedule. PLAINFIELD

All were glad Tuesday to see Officer William Vincent back on the job after an absence of two weeks.

The Lawton Mills have started painting the houses in the old village, about 75 were being employed.

The roads around Plainfield are very poor in many sections and just about passable in others. To be sure the state men are working summer and winter to improve the highways but the results are poor. Occasionally the scraper is run over the roads throughout the town but only making scratches which do not eliminate the holes. There is a section in Almyville, Moosup, which does not come up to the standards of country roads. Every year an appropriation is made by the state for the betterment of roads in Connecticut. By the looks of local roads, it does not seem as though Plainfield gets a great deal of the appropriation. For the past two years the Lincoln Club and Men's Club have been trying to get better roads around this district but to no avail.

In the early part of the summer the largest part of road construction is done. In other parts of the state cement roads are always keep up to the best, but this section gets but sand and oil and an occasional scraping that amounts to nothing after a rain storm.

Plainfield Band paraded through both villages Tuesday night heralding the people to their carnival. A great many responded and the receipts for the night showed that the band was being appreciated by the town folk. A number from other towns were present at the grounds.

WESTERLY

Many automobile parties from near and far made the trip to Point Judith Tuesday morning, including in the number being a few from Westerly who after the thirty mile jaunt found the fog so dense up to nearly the noon hour that no glimpse was gained of the steamers Boston or the tanker Swift Arrow, which were in serious collision that morning off the point. None of the boats of the relief fleet could be seen and the coast guard boat of the Point Judith station, which went out under command of Captain Courtland Collins was invisible in the fog. Captain Collins was formerly one of the men of the Watch Hill coast guard station and resided in Westerly. On the Narragansett Bay side of Point Judith the range of visibility just before noon was less than a mile so that the disabled steamer could not been seen from the shore when it was reported as being towed to Newport. In the south-southwest direction from the point, at a distance of two and a half miles where the collision was reported to have taken place, the fog seemed to be denser and the breakwater which runs out from the land on that side was visible for but a short distance. The sea was remarkably calm. The powerful fog horn with ten-second blasts, after minute intervals of silence, continued all the morning to send its warning seaward.

Upon receiving notice of the marine mishap, Capt. Collins had the power lifeboat manned and started for the disabled steamboats. At 5.30 o'clock Tuesday morning the coast guard boat was reported as returning to the station for the guardsmen to partake of a hasty breakfast. Without leaving much information as to particulars of the disaster the coastguard boat went out again and was soon lost to sight in the thick fog. Up to nearly noon the coast guard boat had not returned to the station which at that time was manned by only two men and a cook. An unconfirmed rumor was to the effect that some of the fishermen who went out of Point Judith pond had returned with an unoccupied steamship lifeboat in tow, having a quantity of hardtack aboard.

Work of grinding the cement floors and filling the joints is being done of the second floor.

Many attended the opening Monday evening on the Sil kMill grounds, just off Canal street on Pierce street extension of Stinson's open air shows, with its many midway attractions. The show is being run by a committee of the Westerly Italian Athletic club of which Capt. Beppo Bomento is chairman. Soon after the opeping of the carnival Monday night the main fuse for the electric lighting of the grounds was blown and there were no lights on the field for a short time. The trouble was remedied by the installation of a new fuse and the dancing and other parts of the program were continued uninterruptedly until the closing hour. At the end of the Midway is a circus tent where a tumbler, contortionist and trained pony act is staged. The pony was brought by auto truck to Westerly from Providence, where it had played on a Keith circuit. The pony was accompanied on the trip by a trained dog which had the misfortune to fall off the truck on the journey to Westerly and was temporarily placed out of the running for Monday's show but was able to do his tricks Tuesday. DAVIS BELIEVES RADIO MAY TRANSFORM CAMPAIGN

Dark Harbor, Islesboro, Me., July 23.—John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, had his first political conference today since he became a guest at the summer home of Charles Dana Gibson on Seven Hundred Acre Island. It was with Homer S. Cummings, democratic national committee from Connecticut, and chairman of the platform committee of the New York national convention.

The nominee and Mr. Cummings talked over the acceptance speech which Mr. Davis is to deliver at Clarksburg, on Aug. 11, and campaign plans generally. Mr. Cummings' view is that the entry of Senator Robert M. La Follette into the presidential race has put an entirely new aspect on the whole politics situation and that a reassessment is necessary in the laying of final campaign plans.

The conference began at luncheon at the Gibson home and continued for several hours. Mr. Cummings then returning to Camden, across the bay, where he is the guest at the summer home of his cousin, Joseph H. Defrees of Chicago, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Before conferring with Mr. Cummings, Mr. Davis cleared up his pressing correspondence and devoted more time to the preparatory work on his acceptance address. Again today he emphasized his belief in brief political addresses.

"I believe the radio will result in a change in the whole form of our campaigning," he said. "Radio audiences will not listen to long political speeches and those who follow the old practices of long addresses will find themselves without an audience before the end."

Plane Carries Horse

For the first time a valuable breeding horse has been shipped by airplane. The animal was placed in a crate to be flown from Paris to Amsterdam. It was found, however, that the crate was too large to go in the airplane, so the floor of the plane was reinforced and the horse carried off into the sky uncrated.

ONE FRIEND TELLS ANOTHER

The fame of a successful remedy is often spread far and wide by women telling one another of its merits, as is evidenced by a letter written by Mrs. Delbert Bush of Masena, N. Y. She writes: "I was in such a bad condition I could hardly walk, a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with excellent results advised me to try it. It has given me back my health and I cannot praise it enough." There are women everywhere who have been benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and gladly tell their friends and neighbors about it.

G. & E. DEPARTMENT PROFITS.

It is an interesting statement of facts concerning the gas and electrical department that is presented by the special committee of the court of common council. This it is to be inferred is part of the information which it has obtained for the purpose of reaching a decision concerning the offers of the Eastern Connecticut Power company upon which it is working.

By these figures it is shown that for the past 20 years Norwich has made a profit of over $654,000, of which nearly $494,000 has been made in the last five years. This means of course taking into consideration the ups and downs, an average yearly profit of about $32,000, without giving any consideration to the loss of taxation from the property.

The profit that is shown for the past five years of almost $494,000 indicates what has been done at the municipal plant during a period of high prices, during a period of high operating costs and may be regarded as indicating what may be expected under similar management for perhaps another five years. Under other management would it return to the profits of the first 15 years?

In this connection, however, it is impossible to overlook what might have been earned by the department had it been able to abandon the existing high operating costs. Why, if Norwich has made $494,000 in the past five years, and under similar conditions stands in a way to duplicate it for the next five, shouldn't it make even more by cutting those operating costs through the purchase of electricity instead of making it? It has been shown to the city that the operating cost can be cut $55,000 or more a year. That in the past five years would have meant a further profit to the department, or a saving to the people in reduced rates, of $275,000.

If the present offer of the power company wasn't available five years ago, it is evident that that saving of $275,000 can be made during the next five years, and with increasing demands for power that saving can be increased. Such a profit would be nearly twice as much as the plant's profit for 15 years.

In connection with the power company's offer the way is open either for greater profit or for twice the reduction in electrical rates that has recently been announced.

MEETING COMPETITION.

Railroads as well as trolley roads have recognized the necessity of meeting the competition offered by the motor trucks. Much of their short haul business has been taken over by the trucks because deliveries could be made quicker and less handling is involved. That naturally raises the question, If the trucks can do it why not the railroads through the operation of trucks?

The success which has been attained by the Pennsylvania railroad with this experiment has resulted in its introduction by the Long Island railroad and the outcome has been a demonstration of the practicability of this much discussed step with benefits both to the shipper and the road.

In one instance this road has entered into a contract with a trucking company to render this service, and in another it has placed two trucks in operation for the handling of its less-than-carload freight. With the Long Island the plan is yet in the experimental stage. At the start the prospects are promising for its continuance but there will be a 90 day test and from the results obtained over the full period decision will be reached as to the permanency of the service.

It is fair to presume that other railroads are watching this experiment with close attention. It concerns a transportation situation which interests many railroads. Trolley companies have recognized the advisability of using busses for auxiliary service and have even substituted them for the electric cars. It will not be surprising if the railroads come to recognize the opportunities of improving their service by the employment of vehicles using the highways as a feeder to the steam lines or as the means of furnishing quicker and more satisfactory service from the door of the shipper to the door of the receiver. Competition which cannot be met in one way can be met in another, and none know this better than transportation companies.

THE CHICAGO CASE.

Just as the country was deploring the fact that it was going to be flooded with a lot of testimony in connection with the trial of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb in Chicago for the murder of Robert Franks, and when it was expressing its disgust over the suggestion that the complete testimony be broadcasted throughout the country by radio, there is no question but what it was surprised at the pleas of guilty that were entered by the young men.

Because they are members of wealthy families, and because one of them had graduated from the University of Chicago at the unusually early age of 18 years, the public was prepared for a long, hard fight to keep them from the gallows. Their counsel had announced that they would enter pleas of insanity. Apparently the prosecution was prepared for this defense, and had employed alienists to refute the testimony of the defense experts. Public interest was keen, and the public was prepared to see a battle royal between the experts.

Instead the pleas of guilty doesn't overcome the possibilities of a fight on the grounds of insanity, for that may yet be injected with such plausibility that it will be a sanity commission rather than a jury which will decide what should be done with them.

It is a case where the crime had already been confessed and for that reason their plea of guilty must be regarded as consistent, even though consistency is not always to be expected in connection with the defense of such a crime. There has been a common demand that justice should be done in this case, where wealth should not be permitted to affect the outcome. Whether the surprising plea is part of the plan of high priced counsel in saving them from the gallows under the claim of insanity is awaited. In view of all the circumstances that may be the best chance for saving them, but sane or insane, they are now booked as guilty of murder and the protection of the public must be taken into full consideration in disposing of the case.

THE POINT JUDITH COLLISION.

Every now and then, in spite of the progress that is made in science, there is reported a collision of vessels in the fog, which under other conditions would have been avoided. Fog has always been a great menace to navigation and it continues to be. It establishes a blanket that blocks the vision beyond a narrow circle, and though there are the whistles, the radio and the submarine bells to furnish warning and to give notice of the presence of others nothing has as yet been perfected to prevent vessels coming together under such conditions.

How many harrow escapes there are no one knows. The avoidance of the schooner by the Boston, just before it was struck by the Swiftarrow, is perhaps of more frequent occurrence than most people know about. Had that stop for the schooner not been necessary and had the Boston been proceeding uninterrupted it seems probable that it would have escaped the collision.

But in this as in many other instances there is emphasized the importance of proceeding slowly under such conditions. There is no telling what may be encountered and it is known how much more serious such collisions are where speed is being maintained.

The collision near Point Judith will be the subject for an investigation. Through such it will be possible to determine the facts in the case and if there was any fault in navigation where the responsibility lies. It is regrettable that the collision results in loss of life, but it is fortunate, in view of the circumstances, that more lives were not taken. The Boston was struck in a vital spot and even though going full speed astern was hit hard.

THE LONDON CONFERENCE.

While all questions have not been cleared up in the London conference there is reason to regard the situation as decidedly favorable and the prospects good for a successful outcome.

It is to be remembered that there have been points over which the allied countries have wrangled and fought for a considerable time. The hope has been to smooth these out and through the Dawes plan get a common basis of adjustment to which all can subscribe. Admittedly the Dawes plan is the only method thus far put forth upon which agreement is likely. That there should be such an early agreement upon most of the provisions indicates the appeal which the suggested methods has made.

It has been clearly set forth that the United States is interested in the early composition of the difficulties and that it is prepared to take a hand in the aiding their progress. It was quite natural that it should be the American representative at the conference who should endeavor to bring the opposing forces to an understanding relative to the provisions about which it has as yet not been possible to agree.

It is to be hoped that Ambassador Kellogg in the role of mediator will be able to suggest provisions which will prove satisfactory to those who have fears that their interests will not be properly safeguarded. There cannot be too early a settlement of the European situation. There was never a more favorable outlook and it would be most unfortunate for Europe to fail to get together at this time. It is difficult to see from a distance how it can afford to fail to reach the expected agreement.

CUT

The amazonian young matron who had just bobbed her hair surveyed her miniature chief wrathfully.

"Yes, it's cut," she said a little shortly. "And if I seem somewhat abrupt it's because I know as well as you do that it looks perfectly and absolutely hideous—"

"It looks wonderful," exclaimed her friend, who was the size of Mary Pickford and had been bobbed for years.

"Yes, I know," said the Junoesque young matron, "that's what they all say, but what they think—" she paused. "I'm simply worn out and sick with it all, anyway. I've cried my eyes out, but it doesn't do any good.

"As soon as Alice, the children's nurse, saw me, tears came in her eyes and she said. 'Oh, Mrs. Geek, you've ruined your beautiful hair,' and with that the children burst into loud sobs, and the baby gave one look at me and shuddered before he joined the wails with his brother's. Of course, you—"

"But it looks perfectly splendid," said the tiny girl whose short hair curled in little natural ringlets about her baby face and made her look about 14 years old. "And you have it curled so nicely, too."

"Yes. We're going to the poorhouse on that account," said the large young matron grimly. "I rush down twice a day to have it done, six hours being the length of time that my hair remains curly after a marcel. Last Sunday afternoon was the time when I went through my first ordeal. Callers began dropping in. First came our family doctor, and you know how I adore him. He just looked at me and said. "Why, Stella Bella! You've cut your hair!" Nothing more. I walked slowly into the living room after him, thinking, well, it just looks too awful and he can't say anything. And he began talking about something else.

"While we were sitting there a car drove up to the house and I saw Amelia and George Peas get out, and so I ran to the door to open it. As soon as George saw me he began to laugh and back away from the door and act like a perfect idiot. Well, that was just too much, and so I began to get ugly, and I said: 'Well, George, if you don't like my hair you don't need to stand out there in the snow like a clown. I don't care in the least whether you like my hair or not.'

"Of course he and Amelia came in then and said that it looked nice, and so forth, but it was too late then, and I knew what they really thought. Finally they all left, and I was just exhausted and went upstairs to try to get reacquainted with the children when Priscilla—she's my husband's sister—came walking in with her husband. And what was my beloved helpmate shouting downstairs at the top of his voice: "Stella Bella's bobbed her hair, Priscilla. Run up and look at it!"

"My knees almost gave way under me as I heard that. And when the dignified Priscilla began mounting the stairs I felt as if my doom was going to be read to me.

"You know how tactful she is. Well she just looked at me and finally she said, sadly: 'Stella Bella, if I had known you planned this I would have gone down on my bended knees and begged you not to.' There was a pause while I blinked and tried not to gulp. 'However, now that it's done and I see how it looks, why, I find it very nice and becoming and I'm glad you did it.'

"That didn't help much."

"What did your husband say when he saw you?" asked the small listener.

The tall woman shrugged her shoulders. "Oh, he's been begging me to have it done for two or three years, and so it's his own idea. When he saw me—"

"You mean, he's changed his mind since he saw it?" said the caller, indignantly. "If that isn't just like a man!"

"He's crazy about it," said the amazonian young matron. "And he says he doesn't care how much it costs to have it curled, and he's never going to let me wear it long again."

She sighed.

"But, of course, a mere husband is no judge of things like that."—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TOO MUCH NOISE

Mr. Editor: "Too much noise." As I read your editorial in the issue of the Bulletin of a few days ago on this subject, I threw up my hat and said "Amen."

I am not nervous but am downright mad as I hear those fools who drive certain motor trucks blow their horns the loudest and for the longest possible time, apparently with the special object of attracting attention to themselves and those on the street and in houses.

When we see a small boy fire off crackers and tooting his horn on the Fourth of July we think nothing of it, because he is a child, but when a great booby of a man makes such unearthly noises to please himself and to disturb everybody else, we feel there is no excuse for him and one's patience is exhausted.

Fools who persist in this nuisance are violators of the law and should be arrested, and upon second conviction should be given a jail sentence without possibility of suspension of the same, then such criminals would not longer attract public attention to themselves by the unnecessary and earthly noise and disturbance they are now insisting upon making.

It is easy to imagine how much more disturbing these screeching horns are to persons on the sick bed.

A list of the owners of trucks who have these loud horns on them can be published if they persist in the use of such signals on their trucks.

A RADIO SITUATION

Mr. Editor: The writer begs space in your excellent medium of news, to bring before a part of the public a matter of radio broadcast reception.

It seems that having a radio club of such long standing and such reliable leadership, better reception should be possible.

The writer is not an authority on radio, but there seem to be at least two classes of sets, in one respect, viz., those which re-radiate, and those which do not. The latter can be neglected, but attention is called to the former. Radio sets represent a respectable outlay of money, spent to bring to the buyer a certain amount of pleasure. Without going into the technical whys and wherefores, it can be stated that this former type is being constantly operated so as to constitute a provoking nuisance to the owners of other sets in the various neighborhoods. The result of so operating these re-radiating sets destroys entire evenings of pleasure to others trying to receive broadcast material, to such an extent as to cause the owner to wonder just whether or not radio is at all worth the time and money given to it.

The writer, for instance, and this instance is not at all exceptional, is trying tonight to get the excellent Philharmonic orchestra concert from New York city, and for nearly two hours, timed by a watch in hand, has not heard five minutes of music which was not interrupted either by the entire obliteration by the local wave, or by the so-called wheezing noise of the other chap either trying to tune in or else conducting some experiment.

The writer does not in the least disparage the efforts of anyone to solve present-day radio problems, or their efforts to use radio for its entertaining quality, but it should not appear unreasonable that those who haven't non-reradiating sets should make a fair effort to operate their set quietly. And it also occurs to one's through that the efforts of the local club members turn to secure this state of efficiency. Still another suggestion would have some reliable local authority give the public, through your columns, a few concise hints on how, particularly, one may know when one is annoying others, as it is certainly understood that such interference is never willful.

FINDS "AMERICAN INDIANS" OF CHINA

Joseph F. Rock, famous plant explorer and leader of the National Geographic Society's Yunnan Expedition, whose narrow escape from bandits along the China-Tibet frontier were reported in cable dispatches a few months ago, arrived in Washington today.

Mr. Rock reported to the National geographic Society his finding of aboriginal tribes in Yunnan, China's vast, wild and little known southwest province. These tribes still are practicing religious ceremonies that existed before Buddhism was introduced.

He brought back a blight-resisting chestnut tree, which, it is hoped, will be the means of restoring this valuable timber crop which, in the United States, has been devasted by disease.

The explorer's personal adventures included the traversing of a hitherto unexplored gorge of the Yangtze, much deeper than the Grand Canyon of the Colorado river.

Crossing of many streams was one of the tedious phases of his trip for he and his twenty-three native assistants and their pack animals had to be swung across these on single-strand rope bridges.

Mr. Rock brought back some 1,700 specimens of birds stuffed; 500 mammal specimens and more than 60,000 plants.

He also has books by the Nashi, or Moso, priests, with an ancient picture writing. These, too, antedate Buddhism in Tibet and China, and they contain a story of a great flood.

Mr. Rock previously located the chaulmoogra tree which yields the oil now used in treating leprosy.

Caruso "Too Fat" to Attain Ideal

When Enrico Caruso was a stable boy for Count di Bari, his one great ambition was to be Di Bari's postilion so that he might wear a scarlet-and-gold tail-coat and ride ahead of the count's coach. But the count said he was "too fat and clumsy" ever to attain that position.

Naples, Italy, was his birthplace, his father was a mechanic and music was a stranger to the home. The lad was 11 when the parish priest persuaded the parents to permit him to sing in the choir. The boy was 16 when his mother died, and the shock stilled his voice for some time.

His singing had attracted little praise and he did not dream of a musical career. He was 18 when he began swabbing horses and cleaning stable for Di Bari, and his ambition to be an equestrian thwarted, he apprenticed himself to a mechanic.

A companion heard him sing and took him to Guglielmo Vergine, of the Naples Conservatory, who said his voice was "like the gold in the bed of the Tiber, hardly worth drawing out." Caruso's friend pleaded for another trial, Vergine heard Caruso again, then taught him at night, free for three years.

At 21, Caruso made his debut in L'Amico Francesco at the Nuovo theatre in Naples and was merely "kindly received." He toured for four years, then appeared in Convent Garden, London, and was given an ovation. This brought realization of his dream to sing in famous La Scala Opera House in Milan in his beloved Italy. His debut was to be the second night in Boheme. At the last moment the first night's bill was not ready, Boheme was substituted and Caruso had his opportunity before the brilliant first night audience whose reception of the young tenor was wildly enthusiastic. And he sang four seasons at La Scala.

Caruso made his debut in America in 1903 at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York and appeared with the Metropolitan Opera Company 18 seasons. He became known as the the world's greatest tenor and his earnings from appearances and phonograph records mounted to more than a half-million dollars a year.

Stories That Recall Others

With Handles On

A year ago a youngster was visiting relatives in the city. He remembered that a big cherry tree was graining with fruit and he acquired a lasting taste, but forgot the name. So when he arrived at the house he rushed up to his aunt and said: "Auntie, I want some more of them—of them—of them red things."

The aunt, reading his mind, said: "Well, what is it you wish?"

"I want some more of the red berries with handles on," he said. He got them along with a little pain later.

Sunday Dinners

Charlie, aged four, came up to a neighbor's door and gave this statement and query:

"We had chicken for dinner at our house. What did you have?"

"Why, we had pork," was the reply.

"That's the same as the Browns and the Jones had, but the Smiths had beef," replied Charlie.

It developed that Charlie was taking a census of what the neighborhood had for Sunday dinner.

There are given the results of experiments in "dusting versus spraying" in Connecticut apple orchards, tests of sodium hypochlorite for control of American foul brood of bees, and further experience with paradichlorobenzene as a remedy for peach borers. Special articles are included on the European corn borer which has been found in Connecticut at three points along the shore in New London county; prevalence of Oriental peach moth; the larch leaf-miner or case-bearer; swarms of aphids, and the Asiatic beetle which has become established in New Haven where the grubs have eaten the roots of grass in many lawns in the Westville section of the city. There are also brief notes on swarms of butterflies, giant water bug, European house cricket, birch leaf skeletonizer, spruce leaf-miner, European pine shoot moth, box leaf-miner, apple and thorn skeletonizer, chalk-dotted geometer, flight of cotton moths and a Japanese weevil in Connecticut.

The publication contains 96 pages, 8 text figures, 16 plates, table of contents and index.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

SEED FOR A KINDLY DEED

"Cock-a-doodle do!
How is little you?"
sang the Old Red Rooster under Little Jack Rabbit's window one morning. Oh, so early, as the grass lay wet with dew and Merry Sun was climbing up the misty sky of blue.

"Oh, I'm very well," shouted the little rabbit from the open window. "I'll be down in a minute or two. Keep on with your cock-a-doodle-do." Then you should have heard that old rooster. Why, he crowed for nearly five minutes. Maybe he would have kept it up longer if the bunny boy hadn't hopped out of the house to enquire how dear Uncle Lucky was. You know, Uncle Lucky, don't you, little reader? Mr. Lucky Lefthindfoot who lives in a little white house on the corner of Lettuce Avenue and Carrot street, Rabbitville?

He crowed for nearly five minutes.

"Uncle Lucky is well. He sent me over this morning to weed Lady Love's flower garden," answered the Old Red Rooster. "Guess I'll go into the barn for the hoe," and away he went on his yellow toes for the garden hoe and his work-a-day clothes.

By and by, after breakfast was over, the little rabbit thought he'd make a call on Lucky Uncle. Kissing Lady Love, his pretty mother goodbye, he hopped out on the Sunny Meadow and up the Old Cow Path.

"Where are you going?" asked Timmie Meadowmouse, peeking out of his little round grass-ball house, which he had made by weaving together the tops of the meadow grass.

"Over to Uncle Lucky's," answered the bunny boy, hitching up his knapsack and swinging his red-striped candy cane on his left paw. "The Old Red Rooster has come over to weed Mother's flower garden. Guess I'll go over and help Uncle Lucky."

"One good turn deserves another. Isn't that so, bunny brother?" sang the little meadowmouse from his tiny front doorway.

"Maybe I can do an errand for Uncle Lucky!" answered the little rabbit, hopping away, clipperty clip, lipperty lip. You see, little reader, Timmie Meadowmouse had sown the seed for a kindly deed in the little rabbit's heart. Yes, he had made the bunny boy stop to think for a minute. And when you stop to think you often feel just like doing something for someone. Thoughtless people do not mean to be unkind. They just don't stop to think.

By and by, the little rabbit came to the Shady Forest. Pausing beneath a tree, he let his knapsack slip to the ground and wiggled his pink nose this way and that to catch any smell of danger that Billy Breeze might bring to him. Billy Breeze, you know, is just as good as a telephone to warn little four-footed folk of danger.

STATE REPORT ON FOODS AND DRUGS

The Connecticut agricultural experiment station at New Haven has just issued Bulletin No. 225, which is the annual report on food products and drugs. This summarizes the work of the past year which has been done under the provisions of the food and drug law of Connecticut and gives analyses of, and other information concerning, foods and medicinal preparations. Over 2,500 samples have been examined, including the more common food stuffs and a number of unusual vegetable foods of particular interest to diabetic patients. The report is useful, not only to consumers but to producers as well. It contains data of special interest and value to physicians and dietitians.

Cottrell Mch. 0 0 3 0 0 1 0 0 0—3 7 7

GOV. PINCHOT OPPOSED TO REMOVAL OF BUTLER

Harrisburg, Pa., July 22.—Good government throughout the nation would suffer through the removal of General Smedley D. Butler, as director of public safety for Philadelphia, Governor Pinchot said in a statement today which declared he believed Mayor Kendrick "intends to stick to Butler."

The statement was made after the governor was asked what he thought about the rumored removal of General Butler.

"I have a real life interest in Butler and the magnificent work he has been doing," the governor said.

What's Best for a Bad Stomach?

Nine-tenths of all stomach trouble—indigestion, sourness, gas, pain, heartburn, etc., are caused by an excess of acid in the stomach.

Artificial digestents, such as pepsin, are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids, and instead neutralize the acid that has upset your stomach with a spoonful or two tablets of pure Bisurated Magnesia, taken with a little water. This instantly sweetens the stomach and stops the pain and discomfort and your food digests as nature intended. For quick positive relief from Acid Stomach

Looking back over the year of library history just completed we find a most satisfactory record of progress in every way.

The circulation of 2,956 books exceeds that of 1922-1923 by 281. The total number of books, not including reference books and periodicals, is 2727 volumes. 345 books were added during the year, 59 of which were our state grant.

The books from the state grant, for adults were the latest in science, travel, history and biography. The fiction included both old and recent publications. We may not always have the newest and latest editions, but we try to place before you the best in everything. Often, nowadays, it is refreshing to go back and reread some of the old books, for old books are not as other things in our lives, ever changing, they are ever the same.

The friends who have given us books during the year are:

Miss Sarah L. Tyler, Mrs. C. B. Whitman, Miss Ina Ufford, Mrs. Cora L. Tracy, Mrs. B. F. S. Crandall, Miss Josephine Salter, Mrs. Mabel Woodruff, Charles Comstock, Miss Caroline B. The History of the World War, 10 volumes, and the Winston Loose-Leaf Encyclopaedia, both valuable additions to our book collection, have been sent to the library anonymously. Who ever these friends are or (it may be a friend) we wish them to know that their gifts are highly appreciated. The encyclopaedia, especially fills a need. It gives us material for study and reference which is up to date, while for the longer and more detailed accounts we have the Encyclopaedia Britannica, 11th ed., the gift of C. E. White.

The Village Improvement Association gives us the subscription to American Forests and Forest Life; Mr. Stocking of Norwich sends us the National Geographic. The magazines, we have each month by subscription and those from persons who after they have read their copies wish some one else to enjoy them, are Time, Pictorial Review, American Forests and Forest Life, National Geographic, Harper, Century, Scribner, Everybody's, McClure's, American, Country Life, House Beautiful and House and Garden.

In the Children's Department, we find three new chairs and a round table. This year's state grant added to the juvenile collection several of the fairy tales, and standard volumes, such as Gulliver's Travels, Arabian Nights, Real Americans and Child's History of American Literature. During the year books have been grouped and attention called to them with the sign "HAVE YOU READ". Subscriptions to the magazines John Martin's Book, Youth's Companion, St. Nicholas, American Boy, were given the same as last year. Enid Latimer very generously gives us Child Life after she has read it. Popular Mechanics is also a gift. There are about 294 volumes in the Juvenile Collection. I say about, for as yet the books have not been thoroughly revised. The work will be done; time is what is needed.

The Adult sections of Literature, Travel, Biography, and History have been re-arranged and each section marked with its subject so that one an easily find where books of literature, history, etc., are placed.

Lists of books and articles on special subjects, have been sent to the Village school, as a guide for the children in finding material on those subjects. The Bird Charts were lent to the Long Cove school. The librarian read Christmas stories to the members of the Junior Village Improvement Association at Christmas time.

NINTH INNING RALLY ENABLES THE ARCANUM TEAM TO NOSE OUT ROTARY

Fighting an uphill battle and aided by an unlucky hop of a batted ball, which struck Al Bliven as he was tearing from second to third, robbing the Rotarians of two runs in the 8th inning, the Arcanum ball tossers vanquished the fast Rotary team, Tuesday afternoon, on the Academy Campus, by a score of 9 to 8.

The Arcanum bat swingers were somewhat tardy in getting their eyes on the deliveries of Ed Harris, but, when they did begin to connect with them in the seventh, it began to spell the beginning of the end for the Rotarians. Twelve of the 16 hits made by the Arcanum ball club were made in the last three innings, accounting for 6 runs, the final run coming when Fillmore, the lanky (?) shortstop of the Arcanumites, poled one past third base and Pendleton, who had scored Mathewson on his single, trotted home with the winning run, two out when "Penny" scored.

The Rotarians drew first blood, starting off in the first inning when Clapp was safe on Fillmore's error, scoring on Harris' long hit to right field. Harris went out at third trying to stretch the hit for three bases. The Rotarians annexed another in the second when Ferguson doubled to center and scored on a grass cutter sent out by Welch.

The Arcanums scored one in the second when H. Hull socked one to center for three plates and scored when Abbott threw over Ferguson's head, a wild pitch. They gathered two more in the third when L. Hull singled, took third on a single by Fillmore and both made home on plays at second.

From this time on the game was all for the Rotarians and at the beginning of the last half of the seventh the Arcanum players were trailing the Rotarians, the score being 6 to 4. In the first of the eighth the Rotarians counted two more runs on four hits and a fielders choice putting them in the lead 8 to 4.

Going in for the last of the eighth it looked bad for the Arcanum club when Pendleton and Lathrop fanned L. Hull singled to center, scored on a double to center by Fillmore and Fillmore in turn scored when Crowe burned a single to right field.

Everyone was up in the last of the ninth when H. Hull, the fighting pitcher of the Arcanumites soaked the pill to center field for his second triple of the game and scored when "Christie" Mathewson poled one to right for a single. Thompson went out Jewett to Ferguson and things began to look up for the Rotarians. It was not for long however for Pendleton singled, Lathrop fanned and L. Hull poled a single to left scoring Mathewson, tying the score at 8 all. Needing one more tally to bring home the game, Fillmore, who had gathered three hits in five trips up, looked the ball over and picking one to his liking, sent it skimming past third base scoring Pendleton and locking the little old ball game up safely for the Arcanumites.

The game was hard fought from start to finish Abbott and Harris for the Rotarians matching against H. Hull for the Arcanum club, and once again youth triumphed and Hull went home a victor. For the oRtarians Harris led in the hitting getting a double and two singles in four trips up. Standish, Clapp, Ferguson and Welch connected with two hits apiece. Jimmy Madden held the honors for the longest hit made by the Rotarians getting a triple in the fourth when he poled one into left field scoring Welch, adding a second run when Standish singled. "Al" Bliven played his usual fine game making a spectacular running catch of L. Hull's fly in the first. For the Arcanum club, H. Hull played a fine game. Besides hurling his team to victory, he started off the rally in the ninth, that won the game, by poling out a second triple, his third hit of the game. L. Hull and Fillmore took four hits each out of six trips up, one of Fillmore's going for two bases.

Both teams played good ball and another go between them is certain to draw a big crowd. The story of the game as told by the box score is as follows:

SILKMEN BEAT KACEYS AND FIGHT FOR LEAD IS ON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 23.—There was little room left for doubt as to the authenticity of the predictions that the Knights of Columbus-Corticelli Silk battle in the City league would be one of the closes and fiercest battles yet played on such a battle scarred field as Morgan park. Good games and bad games were played on the field named after New London's last mayor, but this evening's battle between the above named teams surpassed all and it is doubted whether another game such as the one played this evening will again be duplicated on this diamond. By a dint of good luck the Silkmen were able to upset the Knights of Columbus nine by a 1 to 0 score.

All the devoted satellites of the City league and paramours of national pastime will never regret taking time off to see this evening's game. Both teams played good, fast and hard baseball all the way through and if it had not been for an unusually peculiar play, one that probably never happens in but once a year, the game would have been still under way. The play in question arose in the fourth inning and gave the Corticelli their one run margin—which was the ultimate scoring made by either team. Barry faced MacInnes in the fourth and hit a sharp line drive to left that was destined for at least a single. Bill Smith in attempting to field the ball, picked out a hole in the field that the ground keeper forgot to cover and the ball bounced merrily on its way to left field. When the elusive pellet was returned, to the infield, Barry was perched on third. Chappel struck out, but Ryan the next man to face McInnes, hopped one to Murphy at second and a play for Barry at the plate was made. Barry made a perfect slide and the game was won as events later shaped themselves.

The victory for the Silk men, brings the Stars and K. of C. nine on event terms for first place, with the Corticelli nine but a half game behind. The league race is beginning to show the aspect of a tightly drawn knot, the teams being bunched around the first place position like a bunch of bananas. The score:

BATTERY B DOWNS HARDIGS IN LOOSE CONTEST

Tuesday evening, in a loosely played game the Battery B defeated the Hardigs, 8 to 4. Each team had a new man in the box, Gauthier showing to better advantage than his opponent, Sullivan. The former allowed but three hits, while his team mates hit Sullivan for 11 safeties. Each team played ragged ball in the field, which accounts for many of the runs scored.

Tombari starred for the Hardigs with two of his team's three hits, one of them a long double with the bases full, and a spectacular catch of a foul ball near the ropes in back of the plate.

Coleman of the Battery B featured with the longest hit of the game, a crashing two-bagger to deep left field.

East will meet west this even when the East and West Ends clash. The league leaders are out to annext their seventh straight win while the West Ends are as equally determined to give them their first beating. Score:

CUBS AND BRAVES BREAK EVEN IN DOUBLE HEADER

Chicago, July 22.—Chicago and Boston divided a double header today, the visitors taking the first 3 to 1, and the locals the second 5 to 1. Time McNamara pitched in great form in the opener, holding the Cubs to three scattered hits while his teammates bunched hits behind a walk and an error. "Gabby" Hartnett cracked out two home runs in the second game giving him a total of fifteen for the season. Score.

Cubs Suffer Casualties

Chicago, July 22.—The Chicago Cubs suffered two casualties today in their twin bill with the Boston Braves. Catcher Bob O'Farrell was hit by a foul tip off Mcinnis bat and had to retire. The ball struck his mask and drove the top of it into his forehead. In the second game Cliff Heathcote sprang a charley horse in sliding into second base.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

With a runner on second, the ball is hit back to the pitcher.

The pitcher throws to second and traps the runner off the bag.

This runner should be chased back to what base?

When a pitcher fields a ball like this and throws it to the shortstop on second, so that the runner is trapped off that base, the shortstop should throw the ball immediately to the third baseman, so the third baseman can run the runner right back to second. If the third baseman sees he cannot catch the runner, then he should pass the ball to the second baseman or shortstop, so they can make a quick put out, and also have a possible chance of retiring the batter running down to first.

PHILLIES COME FROM BEHIND AND BEAT CARDS

St. Louis, July 22.—The Philadelphia Nationals came from behind again today and defeated the Cardinals 5 to 2, in the third straight game of the series. Dickerman held the visitors to five hits, but three of them came in the ninth and resulted in four runs. Showing his appreciation for a traveling bag presented at the plate by a party of friends, Joe Schultz, former Cardinal player now with the Phillies, poled a homer in the second. The score.

MARKLE RETURNS TO THE ST. PAUL CLUB

MARGARET SPANGLER CARRIES AWAY FIRST MONEY IN KALAMAZOO FEATURE

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 22.—(By the A. P.)—Margaret Spangler carried away first honors in the $25,000 American racing derby faced here this afternoon. The fleet eastern mare won the second heat and managed to finish up well enough in the first and third miles to gain top places in the summaries. Miss Belwin, given a splendid drive by Doc Vail was second while Baron Worthy, the favorite finished third.

Miss Belwin product of the half-mile tracks of Ohio, who is rated very temperamental was on her good behaviour today and when called upon in the opening heat was able to circle around the outside and beat the others to the wire. Colonel Bidwell was second, Margaret Spangler third with the rest of the field closely bunched.

The field of 15 scored an even dozen times before they were allowed to start in the opening mile.

The second heat went to Margaret Spangler who led from the first quarter to the wire although challenged by Miss Belwin was able to maintain a lead which dwindled near the finish. Colonel Bidwell was third with Baron Worthy, the favorite, in sixth.

The Murphy gelding ran a true race in the third heat and came under the wire a safe distance ahead of Margaret Spangler and Sparkle in the opening mile Baron Worth after getting away to a poor start was clocked the mile in 2.01 which was a second and a quarter under the time hung up by the winner.

Margaret Spangler drew down $15,400 as first money; Miss Belwin earned $4,400, and Baron Worthy, 2,200. Colonel Bidwell, Sparkle and La Paloma each received $1,000 which covered the entrance money.

The Upholder provided an upset in the 2.14 by taking the race from David Axworthy, the favorite. The best the latter horse could do was finish fourth in the three heats. Miss Oakwood overlooked by the talent drew down second money.

Rochell Maid, favorite in the 2.10 trot, delivered but she gave her supporters a real score by finishing last in the opening heat.

Anokia, top heavy favorite in the 2.07 pace had an easy time of it. She won the first and third miles and chased home Flying Direct in the second heat. Daisy Pointed the second choice was unable to show anything.

DARROW, MASK FOR OWNERS, GETS OFF WITH $577 TOTAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 22.—Charles Darrow, arrested early this morning at the Bindloss cottage, Ridgewood park, Waterford charged with violation of the liquor law by County Detective William Lewis, County Detective William E. Jackson, of Windham county and Prohibition Enforcement Agents Joseph F. Fitzpatrick, was presented during the early hours of the morning before Justice of the Peace John J. Floyd in Waterford. Darrow was charged with reputation, keeping with intent to sell and actual sale. The first charge was nolled, but on the other two Darrow received a fine of $200 each, which with costs of $77 and a fine of $100 for gambling devices made $577, that the accused paid.

The place where the raid occurred is well known to New London and Norwich parties, for it has operated since prohibition. Several times of late the state police attempted to secure evidence against the place, but they were unsuccessful. Last night when county and prohibition enforcement agents decided to move upon the place the services of a stool pigeon were obtained. The "stool" was driven to the place in a Jewett automobile and alighted, the driver operating the machine away where it awaited a report of the stool. Entering the place the "stool" is declared to have purchased two soda bottles of whiskey, for which he paid $5 and a drink of whiskey, for which he paid 50 cents.

When the officers entered the place no signs of liquor were found, but it is alleged the stock on hand was destroyed by being emptied into a sink and a quantity of Lysol, which was also immediately emptied into the sink, destroyed the odor of alcohol. After the search for liquor the officers went to the upper part of the building where the gambling device, a roulette wheel, was found. This was taken charge of by County Detective Lewis and will probably be ordered destroyed.

The raiding officers declared that the place is maintained by John J. Kelley and David Doyle and that Darrow is simply an employe.

NEED MORE LAND FOR STATE CAMP AT NIANTIC

Brigadier General Morris B. Payne of New London, commander of Camp Templeton, which broke up Saturday, says that enlargement of the present state military reservation at Niantic from its present size of eighty-five acres to between 300 and 400 acres was discussed at a meeting of the officers of the 85th brigade, C. N. G., Saturday, and will probably result in the introduction of a bill in the 1925 session of the general assembly today.

The general says that for the field maneuvers, it had been necessary to depend on the good will of owners of surrounding property. The officers, he said, all appreciated the spirit of the land owners in permitting the national guard to use their land for field exercises, free of charge, but land is becoming more valuable at Niantic and within a short time the terrain over which the troops operated last week will be built up and impractical for military training. This land, General Payne said, is not high-priced now, although he could not say how large an appropriation would be needed.

Sentiment among the officers, General Payne said, favored buying land to add to the present reservation at Niantic rather than seeking a new site in the state for training purposes or taking the Connecticut National Guard to a federal government reservation, such as Camp Devens. The majority of the men are laid off while they are in camp, he pointed out, and if the troops were taken to a government cantonment, this money, paid by the state, would, in large measure, be spent outside Connecticut.

Niantic, General Payne said, furnished an ideal training place as it offered the men the advantages of the shore, yet was not in close proximity to a large city as was the case with the reservation at East Haven. There is little likelihood, General Payne believes, that the state will attempt to add any land to the East Haven reservation, which was used a year ago as a training ground for the National Guard in marksmanship. None of the state parks, in General Payne's opinion, would be a suitable camp site.

Niantic is in the town of East Lyme and besides the military reservation, the state owns a tuberculosis sanatorium, Seaside, and the state farm for women at Bride Lake.

The present camp ground was bought from several adjoining owners by the state about 1870 through the efforts of Colonel Simeon J. Fox of New Haven, for many years thereto and subsequently, prior to about 1883, assistant adjutant general of the state under successive adjutant generals.

For several years previous to that time there had been encampments of the National Guard at Niantic on some of the land now owned by the state, which was annually hired of the owners, who were also recompensed for damage done to the land or their crops. The natural lay of the land, almost a level plain, which some depressions had been filled in, attracted the attention of Colonel Fox and he "went to it." Another desirable feature was the porosity of the sandy soil. Heavy rainstorms would sink into the soil and in a few hours the surface would be dry. Of course the nearness of the land to Niantic Bay and the river was an advantage. Pure water could always be obtained by driven wells.

Later on additional lots of land were added as they came on the market or it was deemed advisable to buy them, and the area of the camp ground was increased. The plan then followed by the state was to place two regiments in camp for one week in alternate years, the First and the Third Regiments and a section of field artillery in one year and the Second and Fourth in the following year. The National Guard of the state then comprised one brigade, four regiments of infantry and a battery of light artillery, in all about 3,000 officers and men, to which was subsequently added a battalion of three companies of colored infantry.

The women's society of the Baptist church held a sale and tea at the home of Mrs. Lucian Drury Thursday afternoon. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, July 22.—Profit taking sales appeared in large volume in today's market, giving it an irregular appearance, but the main price trend was again decidedly upward with the rails, oils and coppers giving the best demonstrations of group strength. Total sales exceeded the million share mark for the sixth consecutive full session.

Forty-seven stocks mounted to new high levels for the year including 25 rails, 10 metals and 12 miscellaneous industrial and special issues.

Promise of American assistance to Europe, particularly in the flotation of a German loan, was an important factor in the buying of stocks, especially the issues of companies that would be benefitted by economic rehabilitation abroad. Strength of sterling exchange, which crossed $4.41 to a new high level for the year, was construed by some observers as an indication that an agreement on the reparations problem was much nearer than generally expected.

Higher copper and zinc prices stimulated the buying of metal shares, new high prices being established by American Smelting and Refining, Utah, Chile, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco and a few others. Surplus copper stocks on hand are now estimated at about one month's supply.

Increased public participation in the railroad group was particularly apparent in the investment issues, New York Central, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Illinois Central common and preferred and Great Northern preferred. All bettering their previous 1924 top prices. The advance in the low-priced carriers was led by New Haven, which touched 29 1-2, its highest in two years, and more than double the year's low.

Standard industrials turned slightly reactionary on realizing sales. United States Steel fell from 102 1-4, a new high on movement to 101 5-8, off 3-8. Baldwin, Studebaker and American Can showed little change on the day, although all closed well below their top prices.

Oil shares continued to disregard further price cuts, the Pan-American issues standing out with net gains of more than 2 points each. Short covering was largely responsible for a two point rally in Atlantic Refining Motors, which hav ebeen lagging behind the rest of the market, began to show signs of strength, Nash Motors closing 2 points higher, Chandler Motors 1, and Mack Truck common and first preferred touching new top prices for the year. Stewart-Warner forfeited a point of yesterday's large gain and Union Tank Car jumped 5 1-2 points to 112, and Wilson preferred advanced 4 points to 27.

All European currencies advanced in sympathy with sterling. French francs ruled just under 5 1-4 cents while the Holland and Swiss currency rose to the year's best quotations. The nominal quotation for the Japanese yen showed a drop of .20 points at 40.80 cents.

Call money held at 2 per cent. all day. Time money and commercial paper market were relatively quiet, with no change in rates.

BOND MARKET

New York city, July 22.—Bond prices surged upward today under the impetus of a broad buying movement which embraced foreign government, traction, copper and second grade railroad issues.

America's promise to assist in the economic rehabilitation of Europe, coupled with the progress made in the interallied conference strengthened the foreign issues in the face of the hesitancy of banks to approve the security back of the proposed German loan. Belgian 7 1-2's, French 8's and Netherlands 6's advanced a point each and smaller gains were general throughout the European list.

Several new 1924 high records were established by speculative rail favorites, including the Seaboard adjustment 5's, which touched a new top price at 66 1-2. Other liens in demand were the Missouri Pacific first 6's, Iowa Central 4's, Erie convertibles, Frisco income 6's and Delaware and Hudson refunding 4's.

With copper and zinc prices advancing, bonds of the copper companies kept pace with stocks in a vigorous forward movement. Chile, Anaconda and Magma issues all scored good gains, Chile 6's sold at the year's peak price. United States government obligations were slightly more active and higher today on reports that the next treasury financing would call for a better yield basis than the last issue sold.

CURB MARKET

New York, July 22.—Realizing sales failed to check the upward movement of stocks in today's curb market. Several active oil shares, including Standard Oils of Indiana, Kansas and Kentucky, Ohio Oil, Cities Service and Imperial of Canada moved up a point or so while such high priced issues as Prairie Oil and Gas, Standard Oil of Nebraska and South Penna. Oil jumped 4 to 7 points. Revival of activity in Woodley Petroleum following the announcement that the company had brought in Merrit No. 2 well in the Cotton Valley field, flowing 10,000 barrels daily, and was drilling five more wells in the same territory.

Strength and activity of radio stocks featured the industrial list. Dubilier climbing nearly 3 points to a new high record at 54 3-4 and Ware rising nearly 2 points to 26 7-8. Good gains also were recorded by Lehigh Valley Coal ctfs., Grand Stores, Gillette Safety Razor, Imperiar Tobacco and United States Light and Heat common and preferred.

Mining shares improved in sympathy with the rise in metal stocks on the "big board."

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, July 22.—Wheat underwent a sharp setback in price today, influenced by rains over spring crop territory and by bearish estimates of the domestic winter crop yield. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1 7-8 to 2 1-2c lower, September 1.23 1-4 to 1.23 1-2 and December 1.26 1-4 to 1.26 1-2. Corn finished 2 1-4 to 3c down, oats 7-8 to 1 1-2c

JEWETT CITY

Jewett City people, when reading this week that the new naval vessels are to be oil burners and equipped with Diesel engines, recall the fact that Jewett City was the first place in which the Diesel engines were put into operation. Twenty-three years ago this borough conceived the idea of manufacturing its own electricity for light and power. The plant at Riverside was built, the Diesel agents came here and seeing the opportunity to try out their very first engines, the borough commission were induced to equip the plant with a twin set of Diesel oil burners. Maxcy Seymour was warden of the borough and the Jewett City Savings bank holds the $15,000 loan which was necessarily made at that time.

Dennis Barrett took a turn as chief engineer, followed by Franklin G. Waters, an expert mechanic. These same two Diesels, the first ever installed for mercantile purposes, were a hot proposition, and an unqualified losing game. The borough bought a carload of petroleum, and buried an old boiler in the ground, as a storage tank. The ignition of the oil spray in the cylinders, was accomplished by the application of compressed air, which was pumped up to 500 pounds pressure, and kept stored in a battery of case-hardened steel bottles, five feet high and six inches in diameter.

Occasionally the air supply would get under this tremendous pressure, and escape from the storage bottles. This being the case, the engines could not be started until by means of a gasoline engine, the air pressure was pumped up.

Once in a while a charge of air would explode, in the line of a backfire and then, at 500 pounds, the detonaton of the discharge would fairly shake the borough to its foundation.

Plants were installed that same year at Mansfield, Mass., and at Westerly, R. I. The Jewett City engines were tried faithfully and persistently, but they were too much for the whole mechanical outfit, and were thrown out and scrapped. That was in 1901. Today, twenty million dollars in modern war vessels are to be equipped with Diesel engines, of the same original idea as the two first ones ever built, and tried out to furnish power for the Jewett City Electric Light plant.

L. M. Carpenter's "Old Timers" are scheduled to try and take a fall out of the Ashland baseball team Thursday evening in a twilight game.

To date the regulars have lost but one game on the home field including the twilight games though numerous attempts have been made by local players of more or less ability to give the kids a set back.

The Old Timers' lineup for Thursday is easily the best bunch of ball tossers to be seen on Ashland Park this season if past records mean anything.

Bill Liberty will do the catching with Spike Liberty and Charlie Cornell, former Rhode Island and Connecticut League stars, doing the pitching. The infield will be pretty well fortified with Hal Chase, Red Harris, Leclaire and "Nap" Liberty, offering the inner defense.

In the outfield no lesser lights than Art Cyr, Bub Benjamin, and Bill Maynard will cavort. It will take the regulars' full strength to give this club a battle.

A new sliding chute, 26 feet long, has been added to the diving float at Ashland Beach.

All the equipment has been placed at the Ashland Playground and this is now a popular recreation resort for the youngsters.

The men's class members of the Methodist church have placed themselves on record as commending the action taken by the officers of the Danielson barracks of the Connecticut state police department in upholding the dignity of the law, in connection with the episode which took place in the borough of Jewett City and vicinity on the evening of July 17, 1924, when certain offenders were making a desperate attempt to escape prosecution.

They have also notified Supt. Robert T. Hurley of their action, with the request that he forward their letter to Sergeant Fields of the Danielson barracks.

E. J. Davan of Brooklyn, N. Y., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Jodoin, of East Main street highlands.

Local people returning from outings in New Hampshire report no run of steady warm weather. As for thunder showers, for which the state is famous, it is said they had 'em up there last week, that would fairly rattle the nails out of one's shoes, with wind that would blow the teeth out of a cross-cut saw.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Tracy are at home after a delightful motor trip through Maine. Their itinerary included many of the coast summer resorts, as well as drives through the down east mountain country.

E. Lucier has been entertaining Mrs. Jarvais of Willimantic and her son, from Detroit.

Miss Anita Raymond of New Canaan is a guest at E. F. Burleson's.

Mr. and Mrs. George Korkege and daughters Alice and Helen of Portland, Me., are guests at Abraham Zeger's.

The Baptist Ladies' Aid Society is to meet at Mrs. Emma Raney's home, Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Alfred Palmer had as a recent guest her cousin, D. J. McIntyre of Pittsburgh, Penn.

Charles F. Whitney and George B. Nelbert of The Bulletin, were in town Tuesday.

AUTOMOBILE BREAKS GLASS IN MAIN STREET STORE WINDOW

The Woolworth building at the corner of Main and Shetucket streets lost one of its big plate glass windows on the Main street front Tuesday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock when an automobile crashed into it.

The machine that hit the window was driven by Nathan Gershon of New York, who is visiting on Boswell avenue. According to the report made by Traffic Officer Myron Morgan he had given the signal for Mr. Gershon to come around from Shetucket street in Main street; heading westerly, and the New York man was making the turn when it was struck in the side by the automobile driven by George H. Kramer of 319 Central avenue who drove around the corner without a signal from the officer.

The Gershon machine carried across the street, mounted the curb, sideswiped the window, came back into the street again and came to a stop near the Plaut-Cadden clock. The Kramer machine came to a stop some distance ahead of the machine that had crashed into the window. When the Gershon machine climbed the curb it struck a mail motor car that was standing there waiting for the signal from the traffic officer.

The drivers were sent to police headquarters to report the accident.

J. OLIN HOWE SUCCEEDING WITH NEW YORK MAGAZINE

A former Norwich boy who continues to make good in New York is J. Olin Howe, special writer, who began newspaper work on The Bulletin in the old Main street building. Mr. Howe's contributions to "Success" are familiar to Norwich readers and he is a member of that staff.

He also is running a newspaper feature syndicate and is interested in various lines of literary work. From the first, his breezy, original style has taken with publishers and readers, while his keen eye has seen possibilities in many out-of-the-way situations and conditions for special articles of unusual merit and compelling interest. Much of his matter is signed, so that he has established a wide circle of readers, who look for what he has to say on any topic.

For seven or eight years Mr. Howe has had headquarters in New York, although on leaving Norwich he went to Waterbury. Before locating in Manhattan he spent several years in Canada, for his health, which was completely restored by life in the woods across the border.

TRADING COVE MEN DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED

They must be drinking some awful stuff in Trading oCve. Sunday night two men took the highway for a bed after drinking some of it and Tuesday afternoon two more Trading Cove men fell into the hands of the Norwich police when one of them was found so overcome that he was falling asleep over the wheel of the automobile in which they were riding.

William J. York, 69, and William Woodmansee, 60, who were in York's touring car were the two helpless automobile riders. Their condition was reported by telephone to police headquarters from the Thames street neighborhood. Chief Linton at once dispatched Officer M. Carroll and M. Delaney to look up the car which was making progress that was dangerous to all on the street, according to the report to the police. The driver of the machine was lopped over the wheel as he steered the machine along, it was reported.

By the time the police had found the men, they had managed to get down into Dunham street and were sitting there in the machine in a nearly helpless condition. The two men were locked up at police headquarters and the machine was held there. The right forward mudguard of the car had a freshly scraped spot on it that looked as if it had collected white paint off a fence somewhere.

DENIES E. C. POWER CO. TO BLAME MONDAY NIGHT

The trouble at the city gas and electric plant Monday night was not caused by the Uncas Power Co. or the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., according to General Manager H. D. Larrabee, of the latter company.

The circuit breakers at the substation of the Uncas Power Co. at Greeneville protect both the city and the Uncas Power Co. equipment. The circuit breakers tripped at 11.15 but the actual cause of the interruption has not as yet been located by the city, continued Mr. Larrabee. Neither the Uncas Power Co nor the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. had any interruption in service Monday night.

The Eastern Connecticut Power Co. has no sub-station at the gas and electric plant and supplies to the Uncas Power Co. for the city only a small amount of secondary power which is delivered over the transmission lines of the Uncas Power Co.

This statement by General Manager Larrabee contradicts the explanation of the failure of the light given by General Manager C. W. Taggart of the city gas and electric plant who said the fault was with the Eastern Connecticut Power Co.

GAVE BIRTHDAY SURPRISE TO DR. W. J. CALLAHAN

If ever there were a surprised man in Norwich that man was Dr. W. J. Callahan when he was led into the dance hall at Columbus park Tuesday night by a fellow physician who had invited him to a consultation on a case. The hall was dark except for the lighted candles that blazed on a big birthday cake on the table, around which stood about thirty friends who were participating in the birthday surprise to the popular doctor. When the cheering subsided after Dr. Callahan had taken the honor guest's place to which he was led, and the Blue Ribbon Syncopators ceased their welcoming music, Charles A. Hagberg to whom had been delegated the toastmaster's place, made a neat presentation speech as he handed a handsome gold watch to Dr. Callahan, the gift of admiring friends. The doctor's appreciative response was loudly applauded as he spoke of the value of friendship, and the party then sat down to an excellent banquet for which the Terminal catered. The menu comprised cantalope, chicken salad, rolls, ice cream, fancy cake, coffee and ginger ale.

During the supper hour the Blue Ribbon Syncopators rendered a snappy programme, under the direction of Michael D'Atri, and all present responded in a pleasing way with brief remarks when called upon by the toastmaster.

The pleasant evening concluded with several lively boxing matches by local boys who are clever with the gloves.

The Haunted Place

In the greenest of our valleys
By good angels tenanted,
Once a fair and stately palace—
Radiant palace—reared its head.
In the monarch Thought's dominion,
It stood there:
Never seraph spread a pinion
Over fabric half so fair.

Banners yellow, glorious, golden,
On its roof did float and flow
(This—all this—was in the olden
Time, long ago.)
And every gentle air that dallied,
In that sweet day,
Along the ramparts plumed and pallid
A winged odor went away.

Wanderers in that happy valley
Through two luminous windows saw
Spirits moving musically,
To a lute's well-tuned law,
Round about a throne, where, sitting
(Porphyrogene,)
In state his glory well befitting,
The ruler of the realm was seen.

And all with pearl and ruby glowing
Was the fair palace door,
Through which came flowing, flowing, flowing
And sparkling evermore,
A troop of Echoes, whose sweet duty
Was but to sing,
In voices of surpassing beauty,
The wit and wisdom of their king.

But evil things, in robes of sorrow,
Assailed the monarch's high estate;
(Ah, let us mourn, for never morrow
Shall dawn upon him desolate!)
And round about his home, the glory
That blushed and bloomed,
Is but a dim-remembered story
Of the old time entombed.

And travelers now, within that valley,
Through the red-litten windows see
Vase forms that move fantastically
To a discordant melody;
While, like a ghastly rapid river
Through the pale door
A hideous throng rush out forever,
And laugh—but smile no more.
—Edgar Allen Poe.

Between the Sunken Sun and the New Moon

Between the sunken sun and the new moon
I stood in fields through which a rivulet ran
With scarce perceptible motion, not a span
Of its smooth surface trembling to the tune
Of sunset breezes: 'O delicious boon,'
Who, in her realm as in the soul of man,
Alternates storm with calm, and the loud noon
With dewy evening's soft and sacred lull!
Happy the heart that keeps its twilight hour,
And, in the depths of heavenly peace reclined,
Loves to commune with thoughts of tender power;
Thoughts that ascend, like angels beautiful,
A shining Jacob's ladder of the mind."
—Paul Hamilton Hayne.

Down in Mobile, Ala., John Marshall, negro, became the champion potato planter and his services were in great demand. Marshal's skill in the garden was due to his peg leg. A curious method of catching turtles is practiced in the West Indies. It consists in attaching a ring and a line to the tail of a species of sucker fish, which is then thrown overboard, and immediately makes for the first turtle he can spy, to which he attaches himself. The fisherman then hauls both turtle and sucker fish in.

Lobelin, and alkaloid isolated from lobelia leaves in German gardens has proved valuable in stimulating lung action in case of asphyxiation by carbon monoxide, according to the announcement of a Hamburg chemical firm. The preparation proved valuable in rescuing miners overcome by carbon monoxide during a recent mine explosion in Upper Silesia, it is said. Carbon monoxide is an intensely poisonous, but quite odorless gas given off by automobile engines, and many cases of poisoning have occurred in closed garages, tunnels and taxi stations.

From figures for March and April, showing the increase in motor transportation across the Syrian desert between Beirut and Bagdad, it is believed that further development of this means of communication will materially assist the growth of commerce in Syria. The transport company, which maintains service between the two points mentioned, recently covered the 614 miles between Bagdad and Beirut in 16 1-2 hours, an average speed of 37.2 miles an hour. In making this record run a high-grade American car was used.

FRENCH DELEGATES AND BANKERS REMAIN AT ODDS

Bankers are Firm in Demands For Definite Guarantees to Support German Loan Called For in the Dawes Proposal—French Base Their Opposition on the Sancity of the Versailles Treaty—Committees of the Inter-Allied Conference are Withholding Their Reports Pending Outcome of the Controversy.

London, July 23.—(By The A. P.)—With the French maintaining the sanctity of the Versailles treaty, and the international bankers equally firm in their demands for definite guarantees to satisfy investors in America and elsewhere who will be asked to support a German loan necessary to launch the Dawes plan, the inter-allied conference has resolved itself into a delicate waiting game.

The question of Germany's presence at the conference table was discussed and was practically the only advance made during the second plenary session held in the foreign office during this afternoon. The committees appointed a week ago have withheld their reports because it is impossible to make any real progress until the existing differences between the bankers and the French are ironed out.

Both are unyielding, but the British, Belgian and American delegates are striving to reach a compromise, the good offices of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon even having been invoked at the Downing Street breakfast this morning when he was a guest of Premier MacDonald. Later Mr. Mellon conferred at No. 10 with Mr. MacDonald, Thomas Lamont, Sir Montagu Norman and Sir Robert Kindersley. It is stated tonight that Mr. Mellon in an unofficial way had contributed a suggestion which was likely to be of great assistance in finding a way out of the present deadlock.

The French delegates take the view that the bankers are interlopers in the London conference, which should be of a wholly political nature. But the bankers maintain that they are merely interpreting their investing markets so that the needed loan will be readily subscribed when the German government asks for it.

It was authoritatively stated tonight that the French have verbally indicated their willingness to pursue a policy with regard to defaults and sanctions under the Dawes plan that the bankers could whole-heartedly recommend to investors. The problem is to reduce the verbal pledges to an acceptable written formula which would satisfy the bankers and at the same time keep Premier Herriot's flag flying in the French parliament. It was to this end that Ambassador Kellogg and Premier Theunis assumed the role of mediators yesterday.

Other suggestions were made by the conference experts and financiers today and it is hoped a compromise agreement will be reached at the next plenary session.

It is reported that M. Herriot himself made what was tantamount to a pledge against separate action on France's part, to which an American replied: "M. Herriot, if you could meet the millions of Americans who are potential investors in the loan and talk to them face to face, they would believe you and would be willing to take a chance. However, as agents, only, the bankers must insist upon a written form and a written formula."

If the judicial committee established today decides that Germany shall be called into the conference, the Berlin representatives are expected to be in London by Monday. M. Herriot is not going back to Paris, as reported, but intends to remain in London for another ten days, which time it is expected will be needed to wind up the conference work.

Speaking at the lawyers' banquet at the Guildhall tonight, Ambassador Kellogg referred to the inter-allied conference as a gathering to settle the great economic and social problems of the war.

"I have confidence in the statesmen of the allied nations, in their high patriotism and desire for peace and restoration of prosperity in Europe," he continued, "that they will, that they can, that they must settle this great problem."

NEW HAVEN TRAFFIC OFFICER KILLED WHILE ON DUTY

New Haven, July 23.—So conflicting were the stories regarding the death of Policeman Lawrence Murphy, traffic officer who was killed at State and Humphrey streets, today, that Coroner Eli Mix decided to continue his investigation tomorrow. Meanwhile Mrs. Mary L. Coan, wife of George E. Coan, of the Coan and Cloutier company, operator of the automobile involved in the accident, and Walter Cloutier, motorman of the trolley car also involved, were arrested. Both were released on their own recognizance.

According to one version, the automobile operated by Mrs. Coan first struck the trolley car a glancing blow and then knocked over the policeman and drove over him, inflicting injuries from which the officer died in New Haven hospital. Another version claimed that the trolley car struck the policeman and hurled him under the wheels of Mrs. Coan's automobile.

Mrs. Coan claims that the officer gave her the signal to come ahead when she approached the corner and that the street car coming from a side street started for the crossing at the same time. Other witnesses claimed that Officer Murphy raised both hands in the air as a signal for traffic to stop and that Mrs. Coan failed to bring her car to a stop.

The coroner questioned a dozen witnesses today and will continue his inquiry tomorrow.

Officer Murphy was 35 years old and had been a member of the police force for five or six years. He was a veteran of the World war.

NATIONALIST DEMONSTRATION AT BAYREUTH SPONTANEOUS

Bayreuth, Bavaria, July 23.—(By The A. P.)—Siegfried Wagner, son of the composer, today asserted that the nationalistic demonstration which broke out Tuesday afternoon during the finale of Die Meistersinger which was the opening performance of the revived Wagnerian festival, was purely spontaneous and was not arranged by the management. He deplored the impression created abroad that the demonstration was a political outburst in the interest of the nationalist party.

AMERICAN LAWYERS WERE GUESTS OF HONOR

London, July 23—(By the A. P.)—Charles E. Hughes, the American secretary of state, Ambassador Frank B. Kellogg, and Sir James Atkin, lord justice of appeal, were among the guests of honor at a banquet given at the Guildhall tonight for members of the American and Canadian Bar associations. The Lord Mayor presided and welcomed the guests in behalf of the city corporation and proposed a toast to President Coolidge.

The lord mayor said they were greatly pleased that the occasion enabled them to pay a just tribute of respect and regard to the first citizen of the great republic across the Atlantic, whose power and influence had never been greater than they were at this moment and whose friendship Great Britain was happily privileged to possess in an unstinted degree.

Viscount Haldane, Lord Chancellor, proposing the toast "the American Bar" said it was a happy inspiration for the lord mayor who invited their American visitors to a banquet. For it not only did it coincide with a great international event, but it demonstrated the solidarity of three great peoples, all to whom ardently desired the peace of the world.

In responding Secretary Hughes remarked that some of them might be regarded as discovering England, as in truth they from America was discovering themselves. They had found an unbroken unity—a sense of unity that will be lasting.

SLAYERS OF FRANKS DISPLAY CALLOUSNESS

Chicago, July 23 (By the A. P.)—Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, faced the sorrowing parents of their boy victim today at the bar of justice.

They watched them on the witness stand as they told with tear-moist eyes the story of their son's disappearance and heard husky voices whisper affirmative answers to the state's proferred exhibits of the little fellow's clothing.

On the part of the paradoxically brilliant but criminal young defendants, there was no display of emotion.

Leopold, motionless, and with an expression of only casual interest on his features watched the mother of young Robert Franks with scarce the blinking of an eye. And Loeb, his companion, gave little outward sign of perturbation.

Throughout the day however, Loeb showed some reaction to the proceedings. He came into court with eyes staring and jaw pendulous and frequently licked his lips or picked at threads on his sleeves.

Loeb leaned forward in his chair; Leopold slouched down on his shoulder blades.

The two youths whose academic achievements were outstanding were in court today for the first day's hearings before Judge Caverly, chief justice of the criminal court of Cook county, in the somewhat unorthodox legal proceedings which is to determine their fate.

Facing the state's attorney, Robert E. Crowe, as he styled their crime the "most cruel, cowardly and dastardly murder ever committed in the history of American jurisprudence," the 19-year-old defendants apparently found mental stimulus in the oratorical effort of the prosecutor.

In a brief pause which followed this climax in Mr. Crowe's opening statement, the defendants whispered to each other words afterwards described by Loeb as "really funny." After hearing a detailed recital of their carefully laid plans, their execution and the finding of the nude body of their 14-year-old victim in a water-filled culvert beneath a railroad crossing in a desolate outlying section, once described by Leopold as an ideal spot for ornithological field work, the young men left the court room jauntily. As they entered an elevator to return to their guarded cells, they laughed audibly at each other's twittings.

The proceedings are designed to inform the court exactly of the evidence in the case, to assist him in fixing a just sentence. Formal pleas of guilty to two indictments for kidnaping for ransom, and for first degree murder were entered Monday, reversing previous pleas of not guilty. Today, in firm voices the youths once more affirmed their pleas of guilty. Their fate now rests, in the language of Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for the defense, in "the mercy of the court."

Status of The Irish Free State Minister

Defined in Correspondence Between Secretary Hughes and Ambassador Howard.

Washington, July 23.—Under agreement with the British embassy, the state department made public tonight correspondence exchanged between Secretary Hughes and Ambassador Howard last month providing for the appointmnet in Washington of a minister to represent the Irish Free State indiplomatic intercourse with the United States.

In his communication of June 24, submitting the request that the Washington government accept this representation of the Irish Free State, Ambassador Howard told Secretary Hughes that "his majesty's government have come to the conclusion that it is desirable that the handling of matters at Washington exclusively relating to the Irish Free State should be confided to a minister plenipotentiary accredited to the United States government."

"Such a minister," the ambassador continued, "would be accredited by his majesty the king to the president of the United States and he would be furnished with credentials which would enable him to take charge of all affairs relating to the Irish Free State. He would be the ordinary channel of communication with the United States government on these matters.

Matters which are of imperial concern or which affect other dominions in the commonwealth in common with the Irish Free State will continue to be handled as heretofore by this embassy."

The arrangements proposed by his majesty's government would not denote any departure from the principle of the diplomatic unity of the empire. The Irish minister would be at all times in the closes touch with his majesty's ambassador and any question which may arise as to whether a matter comes within the category of those to be handled by the Irish minister or not would be settled by consultation between them. In matters falling within this sphere the Irish minister would not be subject to the control of his majesty's ambassador nor would his majesty's ambassador be responsible for the Irish minister's action. * * * *

"As regard questions such as the precedence to be attributed to the minister or any other points which the United States government may desire to raise in connection with the appointment, his majesty's government will await the views of the United States government.

Secretary Hughes replied, under date of June 28, quoting from the ambassador's letter, and continuing:

"Responding to the hope you express on bhealf of your government that the government of the United States will concur in the appointment of an Irish Free State minister in conformity with the proposals of his majesty's government as set out in your note, I have the honor and the pleasure to inform you that the president, always happy to meet the wish of his majesty's government in every proper way, will be pleased to receive a duly accredited minister plenipotentiary of the Irish Free State, on the footing you indicate."

THREE FRAME WAREHOUSES WERE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Thompsonville, July 23—Three large frame warehouses, formerly the distillery of the Baird-Daniels company of New York, now owned by Louis Cots, of Windsor Locks and used for the storage of baled paper, were completely destroyed by fire this afternoon. The building was on the main Hartford to Springfield highway and three miles south of Thompsonville.

The fire started in rags spread on the grass to dry outside the building, presumably by a cigar thrown out by a passing motorist. The flames quickly spread to the building in which were stored 200 tons of baled paper and rags. Fire apparatus from Thompsonville, Warehouse Point and Windsor Locks responded to an alarm but the firemen were unable to approach within several hundred feet of the fire because of the intense heat.

The fire spread to the storage warehouse of the Gas Distributing company and this was damaged. There was constant fear of an explosion of two storage tanks containing 3,000 gallons of gasoline which were only ten feet from the burning warehouse. These were covered with water, however, and did not catch fire.

Sparks set fire to a barn on the Dwight-Abbe farm on King street, half a mile away and the roof of the building was nearly burned off.

The total damage is estimated at $40,000.

WILLIMANTIC

Local visitors at Windham county jail at Brooklyn Wednesday found everything serene. The larger part of the jail is now unoccupied there being only twenty-two men and one woman in confinement. Four of the men are bound over for trial in the superior court. As usual Jailer Walter S. Tripp had everything in spick and span order. About the only sign of activity within the building was one of the prisoners at work redecorating the interior of the main office and the commissioner's headquarters.

Over half of the haying on the farm conducted in connection with jail, has been done and an excellent crop of about five acres of new potatoes will be dug up shortly. Half of the prisoners were at work in the fields. The young cattle stock was looked over and found to be in fine condition.

Assistant Jailer Walter Tripp is mourning the loss of his pet and the jail mascot, a pedigreed young collie familiarly known as "Scotty" "Scotty" came back to the jail after a run last Friday and appeared sick. He died within a few hours, of some unknown malady.

The town and city officials who occupy offices in the town building gathered for a few minutes Wednesday afternoon in the city clerk's office giving a delightful farewell party to Miss May Cheney, who becomes the bride of Attorney Harry S. Gaucher next month. Miss Cheney has been assistant city clerk for the past few years and her departure from the town building offices is deeply regretted by the various office holders.

Attending the affair were Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, Assistant Town Clerk Mrs. Mary D. Stoughton, Judge of Probate Otto B. Robinson and assistant Miss Mella Twomey, Assistant Tax Collector Rail Larivire and First Selectman Russell A. Andrews. Ice cream, cookies and soft drinks were served as refreshments.

For the sixteenth time within comparatively few years Mary Kapinos, of the Stone Row, will appear in police court this (Thursday) morning to answer to a charge of intoxication. To all appearance, Mary likes liquor regardless of the grade or label on the bottle and according to past statements made by her she also feels right at home at Brooklyn jail. It is expected that she will be given an opportunity to stay at the jail during a stiff sentence following the trial today. The police received a complaint that a man had fallen down a flight of stairs in the Stone Row and Chief Allan MacArthur and Captain Thomas Grady went to the place and arrested Joseph Comtois who was found drunk in the building. The officials then returned and took into custody the Kapinos woman who was crazy drunk according to the officers. Joseph Comtois will also appear in police court.

The case of John Thompson of Windham, charged with harboring a dog or dogs which created a disturbance by barking during the evening hours, was ordered called off previous to the court session Wednesday morning. The eleven witnesses who had been summoned by the police were notified that their services would not be required. Police officials state that they do not know when the case will come up again and did not give any reason for the sudden postponement. Friends of Thompson in this section have labelled the matter a "spite case."

Walter Kamyk, brilliant star who occupied the dizzy corner for the American Thread Athletic association his season had a narrow escape from death Monday at Indian Orchard, Mass. It was learned here Wednesday. Kamyk has a long list of followers in this city who greatly regret the news of his accident. The star sacker is an expert swimmer and an ardent devotee to that sport. While he was standing on a low bridge, at Indian Orchard, which spans the Connecticut river a friend playfully pushed him into the water. Kamyk struck a rowboat which was moored near the bridge and he was rendered unconscious. He floated for some time before a passerby noticed the inert body and he was taken from the water by several men. John P. McQuillan of the local ball team has received word that the accident was not followed by serious results and that Kamyk will be on hand for Saturday's game.

A big watermelon party in which about a dozen boys under 18 years of age were participating was suddenly broken up Tuesday afternoon, shortly before six o'clock, by "Bill" Whittemore of the Willard H. Smith, Inc., wholesale fruit dealers who discovered the urchins unloading the melons from a freight car. Mr. Whittemore was told that a number of boys were raiding a box car loaded with choice melons on the spur track in the rear of the Jordan Hardware block and he hurried to the place. Watermelons were dropped on the spot by the members of the raiding crew and all feet were put into immediate action. Mr. Whittemore succeeded in catching two of the boys and they were taken to the police station and severely reprimanded. Wednesday morning the remainder of the crew were taken to police headquarters for a warning. It was found that a loose board on one side of the car had been ripped off, allowing room for one small boy to crawl through. Twenty-five melons had been taken and the alleyways near the railroad tracks were littered with the remnants of the feast.

Action has been taken on what has been considered by many to be an excessive rate of speed at which trucks of the fire department have in the past been driven down or up Main street. Acting Mayor George W. Hickey has written letters to Chief of Police Allan MacArthur and Fire Chief James J. Tighe in which he offers suggestions regarding traffic on Main street when the fire apparatus responds to a call of fire, now that the electrically operated sirens have been installed. To the fire chief Acting Mayor Hickey states that, taking into consideration the efficiency of the fire department and the congested condition of the narrow Main street, it is imperative that the apparatus move not faster than twenty miles an hour in an easterly direction until the railroad crossing has been reached. He further points out that a life lost on the way to a fire is as precious as one lost in a fire and that there is hardly a point in the city which cannot be reached within three or four minutes. As a suggestion to the chief of police, the mayor asked that that department cooperate with the other in avoiding collisions. All moving vehicles should pull as close to the curbing as possible as soon as the sirens begin to operate and all traffic should be at a standstill when the fire apparatus proceeds on the main or any other thoroughfare.

Willimantic Exchange club is rapidly reaching its charter quota of members. With only four new members to be added in order to secure its charter the outlook is most promising for the infant organization. The weekly session was held Tuesday noon with President G. E. Wilcox in charge. George S. Elliott was secretary pro tem in the absence of Roderick A. Jodoin. Brief talks were given by several of the members. Arthur E. Morrill was admitted as a member, bringing the total membership to twenty-one. Following the official installation of the club President Wilcox plans to arrange for educational as well as fellowship programs for the weekly sessions.

Raymond Selown of West Ashford and John Russell, of Westford, were in the Ashford town court Tuesday evening on charges of having improper licenses on their automobiles. Both pleaded guilty. Justice of the Peace Clarence Barlow of Westford imposed a fine of $10 and costs in each case, amounting to $21.70, which was paid. Otto Hattin prosecuted the cases.

The date has been set for a hearing on the admittance of the administrator's account of the estate of the late Dr. John Weldon, by Judge Otto B. Robinson of the Windham probate court. The hearing will be followed by a similar one in the case of the estate of the late Edwin M. Hall also of Windham.

Judge George E. Hinman, Judge Frank H. Foss, Attorneys Samuel B. Harvey of this city and E. M. Yeomans of Andover attended the annual dinner of the Connecticut Bar association at Eastern Point Wednesday afternoon.

UNCASVILLE MAN IN JAIL, HELD UNDER BONDS FOR THEFT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, July 23.—When William J. Burke of Uncasville took the witness stand during his trial in police court Wednesday morning on a charge of breaking and entering he was so nervous that he started to climb upon the chair placed on the stand for the comfort of witnesses. In many other ways Burke displayed a nervs-tracked mind and his sanity was questioned, by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton. Burke's testimony was badly twisted. He said that he had entered the flat occupied by Henry Cyr at 135 Union street on the afternoon of Wednesday, July 16, to get a drink of water. He claimed that he did not break in, as the door was unlocked. His mission was to get a drink of water. He went into a bedroom and looked all through the dresser drawers and saw a considerable amount of jewelry but only took a diamond ring which he has since lost. Out of the jumble of his testimony enough sound statements were secured to find probable cause and Judge Foss bound the man over to the next criminal session of the Windham county superior court under bonds of $1,000. Burke was taken to Brooklyn jail to await a bondsman.

Lieutenant Frank McLean testified to a verbal confession which Burke had made to himself and to Officer Arthur Hurley concerning the break into the Cyr home, after he had arrested Burke Sunday veening. At that tim Burke said that he had sold some of the loot to a man in Norwich. Burke could not tell what had happened to the remainder of the jewelry which was in a box. Other articles stolen included a pearl necklace, a pair of pearl ear-rings, a wrist watch and watch chain, four scarf pins, three of which were of gold, a sapphire ring and a diamond ring. Officer Hurley corroborated the testimony given by the lieutenant. Henry Cyr testified to discovering the theft when he and his wife returned from work late in the afternoon in question. The jewelry box was empty and the lock on the front door appeared to have been tampered with. He was positive that the house was all locked up when he left at noon.

RED PIMPLES ITCHED TERRIBLY

On Forehead and Chin. Cuticura Healed.

"Pimples broke out on my forehead and later my chin became affected. The pimples were hard and red and sometimes they festered. They itched terribly and when I scratched them it made them worse. The skin around the pimples was red and inflamed, and the trouble lasted about two years.

"A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some. After a few days' use I was greatly relieved. I continued the treatment and now I am completely healed." (Signed) Miss Dorothy Burke, 8 Dawson St., New Haven, Conn. April 16, 1924.

Westerly people are most interested in the announcement of Supt. A. E. Bell of the Westerly branch, American Thread Co., William Clark, mill in Lower Pawcatuck, that the local plant will start work again Monday next, July 28th. When this plant is in operation on full schedule it means employment for from 200 to 300. The mill has been shut down for the past month and a half. Soon after the shut-down there were rumors in Westerly that Henry Ford was interested in the plant to assist him in the manufacture of his well known product. Again the rumor went the rounds that it was to be made over for the manufacture of silk and that the Cheney Bros. of South Manchester had been interested in looking over the works with the idea of adding it to their manufacturing equipment. The announcement by Supt. Bell quiets these rumors for a time at least.

The Bible school of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church of Westerly and friends enjoyed their annual picnic outing at Atlantic Beach Wednesday. The day proved an ideal one and there were many in attendance. The early goers left Westerly by electric car about 9 o'clock and many more made the trip by automobile, beside those who were present for the noon hour only.

Twelve gold baseball watchfobs, valued at $100, were distributde Wednesday to the nine members, substitutes, utility man and manager of Westerly High school baseball team of 1924, champions of the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic baseball league. On the gold imitation of a league baseball is inscribed "W. H. S." besides the initials of the wearer and each and every owner wears the litte memento with justifiable pride.

Mrs. W. H. Titsworth of Plainfield, N. J., who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Henry L. Burdick in Westerly, left Wednesday afternoon for Providence, her former home, for a short visit.

Miss Harriet Constantinu, a former Westerly resident, was the week end guest of Westerly frieds, before returning to her home on Cape Cod.

Miss Gladys Crosby, formerly of Maine, now a resident of the West Side, has entered the employ of the Terminal Lunch.

George Corey was a Westerly visitor in Providence Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Westerly farmers regret that the threatened shower of Tuesday evening did not materialize, as one remarked "each hill of corn on his farm lacked one pail of water."

The son of Councilman Charles S. Fowler of Westerly is reported as ill with scralet fever.

Mrs. William A. Reardon of Main street is a patient at Lawrence hospital, New London.

Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun of Westerly was in attendance at the meeting of the Connecticut State Bar association held at The Griswold, Eastern Point, Wednesday.

Westerly members are looking forward to the annual outing of the Shriners at the Narragansett Pier casino, August 3rd.

At his home on the Stonington road, Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock occurred the death of John H. Champlin, 70. Mr. Champlin had been in failing health for the past few years, but he has been confined to his bed for several weeks.

Born in North Stonington in March, 1854, the son of Charles and Harriet Champlin. He has spent all of his life in the towns of North Stonington and Stonington. He was a member of the second Baptist church of North Stonington.

April 4, 1879, he was united in marriage with Miss Elisabeth Bromley of Stonington, who survives him. He also leaves a son, Elwin H. Champlin of Stonington, a brother, Representative Charles Champlin of the North Stonington road, and a sister, Mrs. Martha Gibbons of Clarkville.

Mrs. W. Marshall Taylor died Monday afternoon at the home of her niece, Mrs. Elisha C. Burdick, with whom she had resided since the death of her sister, Mrs. Herbert A. Babcock, last April.

She has been in failing health for some years and on July 8 suffered a shock.

Mary Hannah Watrous was the daughter of the late Elias and Mary E. Dickens Watrous and was born in the village of Pawcatuck on March 4, 1852. She married on Nov. 24, 1892, W. Marshall Taylor of Bolton, Eng., and from 1898 resided at 69 Mechanic street then for several years resided in Massachusetts, returning to Westerly in 1903, and with the exception of a few years from that time on made her home with her sister, Mrs. Babcock. Mr. Taylor died in 1918.

She is survived by her niece, Mrs. Elisha Burdick, a brother, Samual D. Watrous, a sisterin-law, Mrs. E. Everett Watrous of Westerly, and a nephew, Everett D. Watrous of Providence.

A fire alarm rung in from Box 63, Railroad avenue, near West street, shortly before 7 o'clock Wednesday night, brought out the three pieces of apparatus of the Westerly department. The alarm was sounded for a fire in the house at 13 West street. The fire threatened to set fire to a shed flames leaped up into the branches of started in a pile of brush in the rear in the rear of the house at 11 West street occupied by James Greeley and Bruno Parilla. Water from a garden hose soon had the flames subdued and on the arrival of the fire department apparatus, there was nothing to do but to return to the fire station on Union street. The side of the shed was not even scorched.

Mark C. Hogell and H. E. M. Bernard, of New York city, were occupants of an airplane which was forced down at Weekapaug, about 8.30 o'clock Wednesday evening by darkness. The men left Mineola field bound for Boston. They made a forced but successful landing on the Langworthy farm. The men stayed Wednesday night at the Rock Haven, Weekapaug, and plan to resume their trip this (Thursday) morning.

A Ford roadster N-8154 Conn. driven by Mr. Rippell of Mystic, accompanied by his wife and child, lost a forward left wheel, near Dunn's corner, Wednesday evening. $26,400 BACK PAY COMING TO TROLLEYMEN

On June 1 this year the wages of motormen and conductors of the Connecticut company were increased 3 cents an hour. This week and next the company is sending checks to the various divisions to cover these back wages. The company employs about 2,000 motormen and conductors, and the wage increase since June 1 means that each of those men will receive approximately $13.20. This calls for payments by the company amounting to about $26,400, which are now being sent to the division offices.

Aside from the 2,000 motormen and conductors the Connecticut company employs 127 starters and inspectors, sixteen telephone operators, fifty-four bus operators, 137 mechanics and master mechanics, 387 car house repairmen, sixty-four carpenters, forty-five painters, twenty-eight watchmen, seventeen bus mechanics, 150 linemen, edeven teamsters in the line department, nineteen power house engineers, twenty-two power house firemen, fifty-nine power house oilers and helpers, eleven power house wiremen, eighty-seven coal handlers. In construction and track work the company employs seventy-five roadmasters and track foremen, 775 track employes and nine bridge repairmen. In the express department there are eighty-eight employes and sixteen people in the store rooms. The company has seven claim agents, 238 cashiers, storekeepers and clerks in the division offices and 290 clerks and officers in the general offices. In all there are about 4,500 employes of the company in the state. The cars operate an average of 90,000 miles every day, and the busses average 3,100 miles each day.

GOOD PEACH SEASON PREDICTED IN STATE

The fourth successive good peach season is predicted for Connecticut by the Department of Agriculture in a statement just issued. Connecticut's crop of this fruit is expected to mount up to 248,000 bushels. Apples also look promising, the anticipated crop being about 200,000 barrels.

Not so rosy are the prospects of great quantities of peaches in some other parts in New England. "In the New England states," says the statement, "the peach crop is a failure in New Hampshire and that part of Massachusetts north of Worcester. A larger crop than last year is expected in Rhode Island and Connecticut, making the fourth successive year of a good crop in these states, an unusual occurrence."

Apple pie prospects look good for all New Englanders. "The expected crop of apples in New England," says the department, "exceeds last year's final estimate by 650,000 barrels, Gravenstein and Wealthy carry good crops. Baldwin and McIntosh lighter, with the latter tending to scab badly."

Also in Connecticut will there be plenty of grapes and a large production of pears. The grape crop is estimated at 1,825,000 pounds and the pear, 60,000 bushels. The Nutmeg state will therefore lead in New England in production of grapes and rank a close second to Massachusetts in production of pears. In the Bay State the expected crop of pears is 76,000 bushels.

You Can't Fool All of the Owners All of the Time

With all the present confusion, misunderstanding and general lack of information on the subject of tire buying, one might think Abraham Lincoln coined his famous phrase after an experience in tire buying.

The truth of what he said as applied to tires is best summed up today in this statement of fact:

More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

Of course there is a real reason.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

PALACE THEATRE

Three days starting today, Friday and Saturday, "Drums of Jeopardy" with Elaine Hammerstein in the leading role, supported by such sterling artists as Wallace Beery, Jack Mulhall, David Torrence, Maude George and Eric Mayne.

This photoplay is an adaptation of Harold MacGrath's renowned story which appeared serially in the Saturday Evening Post and afterwards gained distinction as one of the "best sellers" among novels. The story which is of melodramatic trend, with an unusual element of mystery entering into it, has been graphically told on the screen and has been produced with the lavish investiture evident in all Truart pictures, under whose banner Drums of Jeopardy was made.

The theme is an exceptional one, dealing with the lives of the people who come under the sinister influence of these jewels of fate—the Drums of Jeopardy—which are in reality the two finest emeralds in the world. There is a legend connected with these wondrous stones that they bring evil to every man who gazes upon them and good to every woman who looks upon their sparkling beauty. Around them is woven wierd tales of money, love, tragedy, death; they are part of history, and speak of pageants, lovely women, murder and loot; the fire of torches and the thump-thump-thump of hob-nailed boots is in them.

All this is brought forth with telling effect in this thrilling photoplay which is destined to add immeasurably to the laurels of the lovely and charming Elaine Hammerstein.

Added attractions, new H. C. Witwer, Cosmopolitan Magazine gems of the screen story no. 5, The Telephone Girl with Alberta Vaughn and an all star cast, latest Pathe review and famous Palace orchestra complete the program.

BREED THEATRE

Heading a monster double feature bill of rare entertainment and picturising a most difficult role Mae Marsh, that increasingly popular and inimitable star was the featured player in a new Graham Wilcox production A Woman's Secret which opened at the Breed theatre yesterday and which will be seen again today for the last time.

In this newest photoplay creation Miss Marsh has a most difficult characterization. She first plays the part of a dashing, prankish, mischievous young girl in the latter stages of a boarding school career, innocent, yet with an unusual capacity for getting into all sorts of harmless difficulties with the school authorities.

What has been termed as "the last word" in radio outfits is to be seen in Herman Holland's presentation, Radio-Mania. The huge set was installed especially for the filming of this picture by the Radio Corperation of America.

With this outfit, Grant Mitchell, the star, endeavors to talk to Mars. Whether he does or not is hard to say, anyway, he "gets" 'em in the picture.

Coming to the Breed

The quick and the dead.

That is the division of mankind in the world in which Harry Carey moves in The Night Hawk.

Quick in mind, quick in the saddle, quick on the trigger, fearless daring—and dangerous—that is the beloved cowboy Carey in this thrilling story of love, adventure, and intrigue, which will be seen at the Breed theatre Friday and Saturday.

BROADWAY

Cool, breezy, refreshing entertainment, that's just what you'll expect and find at the Broadway Theatre the last half of this week starting today.

The de luxe feature vaudeville attraction is The Four Horsemen with Joe Murray. This is not a moving picture but is such a great novelty that it must be seen to be appreciated.

Two very attractive girls, Ruby Royce and Peggy O'Neil in Fast & Speedy is a real dance specialty.

Bob George calls himself Statures Laff. He is just about as funny as they make them. He also sings and dances.

A very unique musical novelty "Trying to Copper" is presented by Carl and Valeska Winter. Originality is the keynote of this act.

Richard Talmadge "in Fast Company" is the screen attraction and is supported by Mildred Harris, Sheldon Lewis and many others. It's a knockout of humor and pep, a tale of adventure of a young speed demon 'midst ladies of the chorus, champions of the boxing ring and a band of crooks. We tell you, it's a riot.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Comment heard in the New York financial district and forecasts appearing in financial news indicates that the forthcoming semi-annual report of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., of which the Goodyear Mills, Inc., of this town are a subsidiary, will show that a splendid business was done during the first six months of 1924.

The big corporation likely will not formally make public its financial statement covering the period mentioned until some time in August. In the meantime these plans have been made possible because of continued successful operation of the concern's mammoth business enterprises.

Among other things, it is said that the old preferred stock is to be called in and replaced by a new issue. After the reorganization of the concern following the nation-wide slump of industry in 1920 this preferred stock went from par—$100 a share, and it was really worth much more than that—to around $21 as the low point. Since it began to recover it has climbed to $60, during the past spring and recently has been quoted at $56. In the meantime no dividends have been paid upon it. These accumulated dividends now amount to $26.25 per share. It is understood from the recent forecasts referred to that the new issue of stock will be put out in exchange for the old stock as of a value of $126 per share, this being the par value of the old stock with the unpaid dividends included. It is regarded as highly probable that the proposed new issue would command a higher market price than the present quotation of $56 on the stock it is to replace.

It is also regarded as probable that the corporation will call in its 8 per cent. bonds and replace them with an issue bearing only 3 per cent. interest. This move will save the corporation approximately $500,000 annually in interest charges.

Chief John McaFriand is about to launch a campaign against speeders. Those who drive too fast should take heed in time. Motor vehicles are allowed 15 miles an hour—and no more—through the business section.

Recent arrivals here from California report encountering temperatures as high as 119 degrees while traveling through Arizona.

Miss Marjorie Gaffney left Wednesday for a stay of a few days at Northfield.

Today (Thursday) brings another half-holiday and the stores regularly following the practice will close at noon for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Aldel Lamoric of Main street are away on a motor trip that will take them to Burlington, Vt.

An abundance of hay has been secured in this territory in cutting that is now far advanced, the year's supply being largely harvested.

A giant elm at the Matthew Chase place in Pomfret, is attracting attention. This tree is one of the largest in New England and measures 30 feet in circumference a few feet above the ground.

Major and Mrs. Albert Warren arrived here from West Point Wednesday afternoon and are visiting Major Warren's mother, Mrs. Emma Warren.

C. B. Gill of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Miss Arlene Babson of the West Side is among those from Danielson who are at Northfield for a time.

Though not entirely new to this section fishing for carp in the Quinebaug river is something of an unusual diversion for a few who have the time just now. The carp in the Quinebaug in some cases weigh as much as ten pounds each.

Barbers here find that the favorite way to bobbed hair being shown by so many women has helped their business very materially. It is not unusual nowadays to find as many women patrons waiting "their turn" in the chairs as men, who are not always so gallant as to give up when they are "next."

Of interest is the fact that letters to be forwarded by air mail planes can be sent from the Danielson post-office. Forwarding such a letter across the country costs 24 cents.

Mrs. Ethel Richmond is spending a vacation of two weeks at Sound View.

Harold C. Vincent of Lawrence visited with friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Richard D. Banigan, Walter Anderson and Gaston A. Maindon, assessors appointed to act as a borough board of relief, have held a meeting this week to pass upon any applications for readjustments of assessments.

Killingly's registrars have given notices of meetings to be held, early in August, for the purpose of perfecting the registration lists of voters. This is to be the first official activity that will precede all the caucuses and other functions leading up to the town election in October and the state and national elections in November.

If one had the requisite nerve to fly, one might envy the man who was soaring over Danielson in an aeroplane early Wednesday afternoon while people in the streets here sweltered, with the temperature at 90 degrees.

Correction is herewith made of an item that appeared in this column Wednesday relative to Oliver Bessette of the West Side. Mr. Bessette was not arrested in New London this week, but appeared there before an official of the motor vehicle department for a hearing of the case that was developed against him here last fall, as mentioned Wednesday. Mr. Bessette on Tuesday at New London had his driver's license restored to him and no fine or costs of any kind were imposed.

A further raising of quarantine regulations was reported Wednesday by health officer W. H. Judson at two homes here. The outlook for a quick release of the few persons remaining quarantined is looked for, in view of the fact that there have been no cases in the past twelve days.

Danielson doesn't get its carnival after all. The show has been called off as to exhibiting here. The carnival business is none too good this season anywhere in New England because of the general business conditions.

From the neighboring territory there is coming into Danielson at the present time a fine supply of berries of various kinds and vegetables. Berry culture has been materially developed hereabouts the past few years and those who have done the developing are now reaping well deserved profits.

Though mill men say there is nothing in sight to warrant the optimism, there appears to be a growing feeling that the cotton textile business is going to be very much better before long.

Mrs. Henry W. Chapin is numbered among the Danielson people who are at Northfield for a visit.

SICK WOMAN MADE HAPPY

Entirely Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mart, Texas.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build me up as was all run-down, nervous and sick. I ached and hurt all over so that I was often compelled to go to bed, and I had to have most of my work done. No medicine seemed to help me until one of my neighbors who was taking the Vegetable Compound insisted on me trying a bottle of it. The medicine helped me from the first, and the best of all is that I can even sew again without that awful, nervous feeling I was used to having. And I used to take crying spells, with such a blue feeling that I cannot explain. Now all that has left me. I feel so cheerful, and I have gained in weight, sleep well and eat hearty. Oh! I wish I had words to express what this medicine has done for me! I am a housekeeper and do every thing from the sewing to the washing now and it doesn't hurt me. You may use my letter in any way you wish. I will be glad to help any suffering woman to the road of health and happiness."—Mrs. B. F. BRANNON, 404 Travis Ave., Mart, Texas

PUTNAM

At a meeting of the merchants' committee of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday, it was voted to hold four public band concerts on Union Square during August. The concerts will be held Wednesday evenings starting at 8.45 o'clock. The Putnam Light & Power Company will erect a large search light to make the square as bright as day and the granolithic roadway will be covered with meal, as experiences teaches that this makes an excellent dancing floor. The music will be by bands from Putnam and Grosvenordale.

There was some doubt as to whether the concerts would be given this year. It had grown a bit late in the summer and a number of businessmen were luke warm regarding the proposition partly on account of business conditions and partly on the ground that it was a question whether it was a paying venture for the merchants called upon to finance the entertainments. The secretary of the chamber of commerce made a hurried follow-up canvass of the merchants Wednesday morning and found them, all but a small majority, willing to again back the enterprise. While the publicity and the good time that these concerts furnish are enjoyed by all the citizens and are an advertisement to outsiders, the merchants benefit directly, but to what extent it is hard to say. However, they have again generously agreed to see that the concerts are financed and the entertainments will not be passed up this year.

What may possibly be evidence of the beginning of a revival of the manufacturing industry in Putnam has been noted the past few days. It is know that Leonard Mellor, superintendent of the National Rhea Company of Rhode Island, which is to operate No. 5 mill of the former Manhasset Manufacturing Company plant, has leased the upper part of the F. E. Clarke house, Grove street, and will soon remove his family here from Providence. Machinery for this company has been shipped from Germany and should have arrived before this. This seems to be assurance that before long a part of the former large tire duck plant will be in operation.

The H. K. H. Silk Company is assembling its machinery from its several plants in different parts of the city in the former Powhattan mill of the Nightingale-Morse Manufacturing company, which mill was bought when the property was sold. While this does not add to the industries of Putnam it is a move in the readjustment that must come to pass before the situation again becomes normal. With the removal of the silk company to the one mill, three mills will be left vacant that may be utilized by other industries, if any should seek to locate here.

As stated in this column Wednesday, the Adams Manufacturing Company has doubled its capacity by putting on a night shift, so that the mill is kept in operation 22 hours a day, giving employment to about 150 additional help.

The Putnam Company, formerly the Putnam Foundry and Machine Company, is building a second addition to its plant. This concern is going to take its place as one of the leading industries in the city. These are the only little rays of sunshine seen in the manufacturing firmament for some time.

As the carrier pigeon finds it way to the place of its habitation, when liberated many miles away, so animals can find their way home overland as the birds do through the air. This was illustrated this week when a cat belonging to Mr. and Mrs. George A. Rawley of Grove street, traveled 56 miles to get back home.

The Rawley family locked up their home and went to a summer cottage at Pleasant View, R. I., they did not leave the family cat to get along the best it could, but took it along to the seaside resort.

There is quite a Putnam colony at Pleasant View but the Rawley cat was nevertheless homesick. It was noticed one day that the cat was missing; it had not been to the cottage for its milk or food. Several days went by and the cat was given up for lost.

A day or two ago Mrs. Rawley motored to Putnam for the day and went to her home on Grove street to see if everything was all right. There on the doorstep sat the cat. The animal, formerly a friendly beast, was wild and shy and appeared emaciated and worn. How the cat found its way back from the beach over a road that it had travelled but once can only be accounted for as animal instinct. But the cat came back and will spend the remainder of the family vacation in its own back yard.

Wilton Greene, a S. N. E. Telephone Company lineman, is at the Day Kimball hospital with his back in a plaster cast. Some days ago he strained his back while helping lift a telephone pole. His condition grew worse and finally he was taken to the hospital for an ex-ray examination. The picture disclosed a slight fracture at the base of the spine.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Maryott, Seward street, their daughter, Mrs. Lulu Warren and her husband E. E. Warren of East Providence, left Putnam, Wednesday, for a motor trip to Lake George, N. Y. They will return home the first of next week.

This section of the county is badly in need of rain, both for crops and as a preventive of possible forest and grass fires. While at points all about heavy thunder showers were experienced within a week but little rain fell in this corner of Windham county. Those listening in on the radio, Tuesday night, at about nine o'clock heard the announcement that it was raining Schenectady, N. Y., and, with a cloudy sky, and a feel of rain in the air went to bed believing that the present drought would be broken before sun-up. In this they were disappointed, however, as Wednesday's sun was shining bright an dclear with hardly a cloud in the sky. As far as can be learned no wells have gone dry but there is some anxiety on this score in the outlying districts where wells are depended upon for domestic use and for supplying cattle on the farms.

S., followed by the national cypher orders to stand by and other directions of ocean traffic, were all intelligible to the local boys who knew the secret code.

After attending the funeral of Augustus Doyon, the soldiers and sailors marched up Main street Tuesday morning, with their flag unfurled. With few exceptions, all along the half mile of march, peoples' hats were apparently glued to their heads. In most cases, the raised hat, in salute to the nation's colors, came spontaneously from those least expected to be conscious of the honor due the passing flag.

Reports from the outlying farming districts are to the effect that the hay crop is not a bumper as was predicted during the exceptionally wet spring. As at present, the weeks preceeding grass cutting time, were very dry, with a resultant set-back to the heavy bottom growth which came in early June. One farmer said Wednesday that unless rain came soon, the potato crop would not amount to half that of last — Corn, he said, will stand considerable dry weather, if there is dew at night. The moisture is retained in the folds of the sheaves and lasts often until noon of the hottest day. A man and horse cultivating in a field could be traced Wednesday by the great cloud of yellow dust that followed him as he moved along the rows.

"A blowout! I'll tell you what caused it"

"JUST one weak spot, and a whole new tire gone! That's what a lot of motorists complain of. The tread barely worn off—yet a blow-out ruins the entire shoe!

"What's the cause, you ask? What is it that makes an apparently sound tire wear thin at one point in this way?

"You could actually see the answer to this question if you had samples of tire rubber under a microscope. In ordinary rubber compounds, the rubber does not mix smoothly and evenly with the necessary strengthening materials. 'Lumps' are formed—every 'lump' a weak spot that helps bring a blow-out like this some day."

Discovery of a remarkable rubber compound

At last a rubber has been produced that reduces these "lumpy" formations to a minimum—that eliminates premature tire troubles.

Two research chemists and two practical tire-builders in the Thermoid Rubber Company spent months in laboratory work and road tests. They finally discovered Crolide—an even-texture rubber that does not weaken with the stretching and straining that goes on inside a tire in use.

Crolide Compound is today used exclusively in the manufacture of Thermoid and Rexoid Cord Tires.

We have compared the Thermoid and Rexoid Cord Tires carefully, point by point, with other tires on the market today, and we confidently believe that no other tire compares with them for service and durability.

You are invited to call and see these tires for yourself—also the famous Crolide Compound Tubes.

Drawings made from actual photographs of rubber magnified 200 times

The white areas are "lumps" of unevenly mixed substances. Every "lump" is a weak spot that reduces mileage.

PLAINFIELD

Milton Knowlton, of the health commission of Hartford, gave a talk and exhibited slides on small pox at the Lily Theatre, Tuesday evening.

He mentioned incidents of how vaccination prevented the spread of small pox. He spoke of a case in Boston, in 1802, when nineteen young men were isolated on an island and twelve of the nineteen were vaccinated. All were innoculated with small pox germs. Those who were vaccinated, although associating with those who were not vaccinated and had caught the disease, did not contract the disease. He also told how the cow pox (vaccine) had originated in a farmer's home, how the farmer had been given the germ but to no effect. The speaker declared that vaccination was one of the great of the world's discoveries in the medical profession, incidentally vaccination originated in China.

He urged every person to be vaccinated for the safety of the communiyt as well as for his own safety.

THE PART OF THE WIRELESS.

The conditions under which the collision between the Boston and the Swiftarrow occurred off Point Judith were not what might be regarded as ideal, but there cannot fail to be a most favorable impression created by the part which the wireless played in obtaining help.

In the first place the Boston was struck at a point where its whistle was rendered useless, and a steamer always depends upon that noise maker in time of distress. The water came in in such quantities that its fires were put out and the ship was helpless. Its only means of telling of its troubles was by the wireless and it employed that with desired results. Vessels came from all directions and all the passengers were removed to places of safety without harm.

With the fires out and the vessel helpless one hates to imagine what the situation might have been had there been no way of revealing the situation to others and appealing for assistance. The Swiftarrow would have been in a position to have rendered whatever aid was in its power, its whistle might have been employed and it would of course have stood by to take off passengers, but such a situation in a dense fog was happily avoided. It was another of those instances which caused increased appreciation for the aid which the wireless is to humanity at sea.

By such a means of communication distress conditions can be quickly revealed. The distance over which such a message needs to be sent may be short or it may be long. Help may be near at hand or far off, but this means of communicating have surrounded those who travel on the high seas with a far greater degree of protection than they probably realize until the fact is actually brought to their attention by such circumstances as that off Point Judith.

It furnishes an excellent argument as to why each and every vessel should be required to have such an equipment, whether it happens to be a carrier of passengers or a carrier of freight. If it doesn't need it for its own relief it may be of service in behalf of another.

MOTIVE POWER ON RAILROADS.

Changes in transportation methods are constantly being made. It was a long time before the use of steam was discovered for such purposes and it will be a long time before its use is abandoned, but there are, nevertheless, new discoveries and new inventions which indicate a gradual decrease in its use.

Electrification of railroads has been underway for some years and it is being steadily extended. Cheaper power and the elimination of certain features connected with the operation of locomotives make the change desirable, but the question is whether the railroads of the country will carry this electrification to the point of supplanting the steam engine before something better is obtained. It is not improbable that the change in railroad transportation will undergo quite as rapid change as that in fire departments where many cities instead of going through the various stages from the volunteer man-power companies to the horse-drawn apparatus and then to the motorized departments made one leap from man power to motor, eliminated large expenditures and obtained more efficiency.

This possibility is indicated by the experiments which have been made by the New York Central road with oil-electric engines, where locomotives of a special type burn crude oil at a cost of five and a half cents a gallon and thereby create electricity for the operation of the machine and the hauling of the train. The idea is the same as that employed in the electrically operated ships, and all that is needed is to have it demonstrated that it is a success in order to permit railroads to leap over that expensive process of electrifying their systems by erecting much wire and establishing power houses. Under the oil-electric locomotive idea each locomotive is its own power house. Tests have disclosed pleasing results a flexibility of control and the engine is operated without smoke or noise.

It is quite certain that no road is going to rush into huge outlays for such equipment until the oil-electric engine gets beyond the experimental stage but it gives promise of interesting developments.

AIDING NICARAGUA.

Except for the fact that it is desirous of having the good will of this country Nicaragua would not be taking so much time in getting a new president. There are those who can be agreed upon and there are those who want the job, but it is invariably those who would come to the presidency with the taint of revolution on them, and for that reason they fail to get approval.

So anxious are the Nicaraguans to satisfy the United States that they are willing that this government should pick out the man for the presidency. It is intimated that they would see that he was elected. But that isn't the intention or purpose of this government. We do not want to appear in the role of a dictator. Our desire is not to tell Nicaragua who it can have and who it cannot, provided it makes its selection in a constitutional manner.

What the United States objects to is the choice of presidency by revolution. Nicaragua like other republics has a constitution in which there is provision for the election of a president. In the desire of that country to get the approval of this government, it is unfortunate that it doesn't realize the responsibility which the United States is endeavoring to point out to it and assume it.

There would be quite as much objection to the handpicking of the president of Nicaragua by this country as there would be to the changing of chief executives by bullets instead of ballots. It takes Nicaragua a long time to grasp this situation, or at least to measure up to the duties of establishing and maintaining a constitutional government. Nevertheless Nicaragua, and other republics in the same position, should appreciate the service which the United States is rendering to it. It is entirely for the good of that country and the sooner it comes to the realization that there must be a full and fair election that the will of the people may be expressed the better it will be as a country and as a neighbor. It is time for Nicaragua to insist that its elections must mean something and that its constitution is something more than a scrap of paper.

STREETS AND AUTOS.

The problem of all night parking in the streets, which has been receiving some attention here, is by no means confined to Norwich. Both in Waterbury and New Britain there are having trouble of just such a character. There are those who consider that they have the right to occupy the streets in such a manner, instead of placing their machines in garages or on private property, and because of the increased growth of the practice remedial action is sought.

It is all a part of the problem of parking which is today confronting every community. Regulations in various forms, increased restrictions, one way streets, no parking within certain limits are all the outgrowth of congested conditions and the use of the streets for purposes other than intended.

Some of the most used streets, which are expected to handle the biggest part of the traffic are not available for such purposes. They are occupied by parked machines which make freedom of movement difficult and place obstacles in the way of the prompt movement of traffic.

Some cities are going to be forced to deal with certain problems quicker than others. Some are going to be obliged to increase regulations because of the constant encroachment upon the highways which are needed for the movement of vehicles. Some cities are declaring that their streets cannot become public garages 24 hours of the day while others permit no parking whatever in business sections and even then are finding difficulty in keeping the streets open for the steadily increasing traffic. It is a situation of course that has developed from the great increase in automobiles, and the regulations will be more rigid before they are less.

SECRETARY HUGHES IN LONDON

It was an excellent impression that Secretary Hughes of the state department made in his explanation to a group of British statesmen in London as to how this government conducts its foreign affairs. Secretary Hughes is a clear and convincing speaker and while he pictured our methods to those across the water, who follow other methods much more dogmatic, in a manner that gave an excellent insight and brought out the contrast, he nevertheless gained quite as many plaudits at home.

He gave the British leaders to understand that this country was much interested in the improvement of the European situation and in a concise and comprehensive manner he told why it had been desirable to deal with many of the problems through unofficial rather than official representatives. When he stated that it would have brought on an endless debate without action had the government undertook to get the necessary consent of congress for official representation he told what everyone knows and what has been too often demonstrated.

There are restrictions under our government which are highly commendable. There are also restrictions which can block progress and delay action beyond all reason. The explanation given of the methods followed in connection with our foreign relations deal in facts. When he spoke in London he had an audience on both sides of the water. It has long since become a habit with the people of this country to listen when Secretary Hughes has something to say. It isn't his custom to waste time with a flow of words.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It once more looks as if the weatherman had flopped over to the drys.

Those who dance must keep the white shoes from being walked all over.

If they keep on molesting the rum-runners someone will yet lay a pipe line to rum row.

The man on the corner says: It isn't necessary to carry rouge these days to acquire the boiled lobster color.

That billion dollars added to the farm wealth of the country in the last few months is more than could ever be expected from the radical third party.

Ponzi seems to think the public is going to be interested in what he has to say after he gets his freedom. Still he will probably find enough ready to make him rich again.

Norwich is buying part of its electricity now. If it is good business to buy part of it why isn't it good business to buy it all, especially when it means a saving of $55,000 a year?

Why not lower electric rates to such a point as possible and at the same time tap a source of electricity that will permit the demands of the users of power and light being satisfied? Today that's impossible.

SPRING MILLINERY

"If there is one thing I have definite opinions about, it is hats," remarked the young woman with a permanent wave. "When I buy a ready-made dress I have to take the nearest to my ideal that I can find, but when it comes to hats—"

"You perform just like all other women and fall for something you never intended to get," interrupted her rude older sister. "Don't you believe she is a bit more strong minded than the rest of us," she added, turning to the young woman's finance. "She is probably just trying to cover her tracks for some reason. But she got a hat yesterday!"

"Yes, I did," responded the girl with a permanent wave. "You'll love it Bert. It's so feminine-looking, you know. I knew just what I wanted to get because I've a black crepe dress and I needed a delicate-looking black hat to wear with it. Madeleine—that's my milliner—tried to get me to take a contrasting color and there was one there I almost fell for. It was a sort of putty color faced with jade and had a putty and jade scarf to match. Honestly, it was darling. And it would have gone with my black dress, at that.

"You know it's so easy to get yourself talked into things. I remember once I went to get a dancing frock to wear to a dance at Mabel Sloan's and I happened to go through the house dress section and they were having a sale of the cutest little slip-on kitchen dresses and I got three. And that reminded me I needed house shoes and when I went to get them there was a sale of suede slippers and I got some and the man persuaded me to get the cutest little rhinestone buckles to go with them. First thing I woke up and realized that I couldn't possibly pay for a ready-made party dress after all I'd bought and I had to get some silk and make that dress myself. It was quite good looking, I remember that party was the first time you seemed to realize I was on earth, Bert. So I must have looked passable."

"You looked more — that," the young man answered fervently. "And if you want to know it, I heard some of the girls saying that you made your dress yourself because you were living on a budget plan and wouldn't go into debt, and I fell for you then and there. That was the first time I'd met a girl who was light on her feet and yet not light in her head, who had domestic tastes even if she was earning a good salary in an office, and who was trying to live within her income stretch instead of making her income stretch to cover her way of living. Honestly, Dot, you interested me strangely. And if that hat you're putting on is the new purchase, I'll say it's a dark and no mistake. It's so—"

"So what?" interrupted the older sister, glancing up from the book in which she was supposed to be immersed. "My gracious, Dot, you don't mean that black lace and white lilac contraption is your new hat? Oh, boy! I can just hear Madeleine saying: 'You do look too sweet in that, dearie. It makes you look as if you were in your teens. The other hat is lovely, of course, but somehow those flowers don't bring out your lovely coloring the way these white lilacs do. This lace thing is so darling on you.'

"You know you said you were going to have black chiffon and pink roses, no matter if all the rest of the world looked as if it were in half mourning with black-and-white combinations. You know you said that with everybody wearing lace you'd show a little originality by having chiffon. And then Madeleine got hold of you and actually laid aside a black chiffon and pink rose creation and trotted out with black lace and white lilacs and really thought that was what you'd wanted all along. Now, didn't you?"

"Well, anyway," said Dot, with a side glance to see how her fiance was taking this sisterly criticism, "I started out to get a black hat, and I got it. And you know yourself, Belle, that you wanted a close-fitting jade straw and you came home perfectly satisfied with a brunt orange and brown taffeta brim effect. So I ought at least to have credit for getting past the milliner with part of my good intentions intact!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Vision of Victory.

Mr. Editor: In your editorial of July 21, "Striking His Level," you seem to fall into the imagination that the supporters of La Follette and Wheeler, are of those classes who are prone to isms, and further state that the "combination" of La Follette and Wheeler ought to result in bringing together a great "conglomaration of radicals, discontents, and etc., under the La Follette and Wheeler banner." Radical seems to be a terrible thing, to those who have no issue, they can defend. Let us see what a radical is. According to Webster the word means "original, a thorough going reformer." Not so bad after all, and besides, Washington, Lincoln and Jefferson and all great leaders of their day were radicals, in the eyes of propagandists and reactionaries.

Again the high point against La Follette is his tendency to socialism. I beg to say that the socialism imputed to La Follette consists chiefly of certain public utilities on which private interest has exercised monopolies, and total disregard of public needs. I submit to you that this aim is not derived from socialism but that it is an invocation of the fundamental American legal maxim "private rights" must yield to public necessity. This is illustrated by the rate fixing of railroad and bank combinations which resulted in bankruptcy of thousands of farmers in the past few years.

You truthfully state that it is not to be supposed that Wheeler will be the only man who will follow the La Follette banner. There will be other radicals. Note "radicals," and you lamentably referred to said radicals in the last congress endeavoring to substitute party government with bloc government. You will have to admit that all the government we have had of any importance came through this same radical bloc and most of the progressive measures which have been passed by the United States senate by either party in the last ten years, originated with La Follette. The people are not particular as to party government. What they want and have been clamoring for, is an American government without foreign entanglements. And I might add that the eighteenth amendment has not been an asset. I submit to you that it is the inerta and lack of American principles and interests of the mapority by both old parties which has made the candidacy of La Follette and Wheeler necessary and further submit that it is the well thinking, well balanced, serious voter who has the welfare of the nation at heart, who will follow the banner of La Follette and Wheeler and will not only follow, but will carry it to victory next November.

Yours truly,
F. Downing, M. D.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Fred T. Dubois, who has been named to succeed the late Marcus A. Smith of Arizona as member of the International Joint Commission, was formerly an active and nationally known political leader of the northwest, prominent in anti-Mormon propaganda and legislation, active as a champion of silver and a dual standard of money, and in 1913 was an ardent worker for the nomination of Champ Clark by the democratic party as its presidential candidate. Most of his political career, from 1882, when he was a United States marshal in Idaho, to 1896, when he found it impossible to induce his party to accept his views in the monetary issue, he was a republican; and honors had come to him as such, including four years' membership in the house of representatives and one full term and part of a second term in the senate, he being Idaho's first representative in the upper house of the national legislature. Mr. Dubois was born in Illinois and received his bachelor's degree from Yale university.

Smith, Ex-Clerk in a Section Gang

Looking around the office at the gray-haired men filling many of the high positions, Alfred H. Smith decided that a "white collar" job was not for him.

Born in Cleveland, he attended public school and helped his mother and sister with the home finances by tending cows and doing other odd jobs after school. At 14 he became a messenger, earning $18 a month. At 18 he entered the auditor's office of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad.

One year as clerk was enough. He was getting $60 a month and money was needed at home, he was not technically or physically prepared for outside work and would have to begin as a common laborer and he was advised to stay where he was, but he quit and joined a bridge construction gang on the Lake Shore.

He was lanky and his muscles were soft. The foreman thought he was a spy and "made him dig." Smith's hands become blistered and his muscles soon were sore. His pay was $1.50 a day when weather permitted them to work, and he slept in a box car. But he stuck it out.

He helped the foreman make out reports; in three years he was gang foreman and later became general foreman and at 27 he was made superintendent of the Kalamazoo division, and later took charge of the Lansing Franklin and Michigan division, then of the entire Lake Shore road.

Traffic on the New York Central was chaotic, so bad in fact that cars in the DeWitt yards were not moving. Smith was chosen general superintendent and some of the New York directors waited for him to appear so they could see and criticize him. While they waited the DeWitt yards blockade began to break and traffic at other places showed improvement. Smith had jumped right into the job, and before they saw him the directors decided he must be all right.

At 50 he was chosen president of the New York Central.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Tommy Treetoad

Dear me! I've just asked my typewriter where I left off in the last story, but all it answered was "Tinkle, tinkle!" I wonder how it made the little bell jingle!

Well, anyway, I remember that Little Jack Rabbit had just sat down under a tree in the Shady Forest. He was tired, and his knapsack was heavy with lollypops. Yes, indeed, those lollypops were pretty heavy, let me tell you, little reader. The big red ones weighed nearly half a pound, but the little pink ones only three ounces. As the bunny boy sat, oh, so still his knapsack lying on the ground by his feet, he gazed up at the tree trunk. Suddenly, something that looks just like a knot on a branch, moved ever so little, and a tiny voice, exclaimed, "Hello, bunny boy!"

"The Bunny Boy sat so still."

"Why, it's you—Tommy Treetoad," cried the little rabbit. "I didn't notice you at first."

"Of course you didn't," replied Tommy Tree toad. "I made myself look just like the color of the bark. That's the way we treetoads protect ourselves. Here I sit, quiet as a mouse, waiting for insects to fly near."

"Why," exclaimed the bunny boy. And the next minute he cried, "Oh, my!" as a fly bumped right against Tommy Treetoad's nose. Out darted the watchful little treetoad's sticky tongue and down his throat traveled the fly before the bunny boy had time to wink his pinky eye.

"How did you learn to make yourself the same color as the tree bark?" asked the curious little bunny, when he had recovered from his surprise.

"It took many years for us toads to learn how," answered Tommy Treetoad. "Way, way back, hundreds of years ago, our ancestors first began to try. Little by little they learned how. Now-a-days it's an easy thing for a toad to change color to match the tree on which he clings."

"I was just wondering how you keep from slipping off," said the little rabbit. "How do you manage it?"

"I have little hollow places in my feet—little suckers," replied Tommy Treetoad. "They keep my feet tightly pressed to the bark."

"Dear me," exclaimed the little rabbit. "I wish Professor Jim Crow could see you. He'd write it down in his Wisdom Book and teach it to the school children."

"Haw, haw! Caw, caw!" suddenly cried a voice, and there, just above them on a limb sat that wise old blackbird.

"I heard every word you said.
And I've stored it in my head.
When I reach my Pine Tree Nook
I'll write it in my Wisdom Book."

sang Professor Jim Crow, and with a flap of his wings, away he flew with a loud "Haw, haw!" and a hulabaloo!

"I must be going," said the little rabbit. "I'm on my way to Uncle Lucky's," and off he hopped to the old gentleman bunny's little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street. Rabbitville.

STATUE OF BLACKSTONE UNVEILED IN LONDON

London, July 23.—(By the A. P.)—A statue of Blackstone was unveiled today in the law courts to "remain for nturies to inspire England as Blackone inspired America in law." These ere the words with which the British lord chancellor answered George Wickersham, former attorney general of the United States, who in unveiling the statue which is the gift of e American bar, referred to Blackone's commentaries as "the most rmanent link between the English-eaking peoples and the greatest ower behind the laws of the two untries."

Addressing the lord chancellor after e Stars and Stripes and the Union ck had been pulled from the statue, r. Wickersham said: "I ask that is monument may remain here as an surance that both you and we shall ok at things from the same standint."

Mr. Wickersham, in his address ile alluding approvingly to the rk of the late Lord Bryce that the mmentaries of Blackstone were one the links which best bound the ited States to England, added that radoxically, "those same commenries furnished to the American colists a most effective weapon in their n revolution against the mother untry."

"The greatest, the most far reaching influence of Blackstone's work was alized in America," contnued the mer attorney general who pointed t that the colonists accepted Blackone's definition of English rights as forth in his work. They rejected s theory, however, that these rights ould be applied only to uninhabed countries and not to the American onies which he considered to be a eriously inhabited dominion and as h not the proper place for the exsion of English law. And they inted on carrying the law of their otherland and with them to be apicable to the colonies and states.

MOTOR VEHICLE CASES MAKE BUSINESS FOR NORWICH COURT

Motor vehicle cases made the business for the city court Wednesday morning, one operator being before the court for driving while under the influence of liquor and two on reckless driving charges and one on counts of failing to grant right of way and failing to stop after accident.

William J. York, 69, of Trading Cove, was presented on the charge of driving a machine while he was under the influence of liquor. He was found guilty and was fined $100 and costs, which amounted to $12.84. In addition he was given a sentence of 30 days in jail, which is suspended for a year. He paid $212.84. William Woodmansee, 60, who was in the car with him, was fined $5 and costs on the charge of intoxication. He paid $14.50. The two men were found in the car on Dunham street after some resident of the Thamesville section had telephoned to police headquarters that the driver of the car was too drunk to operate it in safety.

Frank Hampson, overseer in a Baltic mill, was present on two counts, failing to give right of way at an intersecting highway and failing to stop to ascertain damages.

There was a collision at an intersecting highway at Occum Monday night in which Hampson's car was struck by the machine of Charles Alberg of 37 North Main street, resulting in the upsetting of the Alberg car.

Alberg testified that he was proceeding towards Versailles at about 15 miles an hour when the Hampson car came out of an intersecting highway, directly in his path and heading towards him. To avoid it he pulled off to one side of the road, but struck the left rear mudguard of the Hampson car and his own machine turned over.

Arthur Carlson of Long Island City, a cousin of Mr. Alberg, corroborated the latter's testimony as to the way the accident occurred.

Three people, Edward Chappell, Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Brodeur, told of assisting the men in the wrecked car.

Constable Filligar said he heard the crash as he was in his house and saw another car going north along the highway. He yelled to the driver to stop which he did. The constable then went to where the wrecked car was and when he looked again for the man whom he had told to stop, he found that the motorist had driven away. He learned that the man was Mr. Hampson and he summoned him to court later that night. Mr. Hampson told him that he was not the one run into and he did not think he was responsible.

In his own defense Mr. Hampson testified that he had driven from Baltic to Occum and was on his way home when the accident occurred. When he was coming out of the intersecting street, he said he waited for several cars to pass and then drove out onto the main highway and was hit by Alberg's sedan. He drove along for about 200 feet and then stopped and went back to the place where he inquired if anybody was injured. Finding that no one was hurt, he drove off and went home.

The charges were nolled upon Mr. Hampson paying $25.

Nathan Gershon of New York, who is visiting on Boswell avenue, and George H. Kramer of 319 Central avenue, who had been summoned to appear in court on reckless driving charges after an accident Tuesday afternoon, were present in court. Mr. Kramer, who was charged with reckless driving and failure to obey a traffic officer, had Thomas M. Shields for his attorney, who asked for continuance for a week in order to summon more witnesses.

As the Gershon family wants to leave here for New York today (Thursday) the court granted a continuance until this (Thursday) morning upon recommendation of city attorney Lee Roy Robbins, when the conflicting claims as to who was to blame for the accident when the Gershon car climbed the sidewalk and knocked a window out of the five and ten cent store will be fought out.

SUPREME COUNCIL BUILDING FOR U. C. T. IN COLUMBUS

Members of Norwich council of the United Commercial Travelers of America have received the pamphlet issued upon the dedication at Columbus, Ohio, of the magnificent new building for permanent national headquarters for the order which was founded thirty-six years ago in the Ohio city.

The dedication exercises, which were open to the public were carried out with the following programme, Supreme Counselor W. J. Sullivan, presiding: Address, Walter D. Murphy, supreme secretary; address, Hon. John E. Sater, judge United States district court, former supreme attorney; address, Hon. James J. Thomas, mayor of Columbus; address, Hon. Vic Dohahey, governor of Ohio; address. Greetings from Canada: address, Hon. James E. Watson, United States senator from Indiana.

A sketch of the various homes of the order was given as follows in the dedication programme:

From the day when Charles B. Flagg, the first supreme secretary opened the first office of the order, the business of the Supreme Council has been handled in but three locations.

The first was a single room, very small and obscure, known as No. 13 King building, located at the southeast corner of High and Spring streets. The building subsequently became known as the Merchants and Manufacturers Bank Building, and is today called the Commerce building, the banking room on the first floor being at present occupied by The National Bank of Commerce.

In these first quarters the work of the order was carried on by Brother Flagg and a small office staff until about the year 1892, when influential members of Columbus council, No. 1, proposed to the supreme officers that a lease be obtained on the building at the southeast corner of Gay and Front streets and that Columbus council and the supreme council join forces and fix up quarters that could be used as both space for the supreme offices and as meeting quarters and club rooms at Columbus council. After considerable negotiation this was done. The building was remodeled and comfortably fitted up and the quarters were jointly occupied until the space that could be used for supreme offices became too crowded and inefficient for that purpose.

The supreme executive committee on the initiative of Brother Pease began looking for a new location. Downtown office space was scarce and the rents were high. The only desirable alternative was to seek a location away from the center of the city.

It so happened that what was known as the Dennison Homestead, located at the southeast corner of Park and Russell streets was on the market, due to the death of George M. Peters a wealthy buggy manufacturer who had occupied it as a home. The price at which this property was offered was very low, but the order had no funds that could be used for the purchase of real estate. Finally through the good offices of Judge John E. Sater, then the order's supreme attorney, a plan was evolved by him by which he would purchase the property with funds loaned to him by the order on the first mortgage and he would carry the property in his name until the rents paid to him by the order would be sufficient to pay the interest and wipe out the principal of the loan. By waiving all possible profit to himself Judge Sater worked this out for the order over a period of nine years and accordingly took title to the property in the year 1911.

The property and all improvements necessary to put it in shape for the order's use cost but $21,500. The property was conservatively appraised at $40,000 the year following its acquirement by the order.

In addition to the old, but splendidly preserved residence, built under his personal supervision for his own home by William Dennison, governor of Ohio, during the Civil war period, the order acquired the spacious grounds which today are practically covered by the fine new office building erected by the order and devoted entirely to its work.

The order's original investment of $21,500 has increased through growth in value and further investment to a property worth not less than $250,000. The dollar worth represents but a fraction of the value this newly erected building will yield to the order in making it possible to carry on the work of the supreme council in a more effective way and conserve the more fully the interests of a membership of more than one hundred and ten thousand in the United States and Canada.

ROTARY OUTING WITH W. H. OAT AS HOST

Free from business cares and far away from the sweltering heat of the city, about 50 members of the Norwich Rotary club, with several guests, were royally entertained by Rotarian William H. Oat at his country home at Ludlow farm, North Stonington, on Wednesday. The day, although far from promising in the morning, turned out to be ideal for the outing, a cool northwest breeze sweeping across North Stonington's hills made one forget that Norwich was experiencing one of the hottest days of the year.

The guests arrived at the farm shortly before noon and the hour before lunch was spent in various forms of amusement which had been provided by the host. At noon a delicious luncheon, prepared by Bert Loomis and Jim Fillmore, was served to the hungry horde whose appetites had been made keen by the exhilarating air. The menu was clam chowder, crackers, pickles, salads, rolls, lemonade and watermelon.

At the business session President Hugh B Campbell presided and William G. Park was leader of the singing during the luncheon. Among the matters of business it was voted that each member should make some contribution to the Boys Work fund in the name of the host. Over $50 was contributed to the fund. It was also voted to appoint a committee to confer with other civic organizations in the city in regards to having a number of welcoming signs placed on the highways entering the Rose of New England.

Reporting for the local committee in charge of the intercity meeting to be held at Ashland park, Jewett City, on Thursday, July 31st, Chairman L. M. Carpenter outlined the tentative program for that day. The program is as follows:

11 a. m. to 12—Registration.
11.30 a. m. to 1.15—Baseball, Putnam vs Willimantic Rotary clubs.
1.15 to 2.15—Bathing, boating, fishing, etc.
2.15—Dinner by Pullman dining service, music by Lyric orchestra.
Address of welcome.
Remarks by club presidents.
3.30—Baseball—Norwich vs New London Rotary clubs.
5 p. m.—Water sports, entertainment, etc.
6.45—Buffet lunch
7.30—Dancing at Casino, music by Lyric orchestra.

William G. Park, chairman of the golf committee and captain of the golf team, reported that the golf team would leave this morning for Meriden where the team plays the Meriden club at the Highland Country club.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, a hearty vote of appreciation was given Mr. Oat.

After lunch the Rotarians found plenty to amuse them in baseball, quoits, croquet and other diversions. All except the baseball team participated in the strenuous sports, the ball players nursing sore muscles as a result of their game with the Arcanum club Tuesday. Some of the members who had business engagements in town left during mid-afternoon, being very reluctant to go back to the heat of the city.

The others made a day of it and thoroughly enjoyed every minute. The stars were beginning to stud the sky when the last of the band of good fellows made their host good night after a day of real honest-to-goodness fun.

FAYETTE NATIONAL WINS RICH STAKE IN EASY MANNER AT KALAMAZOO TRACK

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 23 (By the A. P.)—Fayette National, owned by Guttenstein Brothers of Milwaukee, won the first $10,000 purse of the season on the Grand Circuit by annexing the Kalamazoo Exchange club event for 2.03 trotters in straight heats over the Recreation Park track this afternoon. The winner, a top-heavy favorite, driven by McKay, was not driven out to win but was able to take the lead and hold it to the finish in each mile without being seriously challenged by the other ten starters in the event.

The Exchange Club purse, formerly the Paper Mills purse, was first raced 17 years ago, and is recognized as one of the classics of the big line.

Belmar, the Memphis mare, driven by Taylor, gave the Milwaukee entrant the nearest opposition, finishing in the runner-up spot in the first two heats, but falling back to third behind Marmaduke, in the final mile, the latter gelding was awarded third money.

Jean Axworthy ran away in the third heat, throwing her driver, Harry Stokes, from the sulky but his injuries were not serious. The Ohio mare, after leaving driver and sulky near the half post, finished up with the winners in the event.

Bessie McKylo, the favorite, won the 2.04 Columbia Hotel purse, taking the first and third heats in clever fashion, but finishing behind Iva Lee, in the second mile, after a whipping drive down the stretch.

Jean Worthy, the favorite, took the 2.17 trot in straight heats, with Kersal in for second money.

In the 2.13 pace it became necessary, under the two-heat plan, for Dan Finch and the Great Chance to go an extra mile to decide the winner, the former winning in a drive.

Frisco J., won the first heat but was distanced in the second.

Another large crowd was present to witness the sport. Thursday, "Pop" Geers will drive Peter Manning against the world's trotting record.

MACINNES' HOMERS WIN FOR PAPER BOX TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 23.—Joe MacInnes' two home runs, each coming with a man on the bases each time was partly instrumental in giving the Robert Gair team of the Industrial league a victory over the Standard Oil company. The final outcome was 10 to 5 with the teams nip and tuck until the last half of the sixth, when the Robert Gair went into the lead to stay by scoring four runs.

The Standard Oil showed an improvement over its previous performance and made the same total of hits the Robert Gair nine made—eight. Errors were rather numerous on each side and the Gair was guilty of eight miscues which added materially in the Oil Cans scoring. Shahan twirled for the Robert Gair and John MacInnes was behind the bat. Johnston worked for the Standard Oil.

BASE SLUG OUT EASY VICTORY OVER NEW HAVEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 23.—Another victim was down trodden and trampled on by the Submarine Base chew, and for the second time in four days it was a representative nine from New Haven, for only on Saturday the gobs just helped themselves to an easy victory at the expense of the Lenox A. C., also of the Elm City. The Lenox nine apparently did not convey the news to its brother nine, of the disaster that befell them in their attempt to lead the vanguard of Elm City teams in an attempt to ground the old ship Submarine Base. The final score was 12 to 1 in favor of the Base.

With Hawes, the boss of the Navy Blue, hitting them to all part of the field, there was little doubt left as to the outcome of the battle or massacre. Warrant Officer Hawes had a double, triple, home run and then he added a single to his day's work to give some of those not familiar with the national pastime some idea as to what a base knock can go for. Hawes was here, there and everywhere, a thorn in the side of the Sacred Heart A. C. He was the pestiferous one of the entire sailor lot and his home run with two mates on the sacks in the second frame just about put the kibosh on everything including all chance for an Elm City victory. Hawes alone accounted for eight of the twelve Sub Base runs and was the blushing hero.

The Base pitchers, although there were three of them, had an easy time of it throughout. It was not a case of necessity that the twirlers used by the Base were stuck into the game. Widner with his speed ball worked until the fifth and then retired in favor of Metzger, who after twirling two innings quit the mound in favor of Bunk Harrel, the star Base slab artist. There was little to choose between the work of the three and each of them worked about the same.

In the case of the Sacred A. C. it was necessary to change pitchers and two were used by the visitors. Neither of the two were successful and were treated alike by the Sub Base batters, with scorn and in other ways to make the game unsafe.

Outside of the terrific hitting of Hawes, there was no special mention which could not be bestowed upon any of the other players. The game was a slaughter from the start and why the Base did not lead their victims to the abbatoir for the purpose of slaughtering them is a mystery—for it was done right out in the open and before the full vision of two state police stationed near by. How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain, New York Giants

Any inning. Runner on first base. Pitcher throws to first as the runner starts for second.

Who should cover the second base in such a play?

On a play like this the runner has such a good jump and lead that the second baseman very seldom is able to get in in time to take the other at second; either the first baseman or the shortstop should cover second on such a play. If the runner pulls up short, then the shortstop should run him back towards first base and he does not wait until the runner is on top of that bag before throwing the ball to the first baseman, otherwise the latter will not have time to get it and tag him out.

RUTH'S HOMER IN 11TH PULLS TIGERS OUT OF LEAD

New York, July 23.—The New York Americans stopped Detroit's winning streak here today, when they won a sensational 11 inning victory by a score of 4 to 3. FIRPO PREPARING TO TRAIN FOR WILLS

New York, July 23—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, will make a personal inspection of the training camp sites suggested to him before he makes a final decision as to where he will get in trim for his coming match with Harry Wills, negro challenger.

"The wild bull of the pampas," called on Tex Rickard today but no decision as to a date for the match was decided on.

Firpo went shopping today. He purchased an American straw hat to replace the velour derby which adorned his head when he arrived and he negotiated for the purchase of an automobile.

Firpo expects to remain in New York till the first of next week. Then he will make a trip by auto to Saratoga and look over the camp site at White Sulphur Springs where Dempsey got in trim for him last year.

Hartford Splits With Millies

Hartford, July 23.—Hartford and Pittsfield divided a double header here today, the Senators winning the first 7 to 3 and Pittsfield taking the second 17 to 7. The first game was hard fought but the second game was a farce, the Millies making runs off Sloan. Webb hit a home run in each game and Kenna hit two homers in the second game.

EAST ENDS WIN SEVENTH STRAIGHT DEFEATING THE FAST WEST ENDERS

Harry Mills pitched the East Ends to their seventh straight victory in the twilight league, Wednesday evening, when the West Ends were defeated 7 to 3. Mills was in rare form, holding the West Enders in the palm of his hand and turning back 13 via the strikeout route.

The West Ends started the game with a rush, filling the bases before a man was retired. This did them little good however as Mills proceeded to fan the next two men, while the third went out on a hard drive to Bullet Pedace who made a fine running catch. The league leaders had two big innings, the first and the third when they scored six of their seven runs. Mills pitched shout-out ball until the sixth, when the West Enders staged a short rally which netted them 2 runs.

Joe Belair caught Mills in fine shape, besides driving out two hits, one of them a double. Dilworth also caught a good game, while he and Skiffington shared the hitting honors with two hits apiece.

Tonight's game will be between the Nuggets and the Yantic Grain. As both teams have strengthened their line-ups, a good game should be assured. The score:

M'QUILLAN HOLDS REDS TO THREE SCATTERED HITS

Cincinnati, July 23.—New York secured an even break in the four game series with Cincinnati by winning the final contest today, 3 to 1. McQuillan held the home team to three hits, the only run coming in on Rixey's double and two long flies in the sixth round. Three straight hits and an out gave the Giants two runs in the first inning, after which Rixey pitched great ball. The third tally was due to a wild throw by Fowler and a hit by McQuillan in the ninth. Score:

CARPENTER'S OLD TIMERS WILL PLAY ASHLAND A. A. TONIGHT

L. M. Carpenter's Old Timers are scheduled to try and take a fall out of the Ashland baseball team this (Thursday) evening in a twilight game. To date the regulars have lost but one game on the home field, including the twilight games, though numerous attempts have been made by local players of more or less ability to give the kids a setback. The Old Timers' lineup for tonight is easily the best bunch of ball tossers to be seen on Ashland park this season, if past records mean anything. Bill Liberte will do the catching with Spike Liberte and Charley Cornell, former Rhode Island and Connecticut league stars, doing the pitching. The infield will be pretty well fortified with Hal Chase, Red Harris, Leclaire and Nap Liberte. In the outfield no lesser lights than Art Cyr, Bub Benjamin and Maynard will cavort. It will take the regulars full strength to give this club a real battle and no doubt the best game of the season will be played.

NEW LONDON HEARS FLORIDA MAN HAS BOUGHT THE HOTEL GRISWOLD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 23.—A report has been in circulation the past two days that the Hotel Griswold, owned by the Bowman Hotel corporation of New York, had been sold to Charles B. Pettyman, of Armore, Fla. The hotel corporation acquired the fashionable summer hotel from the Morton F. Plant estate about three years ago. An effort to locate Mr. Bowman at his New York office today to confirm or deny the rumor was impossible. However, Mr. Bowman's secretary made a positive denial that the hotel had been sold. Charles B. Whittlesey, attorney for the Plant estate, this afternoon stated that he had no knowledge of the transfer of the hotel property. The Plant estate holds a first mortgage on the valuable property.

The largest crowd of the night so to visit Ocean Beach was that which went to the shore throughout this evening. Thousands of men, women and children boarded trolley cars, in their endeavor to obtain relief from the oppressive heat, which was greatest today and this evening than on any previous day this year. Besides the multitudes that went to the beach by trolley cars, hundreds went down by automobile and it was with difficulty that parking space was obtainable. The number of bathers was also greater than on any other night this season.

The annual bazaar of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital was held this afternoon and evening, the affair, which is yearly promoted by women interested in the welfare and advancement of the institution, being attended by an immense throng, especially tonight when the grounds were crowded by patrons assembled to make purchases of articles offered for sale there that the venture might bring a large sum of money for providing equipment at the institution. A street parade, with about a score of automobiles, each filled with women and children, opened the bazaar. It is expected that the venture will net a large sum of money for the institution. The general chairman was Mrs. Clark D. Edgar; vice chairman, Miss Eleanor Mercer; publicity chairman, Mrs. Robert A. Bitgood.

Mrs. Thomas Murray, Jr., and family of Woodlynne, N. J., are the guests of Thomas R. Murray.

James V. Angelette, cook at the Hotel Winthrop restaurant, reported to the police late this afternoon that his watch had been stolen from its place of keeping. Sergeant Patrick J. Murphy was assigned to the case, but was unable to find any trace of the timepiece or the thief. Angelette had the watch suspended from a nail in the kitchen throughout the afternoon and when he went to look at the watch about 6 o'clock he discovered that it had been stolen.

William Auld, 61, a well known painter, died late this afternoon at Lawrence hospital, in which institution he had been under treatment but a day or two. Mr. Auld was to have undergone an operation yesterday for peritonitis, but his condition was so weak that the attempt to save his life by operating was postponed. Mr. Auld's wife is a patient at the Norwich State Hospital, having been under treatment at that institution about two years.

A marriage license was issued yesterday at the office of the city clerk at Providence to Thomas Henry Kiley, 16 Mountain avenue, this city, and Miss Margaret Griffin, 115 Huntington street, New London. Kiley's occupation was given as a plumber and Miss Griffin's vocation was given as nurse.

Philip Sheridan, employed in New York, is spending a fortnight with his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Sheridan, 139 Williams street.

The Connecticut Bar Association held its annual dinner and outing this afternoon at the Hotel Griswold. About 40 members from New London and various cities of the state were present. Following the dinner the members spent several hours on the Shennecossett club links.

Mr. Shay sustained the injury when he slipped and fell while assisting in the unloading of a quantity of fish from one of his trucks.

City Manager William A. Holt was at his office in the municipal building today after having been absent yesterday as a result of a severe attack of indigestion.

Lawrence McPherson and Thomas Murphy, in the police court, today, were held for trial before the September term of the superior court for burglarizing the house and store of Abraham Katz, in East New London. With the alleged young crooks were captured half a dozen companions who are supposed to know about the robbery and who, while not directly concerned in the actual breaking and entering, were aware of what had taken place and probably gave information to the police that led to the apprehension of the pair accused—evidence that will go far to convict them before the court when they are placed on trial. In the police court the youths were charged with stealing from the Katz house diamond rings of the value of $200 and a wrist watch worth $50. No evidence was taken as the boys demurred to the complaint. Judge Prince overruled the demurrer and fixed bail in the sum of $750 for each. The associates of McPherson and Murphy were technically charged with breach of the peace and were held in a bond of $50 each for appearance on the 30th of September. It is claimed that the accused youths buried cash and jewelry in the woods north of the section where the robbery was committed and that when they were hard pressed they admitted the crime and told where the hidden plunder could be recovered. It required the efforts of the officers during all last night to secure the evidence that was obtained, but they got it.

Frank E. Thompson and Robert Kelsey, the latter a Waterford farmer, were in the police court today for intoxication. The former was fined $5 and the latter was allowed to go on a suspended sentence as it was his first time in the court.

Joseph Carey, charged with stealing a ride on a train from New York to this city, was ordered to get out of town.

Peter Peterson was fined for parking his car on the highway all night on a curve on Pequot avenue. He represented that his battery went dead and that resenting the charge of a service company to haul the machine to a garage he allowed it to stay in the highway from 6 o'clock in the evening till noon the following day. As Peterson was an experienced operator his excuse as to the "dead" battery was not regarded as sufficient and he was ordered to pay a fine of $5 and costs attending his trial.

Nathan Traystman was fined $5 for killing and delivering the meat of a cow without having the meat inspected, as provided in the statutes. He represented that he had a rush order to deliver the meat at Ocean beach and to get it there it was necessary to disregard the law as to inspection.

Joseph F. Stillman, 47, of Pequot avenue, died at Lawrence hospital today, after an illness of several months. Mr. Stillman is survived by a son, George Stillman, of this city. He was formerly employed by the Bingham Paper Box Manufacturing company and was latterly employed by Darrow & Comstock.

Thomas Severino, 94 Baysnat street, was arrested this noon, on the charge of violation of the liquor law. He is now a prisoner at the police station pending the convening of the police court tomorrow morning, for the accused was unable to furnish a surety on his bond of $1000. The arrest of Severino resulted from information supplied Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin by a fellow who was in the police court this forenoon charged with drunkenness, the accused alleging that he purchased his liquor at the Severme place. A search warrant was issued and Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith, Patrolmen Clarence Wells and Patrick Sheehan raided the Severing place. The officers found considerable evidence that liquor was being dispensed at the place for two barrels of wine, two and a half barrels of mash and several bottles of wine and implements used in the dispensing of the liquor were found and seized. The place has been long suspected of having been a resort where liquor was on sale.

Francis O'Connell, of this city, who has been employed in New York some time, was taken ill in that city this week and was threatened with pneumonia. The victim, who is a brother of Michael L. MARY RUTHERFORD ROBBED OF CHECKS AND CASH

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, July 23—Another robbery was made known at Ocean Beach tonight when Miss Mary A. Rutherford, formerly of Norwich, proprietress of a summer boarding house at 1162 Ocean avenue, reported to the police that her house had been entered and plunder obtained. The plunder consisted of $82 in bills, a check for $50 and another check for $38. Patrolman Braxton Hill was assigned to the case, but no clues were found that would tend to reveal the identity of the thief.

Miss Rutherford placed the money and checks in a document box last Monday night and then placed the box on a shelf in the pantry. She did not have occasion to go to the place where she had put the box until about 6 o'clock this evening and it was then that she discovered her loss.

Miss Rutherford stated that she counted the money Monday night in the pantry and with the curtains raised, which would have permitted anyone passing to see her placing the money in the box and then putting the box on the pantry shelf. The rear door was unfastened and even a gale throughout the evening for Miss Rutherford remembered finding the door open as late as 11 o'clock, when she secured the house for the night.

Don't be a slave to an Old Idea

Potatoes are dirty and messy, and peeling them every day keeps your hands red, rough and grimy. It takes you from 35 to 40 minutes to peel and cook them—a lot of time when you're in a hurry.

Get away from the Old Idea and serve Mueller's Macaroni, Elbow Macaroni, Spaghetti and Egg Noodles in place of potatoes. Only 9 minutes to cook, nothing to even soil your hands, no waste—100% pure, wholesome food.

You can serve Mueller's just as you do potatoes—with butter, with sauces, with meat gravies or with sauerkraut. Instead of creamed potatoes, serve Mueller's Elbow Macaroni prepared the same way. In place of potatoes au gratin, use any one of the Mueller Foods; instead of fried potatoes fry Mueller's Egg Noodles.

Peeling potatoes twice a day means 23 full eight-hour days per year of hard, disagreeable work.

MARKET WAS SPECULATIVE

New York, July 23—Heavy profit-taking sales impeded, but failed to halt the upward movement of prices in today's stock market, which was featured by the revival of speculative interest in the public utility shares. More than forty stocks, half of them rails, soared to new high levels for the year. Total sales exceeded the million share mark for the seventh consecutive full session.

Some irregularity developed at the opening when selling broke out in the steel shares as a result of the federal trade commission's decision against the "Pittsburgh-plus" price system of the United States Steel Corporation. These shares stiffened later when the weekly steel trade reviews appeared an improved demand for steel products from the selling centers, but they sagged again in the realizing movement at the close.

United States Steel common opened 1-4 off at 101 3-8, advanced to 102 1-8 and then fell back to 101 1-4 at the close. United States steel preferred touched a new 1924 top at 123. Independent steels showed little change on the day.

A bullish demonstration in the public utility issues was featured by an eight point jump in American Water Works common to 99. West Penn Power advanced 4 points and American Water Works six per cent. preferred 3. Laclede Gas and Public Service of New Jersey 8 per cent., preferred attained new peak prices for the year.

A sharp advance in wheat and corn prices brought fresh buying into the western railroad shares, new high records being established by Atchison, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Great Northern preferred. Illinois Central, "Nickle Plate" preferred and the three Pere Marquette issues. All three Erie issues sold at their highest prices since 1917, the common touching 33 and then easing to 32 1-2, up 1 1-8.

Strength of the Pan-American issues, each of which closed about 3 points higher, was based on reports that the company would take a prominent part in a merger of several big independent oil concerns. Tidewater Oil climbed nearly 5 points.

Standard Plate Glass moved up 2 points to 32 in reflection of reports of high current earnings. Other individual strong spots included Union Tank Car, American Bank Note, American Locomotive, American Tobacco preferred and famous players, all at new high levels for the year. American Express, Jewel Tea preferred, Peoples Gas, Railway Steel Spring and United Railways investment preferred closed at net gains of two to nearly four points.

Realizing sales were particularly effective in Utah Copper, Magma Copper, General Electric, Sa[illegible] Arms, Texas Gulf Sulphur, New York, Ontario and Western and Interborough Rapid Transit, all off a point or more.

Call money again ruled at 3 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business in small volume. No change in the discount rate was announced after today's meeting of the governors of the local federal reserve bank.

Foreign exchange rates reacted sharply in what appeared to be profit-taking by European speculators. Demand sterling dropped nearly two points to $4.39 1-2 and French francs ruler nearly ten points lower at 5.12 cents. Other recessions in European rates were relatively small.

BOND MARKET

New York, July 23—Expanded activities in the bond maret, reflected in sales of approximately $20,000,000 today carried prices to the highest levels of the year. Some of the buying was attributed to expectations of another cut in the federal reserve rediscount rate, which failed to materialize.

The broadened inquiry for bonds embraced virtually all classes but was most effective in strengthening prices in the speculative rail list, where advances of 1 to 2 points carried several issues to new 1924 high records. Erie Convertible 4s "D" Frisco 4s, Louisville and Nashville 5s, St. Paul, Wabash, and Denver and Rio Grande liens led in popularity.

Sugar company bonds shared the improvement which marked dealings in these stocks, while copper and rubber company issues continued to force ahead. Gains ranging from 1 to 2 3-4 points were scored by Anaconda 6s, Punta Alegre 7s, Eastern Cuba Sugar 7 1-2s, Ajax 8s and Wilson Convertible 6s. Conflicting price movements featured the foreign list Belgian 8s reached a new 1924 high price and some of the Swiss and French issues improved. Nervousness over the fighting at Sao Paulo sent the Brazilian issues lower.

New financing tomorrow includes $8,300,000 Northern Central Railway 5s, to be offered at 101 1-2; $7,000,000 M. A. Hanna Company 6 per cent. debentures priced at 98 1-2 and $2,000,000 British Columbia 15 year 5s at par.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, July 23—Wheat went whirling upward today eight cents a bushel. News of black rust in Canada set loose an extraordinary buying stampede which was goaded on also through estimates that drought damage to the Canadian wheat crop would amount to more than half as much as last year's total Canadian harvest. The wheat market closed excited, 6 1-8 to 7 1-4c. net higher, September 1.30 ot 1.30 1-8 and December 1.32⅜ 5-8 to 1.33 7-8. Corn finished 2 1-4 to 4 1-8c up, oats showing 1 3-4c. to 2 3-8c. gain and provisions at 15 to 50 cents advance.

All previous top price records for wheat this season were eclipsed. Considerable uncertainty had been shown at the opening then it became known that advices from Chicago experts investigating drought damage in Alberta pointed to conditions far worse than any heretofore published, one authority estimating the Alberta field this season at only 40,000,000 bushels compared with 166,000,000 bushels last year.

Then a nearly vertical rise began that suddenly became a war time reminder when a half hour before the close of the wheat market the trade was apprised that serious black rust infection was menacing the crop in Manitoba, where the Canadian drought had done relatively little harm. The fact that this news came from one of the most experienced crop observers in the United States left virtually no room for doubt so far as Chicago traders were concerned and the soaring of prices reached a stage seldom equalled.

Purchasing attained mammoth proportions and the market climbed eight cents from the day's low point early. Despite heavy profit-taking closed at only a fractional setback from the top level reached.

Buying of corn, oats and rye was greatly stimulated by the upturn in wheat. Corn in particular advanced sharply.

Provisions reflected the rise in grain as well as gains in hog values.

SHOULD THE STATE TAX ON AMUSEMENTS END?

There seems to be some difference of opinion among those who pay the tax on amusements as to whether or not the tax continues, so far as the state part is concerned, since the federal government tax was discontinued on July 2.

Officials have been told by some of those who have paid the tax that the state tax commissioner has acted that the state part expired with elimination of the federal tax.

It is difficult to understand how such an opinion was given, if it was, when the state law specifically provides for the removal of the federal tax.

The general provision of the law was that it would be about half what the federal statute fixed as a tax. This latter rate was equal to one cent on every ten, while the state rate was one cent in every twenty. The present federal law going into effect July 3, removes all taxes on tickets below 50 cents. The state law guards against any such change and provides for a continuance of the rate as it has been for the past two years, according to the opinion of officials who supervise the tax collection.

It may be a matter calling for a definite opinion from the attorney general, although the law is plain enough in its reading for anybody to understand and it is hard to believe any state official overlooked the provision expressly dealing with any possible change in the federal act.

The counties and state would suffer a material reduction in revenue if this tax were removed. The amount collected under the law was near to $500,000 of which half went to the eight counties and the other half to the state.

Deuse of Chester, similarly charged, was separated from his license for a period of six months. A 10 day suspension was placed upon Howard S. Pierce of Killingly, charged with reckless driving.

WARNING

WHAT KIND OF IRON HAVE YOU BEEN TAKING?

The Newer Compound of Iron Containing Organic Iron Like the Iron in Your Blood, or Ordinary Metallic or Mineral Iron—It's Important to Know the Difference—How to Tell.

A child must have lime to make bone, but it gets organic lime from milk and not mineral lime from lime rocks. So the millions of red blood corpuscles in your blood must have iron, but nature put food iron—not mineral iron—for your blood in the husks of grains and the peels and skins of vegetables; modern methods of cookery throw them all away, hence the alarming increase in anaemia—iron starvation of the blood, with the devitalizing weakness, nervousness and other attendant ills it brings. You should either go back to nature or take the newer form of food iron to make up for this great loss and maintain your bodily and mental vigor. The iron that people usually take is mineral or metallic iron and is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. The newer form of iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in the husks of grains and peels of vegetables. It is so prepared that it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by your blood, while some physicians claim mineral iron is not absorbed at all. This newer form of iron may be had from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron. It costs much more to make Nuxated Iron than it does to make mineral or metallic iron. But when your health is at stake, get the best. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. For sale by all druggists.

MOHEGAN PARK HAS ATTRACTIONS FOR HUNDREDS OF SUMMER VISITORS

Superintendent Frederick W. Krohn has been busy with his force of five assistants in repairing the grounds of Mohegan Park during the past few days and the greater part of the work has now been completed.

Wednesday work was started at the bathing enclosure at the upper end of the lake and a large screen is to be placed along the front of the enclosure so that bathers may be more protected while disrobing. The raft at the park swimming place is also to be repaired and new barrels are to be placed under it within a short time.

Everything about the park is most beautiful these days and hundreds of people are visiting the park every week enjoying the cool shade of the pavilion, boating on the lake, the swings and see-saws, as usual, the animals and birds are attracting the young people.

The animal and bird family at the park is about the same as last year. The deer family numbers 10 this year, 5 does, 2 bucks and 3 fawns. The monkey house as usual is the main attraction for the children, especially the pen occupied by the new monkey which is most playful and seems to have taken a liking to the children. Jim and Mary, the older monkeys, are also there to entertain but just at present seem a little jealous of the newest arrival at the park.

In the rabbit family are six New Zealanders, three young and three old, one Angora and four young, and eight other rabbits of various breeds.

In the bird family the pride of the park is the peacock, while next in importance come the pheasants, six in number, a pair of English ring necks, a pair of golden pheasants, a silver pheasant and a Reeves pheasant. Other members of the family are a pair of bantams, 14 ducks, three guinea hens and four chickens.

Superintendent Krohn would be pleased to receive any animals or birds any citizen of Norwich cares to donate to the park. The animals and birds in a park are always a feature and Mohegan Park, although ranking second to none in natural beauty, is lacking in wild life. A few gifts, such as the new monkey would be a valuable addition to the animal family and tend to make the park more popular for visitors.

KRAMER DENIES HIS MACHINE STRUCK GERSHON'S

George H. Kramer of 319 Central avenue, whose automobile, according to the police report, struck the machine that broke the plate glass window in the five and ten cent store on Main street Tuesday afternoon, denies that his car hit the other machine or that his automobile was in any accident Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Kramer states that he was driving from Franklin square westerly and when he came to the bank corner he came to a stop while waiting for the signal from Officer Morgan. He claims that the officer gave him the signal twice to come ahead and he started but saw the other car driven by Nathan Gershon coming around the Shetucket street westerly into Main. The car was bucking as if the driver was inexperienced in its operation. Mr. Kramer said that he saw his own car was going to be hit unless he got out of the way and he speeded up to avoid a collision. He got clear of the other car without hitting it, but Gershon steered his machine in such a way that he landed upon the pavement and against the plate glass window after hitting the mail truck.

STEAMER MYRA LOST KEY TO PROPELLOR

Steamer Myra, which has started running on the line between this city and Ocean Beach, was unable to make the trip Wednesday because the boat lost its propellor key Tuesday while taking a party out for a bath from the pier at Ocean Beach. The accident happened when off the lighthouse and a tug had to be summoned from New London to get the Myra ashore as the steamer was helpless. The passengers were landed at the beach pier and the tug took the Myra to its berth at the Groton dock for repairs.

Cat With Income Dies.

Sardie, one of few cats, it is believed, to enjoy a financial income, is dead at the home in Pomfret of its late mistress, Miss Eleanor J. Clark, who left $2,500 of her $1,500,000 estate in trust to care for her favorite pet.

Sardie's death followed that of her mistress by seven months, and the $2,500 now goes into the residue of Miss Clark's estate, as provided in her will. Sardie was of Persian extraction and died of old age, according to William F. Johnson, private secretary to Miss Clark, who had cared for the cat since the death of his employer.

PLAYGROUNDS PICNIC ENJOYS MOHEGAN PARK

The second of a series of local playground picnics was enjoyed on Wednesday at Mohegan Park by the children of the Elizabeth street playground. With Instructors Miss Margaret Shugrue, Matthew Sheridan and John Murphy in charge, the seventy-five or more expectant little ones started from Franklin square at 10.30 a. m. and after a very enjoyable hike along the well shaded paths, arrived at the lake.

It is not to be imagined that the children had been forgotten by those at home. No, for their kind mothers had thoughtfully provided each little one with a lunch box crammed with sandwiches, coffee, oranges, bananas, and in fact with everything that delights the stomach of a hungry child. These were put aside temporarily and after every one had ceased panting from the long walk to the park, games and races were enjoyed under the direction of the instructors.

Results of the races:

100 yard dash—First, S. Stockwell; second, H. Coulash; third, Anthony.

Cross country run—First, T. Mullins; second, H. Coulash; third, Anthony.

100 yard dash for girls—First, H. Hoffman; second, M. Whelen.

Junior 100 yard dash—First, H. Long; second, T. Fogarty.

100 yard dash junior girls and boys—First, Charlie Joskiewicz; second, J. Seckter; third M. La Rochelle.

100 yard dash senior boys and girls—First, T. Mullins; second, S. Stockwell; third, M. Santos.

Subsequent to the hearty lunches eaten by the children, Instructors Matt Sheridan and John Murphy toiled in the hot sun for hours in rowing the children about the lake. This they really enjoyed, judging from their clamorous demands for "More."

At 4.30 every one reluctantly left his swing or see-saw and walked to the city—then from there they were safely conducted to the West Side by the instructors.

It is to be hoped that Supervisor Earl Bingham will continue to encourage these delightful picnics, for in so doing he is not merely furnishing the children of the city with means of physical development, but in addition they are being afforded opportunity of an outing at one of the beautiful and picturesque lakes in New England.

FORT WRIGHT SOLDIERS FREED BY COURT

Three New Haven youths, all privates, attached to Fort Wright, Fishers Island, faced Judge Eliot Watrous in the New Haven city court Tuesday on charges of stealing an automobile early in the morning, and he, after hearing the evidence in the case, reminded the young men that they were all A. W. O. L. from their military headquarters and then allowed them their freedom, provided they left town immediately.

The soldiers, John F. Moriarty, 20, of 26 Wilson street; Frank Doty, 24, of 252 Washington avenue, and Joseph Fishman, 17, of 457 Greenwich avenue, were alleged to have taken the automobile belonging to Isadore Doff, which was parked in Commerce near Whiting street.

When in court two of them said that they were out on furlough and were due back at the fort at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. They had run short of funds, they said, and only took the car to enable them to get as far as New York city.

In disposing of the case Judge Watrous warned all of the youths to be more careful in the future and then imposed suspended sentences of 30 days each on Moriarty and Doty. A nolle was entered in the case of Fishman, as he stated that the other fellows told him that the car was their property. The other two soldiers corroborated him in this.

CONNECTICUT SOCIALISTS IN LA FOLLETTE RANKS

The socialist party of this state having gone over to the La Follette-Wheeler ranks, it is expected that the La Follette combine will endorse the state ticket already nominated by the socialist party. The socialists have also put up electors and it is expected that the third party will accept these electors as its own. Should the La Follette party fail to accept these socialist electors, it will be necessary for him to present to the secretary of state a petition bearing the signatures of 1 per cent. of all of the voters who participated in the 1920 election in Connecticut, in order to get a place on the official ballot.

There doesn't seem to be much interest about this state in the third party, outside of the socialist ranks and the short time between now and election does not allow of much serious effort towards organizing in this state.

The socialist party has no state central committee with a representative from each of the 35 senatorial districts, as have the two major parties, and the prohibition party, which has been dropped from the official ballot because the vote cast for its candidates in the last election fell below the minimum allowed by law for a place on the ballot. Martin F. Plunkett of Wallingford, who polled 5,286 votes as the socialist candidate for governor two years ago, is the secretary and treasurer of a state executive committee, which is the skeleton organization of the socialist party in Connecticut. Members of this executive committee are: Henry Vanderburgh of East Hartford, for the First Congressional district; William James Morgan of New London, for the Second district; Louis Krahl of Meriden, Walter E. Davis of Hamden and I. Miller and W. Leofstedt of New Haven, for the Third district; William Hoffman of Bridgeport, for the Fourth district; and John P. McCarthy of Ansonia, for the Fifth district; Patrick J. Cooney of Bridgeport and Walter E. Davis of Hamden are state auditors of the party. Two other places in the party's skeleton organization, those of state organizer and state literature agent, are vacant, according to the records of the secretary of the state.

The socialist party reached its peak vote in Connecticut in the last presidential election, 10,350 votes being cast for Eugene Debs, its candidate for president, as against 229,238 for Harding, the republican nominee, and 120,721 for Cox, democrat. Debs polled almost exactly twice the number of votes cast for Benson, the socialist candidate for president in 1916, but only 294 more than the total polled by Debs in 1912, when the socialist party was a minor beneficiary of the republican party split. Up to that time, the socialist party in Connecticut had never got much beyond the 5,000 mark in presidential elections.

Dort of Milford $30 a month and Thomas Joyce of Willimantic, $12 a month, according to word from the bureau of pensions.

POETRY

At the Church Gate

Although I enter not,
Yet round about the spot
Oftimes I hover;
And near the sacred gate,
With longing eyes I wait,
Expectant of her.

The minster bell tolls out
They've hushed the minster bell;
The organ 'gins to swell:
She's coming, she's coming!

My lady comes at last,
Timid, and stepping fast
And hastening hither,
With modest eyes downcast:
She comes—she's here—she's past!
May heaven go with her!

Kneel undisturbed fair saint!
Pour out your praise or plaint
Meekly and duly;
I will not enter there
To sully your pure prayer
With thought unruly.

But suffer me to pace
Round the forbidden place
Lingering a minute,
Like outcast spirits, who wait,
And see, through heaven's gate,
Angels within it.

—William Makepeace Thackeray.

L'Vital Lampada

There's a breathless hush in the close tonight—
Ten to make and the match to win
A bumping pitch and a blinding light,
An hour to play and the last man in.
And it's not for the sake of a ribboned coat,
Or glittering prize and glory alone,
But the captain's hand on his shoulder smote—
"Play up! play up! and play the game!"

The sand of the desert is sodden red—
Red with the wreck of a square that broke—
The gallings jammed and the colonel's dead,
And the regiment blind with the dust and smoke.
The river of death has brimmed its banks,
And England's far and honor a name,
But the voice of a schoolboy rallies the ranks:
"Play up! play up! and play the game!"

This is the word that year by year,
While in her place the school is set,
Every one of her sons must hear,
And none that hears it dares forget.
This they all with a joyful mind
Bear through life like a torch in flame
And falling, fling to the host behind—
"Play up! play up! and play the game!"

—By Sir Henry Newbolt.

Funny things happen to Americans on the continent. A New York man back from Belgium says that he entered a humble cafe whose window bore the legend, "English spoke." One day he chanced to hear the following conversation between the boy and one employed next door.

"How much does he pay you?" asked the latter.

In Australia there are at least 20 species of animals which are aviators. Among them are flying squirrels, flying opossums, flying mice and even flying bears. The name which applies to them all is "phalanger." This means that they have, extending from the front to the hind legs, a membrane which enables them to float in a graceful way from tree to tree. They are not really flying animals, but gliders.

"I have camped at the summit of Mauna Loa on the 1st of August in a temperature of 15 degrees Fahrenheit," writes a Hawaiian editor, "but ice ten inches thick, and packed it by mule the same night amid cane fields, palms and the odor of oranges and coffee blossoms."

FRENCH DEADLOCK WITH FINANCIERS UNBROKEN

Premier Theunis of Belgium and the American Representatives Continue Endeavor to Effect a Conciliation on Formula to Safeguard the Proposed German Loan—Informal Conferences are Being Held in an Effort to Find a Formula Acceptable to the French Delegates.

London, July 24—(By the A. P.)—Although Premier Theunis of Belgium and the American representatives at the inter-allied conference are continuing to exercise to the utmost their powers of conciliation, the deadlock remains unbroken between Premier Herriot of France and the British and American financiers over the formula by which to safeguard the proposed loan to Germany.

Before and after the king's garden party at Buckingham palace today, conferences and informal conversations were carried on in an effort to discover a formula which a member of the French delegation said tonight certainly would be found.

Another long conference between M. Theunis and Thomas W Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., was typical of the efforts which are being made and the resources which are being exercised in an effort to restore the unanimity which characterized the earlier work of the conference.

"With so much good will," said the French delegate, "We shall find a way of solving this dual problem of giving the bankers their proper guarantees and at the same time maintaining the sovereign rights of France according to the treaty of Versailles."

An American commentator said that although there was a deadlock there was no reason for pessimism. He emphasized that the Dawes' report now was Europe's hope no less than it was a week ago and he predicted that realization of the forces of economic and political disorder which would be released from control if the Dawes plan were rejected, would yet reconcile the opposing interests and reunite the conference in launching the experts scheme.

The bankers maintain that they are not bringing pressure to bear in any way on M. Herriot. They have submitted no formulas and they do not intend to submit any; they have told the financial experts of the conference what they consider proper security for the German loan and they expect a formula embodying their outline to be produced before they approve the loan.

The bankers maintain that they fully understand and sympathize with M. Herriot's political position. Bold recourse to action on his part, they are inclined to believe, would bring the conference to an early successful termination and would produce the much needed reparation for France.

It is suggested that M. Herriot should make certain concessions for the duration of the loan in regard to defaults and sanctions under the Dawes plan. Attacks would certainly await the premier upon his return to Paris but he could defend his course on the ground that he acted to save France from political isolation, to save her from the rapid fall which is certain if the conference fails and above all to save the Dawes plan

It is argued that M. Herriot would do better to follow this course than to continue the deadlock in the conference and then ultimately to return to Paris to announce to the chamber of deputies that all of his efforts in London had availed France nothing.

MAKING EXHIBITS AGAINST THE MURDER OF FRANKS

Chicago, July 24.—(By The A. P.)—Prosaic objects—trousers, boots, a rectangular robe, and a bundle of boards—were added today to the evidence with which the state seeks to obtain the death sentence for the confessed murderers of Robert Franks.

Commonplace in themselves, the articles, with many others offered as people's exhibits today by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, were viewed by the prosecutors as tightening the web of uncontroverted detail which they expect will sent Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb to the gallows.

The cold chisel with which young Franks was stunned, the rope with which he was bound, the acid bottle from which was poured the fluid that marred his features, and the wrecked and water-soaked typewriter on which was written the ransom letter sent to the father also figured in the day's proceedings.

Stains of human blood were found on the clothing, the chisel automobile rope, floor boards, and paint of the automobile, expert chemists told Judge John R. Caverly.

One pair of trousers, it was claimed by the state, was worn by Loeb, the other pair of trousers, a coat and the hip boots by Leopold on the night of May 21, when young Franks was slain and his body deposited in a water filled culvert near the southern limits of the city.

Also introduced today were the especially designed tortoise shell spectacles found near the body, and discovered as the first tangible clue connecting Leopold with the crime.

ELECTED SECRETARY NEW YORK DEM. COMMITTEE

New York, July 23.—James F. Egan, chief of the law and adjustment division of the comptroller's office, was elected secretary of the New York county of the democratic committee and of the executive committee at meetings of both bodies at Tammany Hall tonight.

Mr. Egan succeeds Daniel Ryan, recently appointed a member of the new city board of transportation at a salary of $10,000 a year, and whose resignation as secretary was accepted at the same meeting. Mr. Egan lives in the Tenth assembly district, the same as the residence of Former George W. Olvany, the new leader of Tammany Hall.

When Mr. Olvany was counsel to the sheriff of New York county, then Alfred E. Smith, the present governor of New York, Mr. Egan was Olvany's assistant. No other names were considered at the two meetings.

ALBUQUERQUE EDITOR RELEASED IN $2,500 BOND

Santa Fe, N. M., July 24—Carl C. Magee, Albuquerque editor, was released on $2,500 bond by order of the state supreme court here today, at the termination of a hearing instituted on a writ of habeas corpus. Release of the editor was for duration of the court's deliberation on the question of the governor's power of pardon in the case of direct contempt for which Magee is under sentence in the San Miguel county jail at Las Vegas.

COMPLAINT AGAINST SCOTCH WOOLEN MILLS DISMISSED

Washington, July 24.—The federal trade commission today dismissed its complaint against the Scotch Woolen Mills, of Chicago, in which it was charged that the name of the corporation, which manufactures men's clothing, misled the public to believe that it owned or operated a woolen mill used in the manufacture of the cloth.

CHILD BURNED WHILE PLAYING WITH MATCHES

New Haven, July 24.—Hospital authorities reported tonight that there was no improvement in the condition of Arnold Klein, 2 years old, of 575 Winchester avenue, who was burned while playing with matches today. He was badly burned about the face, arms and body and is in a serious condition.

LAFOLLETTE COMMITTEE OF ELEVEN APPOINTED

Washington, July 24—Senator La Follette's presidential campaign was given organized machinery today by the appointment of ten out of eleven members of a national joint executive committee with wide powers.

Men and women designated for the leading positions in most cases were those who have participated prominently in campaign preliminaries, but there were two notable exceptions. Rudolph Spreckels, a San Francisco banker who has been engaged in independent political movements since before the Roosevelt campaign of 1912, and Senator Frazier, North Dakota, listed as a republican, were additions to the LaFollette forces. Representative John M. Nelson, of Wisconsin, now managing the campaign out of Chicago as named as chairman of the new body.

The other members are Mrs. Edward P. Costigan of Colorado, vice president of the National Consumers' league; William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, and chairman of the Cleveland convention where LaFollette was nominated; Morris Hillquit, New York, now chairman of the national committee of the socialist party, which was thrown it's forces behind La Follette; Basil M. Manley, who has handled much of the publicity work in the La Follette campaign; Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans, of Boston, one of the original woman suffrage leaders; D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and Firemen, and Robert M. La Follette, Jr.

STEAMER OILER DROWNED WHILE ON EXCURSION

New London, Conn., July 24—Excursionists debarking from the Steamer Richard Peck of the New England Steamship company, this afternoon reported that John Nolan, an oiler, had fallen overboard as the boat was passing Point Judith and it was believed that he had been drowned. The excursionists were from all parts of Connecticut, the majority of them being from New Haven and towns in the Naugatuck valley.

David Levine, a Boston attorney residing for the summer at 10 Park street, Ocean Beach, who was a passenger on the steamer, filed complaint with Sergeant Samuel Hicks at police headquarters here regarding the attitude taken by the captain of the steamer following the accident. According to Levine, the captain refused to permit the crew to thro wlife preservers overboard and did not turn back until the ship had gone a mile and a half.

A boat manned by four men was put out from the steamer but Nolan was not found.

Nolan's home was in Tiverton, R. I. He was between 25 and 30 years of age. He was off duty at the time he was drowned.

New Haven, July 24—R. H. White, superintendent of the Malley Building who was a passenger on the steamer Richard Peck from which John Nolan, an oiler, was drowned this afternoon, said that the seaman was walking along the railing outside the upper state rooms when he fell overboard. Three life preservers were thrown to the man, according to Mr. White, but Nolan could not reach them and went down. The sudden rush of passengers to the rail after the accident, Mr. White said, caused the ship to list dangerously.

Republicans Plan Campaign Method

To Send Pitcures by Telephone as a Supplement to Radio Broadcasting.

Washington, July 24.—Use of the new method of sending pictures by telephone as a supplement to radio broadcasting by President Coolidge has been suggested by some of those connected with the republican national campaign.

The proposal was made today when Secretary Weeks visited the White House with a print of a picture of himself, taken during the republican national convention in Cleveland, sent by telephone to New York, and reprinted there within a few minutes after the original photograph was taken.

His suggestion was that at the time of the president's radio campaign address mass meetings could be arranged to hear some campaign orator and also hear an emplified radio talk by the republican presidential nominee. A photograph could be taken of Mr. Coolidge, standing at the microphone in the White House just as he began speaking, transmitted by telephone to the cities where the meetings were being held, printed and distributed to the audience as it left the hall. This, it was argued, would afford the audience some [illegible] ling of the personal touch absent from radio addresses.

There were no indications whether the president was attracted to the proposal as he spent the day busily engaged in conferences on official business, in receiving some political callers, and in beginning actual work on the address he will deliver here three weeks from tonight, when he will be formally notified on his nomination.

BUTLER WILL NOT QUIT UNLESS "KICKED OUT"

Philadelphia, July 24—Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, in his weekly talk to police inspectors and lieutenants today, declared that he had been appointed director of public safety for four years and that he would not quit unless he was "kicked out."

The director's remarks were regarded by his subordinates as significant because of recent reports that the general would not be retained after the expiration of his leave of absence from the marine corps next January. These reports said that such strong pressure had been brought to bear on Mayor Kendrick by certain local political leaders, who oppose some of the director's methods, that the mayor would not ask President Coolidge for an extension of the general's care. The mayor has declined to confirm or deny the reports.

"I won't be deceived or influenced by the [illegible] are going to quit. Director Butler told the police officials. "I am not going to be licked except after a red hot scrap."

TALK OF ACTION AGAINST THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

Albany, N. Y., July 24.—The proceeding just concluded which compelled the Anti-Saloon League of New York, to obey the law in regard to fixing its exact legal status, has indicated also there should be no difficulty in convicting the league of violating the corporation law by participating in virtually every election, Colonel Ransom H. Gillett, of Albany, general counsel for the committee to enforce the corrupt practice act, told that organization in a report made public today.

Declaring the court of appeals has pointed out the method whereby the league can be "brought to book for its unlawful and illegal activities in 1922," Colonel Gillett said, that unless the statute of limitations prevents, he will immediately institute "such legal or other proceedings as may be appropriate to accomplish this end."

Cargo of Beer Found In Armored Auto

Driver Had Abandoned High Powered Roadster Near Montpelier, Vt.

St. Albans, Vt., July 24.—The rum-runners are getting ready for war. A high powered roadster, that had come down from Canada with a cargo of beer, was found to have been provided with a shield for the driver against gunfire when it was brought here today by prohibition enforcement agents. Examination showed that the cowl had been built up with sheet iron.

The agents, mounted on motorcycles, had run the car down near Montpelier. The driver escaped. There was no report of any shots having been fired, but in other cases recently shots have been exchanged, and the sheet iron cowl was regarded as a recognition of armed warfare between the rum-runners and prohibition officers.

The cargo of beer, consisting of 400 bottles, was the second seizure made on the roads near the state capital in the past 24 hours.

POLITICAL CONFERENCES HELD BY NOMINEE DAVIS

Dark Harbor, Islesboro, Me., July 24.—A series of political conferences were held today by John W. Davis, democratic candidate for president, at the summer home of Charles Dana Gibson, on Seven Hundred Acres Island where he is a guest.

Fernald, republican, for the United States senate. They brought what to Mr. Davis were encouraging reports on the outlook in the state elections in September, which generally are regarded as a barometer in the general elections in November.

The general political situation was the subject of a conference that Mr. Davis had with former Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware, whose name was before the New York national convention as a candidate for the presidential nomination. Conditions in Massachusetts were gone over at a meeting the nominee had with Andrew J. Peters, mayor of Boston at the time of the famous police strike, and who served in the house of representatives at the time Mr. Davis was a member of that body.

RESIGNED FROM HARTFORD REP. TOWN COMMITTEE

Hartford, July 24.—Mrs. Harriet M. Dustin, vice chairman of the republican town committee of Hartford, resigned yesterday as a member of the republican state central committee from the First senatorial district. The resignation, forwarded to Chairman J. Henry Roraback, did not state the reason for the action, but dissatisfaction with the decision of the committee meeting July 17 not to elect the vice chairman of the state committee and the woman member of the national committee to succeed the late Mrs. Samuel O. Prentice is believed to be the cause.

Under the party rules, Mrs. Dustin's successor will be elected by the delegates who represented the First senatorial district in the state convention held in this city in April to elect the Connecticut delegation to the republican national convention.

Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 9 and 10, were fixed as the dates for the republican state convention for the nomination of candidates for presidential electors and state offices, and the place, New Haven. Town caucuses or primaries for the election of delegates will be August 27 and senatorial district conventions August 30.

SMALL GIFTS NECESSARY FOR DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN

Washington, July 24.—Small gifts from the rank and file of the party are expected by Clem L. Shaver, new national chairman, to furnish the money necessary to conduct the democratic campaign.

For the present, Mr. Shaver said today, ordinary expenses probably will be cared for through the "Victory clubs" organized all over the country by Cordell Hull, the retiring chairman, when a new finance committee is appointed, its membership is expected to decide upon ways of supplementing the clubs' donations.

Mr. Shaver declared that no attempts were being made to launch a drive for funds to finance the campaign. Completion of several committee apointments and perfection of other campaign machinery is occupying him for the present. The notification of John W. Davis at Clarksburg, W. Va., on August 11, he said, would find the party machinery ready to move into the campaign smoothly.

Five small buildings of the association were destroyed while two barns on the Thomas F. Sullivan estate and a two-family dwelling owned by atrick F. Burt were less seriously damaged. Four autos were destroyed and a horse was burned to death. The total damage is estimated at $15,000.

Children playing with matches in the barn are believed by the police to have started the fire.

"RUM" SHIPS SMUGGLING DRUGS AND ALIENS

New York, July 24.—In consequence of statements made in a letter found in the pocket of a captain of a liquor laden motor boat seized today, Nathaniel Van Doren, a special agent for the treasury department, said he would urge the government to send coast guard cutters to rum row to investigate reported smuggling of aliens and narcotics.

Such a search of the ships anchored about 12 miles off the New Jersey coast might result, Van Doren said, in official protests to the governments whose flags the vessels carried.

The letter was discovered when the customs marine patrol, after firing a shot, captured the "Bessie B" the fast motor boat which was released by customs officers a week ago after she had brought ashore Ralph Conrad, a sick member of the crew of the schooner Rask, and Dr. Royston Foulks, who attended him in rum row.

The letter, which Captain Hanson, of the Bessie B said a member of the Rask's crew had asked him to mail to his parents in Scotland, described a brisk trade in whiskey, partly by means of a seaplane which the writer said took nineteen cases ashore daily.

"This is a very exciting life out here," the letter read. "There are two boat loads of Chinese, Greeks, etc., all waiting to be smuggled into the United States. There are also a couple of steamers loaded with heroin, opium, morphine and cocaine, all of which is being smuggled in every day."

Prentice, who held both positions at the time of her death last month.

Announcement of the appointments was made by Chairman Roraback after a conference with Miss Byrne which followed the state central committee meeting at the Allyn house in the afternoon. Authority to fill the vacancies had been conferred upon him at a previous meeting of the committee July 17.

New Haven was selected as the place and September 9 and 10 as the date for the state convention. Town caucuses or primaries for the election of delegates will be August 27 and senatorial district conventions August 30.

Hartford, July 24—A vote which is being taken among the striking shopmen along the "New Haven" system on the question of continuing or declaring off the strike which has officially been in effect since July 1, 1922, has resulted in an almost unanimous decision in the Hartford district to carry the fight on, according to Henry J. Gallagher, chairman of the strike committee of the district.

Mr. Gallagher said last night the vote in this district was completed yesterday and has gone forward to Robert Henderson, secretary-treasurer of the system federation in Boston. Only twelve men, he said, voted to end the strike out of a total of about 700. The strike chairman explained that the men are employed at different trades.

FATHER OF PRESIDENT ENDS WHITE HOUSE VISIT

Washington, July 24.—John Coolidge, father of President Coolidge, left the White House today for home after a two weeks' visit, the longest time he ever had been away from his Plymouth, Vermont, farm.

The visit was a quiet one for the president's father, who came here immediately after the burial of Calvin Coolidge, Jr., he spent a great deal of his time in the executive offices with his son. Newspapermen who sought to interview him found him quite approachable but got little news as his invariable answers to their questions was confined to "Yes" or "No."

AMERICAN LAWYERS MINGLE WITH BRITISH ROYALTY

London, July 24 (By the A. P.)—Americans walked, talked and took tea with King George, Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales in royalty's back yard, so to speak, when the pleasant grounds to the rear of Buckingham palace were thrown open this afternoon to 3,000 invited guests, most of whom were American lawyers.

It was the first royal garden party ever given in honor of Americans and more citizens of the United States passed through the palace portals today than during the past decade. Behind the severe front of this building which faces the Mall they found little of the ceremony usually associated with royalty.

Their majesties with the Prince of Wales at their heels like a dutiful son, and accompanied by their ladies and gentlemen-in-waiting came out of the palace in a shower of rain to find their guests lined up under umbrellas along the winding path through the grounds.

After meeting Premier Herriot of France, Premier Theunis, of Belgium, and delegates to the inter-allied conference, their majesties greeted Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes after which Mrs. Hughes joined the queen in a walk through the garden.

The queen and Mrs. Hughes were dressed in white. Mrs. Hughes wore a mauve picture hat but the queen's was a toque of gray metal cloth. Over a silken dress, Queen Mary wore an embroidered velvet cloak trimmed with white fox and she carried a long white walking stick.

TREASURY HOLDS $200,000,000 IN RAILROAD SECURITIES

Washington, July 24—The treasury found itself today with approximately $200,000,000 in railroad securities on its hands which it must hold until such time as the San Miguel county jail made the notes are ready to retire them at an earlier date. Some of them have nearly ten years to run while the earliest maturities are something like five years hence. All represent loans to the railroads.

An opinion by the department of justice that the transportation act prohibits the government from disposing of securities acquired under section 210 to other than the roads to whom the direct loans were made brought about the situation. No alternative is left and the treasury must carry the notes until the funds for their retirement are handed over by the railroads.

The ruling does not apply however to securities taken by the director general of the railroad administration who may sell any of the $245,000,000 held by the treasury for him at any time a satisfactory offer is received. Obligations taken by the railroad administration were accepted under section 207 of the transportation act and the department of justice has said that the inhibition against their sale does not hold.

WITHDRAW REQUEST FOR DELAY OF EXECUTION

Boston, July 24—A request for delay in the electrocution of Cyrille J. Vandenheede of Lawrence, made a few days ago, was withdrawn today by Thomas H. Robbins, Belgian consul here. Robbins had suggested to Governor the possibility that new evidence might develop in favor of the condemned man, who is a native of Belgium, but he explained the withdrawal of his request as the result of a conclusion after investigation that another trial probably would result in the same verdict. Vandenheede was convicted of the murder of Ghislain Sculerman at Lawrence, in 1918. He was arrested after a five year absence in Belgium and Montreal, in the course of which he married a woman at Montreal while his wife was living at Lawrence.

Justice Lydon found that no violence has been used by the strikers' pickets that would warrant the issuance of an injunction pending trial of the controversy.

$75,000 ALIENATION SUIT AGAINST HUSBAND'S BROTHER

Bridgeport, July 24.—Ruth Norton Boothe, Vassar graduate, of Cheshire, whose divorce action against her aged and wealthy husband, David Beach Boothe, of Stratford, was dismissed in superior court a month ago, has brought a $75,000 alienation of affections suit against her husband's brother, Stephen Boothe, of Stratford.

Allegations concerning criminal relations of the brothers are set forth in Mrs. Boothe's pleadings. Papers, prepared by Attorney Carl A. Mears, of New Haven, her counsel, have not been filed in superior court, but were left in the town clerk's offices in Bridgeport and Stratford when attachments were made.

While the proprietors, Dr Charles A. Jenkins and his father, William A. Jenkins were away, an attachment was served on the Auto Supply Store at 851 Main street Thursday on behalf of the Gulf Refining company and during the afternoon practically all the stock was removed. Deputy Sheriff Addison Greensilt called at the store in the forenoon with a writ of attachment and sought the owners. William A. Jenkins now resides in Holyoke, Mass., nad Dr. Jenkins was away for the day. Desperate efforts were made by his employes to locate the latter, but without avail and in the afternoon an express truck was backed up to the front door. Although he emphatically stated that he was nothing more than an employe, the writ was handed to D. C Lovett who was in charge of the store in the absence of the owners. It was said that Deputy Sheriff Greensilt had demanded that the keys to the store be turned over to him but the employes were advised by a local attorney not to do this and they retained the keys. Without further comment the supply of automobile accessories was removed. The employes could not give an estimate of the value of the goods taken over, other than that the amount goes well into several hundred dollars. The amount of the attachment was not made known. Mr. Lovett consulted the Gulf company on the matter and efforts were being made to locate their attorney but he could not be found. It was said that the attachment came as a complete surprise to the employes who hinted that the firm appeared to have the necessary funds with which to pay off any debt. Further developments are expected today (Friday.)

There is much rejoicing among the fans at the announcement that Willimantic has been formally reinstated in the Connecticut State league, with the retention of the former position of the team in the league standing The fans are beginning to realize the extent of the difficulty which the ballmen have to face this season and now that the shakeup is over it is expected that the bleachers and automobile parking space at Recreation park will be crowded next Saturday afternoon when the Meriden national guardsmen will contest here. The meeting of the representatives and directors of the league held at Hartford Wednesday night to take action on Willimantic's request to reenter the league brought out some interesting facts. Meriden was not represented but had sent assurances that the proposition of placing the Thread City back on the batting forces was agreeable to the Silver City. Several days ago Manager John P. McQuillan was in telephone communication with "Joe" Carroll, secretary of the league and manager of the New Departure entry from Bristol. Further assurance was given by Carroll that, in his opinion, everything would be O. K. The surprise came, however, at the meeting in Hartford when Manager McQuillan and Bert F. More, member of the directorate and treasurer of the circuit met opposition from Joe Carroll himself. He had grouched because the withdrawal of the Thread Makers at the 11th hour had caused a postponement of the Sunday game in Bristol. Carroll was finally appeased when arrangements were made to take advantage of an open date and play Bristol in that city on Sunday, August 17. The manner under which the reinstatement was effected did not require the posting of an additional $500 forfeit. "Pete' Wood will be in the box here against Meriden Saturday and Richards will twirl Sunday in Meriden.

The sidewalks of New York will give up some twenty of the New York Tribune fresh air fund children who will arrive in this city August 12 for a two weeks' stay. These children are coming here from a sweltering, heaving metropolis and they will need good care. In their behalf two local organizations, the Rotary club and Willimantic Lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. E., have joined forces in securing for the little charges, places to stay with beneficent families during the two glorious weeks. The Elks' committee comprises: P. D. Donohue, Frank M. Lincoln, John O'Rourke, William H. Nichols and Alfred Noel. The Rotarian committee consists of Herbert W. Huber, Louis A. Kingsbury of South Coventry and Aime J. Martineau. The first year the Tribune fresh air fund was organized, in 1877, health and happiness was brought to sixty boys and girls, but the unselfish endeavor has progressed so that in 1923 there were 14,444 children sent out into the country. This year it is planned to take 16,000 children from the poor of the big city. The committees are soliciting homes for the tiny visitors, so that they may have good wholesome food and at least normal environment. All the children are to be given a thorough physical examination just before leaving New York. Transportation expenses are all paid and escorts will deliver the children to their destinations Charitable people wishing to care for one or more of these children have been asked to notify the committee before next Tuesday. Donations toward the support of the vacation visitors are also being received. The average cost for one child would be five dollars a week.

..."Who's next?" in a barber shop today is often said with a smile, for the line of customers now is nearly half women. Since women fought for and secured all the privileges once held sacred to men, they do not find life filled with so much chivalry. Many of the bobbed hair fans were confident that they would be allowed to run right through the line of men and be the next "Who's next," but alas, not so! The male brutes sit tight when they see women customers coming and ever so few of them concede an inch of advantage. Judging from observation the situation is for the benefit of the females. They wanted to be men in every way and were accorded their wish. Now they realize the mistake. It is brought forcibly to their minds, especially in the barber shop, that as an equal of man they are treated as such

The fact that a klan meeting was held in or near Westerly last Tuesday night has brought to light the fact that a large number from the borough and surrounding town, numbering well into three figures, were in attendance. How they gob there is a mystery, but this is evidently the answer of the klan, when some of the local machines were recognized at a klan meeting in Norwich a week ago.

..People who are kept awake by the boisterous behaviour of night travelers, cannot often feel in a proper frame of mind to appreciate a joke. But when a man shows how idiotic he is, it is sometimes funny. At half past one in the morning, a discordant wail was added to other noises, and was at first thought to be a distracted cat. But investigation showed an automobile in which sat a youth strumming away on an instrument which was supposed to be a "uke", but might just as well have been a frying pan, for all he knew about music. No two strings were in chord, and added to that was his voice, which did not blend with anything on earth or in the heavens above. The combination was hysterical to the listeners at least. One of his friends applauded the performance with "That's fine, Freddie, that's fine." And the performer convulsed his unseen audience by replying in the most superior tone: "Oh, when I'm on the job, I can beat that!" The audience meditated the rest of the night on the ways of superior man and gave it up.

Not only are chestnuts few here each fall but the great shag-bark walnuts from "Brown October's wood" are rapidly growing scarce and this is true of the hazel nut, also, which calls to the minds of the boys of the older school many happy trips afield, through the Griswold woods and along country lanes. Read's Island used to be famous for three things—hazelnuts of the finest quality grew there in the greatest numbers, but it was the only locality in this section from which a rattlesnake was ever reported.

There was among the boys of the village at that time no doubt remaining about the certain existence of "Gus" Read's big Jersey bull, which he kept with a herd of cows on the island. One frosty November morning two Jewett City boys borrowed a cart, and waded the Quinebaug in the shallows that make through the bend at the lower end of Shipman's grove. The river side of the island was then a ten-foot bluff bank of sand. The boys pulled up the cart, and had nearly filled their two flour sacks with the fine large nuts which the island crop afforded. One of the boys tells today how they gained in bravery, and no longer crawled among the bushes on their hands and knees all the while conversing under their breath. There were cattle paths leading all about, and ending nowhere in particular. In the bend of one of these, as the search for the last few hatfuls was being made, with a great snort and bellow, up rose the dreaded bull. Nuts, cart and all forgotten in their terror, down the bank they went with no waits or delays, until they were safely back in Shipman's grove, with the Quinebaug between them and the infuriated beast. Nobody dared go for the cart, so next day the mother of one of the boys, after much beseeching, went to Mr. Read and implored his aid in recovering the borrowed cart.

"Why Julia" said he, "I haven't owned a bull for three months, there is an old cow down on the island being fattened for the market."

Probably the cow was more frightened than the boys, who haven't heard the last of "Gus" Read's bull to this day, and that was over forty years ago.

SHORTEST WAVE-LENGTH EVER USED IN BROADCASTING

Schenectady, N. Y., July 24—The General Electric Radio broadcasting station in this city, W G Y, today broadcast its regular program on a wave-length of 15.85 meters, said to be the shortest wave-length ever used by any broadcasting station in this country.

While the program was going out on this short wave it was also broadcast simultaneously on two other wave lengths and this is believed to be the first time that any station has sent the program out on three distinct wave-lengths at the same time.

The 15 meter wave length will continue to be used by W G Y to demonstrate the greater advantage of the short waves. Particular attention will be given to the afternoon programs as it is believed the short waves are more reliable, will improve daylight broadcasting and perhaps make radio signals constant 24 hours of the day. Under ordinary wave-lengths, programs from broadcast stations are heard much greater distances at night than during the daylight hours.

Under the new arrangement all programs from WGY will now be broadcast on 380 meters, either 60 or 107 metres and on 15.35 metres simultaneously.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Add to the list of what may be termed good news the prospect of a lower tax rate in the borough of Danielson. The budget meeting, scheduled for a date in early August, likely will hear that it will be possible for the borough to pay its bills out of money raised by a 8 mill tax due next September. If this rate becomes effective it will represent a cut of four mills from the rate of September, 1923, when taxes were paid on a 12 mill assessment basis.

Tax reduction always is pleasing to those who have to foot the tax bills. In view of many circumstances, a reduction will be particularly welcome this year. There was a prospect some time ago of cutting the rate to 8 mills, but unforeseen expenses have made this appear to be quite improbable now. However, if the rate can be cut to 9 mills, there will be great rejoicing.

August 7 is the big date.. It's the date for the Old Home day gathering, an event that each year brings back to the hilltops of Killingly many of those who long since have fared froth into other fields. Every state in the union will be represented at the Old Home day and many towns and cities of about all those state. The program of the day will be much the same is in recent years. Being a reunion of home folks, nothing frilly or fancy is required to make the occasion a delightful one. There will be a clambake, in accordance with time honored custom. That is mentioned first because it is a feature that brings many to East Killingly each Old Home day. But the clambake isnt all. There will be a program of music, speaking and special entertainment in many homes for particular guests

The wedding of John E. Phillips of Danielson and Miss Margaret Harring of Syracuse, N. Y., took place at the home of the brides sister, Mrs. Albert Field, at Onondaga Hill, Syracuse, Tuesday. The bride wore a simple gown of light blue crepe with flounces of lace and she carried vari-colored sweet peas. There were no attendants. "O Promise Me" was sung by Miss Minnie Kenyou.

Mr Phillips was fromerly engaged in the meat market business here. Miss Harring has a wide circle of friends in Syracuse who have given many enjoyable affairs in her honor. The Business Women's Club of the First Methodist church, of which Miss Harring is a member, honored her with a miscellaneous shower. Mrs. William Broad entertained informally at her home at Onondaga Hill and Mrs. Clarence Dence of Onondaga Hill invited several of Miss Harring's friends to a miscellaneous shower. Miss Harring is a graduate of Cortland Conservatory of Oratory and Music. She has been a teacher of oratory and physical training for several years. Mr Phillips is a graduate of Amherst college and is now making his home in Northampton, Mass. After a wedding trip through New England by motor Mr. and Mrs. Phillips will spend the rest of the summer in Northampton and go to Florida about December 1 where they will spend the winter.

Having selected dates in late September for the annual fair of the Windham County Agricultural society —the famous Brooklyn fair—officials of the organization are now engaged with plans for making certain improvements during the weeks that will precede the holding of the exhibition. The buildings on the property will receive such attention as they require. Among other things to be done will be the replacing of the fence along the northerly side of the grounds with a new wire fence. The present wobbly old board fence—through which many a youngster without the the price of admission has peered with longing eyes in mnay long years past, occasionally failing to resist the temptation to loosen a board or climb over to get in—is to give place to a wire fence six feet in height. It appears that most boys have little trouble in these modern days have little trouble in earning money enough to go to the fair, and that being the case they prefer being on the inside looking out than on the outside looking in So it matters little that a fese that obstructs vision is to be removed.

Miss Jennie Williams, who has been ill at her home in Moosup for more than a week, was reported Thursday as improved. Miss Williams is one of the force of operators at the Danielson telephone exchange.

One cannot be other than astounded when contemplating the marvels of the radio, but it is a strain on the imagination to believe the man who says that he heard Thursday evening the cheering at the democratic national convention, catching it on the rebound from Mars.

Permanent paving, so called, along the trolley rails through the business section is again gouged out so deeply in places as to be a source of annoyance and of some danger to motor car drivers. Repairs are to be made in the near future by the state highway department.

Speaking of summer vacations, many people who have regularly taken them in the summer time are not speaking of them this year. Refraining from them is one way of keeping the expense account down, in a year when the expense account needs watching.

The Central Worsted company mill at Central Village is now operating at capacity and has a line of business placed that will keep it busy through the season, it is indicated, another evidence of brighter times in the textile field in this section.

PUTNAM

It was Governor's Day at Camp Woodstock, the Y. M. C. A. camp on the shores of Black pond, Woodstock, Thursday. The camp was gayly decorated in honor of the visit of the Chief Executive and visitors were present from Hartford, Tolland and Windham counties, two hundred strong. Governor's Day is the event of each year's camp and Thursday, a beautiful summer day, was ideal for making the governor's visit a big success.

Governor Charles A. Templeton arrived a bit late. He did not put in appearance until after two o'clock and arrived without escort, alone in his automobile except for his chauffeur. After partaking of a bountiful shore dinner a reception was held and it was hand-shaking time for His Excellency.

The governor then delivered an address and presented the cup, the highest honor conferred upon a camper, to Allan Gray of New York. The cup is awarded the young man voted the best all around camper and the one who has best reflected the spirit of the camp during the two week period closing Friday. The cup for the previous two week period was awarded Sherwood Mercer, of South Manchester.

Members of the tri-county committee also addressed the gathering and there were various kinds of sports to fill out the afternoon until supper time. Governor Templeton left the camp with a whole-hearted cheer ringing in his ears.

The water sports proved very interesting. These consisted of swimming and diving matches, various boat and canoe sports and a life saving drill by the camp life saving corps in charge of William Dutemple. Camp fire services concluded the day.

Emily A. Chandler Carpenter, widow of John Carpenter, is dead at her home in Putnam where she had lived for 76 years. She would have been 91 years old August 5th. For some months past she has been in failing health and the end, which came Wednesday evening, was not unexpected.

Mrs. Carpenter was born in West Woodstock, August 5th, 1833, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Chandler She attended the public schools of her native town and when she was 14, the family moved to Webster. Only a year was spent in the Massachusetts town when, in 1848, the family moved to Putnam.

In 1851, when 18, she married John Carpenter the first contractor and builder in Putnam, who built many of the older buildings now standing in the city. Mr. Carpenter died 25 years ago.

Mrs. Carpenter did not belong to any church or other organization although she was a regular attendant of the Congregational church until unable to attend on account of advanced years. She found her greatest enjoyment in her home and children.

Mrs. Carpenter leaves three children, a daughter, Mrs. Hattie J. Bowen and a son, J. Richard Carpenter of Putnam, a son, S. Earl Carpenter of Boston; also a sister, Mrs. John A. Carpenter of Putnam, and two granddaughters, Mrs. Kenneth C. Ballard of Winthrop, Mass., and Miss Eleanor C. Carpenter of Putnam.

If the U. S. Department of Agriculture broadcasts right, peach shortcake and apple pie will be no luxury in this state. The peach crop is surpassingly large and the apple crop promises to be better than a year ago. Something that the department at Washington has not told the people of Windham county is that the huckleberry and blueberry crop is also going to be large unless the berries dry up from lack of rain. This information is gained by observation right on the ground. Those who have been in the pastures report that the bushes are hanging heavy with berries. It would appear that the pie belt is well provided for this year. All required now is a good pumpkin season and we are all set for Thanksgiving Day!

Dr. and Mrs. F. T. Baldwin and daughter, Mrs. Edna Young, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whitman, Otis Fox and Richard Whalen were among those from Putnam who attended the races at Greenfield, Wednesday.

The business section of the city was deserted Thursday afternoon, all stores being closed for the weekly half holiday. Several parties went to Webster Lake to enjoy the bathing. For the past two weeks Mr. Daignault had been acting queerly and Wednesday became violent. The doctors advised taking him to the state asylum before he should injure somebody. Nelson Greenwood and Harry Johnson accompanied Mr. Leclaire when he took his uncle to Norwich.

A Ford truck, owned by the Acme Tailoring company of Providence, driven by Joseph Swarden, overturned near the Moosup ice house, on the state highway. It seemed as though the driver got too close to the sand bank, that elevates the car tracks, went up on the embankment and overturned. Some of the clothing was spread in the road but was only slightly damaged. The driver narrowly escaped serious injury, as the car he was driving was of the closed type. The truck was not damaged. With the help of a few autoists the truck was lifted upright and went on its way.

Bridgeport, July 24—At Coroner J J. Phelan's inquest this morning into the drowning of seven children a week ago, it was testified that the four boys and three girls went to their deaths in the water in a canoe they took against the definite refusal of the owner to hire it to them.

Mrs. Ellen C. Mills, owner of the canoe made emphatic declaration that she did not give permission to any of the victims to use the canoe, nor did she hire it to them. DOUBLE-FACED — Number — List Price

Manon—Gavotte—Obéissons quand leur voix appelle (Hear the Voice of Youth) (Massenet) In French — Amelita Galli-Curci
Don César de Bazan—Sevillana (Fair Maidens of Seville) (Massenet) In French — Amelita Galli-Curci
1018 $1.50

Dainty and vivacious numbers from Massenet operas—difficult but with the difficulties hidden in the joy of accomplishment. The stately measures of the classical gavotte are embellished by turns, roulades, and wonderful high notes. The "Sevillana," of course, is in Spanish style. Victor recording reveals the peculiar beauties of both numbers.

Carmen—Soldiers Changing the Guard (Bizet) — Stokowski and Philadelphia Orchestra
Carmen—March of the Smugglers (Bizet) — Stokowski and Philadelphia Orchestra
1017 1.50

Most music-lovers know Stokowski's marvelous record, with the Philadelphia Orchestra, of the brilliant Prelude to Carmen. Here are two more numbers from the same opera. Superbly played records; each instrumental note glows like a jewel with its own distinctive color.

Light Vocal Selections

Little Alabama Coon — Shannon Quartet
My Creole Sue — Shannon Quartet
19343 .75

Two world-favorite quartet numbers, one of them a pickaninny song and the other a love-ditty for four male voices, in the popular manner. Records that will delight every one who has the natural instinctive liking for male voices in concert.

You're in Love with Everyone — Franklyn Baur
Swanee River Rose — Helen Clark-Lewis James
19368 .75

The individual with the omnibus heart comes in for melodious reproach in a popular waltz song, and the Swanee yields another song in the ensuing duet for soprano and tenor. Splendid examples of what Victor recording does for popular songs.

Nobody's Sweetheart — Aileen Stanley-Billy Murray
It Had to Be You — Aileen Stanley-Billy Murray
19373 .75

Aileen Stanley and Billy Murray have done remarkable "team-work" in recorded vaudeville. These records, mingling pathos and humor, are among their very best.

Dance Records

A New Kind of Man—Fox Trot — George Olsen and His Music
He's the Hottest Man in Town—Fox Trot — George Olsen and His Music
19375 .75

First Victor Record by this Pacific coast organization, brought three thousand miles from the Hotel Portland (Oregon), to feature in the Ziegfeld production, "Kid Boots." Both records are full of trick instrumental effects, and they sound about fifty musicians strong—though they aren't.

Maytime—Fox Trot — Waring's Pennsylvanians
Plain Jane—Fox Trot (Introducing "Don't Take Your Troubles to Bed") — International Novelty Orchestra
19367 .75

A finely melodious fox trot, introducing bits of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," followed by a jolly one from "Plain Jane" which adheres to its own form of musical speech. Dancers who appreciate lightness and grace will welcome these records.

Pretty Soon—Fox Trot — Jan Garber and His Orchestra
Please—Fox Trot — Jan Garber and His Orchestra
19376 .75

Good melodious fox trots with plenty of rhythm and orchestral color. The melodies—and the rhythms—of both alternate between the stately and the comic in style. Recorded as only the Victor knows how.

RESULTS WHERE ELECTRICITY IS BOUGHT.

Just at the present time there is interest in the statement which has been made by the municipal light department of Westfield, Mass., where municipal ownership has just completed 25 years. Westfield is a city of 18,600 population and by its report it is shown that the city netted $46,958.93 in the past fiscal year from its gas and electrical department.

It sold 58,701,400 cubic feet of gas and 5,600,428 kilowatt hours of electricity.

During the year it reduced its gas rate from $1.90 to $1.50 and its electricity for house lighting from eight to seven cents a kilowatt hour.

The department assets are placed at $623,620.60, including the plant investment of $415,383.12, and there is a bond issue of $135,000.

The Westfield plant is not a producer but a purchaser of electricity. It buys its electricity from the Turner Falls Power company and distributes it, but manufactures and distributes gas.

In connection with a report of the department's annual statement appears the following: "It would be possible, it is said, for the light commissioners to make a further reduction in the price of electricity. However, this is not considered good business at this time because a new contract with the Turner Falls Power company is to be negotiated shortly and indications point to a larger price to be asked for electricity. Two years ago the Turner Falls Power company sought to abrogate the present agreement contract with the city, claiming that the rate charged for electricity was below the cost of manufacture to the company. However the city council was not disposed to enter into a new contract at that time. The present contract expires next year and an additional charge for electricity to the city is expected. Until this becomes known and the receipts of the department are determined under the new scale the lighting department officials do not feel justified in making further reductions in the cost of electricity to the consumer."

Thus it would appear that Westfield is getting electricity at seven cents a kilowatt hour, three cents lower than Norwich can obtain it for house lighting even under the coming reduction, and even though the purchased power may cost more under a new contract there will be no increase to the consumer. There is, however, a possibility of a further reduction.

This showing in a lighting department in a city a little over half the size of the territory served by the local plant is made possible by the purchase of electricity at a marked advantage over small plant production costs.

Norwich has been shown how, through the purchase of its electricity, it can cut the price of electricity to consumers, get all the current it wants for distribution and meet the constantly increasing demands for greater service.

Westfield is handling this question with the business judgment of a private corporation. Westfield shows the way.

SMUGGLING ALIENS.

Is the enforcement of our new immigration law going to be as difficult as the enforcement of the prohibition law? This might seem to be the case if we are to judge by the situation which has been disclosed along a short section of our Canadian boundary in Vermont, where Newport has a jail full of those who were being smuggled into this country and is steadily adding to the number.

It was but a few days ago that there was a well conceived plan to smuggle a boatload of foreigners into the country along the north Atlantic coast. The aliens had paid well for their trip and the promise of being landed on these shores. They parted with their money before starting so that the fact that they were stopped makes them, rather than the smugglers, out of pocket. It is the same situation that is being revealed in Vermont, but there is the additional satisfaction of having caught two who were engaged in the smuggling operations.

That the aliens will be deported can be expected, but it is also to be expected that those who were encouraging them to violate the law will be properly penalized. It is a time when there is need of making an example of such individuals. The fight against such law breakers cannot be waged half heartedly. It is not a time for the display of leniency if it is desired to impress upon others that the law was passed to be respected and not to be played with.

If the Newport, Vermont, jail is filled with those who have come across the line illegally, what can be the situation along the entire Canadian border? It reveals a situation which calls for prompt measures for increased border protection, with the authorities and the courts properly backing up those engaged in the job of blocking the smugglers. It is not the easiest of jobs, but the success of it will largely depend upon the attitude that is displayed in those who have been caught. By the example that is made of them much can be done to discourage such operations. If nothing is done the increased restrictions might just as well not have been voted. The effect upon the country from smuggled aliens will be much worse than as if a larger number had been admitted through the usual channels.

PLODDERS AND SPEEDERS.

In its consideration of the dangers of the highway the Bridgeport Post finds it difficult to decide which is worse, the fellow who is bent upon speed or the fellow who drives at a slower rate than most drivers.

The slow plodder is so rated because he has not been driving long or because he wishes to protect himself as well as other users of the highway. It seems a bit severe to rate him as a menace and to intimate that he ought not to be allowed on the highways unless he is willing to drive his car at a certain speed, or unless he is willing to drive so fast that no one would want to pass him.

As for those who take their autos out on much traveled highways simply for the purpose of exercising the dog there cannot be much said. They can be rated as a nuisance, and they are particularly bothersome to the nervous driver who cannot or is not willing to tolerate even a brief delay, though he may be going nowhere in particular and has all the time to make it in.

Where a string of autos pile up behind a slow driver there is bound to be passing. That is where the dangerous cutting in is done. The desire to take away the right of way of the other fellow may lead to serious consequences, especially when attempted on hills and curves. But while the slow driver may be responsible for the vehicles behind attempting to get ahead, it is invariably the case that a half minute's delay would permit of passing without trouble. The slow driver is in fact no different than the truck, and in most instances nowhere near as bad.

The slow driver may well keep off the much used thoroughfares until he can maintain a fair speed with safety, but a mad race over the highways is not justified. It invites the taking of big chances and the wonder is that there are not more accidents because of that highly dangerous practice of cutting in which comes from fast driving and the unwillingness to give proper considerations to the rights of other highway users. We cannot make our highways racetracks just to satisfy the speeders and the reckless.

MEXICO ELECTS CALLES.

If by any strange method of reasoning it was figured that any other than Candidate Calles would win the presidency of Mexico, it has been corrected by the official announcement that General Calles has won by a plurality of more than 1,300,000. That isn't even what might be called close. It was a walkover in which must be considered that Calles was the candidate of President Obregon, a fact which was sufficient to make his election a foregone conclusion. Backed by the powers that be it was simply practically a useful effort on the part of others.

Calles has been charged with harboring bolshevic ideas, and such was used against him during the campaign, and as soon as he takes office eyes will be focused on his administration for the purpose of discerning any such indications, or determining whether that was simply a campaign cry intended to injure but without good foundation.

President Obregon has not been regarded as a disciple of Lenin. He has not advocated policies which aroused the opposition of this country the same as has been the case with those in Moscow. It took some time to get him to the point where it was possible for this country to extend recognition to his government. If it were so that he leaned strongly toward bolshevism it is surprising that it has not cropped out more emphatically during his presidency, while if he is not a follower of it himself it is hard to understand why he should be the supporter of a candidate with pronounced views upon the subject.

Whatever may have been said of him and whatever may be his policy, Calles has been picked to guide Mexico and there will be opportunity to judge him by his actions. He has no small problem before him but he has a chance to render a valuable service to his country by a constructive administration. Obregon has done much for Mexico but Calles can do better or do much worse.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: The cry for more steam has disappeared.

The Brazilian revolution isn't causing much worry to those who do not drink coffee.

For the relief of the flood conditions in China how much will bolshevik Russia contribute?

Trotsky says communism is a failure. Lucky for him he didn't show up at the St. Paul convention.

Aviator MacLauren who was forced down in a fog couldn't have had much experience about London.

Norwich could easily produce ten times as many roses as it does and come nowhere near overdoing it.

Putting down the Sao Paulo revolution isn't proving to be as easy as has been the case in the past or as was anticipated.

The cut in the price of gasoline is welcomed but it will require a tremendous consumption to get rich off of the saving made.

The fellow who has to cut the grass always thinks the chap who tends the heater and takes out the ashes in winter is better off, and vice versa.

With two excursion boats plying the Thames once more Norwich is reminded of the days that are gone when bigger boats in the same service did a big business.

The grass which old Sol is burning up will not have to be cut by the chap behind the lawnmower, but it doesn't contribute anything to the appearances of otherwise attractive grounds.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

This morning I telephoned Polly Gray asking her to save a seat for me at the Welfare league luncheon. She seemed rather annoyed at the idea.

"There will be a tremendous crowd, Lucile. Why don't you meet me down there early, and we can get our seats together? We ought, as representatives of the Dix Amies, to be right on time."

"I know it, Polly, but unfortunately I have an errand downtown that may detain me until almost 12, so for that reason I'm depending on you to reserve a seat next to yours. If you go early, it won't be any trouble at all for you, dear, and I shall be grateful."

"Very well, but remember the luncheon is 'set' for a quarter after 12, so don't you dare be late," she said.

"Of course not. Don't you worry about that." I answered reassuringly, and I know that if I had not happened to meet George Requier in the haberdasher's where I went to look for a nifty tie to wear with my smart new golf waistcoat I should not have been the least tardy.

"Well, this is a surprise," remarked George. "What are you doing in these precincts, young lady?"

"I am dallying with the idea of purchasing these stunning Scotch ties," I returned laughingly. "We can't get these goifish weaves in the women's shops, but, ugh, the prices here!"

"Not so much, are they? You know these goods are made to last." The clerk beamed upon him appreciatively. "If you should allow me the pleasure of having these ties placed on my charge account I should expect the satisfaction of seeing you wear them five years from now."

"But, George," I began to protest. "You really mustn't. I——"

"Why mustn't I? What are two little rags of silk neckwear between old friends, I'd like to know, Lucile? If I can't give you these, then you can't give me any more Sunday evening suppers."

Of course after that speech I could only accept the ties gracefully, and when he suggested that we have luncheon together, and take a spin out to the Wayfarers' club, to see how the new greens are coming on, I could not refuse. We had a jolly time. Although we weren't dressed for golf, we went to the practice green and tried mashie shots. It was a pleasant afternoon.

Polly Gray telephoned me a few minutes ago, and I was really astonished to see what a temper she was in.

"Lucile," she said, "I waited and waited and held your chair until I was positively ashamed of refusing it to dozens of people. At last the chairman of the day sent me word that it was unethical to keep a chair vacant when so many were unseated. Imagine my mortification. Of course, then I released it, and four women all ran for it."

"Good gracious, how undignified, Polly," I interrupted. "Some of those Welfare leaguers are really crude, aren't they? I am awfully sorry that it happened the way it did, and that you were put in an uncomfortable position, dear. But something most unexpected came up and I did think of telephoning you, but knew that I couldn't get you paged in all that crowd there, and if I had you would have lost your place at the table, so it was really better that I didn't try to phone you."

"An engagement doesn't mean much to you, does it, Lucile?" asked Polly in a most disagreeable tone. "I always feel that a promise to be at a certain place at a certain time is just as binding as any other promise. But you——"

"Polly," I said indignantly, "if you understood what kept me away today you would not judge me so harshly."

"That's the funny part, Lucile," she laughed unpleasantly. "It happens I do know what kept you away. My brother Tom saw you out at the Wayfarers' this afternoon."

"Oh, Polly, it was this way I——" but she had broken the connection without giving me any chance to explain. I think that most unfair of her.—Chicago News.

Washington Ignored Discouragements

George Washington's elder brothers were sent to Europe to be educated but he was 11 when his father died and left the mother only the homestead farm at Bridges Creek, Virginia, as her sole inheritance. The boy had to attend the crude schools nearby until 16. He studied surveying and was successful at the work, but had to abandon it to take a brother on a hopeless quest for health in the Bahamas.

When the French invaded the Ohio country, he at 20, took charge when Colonel Fry died, won a victory and later wisely withdrew before superior French forces for which act he was reduced in rank.

After General Braddock had been wounded Washington took charge of the retreat, was made chief of staff and later, with General Forbes completed the journey and the capture of Fort Duquesne.

Soon afterward he was elected to the Virginia House of Burgesses and married Mrs. Custis. He invested in the Mississippi Company, induced friends to subscribe then spent seven years trying to secure a grant from the crown, but all was lost when the Revolution was started.

He was diffident and knew little about military tactics and against his will was made commander in chief of the Revolutionary forces, serving without pay. The army was an armed mob, enlistments were running out and virtually he had to organize a new force. Congress meddled, men deserted and criticism was bitter as he was pushed back through New Jersey. Then the capture of Trenton changed sneers to praise. In the next eighteen months other American generals won success while he met defeat and trouble. There was Valley Forge, the attempt to put Gates in his place, and the wrangling of congress. Next came the three-year wait outside New York for the French fleet but he was never discouraged.

Peace restored, he retired, borrowed funds and bought more land, but was practically drafted as president. He was reelected and his decision to keep out of foreign affairs caused rabid hatred.

At the time of his death he was honored by the world as a man and a statesman. Rated according to present-day standards of riches he was a multimillionaire.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Burton K. Wheeler, who has created something of a sensation in political circles by bolting the democratic party and espousing the third-party movement led by Senator La Follette, has been pretty much in the centre of the political spotlight ever since he entered the United States senate two years ago as one of the representatives from the state of Montana. His rise to a place of importance in the senate was almost meteoric in its rapidity, and also contrary to established precedent and time-honored tradition in the upper house. He allied himself with the progressive bloc and soon was recognized as one of its leaders. Mr. Wheeler is a lawyer of Butte and had served in the Montana legislature and as a United States district attorney before being sent to Washington. Although nominated for the senate as a regular democrat, he was opposed by the more conservative element of that party. He is a native of Massachusetts and received his education principally at the University of Michigan.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Further Explanation

Mr. Editor: I wonder if Mr. Troland or A. E. S. can reconcile the following with a doctrine of three gods in one? I think the verse I gave being the Lord's own translation, of the "Atoneness" should be sufficient. They reject His testimony because they know neither the Father nor His Son, as they ought to know them, as they reveal themselves. Let all who are interested read the verse again I mentioned and see if it is not very plain, John 17:9-20-23. Read 1 Cor. 15:23 to 28 verses also: It says that after the millinial reign of Christ when all things are subdued until Him (Christ), then shall the Son also be subject unto him (the Father) that put all things under Him (the son). As all students understand this, when Christ's reign of a thousand years are over (it will take this time to subdue sin and its effects and bring back the paradise lost which is the mission the Father gave to Him) then in its perfection He delivers it all again unto the Father's care and His mission of restoration has ended. Thereby all are again then under Jehovah's care. Now Jesus said "The Father is greater than I." And again Jehovah had no beginning. He is from everlasting to everlasting. Psa 41:13; 90:2; 106-48. Jesus Christ our Lord had a beginning. He was the first creation of God (the Almighty One, Ho Theos) in Rev. 3:14 Christ declares himself to be the faithful and true witness, the first Creation of God John 1:1 Should read rightly translated: "In the beginning was the word (Jesus) and the word was with (Hotheos) the God, and the word was (Theos) a god. (Theos) means mighty. (Ho Theos) All Mighty. That is plain isn't it? Then I just wish to say that I heard Mr. Rice's lecture in which he casually mentioned the trinity of three gods in one god, as one of the fundamental errors which has with immortality and the false meaning given to the word hell, eternal torment and purgatory, etc.) helped to bring about the confusion and evil now prevalent in the world. The lecture was fine and well understood by me and others in attendance as far as I know. I would like to ask Mr. Troland or any one else who believes this unbelievable and unreasonable doctrine of the trinity, how they interpret the death of Christ Jesus on the cross. Did the Father die for three days and leave the universe without a ruler or controller, or did he deliberately lie and make believe dead? Then who did Jesus Christ go to when He ascended into heaven after the 40 days when He told His disciples that He was going to the Father? It looks as though these error believers must think him a terrible deceiver. And at His baptism in the Jordan was the Holy Spirit and the voice from heaven another deceit or lie? Come on ye who know not the Father, or the Son and search the Scriptures with me.

Stories That Recall Others

A Clever Judge

Not all Englishmen drop their "h's" of course. To many of them such clipped words as "'ot" and "'ouse" sound as unpleasant as they do to us. The story is told that on one occasion a case having to do with a horse was being tried before Judge M and the plaintiff's attorney kept referring to the animal as an "'orse." The judge stood it as long as he could and then he said:

"Mr. X was the animal a large horse or a small one?"

"Oh, a little one, your honor."

"Then, Mr. X, for the remainder of the case let us call it a pony."

A Social Error

Donald had fidgeted at the table, fussed to go out to play again, and had been a rather naughty boy, so it was with a little sigh of relief that his mother said he might be excused.

At the sound of the clatter of the dishes that announced the taking out of the plates preparatory to the serving of the dessert, Donald came in. The big short cake smothered in luscious berries and whipped cream, he eyed with delight, and coaxingly approached his mother, saying:

"Mother, may I be unscused?"

A Little Talk on Thrift

Fundamental Truths

"Everyone ought to realize that the sole source of national wealth is thrift and industry, and that the sole supply of the public treasury is the toil of the people."

It was in these words that the president of the United States, in a recent address before the National Education Association in Washington, epitomized the importance of thrift, and made clear its absolute necessity to this nation.

We are apt to think of our national wealth in terms of mines, forests and fields, but, in the final analysis, it is the industry and thrift of the people that gives real value to these material possessions.

The same fundamental truths may be applied in the case of the individual, and the president's words, viewed from this standpoint, bring into relief the co-relationship of thrift and individual success.

The United States is today the wealthiest nation in the world and yet as the president has pointed out, our only source of national wealth is thrift and industry. It was, in fact, through these virtues that we reached our present exalted position of affluence, and only through the continuation of these practices shall we hope to retain our high place among the nations of men.

Neither the nation nor the individual can long endure in prosperity and progress without industry and thrift.—American Society for Thrift.

Practive Teaching for Agricultural College Students.

Twenty-eight senior students in the department of agricultural education at the Pennsylvania State College took a month of "practice teaching" in the vocational schools of the state in the past year. These agricultural students are prepared to teach in the 40 rural community vocational schools and 34 vocational departments now in Pennsylvania. Ten counties in the state have agricultural vocation supervisors who do itinerant instruction in the high schools.

Increase 1,00 Per Cent in Four Months

According to a recent announcement, the enrollment of the Alaska Agricultural College and School of Mines is 60 students, distributed as follows: 1 senior, 1 junior, 11 sophomores, 13 freshmen, 17 special students, and 17 short-course miners. The college opened four months before with an enrollment of six students. Courses offered during the present year are mining agriculture, business administration, geology, general science, home economics, engineering, and metallurgy. This college is located at Fairbanks, Alaska.

A Gigantic Log

The Pacific slope is noted the world over for its magnificent forests. These consist for the most part of conifers—pine, cedar, hemlock, spruce and other species—of which many attain enormous size and tower aloft for hundreds of feet.

Not long ago a giant yellow fir was found in Oregon by loggers working at Bling Slough. This venerable king of the forest was felled and the butt section placed on an iron platform car. The tree was perfectly sound throughout.

The log was twenty-eight feet long, 110 inches in diameter at the butt and ninety-five inches in diameter at the upper end. It weighed more than twenty-three tons, and contained 12,000 feet of lumber, board measure. The tree from which it was cut was 431 years old, and rose to a height of 200 feet without a limb. Seven sections of this tree which were logged yielded together 40,000 feet of lumber. The log was cut into first-class flooring and sold at a good price.

Everybody believes in dreams—but not necessarily in their significance.

INVITATION FOR ROQUE TOURNEY IN PHILADELPHIA

Notices have been received here of the 1924 tournament of the Eastern division of the American Roque league, which is to be held at Philadelphia after having been a fixture at the Rockwell street grounds in this city for many years and before that at grounds on Cliff street. At the tournament last year it was voted to move to Philadelphia.

The roque courts at the Rockwell street grounds are not being kept in condition this year in that it is unlikely that Norwich will have any players in the Philadelphia tournament as there is no opportunity to practice in advance.

Tennis is now the attraction at the Rockwell street grounds and the roque courts have few moments during the day when they are not in use.

The Philadelphia invitation is as follows.

For forty consecutive years the annual tournament of the National Roque Association were staged at Norwich, Conn., where hospitalities of that beautiful city were enjoyed by enthusiastic roquers year after year. Following the merger of that association (as the Eastern Division) with the American Roque League, the tournaments were continued annually, but last year it was determined to transfer them to Philadelphia.

The Quaker City Roque club, on whose grounds the 1924 tournament will be held, has six courts located in Fairmount Park, a little north of Strawberry Mansion, and within a stone's throw of the corner of Ridge avenue and Huntington street. For the club's convenience, and with the consent of Charles B. Crowell, president of the Eastern Division, this year's tournament will be held during the last week in August, beginning on August 26th, and running over into Labor Day, September 1, if necessary, for the finishing of the games.

The Quaker City Roque club joins the Eastern Division of the American Roque club in cordially inviting all roque players to attend, and will take pleasure in securing accommodations. Players are requested to write promptly to R. E. Bovee, 2907 Columbia avenue, Philadelphia, stating when they will arrive and the accommodations desired.

Players who intend to make their own arrangements as to stopping places, will please notify W. C. Rodman, 1420 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, advising him of their intention to attend, and their expected dates of arrival.

SAVED WOMAN FROM DROWNING AT POQUYOGH

The quickness of thought and action of William Mahoney, a summer resident at Poquyogh, Waterford, saved Miss Georgette Wagner from drowning while bathing at Poquyogh beach Thursday afternoon.

The beach was crowded with people, both town folks and visitors, brought out by the extremely hot weather, and Miss Wagner, who is in charge of the young people of the French colony, decided to swim from the raft out around the point to the old stone dock.

Miss Wagner had successfully accomplished this feat on many occasions for she is a strong swimmer, but a heavy tide was coming in and at the point she encountered a swift current against which she could make no headway. She became fatigued, lost her confidence and shouted for help.

Mr. Mahoney was on the beach with a company of friends. He heard her shout and plunged in to the rescue. Like an accomplished life saver he carefully approached the young lady and got her safely to shore.

Charles Pratt of Hartford offered his car and Miss Wagner was taken home where, later, it was reported she was in no way the worse for her experience.

STEAMER MYRA HAS BROKEN PROPELLOR SHAFT

Further investigation has been made of the damage done to the Myra, Ocean Beach pleasure steamer, operated under the management of Attorney Charles F. Willard, which was stranded in Long Island sound Tuesday, while taking a group of passengers around the lightship.

At first it was believed that the propellor key had been lost and that the shaft was whole. Wednesday C. H. Crandall, purser aboard the Myra, dove under the hull. He held the propellor shaft stationary while the engine was turned over, and it developed that there was obviously a break in the shaft.

The Myra, it is believed will be hauled up on the ways at the Thames shipyard and that in addition to the repairing the propelling mechanism, the bottom of the hull will be scraped.

The Myra will probably be back in service in a few days.

PROCEEDING WITH TWELVE NAILS IN THE TUBE

Telegrams received from Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kingsley, driving the Harley-Davidson motorcycle on a coast to coast trip, point out that the test of "self seal leak proof" inner tubes, manufactured by the H. H. Allyn Co., of Norwich, is going big in every city they have struck thus far on the trip. The last telegram was dated July 23 and was sent from Niagara Falls, N. Y., where another test of the tubes had shown them to be in A-1 condition

Mr. Kingsley reported that thus far on his trip across the country twelve nails have been driven into the tube, which stood the test perfectly.

The telegram received from Cooperstown described the progress made up to that time. Henry M. Perkins, acting chief of, police, Springfield, tested tubes, stood test. James W. Parsons, Pittsfield chamber of commerce, O. K. William W. Hackett, mayor of Albany, N. Y, tested tubes. Pictures taken driving nail. Much interest in results. Said tubes are wonderful. Mayor Campbell, mayor of Schenectady, N. Y., said tubes are fine. Much surprise with results. Seven holes in front tubes. No loss of air.

The second telegram from Niagara Falls, read as follows: Hon Frederick Gillmore, mayor of Utica, N. Y., drove large nail into front tube. No loss of air. Withstood the test. Hon. John N. Walrath, mayor of Syracuse, N. Y., drove nail into tube. Was much surprise with results. Said tubes tested perfect. Would like to get agency for Oswego county, N. Y. Have had 12 nails driven into tube with no loss of air. Going big.

DOCTORS MAKE MERRY IN ANNUAL OUTING

Some 30 members of the Norwich Medical association with guests from New London, Westerly, Mystic and Willimantic took a half day off Thursday and enjoyed an outing at the Pease House, Saybrook Point.

Shortly after the arrival of the doctors a fine chicken dinner was served. Thumm's orchestra of this city, which had made the trip with the association furnishing a fine musical programme during the banquet. Edward Connelly, popular local tenor, also pleased his audience with a number of solos.

The activities began shortly after 2 o'clock and many of the doctors responded with impromptu speeches, mostly along medical lines. The outing was a great success and seems likely to become a yearly event, assuming even larger proportions in another year.

The committee in charge of the day comprised Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, George Thompson and Clarence C. Gildersleeve.

Hundreds of Norwich people escaped the heat of the city Thursday afternoon by going to the shore or out into the country. A number remained at the beach well into the evening, returning home when it was somewhat cooler than in the mid-day hours.

ROCKWELL STREET GUTTER HAZARD TO MOTORISTS

Now that more and more motor car owners are riding to Mohegan park those who drive in or come out by the Rockwell street entrance at the head of Pratt street need to be warned against the deep gutter that they strike on the farther side of Rockwell street.

It is enough to toss anyone off the seat as the car goes into the park and should a car hit it at speed after coming down the hill on the way out, the driver would be lucky if his passengers were not all strown over the road and driven through the top of the machine.

Residents in the corner house across from the park entrance can enjoy a rare period of entertainment at any time by posting themselves on the porch and observing car after car bump the bumps at this point.

A Man's World

No man's world is any bigger than the man himself That which his eye can see, his ear can hear and his heart can feel make up for him his universe. For no man has anything he can't use. What good is money to a Hottentot or a magnificent picture to an idiot? You have to know how to us the one and enjoy the other before they are of any value to you.

The world of hte scientist, poet, artist or musician is filled with wonderful sights and sounds. They have trained themselves to appropriate the elements of nature and mold them into a more perfect form.

Most of us live in a small world—our home, our business, our neighbors, fill the universe for us. We have not learned to see with the scientist or hear with the musician. For the whole world for us lies under your own hat and it is just as large and just as varied as the capacity of your own minds will let it become.—Farming.

Forests and Rainfall

Although throughout most of the world the influence of forests is to increase rainfall through increase of the humidity of the atmosphere, or at least to equalize conditions throughout the year, a curious reversal of this action has been reported from Australia. Some trees there are resistant to drought through their ability to retain to the utmost what moisture they contain, giving off very little of it to the air. It has been found that if this type of forest be cut and replaced with grass and farm crops more moisture gets into the atmosphere and an increased rainfall results. Mountain forests increase rainfall through their ability to condense the moisture of low clouds and fogs.

W. H. Bennett, Rome, Ga., and his wife were arrested as a result of the discovery under a house in Chattanooga, Tenn., by workmen of a grave containing the skeleton of an aged woman. Detectives say that an aged aunt of Bennett, Miss Augusta Hoffman, disappeared in 1915.

TUNNEY SCORES TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT OVER CARPENTIER IN SLASHING BOUT

New York, July 24.—Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, won a technical knockout over Georges Carpentier of France in the 15th round of a scheduled 15 round match at the Polo Grounds tonight. Carpentier was unable to continue after coming up for the 15th round.

A blow which Carpentier's handlers said was low, at the termination of the fourteenth round, sent Carpentier to the mat in writhing pain, but Referee Eddy Griffin refused to call the blow a foul and ordered Carpentier to continue when the bell sounded for the fifteenth.

The Frenchman came out, but sank to the floor, unable to continue. The referee awarded the fight to Tunney by a technical knockout, terminating the match after fourteen seconds of the fifteenth round in which not a blow was struck.

The conclusion of the match, one of the most confusing and unsatisfactory endings in local ring history, came when Carpentier, doubled up from apparent pain, attempted to renew the battle from a semi-crouched position. He groped around the ring, attempting to find Tunney. Referee Griffin, uncertain whether to allow Carpentier to continue waved Tunney to his corner with the idea of stopping the match. Carpentier rolled to the floor of the ring unable to stand.

The ringside was a bedlam of confusion. Handlers of both fighters rushed into the ring. Francois Descamps, Carpentier's manager, with arms waving, rushed to the referee yelling "Foul!" "Foul!" Griffin waved him away while Joe Humphries, official announcer lifted Tunney's arm in token of victory.

Many of the spectators thought the blow which terminated the bout was foul, and booed the decision. They cheered Carpentier to the echo as the French idol was assisted through the ropes by his handlers and several patrolmen.

It was the tenth round that gave the crowd of forty thousand its most thrilling three minutes. Sensing victory over the apparently tiring Carpentier who had been the target for a vicious body battering, Tunney rushed for the Frenchman at the opening gong and brought both hands to the jaw with lightning rapidity. Carpentier dropped flat on his back in the center of the ring, but up at five, groggy but still full of fight. He lurched and at the break Tunney's right sent him again to the canvas. He appeared to be in great distress and was bleeding at the mouth. But the stout heart that has made him the idol of Europe brought him to his feet for more. He shook his head and leaped for Tunney, landing a right to the jaw that rocked the American champion. Carpentier, still dazed, made a pretense of exchanging blows and managed to keep his feet until the gong.

At the opening of the fourteenth, Carpentier rushed Tunney to the ropes. In the countering, Tuney attempted to bring up his left, but it landed near the belt, and Carpentier sank to his knees, rising with pain. The bell rang and Carpentier's trainers carried him to his chair. He was unable to stand up straight. While his handlers were excitedly claiming a foul, the gong for the fifteenth sounded and Carpentier staggered from his corner. When he reached the center of the ring, he collapsed and the referee waved Tunney to his corner. The crowd, greatly excited, waited for several minutes after the fighters had left the ring, some apparently thinking Tunney disqualified. The officials announced however, that Tunney had won a technical knockout.

Just before the opening match members of the state athletic commission decided that Tunneys title of American light heavyweight champion was not at stake as a Frenchman is not eligible to hold an American title.

Paul Berlenbach, New York middleweight, and Augie Ratner of New York, fought a fast eight round draw in the semi-final match.

Harry Mason, English lightweight, won a verdict on points over Paul Fritsch, of France, in a tame eight-rounder. Mason kept under wraps until the seventh round when he opened up, snatched the aggressive from his French opponent and weighed the scales of victory in his direction. Mason weighed the lightweight limit of 135 while Fritsch scaled 131.

Ray Neuman of Jersey City gave away over 15 pounds of weight in addition to height and reach and won a decision over Leo Gates of New York in a six round slugging match. Neuman weighed 171 and Gates 186 1-2. Neuman was the aggressor from the start.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

Sixth inning. Runner on third base. One man is out and the score is 4 to 4. Batter hits a high foul fly out towards the right field. The second baseman is the only man who can catch it, but he knows that if he catches it, his back will be toward the home plate and he will be in no position to throw the ball.

Should the second baseman catch the ball or else drop it?

The second baseman should always catch such a ball, for there is always a chance to turn quickly and throw at the runner coming in from third at the plate. Remember the inning! The game is not too far advanced for your team to even up matters even if such a runner should score.

YANTIC GRAIN TEAM DOWNS NUGGETS IN GAME FEATURED BY CHARLIE RISLEY

The Yantic Grain defeated a team representing the Nuggets 11 to 7 at the Duwell Field last night. Kegler was the shining light of the Millers striking out ten of the Cigarmakers and making some of them look like wooden Indians. Risley was the star of the Nuggets, Charlie getting four hits out of as many times at bat, two of them being doubles. In the field Charlie Coleman pulled down two hard hit balls that were labeled for hits. Tombari and Risley also played good ball in the field both participating in double plays.

Bob Woodmansee pitched good ball for the Nuggets and deserved a better fate but his support was ragged at times and Bob did not help himself out any, doing his part by making two wild throws to second base in the second inning, letting in three runs. The Millers played a good game in the field although the backstop was a little wild in throwing to second base at times. Too much credit can not be given to Matt Delaney for the nice game that he umpired, no arguments being heard on either side although George Madden did not like one strike that Matt called on him in the fifth inning.

CITY HALL TEAM LOSES ITS FIRST GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 24.—For a period of four innings, the City Hall nine making its first venture in the baseball field this season, played exceptionally good ball and had the Standard Oil nine, a member of the Industrial league by a 1 to 0 score. However a misjudged fly by the City Hall left fielder proved to be the undoing of this nine and before two more innings glided by, the final score found the Socony nine on the long end of a 11 to 2 score.

After the misjudged fly, the City Hall team seemed to lose heart, and it was a terrible slaughter from then on. Up until that time, however, one would want little improvement from a team just breaking into the ranks of baseball and all that was desired of a team was had in the municipal nine. The fielding was sharp behind the City Hall pitcher, Jarvis, and it looked as though the Socony outfit was doomed for a defeat. Later Jarvis found the going too tough and Capwell replaced him. Capwell also found the going rather rough and he allowed a run before the third out in the inning was made.

For the Standard Oil, Dazzy Parisi faced a hard bunch to set down, and except for the support he received, the outcome of the game would have been a little different. Only four hits were made off Parisi, of which were a double by Gamon, a single by Rice and a triple and double by Joe Barry. The infield work of the City Hall nine was by far snappier and cleaner than that of the Oil Cans, and it was only poor work in left field that helped the Socony nine win.

Two home runs were made by Standard Oil players, although neither one should have gone for the circuit. Other safe hitting by the Standard Oil batters was very little and far between.

Next week it is expected that the City Hall team will stack up against the Lions and Rotary clubs.

CHICK EVANS IS ELIMINATED IN WESTERN GOLF PLAY

Chicago, July 24—James Manion of St. Louis, trans-Mississippi champion, will play Albert Seckel of Chicago, formerly western champion, and H. R. Johnston, Minnesota champion, will meet Burton Mudge of Chicago, former junior champion, in the semi-final rounds of the western amateur golf association tournament today in the third round.

The most notable match today was that between Manion and the defending champion, Chick Evans, who held the title for the eighth time. Manion played a brand of golf that might readily have beaten the best ball of any three star players and as Evans was not up to his usual form with his irons, the St. Louis player readily defeated him by the wide margin of 8 and 7.

Next to this match most interest centered in the contest between Johnston and Eddie Held of St. Louis, and it was only on the last nine holes that the Minnesota champion, during a heavy rainstorm was able to overhaul his opponent and win 3 and 1.

CROWDS FOLLOW FIRPO ABOUT STREETS IN NEW YORK

New York, July 24—Broadway continues to dog the steps of Luis Angel Firpo. The big Argentine heavyweight blazed a trail through the heart of New York's business district today followed by a crowd of curious persons who seriously impeded traffic. The South American plans to go to Washington, D. C., tomorrow to pay his respects to Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentine ambassador to the United States. His visit is purely a social one.

Firpo saw Rickard again today but the promoter refused to make a statement other than that the date is still undecided. Virtually every arrangement for the fight has been made with the exception of the date, which will be after August 30, Rickard said.

N. L. Independents After Games

The New London Independents have organized for the present baseball season. Although they are getting away to a late start as an organization the men individually are by no means making their first appearance on the baseball diamond. This team is picked of the best talent in New London and vicinity and it will take a fast team to beat them.

The first game they have scheduled is with the Taftville A. A. at Taftville on July 26th. They have an open date on Aug. 10th and could accommodate any fast team that desires a booking. They would particularly like to hear from the Ashland Club of Jewett City, the Duwells, J B. Martin Co., St. Joseph Hospital and Baltic or any other fast club.

The calibre of the team needs no comment in this section of the state as they have shown in previous years what they could do.

Write to George O. Gadbois, manager New London Independents Baseball Team, 45 Nameaug Avenue, New London, Conn.

American Yachts Win

Marblehead, Mass., July 24—The International yacht racing series between teams of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto and the Eastern Yacht Club of Marblehead was completed today with an American victory in the last race and in the series. The final point score was: Americans 36; Canadians 24.

In each of the two races today, the local yachtsmen won first and third places. In the afternoon race, decided in light airs, over a triangular course, Captain Wedd of the Canadian team gained a long lead in the run that formed the second leg, but the wind shifted and in the beat home Captain Benson of the Americans weathered him half way to the finish and won with more than a minute to spare.

Elizabeth St. Wins Two Out of Three

On the Lake street grounds Thursday evening Miss Shugrue's team composed of girls from the Elizabeth street playground dealted their opponents in straddle ball, in dodge ball 12-11, 13-12, 13-9, but were just nosed out in field hockey by a score of 3-0. Were it not for the hooting of several unsportsmanlike young men, who sometimes even interfered with the playing of the visiting team's plucky goal tender, the result would have been different. Though only a practice game it is consistent with common politeness to treat opponents fairly at all times.

Hyman Wins For Profs.

New Haven, July 24.—Sam Hyman, discarded by Hartford a few days ago, was signed by New Haven about 20 minutes before the game with Albany today and after he had changed to his baseball uniform he defeated the Empires, 6 to 5, in 10 innings. Hyman pitched a wonderful game, and it was his bat that kept the locals in the running, until Manager Milan batted in the winning run in the tenth. He got two doubles and a single, knocking in two runs and walked twice.

City League Game Tonight

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 24.—With the race in the City league reaching the stage where the next few games will have an important bearing on the winner of the league, the Tabs, holders of the cellar position will oppose the Fort Trumbull Stars at Morgan park Friday evening. There is no doubt that a good tussle will result when these teams meet, for both will have new and experienced twiriers on the mound for them.

When the Corticelli Silk nine upsetting the league leading Knights of Columbus nine last Tuesday, the Fort Trumbull Stars were able to come within a half game of first place. A tie for first place will be the outcome in case of a victory for the Fort nine, but the defeat will count heavily for this team, will drop into a tie for second place with the Corticelli nine. Tpolin is scheduled to twirl his first game for the Temperance men with Douten on the receiving end. For the Stars they also will have a new slab artist on the mound for them

By DAVID CORY

A Pin For Lady Love.

"Rat-a-tat-tat!" went the bunny boy
On the kitchen door with his candy toy.
Maybe I should say "Candy Cane."
But it doesn't rhyme—so I have to explain.

At once Little Miss Mousie, the old gentleman bunny's tiny housekeeper, opened the door. There sat dear Uncle Lucky, reading the Bunny-bridge Bugle. He had already finished breakfast, but he hadn't finished the morning newspaper. Dear me, no, three times. It never took him long to suck thirteen carrot cakes under his waistcoat, but it required nearly two hours and fifteen seconds to store away in his kind old head the news of Rabbitville.

"Hello, hello!" he exclaimed, pushing his spectacles up on his forehead. "How's my little) bunny nephew this lovely morning?"

"Goodness me, I feel so well
There isn't any use to tell."

answered the bunny boy. "Don't I look spick and span?"

"You certainly do," replied the old gentleman bunny. "Lady Love knows now to buy the nicest clothes for her little rabbit.

I think I'll buy her a diamond pin To sparkle under her pretty chin."

"Let's take the Luckymobile and go right down to the Three-in-One-Cent Store," suggested the little rabbit, just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat.

"Hold on!" laughed Uncle Lucky. "Give me just a minute or two to take off my slipper and slip on a shoe," and nice Uncle Lucky hopped up and looked around for his Easy Feely shoes. He never wore tight ones. Oh dear me, no! for the rheumatiz pinched his pinky toe!

Then, placing his old wedding stovepipe hat on his head, he hopped out to the garage, followed by his bunny nephew. As soon as they were seated in the Luckymobile, the dear old gentleman rabbit waved his paw at Little Miss Mousie standing in the doorway, and away he went through the white picket gate, faster and faster for fear he'd be late. Perhaps he feared that the diamond pin would be bought by somebody else.

By and by, after a while, with a bump and a smile, and almost a mile, the two little bunnies stopped before the Three-in-One-Cent Store in Rabbitville. Out hopped dear Uncle Lucky, followed by the bunny boy and in less time than I can take to tell it, kind, generous Uncle Lucky had picked out a perfectly gorgeous diamond pin to wink at the dimple in Lady Love's chin.

"Put it in a pretty white box lined with yellow plush," said the old gentleman rabbit. "Your old Uncle is particular, yes, very particular when he gives a present to a lady rabbit." And, in the next story you shall hear Lady Love's happy laugh when she opened the little package.

GALES FERRY

A fiery cross attracted the attention of some of the residents of the place between 8 and 9 o'clock Wednesday evening, burning for a brief time on the elevation west of the railroad station, overlooking, and near the center of the village. The place was visited Thursday morning and a cross, made of three-quarter inch water pipe, ten feet in length with cross bar about four and one-half feet, suspended from wires, between trees, was seen there. The cross had been wound with burlap thickly, and saturated with oil and kerosene, and burned briskly. The residents suppose the place has been visited by the Ku Klux Klan, as it is said a meeting of the order has been held in this town. Automobiles with parties, that were strangers, were noticed here toward evening, but as so many parties motor here, nothing was thought of their presence.

WESTERLY

Eugene B. Pendleton, moderator of the town of Westerly, who was taken several weeks ago to Stamford hall near Stamford, was reported very low Thursday afternoon, his condition having taken a turn for the worse. It was thought that with the treatment given him there was an improvement noticed in his health at first which would continue, but reports on Wednesday and Thursday were most unfavorable.

William Clark, former general manager of the William Clark mill of the American Thread company in Pawcatuck, was fortunate in escaping serious injury Thursday noon at the grounds of the Misquamicut Golf club at Watch Hill. As it was Mr. Clark sustained a nervous shock and some injury to his back when seated in his 1923 Special Stutz touring car weighing nearly two tons the auto overturned twice times as it rolled down the steep bank by the golf club house. Medical attention was given Mr. Clark by Dr. Edmund LeRoy Chew a member of the Misquamicut Golf club and in the afternoon Mr. Clark was brought to his home on Elm street in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps. He is reported as resting as comfortably as can be expected.

It is thought that the automobile was left in gear and when Mr. Clark started the engine after he stepped into the machine following a round of golf the automobile dashed through the rail and plunging forward on the steep slope, struck first on the forward end of the radiator, which was pushed back somewhat. The car took a side motion on the next turn breaking a forward wire wheel and scattering both mudguards on that side. The top of the machine was broken down and the windshield smashed, but the headlights, cases were not broken and the top of the lights merely dented. As the big car rolled down the hill it came in contact with large boulders, one of which badly dented in the body near the rear seat. The car body did not appear sprung as the doors opened readily. The damaged automobile was towed to a Westerly garage.

Norwich and Westerly friends are saddened to learn of the death which occurred last week in Columbus, Ga., of Matthew C. Cuttle, who made his home in Norwich before coming to Westerly to reside on Spruce street. Mr. Cuttle's illness had been of a serious nature since last October. He spent the winter in a sanatorium at Orlando, Fla. For three months previous to his death, he had been in Columbus.

Mr. Cuttle was born in Yorkshire, England, Jan. 3, 1854. He had lived in America many years but his business connections frequently took him abroad.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Fanny Albutt Cuttle, two sons, Francis George Cuttle of Columbus and James Hooley Cuttle of Newburgh, N. Y. A third son died about a year and a half ago.

Funeral services were held in Columbus and the body was taken to Atlanta for burial in West View cemetery.

Before coming to Westerly Mr. and Mrs. Cuttle made their home in Norwich. Mr. Cuttle had been retired from active business several years but was widely known as a chemist. He was interested in music and devoted much of his spare time to activities of musical interest.

At one time Mr. Cuttle resided in Lowell, Mass., while active in his profession as a chemist. At that time he was a member of the Vesper Country club and interested himself in musical affairs, as he did during his residence in Westerly.

Members and friends of the Pawcatuck mission and Bible school had their annual picnic Thursday at Atlantic Beach. The picnic party was in charge of Mrs. Dagmar Smith, superintendent of the mission, and Mrs. Clayton A. Burdick of Westerly.

The session of the Third district court this (Friday) morning before Judge Michael J. Turano promises to be a busy one. Beside the old docket cases to be called there have been entered a number of civil writs which will be called, and these added to the criminal docket, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, complainant, as well as the unfortunate transgressors of automobile laws, who have received "tickets" the past week to report, will mean a busy session.

Mrs. William Burnie, with her daughter and granddaughter, of New Haven, who have been guests the past week at the Atlantic View house, Atlantic Beach, are guests for the present week of relatives and friends in Westerly.

Arthur Portelance having passed last week at the camp "Tumble Inn," of Henry Harriman at Atlantic Beach has returned to his home in Norwich. George Swanton of Norwich is passing the present week there.

Work has begun on the alterations which are to be made on the Bliven Opera House, Main street, the work of removing the chairs being done Thursday. Before the changes are completed an entirely new arrangement of the entrance to the theater will be effected.

The fourth in the weekly series of band concerts by the Westerly band, C. O. Gavitt, director, was given on Thursday evening in Wilcox park, with a large attendance.

Everett G. Young of Norwich and and John Young of Norwich and New York have been visitors at Comfort Inn, Pleasant View.

Thomas M. Shields and four sons, John Eldred, David Stuart, Stephen Mallon and Nathan Babcock Shields, of Norwich, having returned from a trip abroad, July 16th, were visitors with relatives and friends at Watch Hill Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Archa W. Colt who, with their children, are passing a vacation at Quonochontaug Beach, were guests of relatives and friends at Watch Hill, Wednesday.

MYSTIC

Miss Clara Frink has returned from an automobile trip to Waterloo, N. Y., where she spent two weeks as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Frank Irons.

Word has been received from Miss Louise Paige, who sailed on the Leviathan July 5th, of her arrival in France and that the trip across was most enjoyable, with some rough weather the last few days in crossing.

Stonington lodge, No. 26, I. O. O. F., met Wednesday evening and transacted routine business, degree work in this organization having been postponed until fall.

The work of laying drain pipes in the gutter along the new cement road on Broadway and covering the same with cement is being completed this week.

The fishing boats Wells and Elias F. Wilcox, of The Wilcox Fertilizer Co. fleet, were in Tuesday night with good sized catches of fish.

Only eight fresh air children have been sent for from The Tribune Fresh Air Fund to come to Mystic next week for a stay of two weeks, in the country, this being all that the funds in hand and the number of homes in which to place them, will enable the committee to have come here. Four of these children are to be boarded and four are to be placed in private homes.

Norman Donath, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Donath, broke his wrist a few days ago while attempting to crank an automobile.

A large delegation of members of Charity chapter, No. 61, O. E. S., went to Groton Wednesday to the picnic at the home of Mrs. M. L. Small, on Eastern Point road.

Wednesday and Thursday were two of the warmest days so far this season and it was a hard job to find a cool spot either day, in which to keep comfortable. The thermometer went above 90 both days and the singing of the locusts, a sure harbinger of hot weather, was heard for the first time.

The continued drouth is having a serious effect for those engaged in the raising of vegetables for market and the early corn crop is seriously menaced if rain does not fall soon.

Grass is drying up so that farmers are obliged to feed their cattle grain and hay, there being very little or no green fodder in some sections now, and this is sending the price of milk and cream upward.

Besides this, the prices of meat are going up, one traveling man having stated that a market letter received from his house in Chicago this week shows an increase of four cents a pound in the price of cooked ham. This shows the trend of prices and indicates an increase all along the line.

Those who have visited Dean's Mills recently state that the pond seems fairly full of water so that there is no indication of a shortage in the local water supply at present, but it behooves the public to be as careful as possible not to waste water.

There were eighteen present Wednesday afternoon at the semi-monthly meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at the home of Mrs. Edgar V. Whiting on East Main street. The meeting opened with singing, "The World Is Going Dry," followed by reading of the scriptures by the president, Mrs. W. H. Lamb. Prayer was offered by Mrs. C. E. Newbury. Following the singing of "Prohibition's Dawn," the roll call was responded to with current ecent items. After the transaction of miscellaneous items of business, the following programme was carried out: Reading, Notes From Our Publishing House, Mrs. A. E. Cutler; reading, Europe Watching Success of Prohibition in America, Mrs. C. E. Newbury; How We Raised Our Quota of the Million Members, Mrs. J. E. Thompson; Prohibition Has Allowed Washerwomen to Retire, Mrs. Byron Billings; Could This Happen in Your Union? Mrs. Martha B. Stinson; Prayer of the Immigrant, Mrs. Palmer Bindloss; original poem, Election Time Is Coming, written and recited by Mrs. J. E. Thompson. Announcement was made of the Jubilee and picnic to be held Wednesday next at the home of Mrs. A. F. Cutler, on West Mystic avenue, this being an all day affair. A gift of $3 from three persons who are not members was announced. Cake, home made cookies, fancy cakes, candy and tea were served by the hostess.

A very successful whist in the interests of Fanny Ledyard chapter, D. A. R., was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alice N. Clarke on Elm street. There were twelve tables in play, two of auction and two of straight whist. The first prize at auction went to Mrs. Jennie Dodge, and the second to Mrs. Raymond L. Snell, while Mis Julia G. Foote received the prize for the highest score in straight whist. At the conclusion of the playing refreshments were served.

Mystic had a distinguished visitor recently, Dr. Alfred S. Burdick, of Chicago, who with his wife is making a tour of the eastern states, and stopped here en route to call on Miss Mary E. Greene, of Broadway, who is a relative of Dr. Burdick. Dr. Burdick is president and general manager of the Abbott Laboratories of Chicago, president of the American Drug Manufacturers' Association, member of the board of governors of the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association, and lieutenant-colonel, M. R. C., U. S. Army.

Beauty Specialist Tells

HOW FRENCH WOMEN GET THIN

In Paris to-day old ladies and fat women are a thing of the past. Everywhere you turn you meet slender, girlish figures. It has become necessary for smart women to reduce because courturiers and dressmakers are only creating models for the thin and slenders; also large hips and big busts do not fit in with bobbed hair, which has been so largely adopted, so that even women who were only plump or slightly over weight had to reduce to keep in style.

A new discovery has greatly helped French women in their search for slenderness. It is the formula of a French physician, who has been able to concentrate in a small tablet called "SAN-GRI-NA," a combination of harmless ingredients which eliminate from the food (while being absorbed by the system) all unnecessary fat-forming elements, thus preventing fatty tissues to form on the body. You can eat all you want while using "SAN-GRI-NA" and still get thin. While "SAN-GRI-NA" is considered a most remarkable discovery to reduce, it is guaranteed absolutely harmless, and is also endorsed by physicians and patients as a wonderful health-builder. Fat men and women report that almost immediately after starting to use "SAN-GRI-NA" they felt healthier and stronger than before in years. No wrinkles, saggy tissues or stomach disorders follow this simple and easy treatment, so that we can consider to at last have something really worth while trying if we care to become slender and youthful, as fashion has decided we must be. "SAN-GRI-NA" can be had at any leading drug or department store.

SAN-GRI-NA is now sold at Lee & Osgood, McLaughlin's, or Bray's Drug Stores.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

To the Thin—Don't eat fast.
To the Fat—Don't eat. Fast.—Juggler.

Slats—Did you meet any stage robbers while you were out west?
Flats—Yes; I took a couple of chorus girls out to dinner.—Utah Humbug.

Teacher—John, what do you expect to do when you are older?
John—I did think I wanted to be a teacher, but I have decided I want to work.—Exchange.

Daughter—Father, our domestic science professor is teaching us how to spend money.
Father—He might as well teach ducks how to swim.—London Answers.

Did you hear of Smith's death?
No. When did he die?
This morning. Quite suddenly, I understand.
Just like him. He was the most impulsive man I ever saw.—Judge.

You say that your friend speculated on a large scale, remarked the wargist one. May I inquire what was the use of the large scale?
Certainly, returned the cheerful guy. He needed it to weigh the consequences.—Boston Transcript.

Rustic—Be you painting them old trees, sir?
Artist—I am. But it's no business of yours. Why not get on with your work instead of interrupting mine?
Rustic—Well, my work is to chop 'em down, so you'd best hurry up with your painting!—London Passing Show.

"I never knew till I got a car," said Bishop Eighty, "that profanity was so prevalent."
Do you hear much of it on the road?
"Why," said the bishop, "nearly everybody I bump into swears dreadfully." Philadelphia Inquirer.

Workmen in German chemical factories are wearing aluminum shoes with wooden soles.

Fireflies or lightning bugs burn the same materials over and over again in the production of their lights.

The opium popy has a pink or purplish-pink flower of much larger size than the well known red poppy of Flanders fields.

At the annual field day of the Sacramento (Cal.) police, one of the prizes awarded in a race for women was a haircut, shampoo and a marcel.

The fire department of Saco, Me., for the fourth time rescued a cat belonging to Mrs. Ethel Haley, of Main street, which persists in climbing a high tree and refusing to come down.

Great Britain has $489,000,000 invested in rubber plantations; Holland has $130,000,000; Japan, $40,000,000, while the United States which uses three-quarters of the world's rubber has only $32,000,000 in plantations.

The owners of a shoe factory at Pirmasons, Germany, found a way out of their dilemma when they had no cash for their pay roll, by paying their men off in shoes. The shoeworkers had to turn salesmen to dispose of their shoes in return for things to eat.

A kauri tree has recently been discovered in the New Zealand bush which rises to a height of 75 feet to the first branch and measures 22 feet in diameter or about 66 feet in girth. It is estimated to contain more than 135,000 superficial feet of timber.

Tobacco is becoming an increasingly important money crop in Algeria, says a report to the department of commerce from Commercial Attache L. L. Jones, Paris. Acreage planted to this crop has increased more than 100 per cent. in the last decade and production has jumped from 10,866 metric tons in 1913 to 17,280 metric tons in 1923.

Exports of ginger from Hong-Kong to the United States in 1923 represented approximately 14 per cent. of the total exports of 6,000 tons. As usual, Great Britain and Australia were Hong-Kong's best customers, with the United States third and the Netherlands next. All the ginger exported from Hong-Kong is grown in South China, from where it is shipped to Hong-Kong for preparation for export.

It is announced that at Lehigh University, Professor James Long and Professor Henry Ullman, of the chemistry department, have succeeded in making practically a non-breakable cigar. The secret is in the binder, made from tobacco leaf stems which are first pulverized and made into a paper. When used the cigar does not break easily in the pocket. The idea will provide for the use of what was formerly considered waste in the cigar industry. One difficulty was to keep the tobacco stem binder from tasting like paper.

The wind is a source of power that has been utilized since the first sailing vessel put to sea. Until the recent development of the gasoline engine and of the oil supply, windmills were largely used on American farms for pumping water, and wind driven flour mills were familiar features of the landscape in some parts of the eastern states. Gasoline has largely replaced the wind in this country but in South America where gasoline is expensive the wind still does much of the farm work, particularly in Argentina and southern Chile. In Argentina, windmills are more and more used for pumping water for the vast numbers of cattle that are raised in that country.

Attendants at the New York zoo having been stunned by current from the electric eel, an investigation has been begun of the creature's power plant. Previous attempts at measuring the current have failed because the apparatus used was not sufficiently sensitive to reigter the sudden and intense shocks delivered. These according to Popular Mechanics, are said to be powerful enough to stun a horse and are described by keepers who suffered them as "sledge-hammer" blows that caused black and blue marks on the skin. A German professor, according to R. L. Ditmars, curator, has obtained light of dazzling intensity by connecting the current to bulbs, but the flash was over in an instant, defying attempts to measure it.

NOTHING FIXED ABOUT AGRICULTURE

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Didja ever notice the difference between a tree which has grown to maturity in an open pasture and one of the same age and sort which has grown in the thick woods?

Take a white pine, for example. The pine which grows in the forest usually grows up high in the air. It really has to, for that's the only way it can find room to grow. It's crowded on all sides, down below, by other trees and shrubs. It can't branch out much, sideways, without hitting something. So it grows up, tall and straight and usually branchless to a considerable height.

On the other hand, the tree which starts in the open branches out from the bottom about as vigorously as it works upwards. When it has reached maturity it is apt to be a wide-spreading and rather shortish tree, its girth of trunk being much larger at the ground than ten feet up, and its reach of limbs often double its entire altitude. I have measured trees which were not over sixty feet in height and yet whose limbs cast a shadow at high noon of more than a hundred.

There are other differences between the forest-grown and the pasture-nurtured tree. The latter will make twice or three times as much firewood as the former. Its burden of branches, when cut off and trimmed out, "cord up" mighty fast. But its trunk isn't apt to be worth much for lumber. Too short, to begin with, too knotty to work up well.

The forest-grown tree with a comparatively small top doesn't supply so much cordwood. But its straight and lofty trunks turn out four or five or six fine logs which saw up into fairly clear boards. It isn't worth half as much to burn up as its pasture-bred cousin, but it will build twice as much house-wall or lay twice as much roof.

Another thing: the average tree which has grown up by itself out in the open, doesn't ordinarily mind thunderstorms or high winds. It may indeed, lose a branch or two, now and then, torn off by some sudden "twister," but, as a rule, it buffets back the gales with reasonable success.

Cut away its neighbors from around some taller and slimmer forest tree and the chances are that the first hurricane that happens along will break off its lofty top or blow it quite down to the ground. Some years ago on one of my "pine knolls" a graceful lady birch grew up just behind and close to two pines. It grew faster than the pines and quite as tall and branchless. One day, needing a few pine boards, I cut away the two pines. Mistress Lady Birch stood up all right for a week or so till there came a storm of wind and rain. Then, lacking the support of her pines neighbors, she bent before the breeze. That was a fatal mistake for the more she bent the faster she bent, till at last her white stem was curved into a perfect bow and her feathery top lay on the ground sixty or seventy feet away. Nor could she ever thereafter lift it. I left her for a year or two as a striking object lesson, showing what happens to trees and men when they rely too much on outside support to keep themselves up. But Mistress Birch eventually tired of standing on her own head and died. I had to cut her up into firewood, and Her Household Majesty, who presides over the cook stove, informed me, in due season, that there wasn't heat enough in a fire-box of the wood to bake a pan of biscuit.

Not very far away stood a lone-some pine growing all by itself, but in such a way that is was coming to shade one side of a garden patch while its roots were robbing my vegetables of the plantfood intended for their use. So it, too, fell before the axe. It was so branchy that we had to cut it down several times before we could get its trunk to the ground. It made a lot of kindling wood and, by dint of much hacking and hewing, we managed to save one twelve-foot log for the sawyer. But even that was so knotty that the "three-by threes" into which I had it sawed usually broke in two if you ventured to lift one by its end. I didn't get enough usable stuff out of it to pay the saw-bill.

Now for the "great moral lesson" which we, in common with other good little boys, are to draw from all this tree talk.

In fact, there are quite a number of "morals" in it.

One is that trees and men which grow up in crowds are apt to grow straighter and trimmer and hold their heads higher than trees which grow up in open spaces. They are also apt to make more suitable building material. But—

When they are deprived of their supports and compelled to rely on their own stamina to maintain themselves, they are likely to fall down on the job, not to say slump on it.

Another is that trees and men which have had to make their own way, unaided, and fight wintry blasts and summer tempests on their own hook, are likely to be pretty sturdy warriors, and fit to twiddle their twigs or their fingers at the elements But——

They are good for nothing but firewood when cut down, and it's usually more than they're worth even for that to trim them and split them up. They've had to "live on their own" so long that they've grown into a mass of knots and knurls and snags which quite put them out of the timber class. The old cow likes to get under one during the heat of a summer's day.—And sometimes she gets killed while taking shelter under the same tree during a thunderstorm.

As trees, you'll observe, there are some things good and some things not so good to be said for both forest grown and pasture grown trees. Same with men.

The man who develops in a crowd, whose whole life is made up of elbow-touchings with his fellows, is liable to become much more pliant and suave and ingratiating than his fellow who grows up on a hill-road farm. The latter is likelier to be sturdy and self-assured and a good deal more self-asserting, not to say logmatic.

Now heaven forbid that I should take up any cudgel in defense of complaisancy as contrasted with conviction. I pray with equal fervor that I may never be tempted to say a word in behalf of dogmatism.

Why is it that farmers are not usually good "mixers," to use a cant but expressive word? Seems to me our consideration of the trees furnishes the answer. The farmer, like the pasture grown tree, has developed in comparative isolation. He has spread out in whichever direction the spreading was easiest and most natural. He hasn't had any obtrusive branches snubbed back by other close-by neighbors. He hasn't been sheltered by anything and has, therefore, grown a good many gnarls and knots. He has had to make his own way and, not unnaturally, comes in time to regard that way as The Way and The Only Way. He becomes a dogmatist.

And one dogmatist to a township is all the traffic will bear. There isn't room for two within any twelve-mile limit.

We've all heard the question as to what would happen should an irresistible force meet an immovable body. Your dogmatist is always either an irresistible force or an immovable body. And Lord have mercy on the byestanders when two of 'em meet!

"But shouldn't a man stand up for the truth?" You may ask. The answer is that we don't any of us know what is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, even in regard to such matters as everyday farming problems. We form certain beliefs, based on our own experience and observation. We practice farming according to those beliefs,—some of us till we've learned better and some of us whether we've learned better or not. But not one of us is justified in dogmatically asserting that his belief is the infallible truth or his practice the only right one.

The trouble is that we assume to "know" things which we really don't "know" much of anything about. You recall Josh Billings' famous remark that it was better not to know too much than to know so much that wasn't so.

Years ago two old farmers in this otherwise happy valley fought every year like Kilkenny cats over the proper season to plant cucumbers. Uncle Gad averrd that nobody but a dum fool would plant cucumbers in the young of the moon. Uncle Bijah swore with equal vigor that only a numbskull would plant cucumbers in the old of the moon. So for sixty years they kept on planting, the one in the full and the other in the old of the moon. Whenever one had a failure the other would taunt him for a year upon his folly. When the failure was 'tother side the fence, the taunts went in the other direction.

Each one of these old time farmers "knew" which was the right time to plant cucumbers and that settled it,—for him. In the meantime others, who paid scant heed to the moon but planted when they considered the soil right, laughed at the two old dogmatists behind their backs,—and had just about as many failures as either!

When any old farmer begins to "lay down the law" about the right way to farm it, I generally take my rubbers and umbrella and go out into the rain.

I don't pretend to know much about other gainful or merely life-preserving occupations, but the longer I live the stronger grows my antipathy to any sort of dogmatism about farming.

So far as I can see, there aren't any rules for right farming which are universally and generally applicable. There's probably one best way to farm, this particular season. If you're lucky enough to hit it thank your stars and keep your mouth shut. The very same way may not be the best way for my farm,—nor even for your own, next season. One swallow doesn't make summer, nor one streak of luck authorize either you or me to set up any Ten Commandments of Right Farming.

They sometimes sneer at the Yankee habit of guessing. Nevertheless, that's just about what Yankee farming is and must be till we come to "know" a few things which now we can't do anything better than guess at.

It's a wise and necessary thing to have convictions, basing them on such preponderating evidence as is attainable, and holding them till new evidence either corroborates or contradicts them.

But the man who persistently dogmatizes about anything agricultural is usually either too self-conceited too thick headed to be a good judge of any sort of evidence.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

PALACE THEATRE

The dainty and adorable Elaine Hammerstein graces the screen at the Palace theatre, where her latest picture Drums of Jeopardy was shown for its initial performance yesterday. Miss Hammerstein is more than charming, she is an actress of the highest capabilities and her splendid work in this new Truart picture is going to add considerably to her fame and laurels.

The producers were exceedingly fortunate in the selection of Harold Grath's well known novel, because it offers Miss Hammerstein unusual opportunities in the portrayal of what she really is—a real, true American girl. She does, by a great margin, the most convincing and entertaining work we have ever seen her do.

The work of the supporting cast headed by Wallace Beery, who exceeds himself in one of his well-known roles of villainy, and Jack Mulhall, as the hero, is exceptionally fine. Among those who deserve special mention are David Torrence, as Cutty, war correspondent and soldier of fortune, Maude George and Eric Mayne.

New Telephone Girl story no. 5, Pathe review and the Famous Palace orchestra complete this high class program.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Most motion pictures begin with clearly defined characters of good and evil, but Clara Beranger has reversed the method in her original drama, The Bedroom Window, which William de Mille produced for Paramount. In fact, suspicion shifts in so many directions that seldom will two persons agree upon the same suspect at the same moment.

The final solution of the mystery is a carefully guarded secret, and a secret it will remain until The Bedroom Window is flashed upon the screen at the Broadway theatre Sunday.

May McAvoy and Malcolm MacGregor head an unusually strong cast of featured players. Others include Ricardo Cortez, Robert Edeson, George Fawcett and Ethel Wales. Playing in support are Charles Ogle, Meadea Radzina, Guy Oliver, Lillian Leighton and George Caliga.

Larry Semon appears in his latest comedy riot The Midnight Cabaret.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Running true to form the vaudeville and picture show presented for the last half of this week scored an instantaneous hit.

Carl and Valeska Winters appeared with a novelty entitled Trying to Cop-per

The art of singing and dancing combined was further exemplified by Ruby Royce and Peggy O'Neil in Fast and Speedy.

Bob George, that comedian who sings, dances and talks is all one can wish for.

The Four Horsemen with Joe Jenny scored the big hit. This is the big feature of the vaudeville program. Comedy and singing is combined.

Richard Talmadge in Fast Company is the photoplay. It's a riot of thrills and fun that will grip you with excitement and bring you a hundred laughs.

Coming to the Breed

If you relish a good laugh, a tear and a final hearty chuckle, board the Six Cylinder Love special which will make-up daily at the Breed theatre, when William Fox offers his new comedy-drama special on Sunday for a three day run. This is an Elmer Clifton production, made by the man who produced Down to the Sea in Ships. A popular cast, headed by Ernest Truex who played the role he creates in the picture on the stage for three years; Florence Eldridge, eminent Broadway actress; Ralph Sipperly, Donald Meek, Berton Churchill, Maud Hill, Marjorie Milton, Ann McKittrick and others.

The film gives an inkling of the story. The action speeds along with a six-cylinder car, which is purchased by A young man who can hardly afford to do so. Do you know any such? What happens as a result of this impulsive purchase makes of this picture one of the best satiric comedies yet to be filmed.

Week's New Records

We always hear the announcement of new records by Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra with agreeable anticipation. Their record of the prelude to "Carmen" was nothing short of marvelous, and this week they make it a trilogy with the addition of the Soldiers Changing the Guard and March of the Smugglers. The numbers are familiar but opportunity to hear the mas played here si seldom offered man kind in general—until records appear.

We have heard Dame Nellie Melba sing Massenet's Sevillana, (Fair Maidens of Seville) from Don Cesar de Basan, on a record. This week Amelita Galli-Curci sings it—and we prize both records. The melody is difficult, with the splendor and fire of the Spanish dance throughout it. the high notes being taken without one's suspecting the difficulties or the altitude. On the other side she sings Obeissons quand leur voix appelle, (Hear the Voice of Youth), the gavotte from Manon, wherein the stately gavotte, so to speak, kicks up its heels in a joyous frivol. The most advertised body of water in the world receives additional attention this week in a soprano and tenor duet record by Helen Clark and Lewis James. Swanee River Rose naturally leans on the original melody, with very modern harmonies. You're in Love with Everyone by Franklyn Baur on the other side is about a philanderer.

The titles of the two new duet records by Aileen Stanley and Billy Murray are a little sour, but the singing corrects this. "Nobody's Sweetheart is a "no one to tuck me in my trundle bed" sort of lament. "It Had to Be You" is sung in the explosively mirthful manner of these artists in duet.

Every aspiring singer in our grade at school included My Creole Sue with her public or private, repertoire. We haven't forgotten it, though we hadn't heard it for years until Shannon Quartet revived it this week on a fine male quartet record. Little Alabama Coon, of the same vintage if our memory serves, is sung on the other side by the same quartet, with some rich humming effects.

The long arm of Victor now makes generally available to all George Olsen and His Music, borrowed by Kid Boots from the Hotel Portland, the West, not the East, coast city. Their first records, A New Kind of Man and He's the Hottest Man in Town are physiologically curious, musically interesting.

From these specimens of midsummer madness we revert to cooler strains—Maytime by Waring's Pennsylvanians, with dripping flute and celesta combinations, and Plain Jane, just a jolly tune by International Novelty orchestra.

Jan Garber and His Orchestra wind up the bill with two fox trots of varied melodic and rhythmic effect. Pretty Soon and Please sound like a plea and a promise.

AT THE BREED

All the feminine fans who longed to see Harry Carey in "regular clothes" instead of the western outfit will be glad to know that their wish has come true. In The Night Hawk, his latest picture which comes to the Breed today and tomorrow, Carey is seen as a gentleman crook. But he can't keep away from the sombrero for long. Before many feet have been unwound, he goes West and becomes the fighting cowboy once again.

There are thrills aplenty in The Night Hawk—in fact, there is double the amount. We get the thrills of the police raids, chase and plots of the underworld of the East, and the thrills of the fast riding and fights of the West. El Sang'rito, the wild horse furnishes a generous amount of excitement himself.

Carey gives a realistic portrayal of the thief who finds the way to a better life through the healing influence of the West and a good woman. Claire Adams is a pretty and capable feminine lead. Nicolas De Ruiz and Fred Malatesta are excellent heavies, and the rest of the supporting cast is good. It consists of Lee Shumway, Joseph Gerard, Billy Elmer, Myles McCarthy, Fred Kelsey, Douglas Carter and Oreda Parrish.

The Night Hawk was adapted by Joseph Franklin Poland from the magazine story by Carlysle Graham Raht. It is fine entertainment.

TOURING PARTIES HAVE USED CAMP SITE

Several automobile parties have so far made use of the camp site in Mohegan park which has been arranged by the city authorities. Touring parties have inquired at police headquarters where they could camp and have been directed to the park, where a place has been provided with running water, toilet facilities and a stone fireplace.

DESERVINGS

This is the hight of our deserts;
A little pity for life's hurts;
A little rain, a little sun,
A little sleep when work in done.

A little righteous punishment,
Less for our deeds than their intent,
A little pardon now and then,
Because we are but struggling men.

A little light to show the way,
A little guidance when we stray,
A little love before we pass
To rest beneath the kirkyard grass.

A little faith, in days of change,
When life is stark and bare and strange;
A solace when our eyes are wet
With tears of longing and regret.

True it is that we cannot claim
Unmeasured recompense or blame,
Because our way of life is small;
A little is the sum of all.

JOHN NOLAN, OILER, DROWNED FROM N. LONDON EXCURSION STEAMER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 24.—John Nolan, about 30, an oiler on the New London line steamer Richard Peck, was drowned in the Sound late this afternoon, falling from the steamer which was returning from Newport to this port with about 900 excursionists from Waterbury, New Haven and New London. Nolan was a resident of North Tiverton, R. I., and was unmarried. His relatives were notified this evening of the fatality. The body was not recovered.

When the steamer was about 11 miles west of Point Judith, headed for Watch Hill sound, Nolan, who was off duty and who had been on the middle deck, started to go from the stern of the steamer to the bow. Because of the many passengers being seated on the deck Nolan climbed to the rail and started to walk along the top of it. He lost his balance and fell into the sound and within view of hundreds of the passengers. As Nolan's body plunged through the air the passengers cried "Man overboard!" The alarm being received in the pilot house, Capt. James D. Pettigrew caused the steamer to be turned around and start back for the point where Nolan entered the water; at the same time a lifeboat was made ready for lowering and life preservers were gotten ready to throw to the oiler. As the steamer headed for the floundering Nolan, the lifeboat was lowered and as the craft came close to the oiler two life preservers were thrown to him, but he was so exhausted from his efforts to keep afloat that he was unable to grasp one of them. Before the lifeboat manned by the steamer's crew could reach Nolan he sank from view within sight of practically the entire number of excursionists. The steamer remained in the vicinity of where Nolan's body disappeared about a half hour, in the hopes that the body might be sighted.

At St. Mary's Star of the Sea church this morning at 8 o'clock, Miss Della Sullivan, daughter of Mrs. Ellen Sullivan, Norwich, became the wife of Timothy J. Corcoran, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Corcoran, of 35 Blinman street. The nuptial mass was sung and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, rector of the church. Daniel F. Corcoran, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Madeline O'Neill, of Norwich, was bridesmaid. The bride was attired in navy blue crepe de chine with hat to match and carried a bouquet of roses. The gown of the bridesmaid was powder blue silk and she wore a hat to match. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran held a reception at the home of the groom's parents, after which they left for a visit in New York and Washington. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran will reside at 35 Blinman street. Mr. Corcoran is employed at the plant of the New London Ship & Engine company.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ellen and the late John Sullivan of Norwich.

Julius Almeida, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Almeida, of New London, and Miss Lillian May Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spencer, of Montville, were married yesterday afternoon at Uncasville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles Smith, Uncasville. Upon the conclusion of their wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Almeida will reside in New London.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. May, Jr., of New York, are guests of Mr. May's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. May of Broad street.

Ex-Congressman Augustine Lonergan, Hartford, spent yesterday with friends at Ocean Beach.

Sergeant Clifford Gorgas of the state police barracks, Groton, and Officers Frederick Caron, Stephen Stanton and Walter Shea raided the residence of Tony Klumberg, High street, Groton, early this morning, the raid resulting in the arrest of Klumberg and his wife, charged with violation of the liquor law, in keeping liquor with intent to sell. Both furnished a surety on their respective bonds for their appearance in the Groton town court tomorrow morning. A 15-gallon still, 40 gallons of mash and one gallon of whiskey was seized as evidence against Klumberg and his wife. The raid resulted when the noise from the Klumberg house at 1 o'clock disturbed neighbors, who lodged complaint with the authorities. When the officers reached the house seven or eight men were found there, all showing signs of having drank freely.

It became known this afternoon that two attempts had been made within five days to burglarize the residence of C. H. Bedell, 139 Pequot avenue, an electrical engineer in the employ of the New London Ship & Engine company. The efforts of the crook were thwarted because of the presence in the house of an airedale which scared the crook away. Mrs. Bedell notified the police after the second attempt to rob the house, which occurred last night. Saturday night the Bedell household was awakened by the continual barking of the dog, but no investigation was made. During the early hours of this morning the dog was heard barking vigorously and when the animal refused to go to the upper part of the house after repeated calls to him, Mr. Bedell went to the lower floor and found the dog peering up to an open window that had been closed when the family retired, but which was not locked.

The automobile owned and driven by Dr. Tracy Farnam, Pequot avenue and a machine owned by W. N. Packer, Groton public service operator and driven by Dexter Chapman, Groton, were in collision at Bill's corners late yesterday afternoon. Dr. Farnam's car was damaged.

The bazaar of Lawrence Memorial hospital, conducted on the grounds of the institution yesterday afternoon and last evening, may net the hospital $10,000. The receipts already total $9250 and a considerable sum is yet to be turned over to the committee that had charge of the affair.

Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin and George H. Bradford, the latter of Montville, state central committeeman from the 13th district and member of the committee from the 20th district, respectively, were in Hartford today in attendance at a committee meeting for the purpose of considering a date for the fall convention of the state republican party, at which time nominations will be made for the state ticket.

Mina McDougal, widow of Thomas J. Campbell, died suddenly at the Groton Long Point residence of her daughter, Mrs. William J. Granfield, of Springfield, Mass., late yesterday. Mrs. Campbell had been ill but two days. The body was forwarded to Springfield where the funeral and burial will take place. Mrs. Campbell is survived by five daughters, Mrs. George W. Gray, Portsmouth, N. H., Mrs. E. Clyde Luce, Manchester, N. H., Mrs. Treadie Collins, of Springfield, Mass., Miss Mary McDougal Campbell, and Mrs. William J. Grandin, Springfield.

The police court here today sent two cases up to the superior court for judgment. They were both liquor cases and will add to the others of like nature which Judge C. L. Avery and a jury will have to pass on next September during the term at Norwich. The cases put over today are those of Thomas Severino of Bayonet street, this city, and Manuel Estoff of New Haven, the operator of a truck that brought beer to this city. There were 100 cases in the cargo that Estoff had and of which he was forced to delay the delivery because he was hindered in getting here by the condition of the road between New London and New Haven. To the fact that Estoff did not reach this city till about 2 o'clock in the morning and then parked his car in the street was due his detection. It is said that a policeman who saw the truck just mosied around it and detected the odor of beer, he thought. He called other officers and they decided to go further. They held the truck where it was parked and going to a hotel found that Estoff had retired. When he was aroused in the morning he was told that "the sergeant wanted to see him" at the desk in the police station and there Estoff was hurried. He was presented in court then, but the case went over till today, when it was disposed of by finding probable cause for holding Estoff for the superior court. It is understood that the beer seized on the Estoff truck has been coming to New London the past three years and that it is sold as openly in New Haven as cabbages are sold, not only at the brewery, but in the drug stores, the grocery stores and at soda fountains. It tested more than one-half of one per cent and for that reason was seized and the prosecution was begun.

An interesting case got into court this morning when Tom Severino was charged with the sale of wine and with keeping a place which was reputed to be one in which liquor was sold. The evidence against Severino as to the actual sale was of a most positive nature. Thomas Murphy, a young fellow, 21, married, but deplorably shiftless, arrested a few days ago with others of his sort for burglarizing the home of Abraham Katz on Winthrop street. Police Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh followed clues that he picked up as to the robbery and finally got Murphy and others of the gang he runs with into the station house. There the youths were given a thorough quizzing and it was learned that Murphy had been drunk the night before, that he had been away from home and soon he was accused directly of the Katz robbery. The young man admitted the accusation of having been drunk and he finally told where he bought the booze he and his pals consumed. He said he bought it at the Severino house, told of particular instances and gave such details that a search warrant was issued and officers were sent to execute the warrant. They found a lot of wine, some mash and other indications that a large business in liquor was carried on. Today Severino and his wife denied that they or either of them sold any wine to anybody though they admitted that they owned all the liquor found in the house, declaring that they had a permit to make the wine and that it was for the consumption of the family the members of which were accustomed to drinking it and had been so accustomed from childhood. It was admitted by the state that Severino had the certificate he claimed to have, but it was shown that such a permit gave him authority to make 200 gallons of wine of one-half of one per cent alcoholic content. The wine found in his home yesterday showed three per cent. of alcohol. Severino is a carpenter and a steady worker. He resides in the house with a deacon of the colored Baptist church. Murphy had been at one time a fireman on towboats, but on his own admission he has worked only a few days during his entire career. The attorney for Severino gave Murphy a pretty severe handling in his argument to the court. Murphy winced under the castigation but that humiliation did not sink in very far.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of Frederick Edwards, driver in the employ of Tait Brothers, and Thomas Connors, 21 Berkley avenue, to be suspended. The licenses of George Nugent, 4 Bulkeley place and Eugene Maynard, 61 Colt street, recently suspended, were returned to the owners.

Mrs. Robert Keefe and infant son, of Bellevue place, James Gilbert, Jr., West Haven, Joseph McGarry, Lincoln avenue, Wesley Gifford, Garfield avenue and Mrs. Albert Sellew and infant son, of Crystal avenue, were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today.

Fire of an unknown cause was discovered shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon in the cellar of the two family dwelling at No. 169 Howard street, owned by Patrick L. Shea. The house is occupied by families named Coleman and Haynes and neither family could account for the blaze.

When the fire was discovered great clouds of smoke were observed issuing from the cellar and an alarm was rung in from Box 44, corner of Howard and Hamilton streets. With the arrival of the department the flames were attacking the ceiling, but with the emptying of two tanks of chemicals upon it the fire was subdued. The ceiling was charred and electric light wires were damaged. The loss will not exceed $100, it is believed, $100.

The fire started among two bales of straw, but how the straw became ignited could not be explained.

Miss Mary A. Rutherford, 1162 Ocean avenue, proprietress of a summer lodging house, who reported to the police last evening that the place had been entered by a thief and that $682 in bills and two checks of the aggregate amount of $88 that were in a document box had been stolen, this morning informed the police that she had found the money and checks. Miss Rutherford stated last night that the document box was placed on a pantry shelf last Monday night, but she was in error for the box was found in another part of the house this morning.

The automobile owned and driven by Edward Lathrop of Montville, was struck by a Connecticut Company trolley car on Main street this afternoon. The automobile was damaged.

Gladys E. Stratton, 230 Montauk avenue, reported to the police this morning that a revolver was stolen from her automobile, which was parked in the garage of William A. Murray, Elm street, last night.

Charles W. Burpee, of Hartford, today communicated with the New London police for the purpose of endeavoring to recover a wrist watch stolen from his son when the latter was a guest at the Hotel Mohican, June 29th. The young man removed the watch from his wrist while in the lavatory and when he returned to take possession the watch it had disappeared. The police investigated and learned that the hotel management had already made an unsuccessful search for the watch.

A Rickenbacker coupe, owned by the Packard garage, 319 Williams street, stolen from the garage about a week ago, was found abandoned on Crystal avenue this morning, the machine having been placed where it was found during the early morning hours and after the car had been driven 2000 miles. It is believed that the automobile was taken by sailors from the submarine base, who have been on a week's furlough.

F. B. Lawton, 4652 Maplewood avenue, Los Angeles, Cal., today informed the police that a camera, which he had deposited upon a seat of his automobile while the car was parked on the street here Monday was stolen.

Malicious persons early this morning removed the tongue of the switch of the Connecticut company's tracks on Montauk avenue, south of Thames street and placed the heavy tongue across the rails. The tongue was discovered by three motorists about 1 o'clock and when they reached the corner of State and Bank streets they informed Sergeant John Cayanaugh of their discovery. The officer went to the switch and caused the tongue to be taken to the trolley company's barn. This morning the tongue was placed back in position. The removal of the tongue was perpetrated by one or more persons, who used a crow bar or similar implement.

"Singing Desert" Sighs.

Travelers are undertaking to solve the mystery of the Libyan desert, known as the "singing desert." It gives forth a distinctly musical sound, which sometimes seems to be composed of two distinct parts. The sound has been described as resembling the sighing of the wind in telegraph wires. One returned traveler has offered the theory that the sound is caused by the sand pouring over a low scarp of rock after a rain storm. Various other explanations have been put forth.

Woods Being Studied Again.

When iron ships came into use the study of woods began to decline and the decline was steady until recently when the U. S. Department of Agriculture placed wood upon a footing of a "principal product." Galileo, upon his visit to the arsenal in Venis which visit had much to do with his law upon the resistance of solid bodies, was one of the first students of woods. Leonardo da Cinci was another.

Indians Enthusiastic Over Night Schools

Night schools for adult Indians have been instituted by the Bureau of Indian Affairs of the Department of the Interior during the past year, according to an article by Commissioner Burke in the June number of School Life, a periodical published by the Bureau of Education. One school is conducted in northern North Dakota, and another in Vamori village on the Papago Reservation in southern Arizona. The latter school was established at the request of Mathias Hendricks, the chief of the village who attends the school himself and encourages his people to do so. The Indians are greatly interested in the school, and it is all the more successful because they initiated the plan.

Longest Telephone Cable.

Some time ago there was established a new telephone line between Stockholm and Berlin, and here it crosses the North Sea, it has it is claimed the longest telephone cable in the world. This cable is something over 80 miles in length. Whenever a telephone line proceeds through a submarine cable there is, it is said, a certain proportion lost of the electric impulse. In order to counteract the effect of such a condition in the length of cable the telephone apparatus in this case had to be strengthened at each end of the cable and special stations were so located for that purpose. By means of transformers the strength of the sound is raised after coming through the cable.

DUTCH GIRL STILL HAS FAITH IN SIKI

Paris, July 24—(By the A. P.)—"This is a thing which I cannot believe about him," said Gertrude Ampfler, the Dutch girl who came to Paris from Holland in 1921 with Battling Siki, the Senegalese pugilist, when she was told of the battler's marriage in New York yesterday.

The news was imparted to her at almost the moment when she was being dispossessed out of the little home at 70 Rue Murrillce in Vanves, a Paris suburb, where she had lived with Siki up until the time when he left for the United States.

Battling Siki, Jr., her two-year-old child with a tremendous chest development, remeniscent of that of his father, blandly interrupted his mother with the question "Where is my father?"

"I have no certificate to show I ever married Louis," said the young woman whom Arthur Popillon, the deputy mayor of the little municipality of Vanves, never failed to address as "Mme. Siki." She then pointed to the little fellow playing about the sidewalk and added "Can I have a better marriage certificate?"

The woman then told a despairing story of love that had failed, of unfulfilled promises, and of the flight from Holland against the advice of her staid middle class Dutch parents with the mayor's office of one of the twenty Parisian arrondissements as the ultimate goal.

Her husband in those days, said Gertrude, was a second rate pugilist with the wolves hovering about the doors of the cheap hotels in which they were forced to put up. Then came the victory over Georges Carpentier in 1922, renown, glory and wealth for her and her baby boy who had just been born.

M. Popillon, who was present during the conversation with Mme. Siki, as she is termed, afterwards told the correspondent that Siki and the Ampfler woman were officially received at the Vanves city hall in 1922 after Siki's victory over Carpentier. The deputy mayor said that the woman was introduced by Siki as his wife, when they were welcomed by the officials and tendered the freedom of the municipality.

Under French law Siki's marriage to the American woman is not valid. He may return here without being molested, although the Dutch woman is recognized as his common-law wife.

BETHLEHEM STEEL OMITS COMMON STOCK DIVIDEND

New York, July 24—Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation today omitted the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on the common stock, due at this time.

With earnings of the corporation showing a decrease of about $2,000,000 in the second quarter, H. E. Lewis, vice-president, explained that the directors decided that the strong cash position of the corporation should be maintained and that the interest of all holders of the corporaiton's securities would be promoted by not drawing on surplus at this time for payment of common dividends.

The total income of the corporation for the second quarter of the year amounted to $7,400,894 as compared with $10,549,149 in the preceding three months. The surplus, after dividends and charges, was $203,167, contrasted with $1,197,283 in the first quarter.

CELERY PLANTING TIME HAS ARRIVED

It is fast approaching time when all celery plants should be placed in the field. If one has not raised his own celery plants and only wishes a few hundred, they can be purchased from the market gardener, who raise celery on a commercial scale, and who has had many years' experience in growing them, and knows the varieties which are best adapted to this locality. The price of celery plants is from one to two dollars per hundred, according to the quality.

Some of the best varieties are New ark Market, Easy Blanching and Giant Pascal. The last named is the best late variety.

Many persons make a mistake in setting out celery plants in trenches rather than in rows. Celery should be planted the same as any other veretable plant and never in trenches. They should be set about four to six inches apart in the rows, and the rows should be three or four feet apart. Level culture should be given throughout the season. At the end of the growing season they should be banked by soil or by boards to blanche them.

In planting celery it should be heavily fertilized and moderately limed. Two or three side dressings of nitrate of soda should be given during the growing season. In other words, it should be kept growing at all times, never allow'— a stare when the growth is stopped.

CHICKS SOMETIMES DIE AFTER EATING ROSEBUGS

Rose bugs are becoming very plentiful on rose bushes, grape vines and other shrubbery. Not only is damage done to the plant they work on, but on the poultry farm they are much more harmful, in that chicks that eat them die very quickly. There are some poultrymen who have already lost a number of chicks because of this. The worst of it is there is hardly any remedy except to keep the chicks away from the rose bugs. This can best be done by keeping the grass and all vgetation mowed down near the poultry house or to keep the chicks shut up in the poultry house in severe cases, until the rose bugs have disappeared. If your chicks have been dying and the trouble is not known the crop of the chick should be opened up and if rose bugs are found there it can easily be assumed that these caused death.

GUARDING THE CHICKENS AGAINST DISEASE

Poultry raisers have been losing chickens. These losses have occurred among flocks that have been very vigorous and from six to 10 or 12 weeks old. They showed symptoms of sluggishness or drowsiness, followed by partial loss of locomotion and lack of appetite. In varying periods from the time first indication of illness was observed, they died. Usually toward the last irregularity of the bowels was noticeable. Examination of the chicks affected showed an abnormal liver condition, similar to fatty degeneration, or an actual gangrenous liver. This all points to an accumulation of poison, an extreme toxic condition, and subsequent cessation of the function of the liver.

Why this condition appearing in a perfectly healthy flock at this period in their lives? Analysis of conditions invariably reveal these facts. For some time the flock has had range on green crops or turf, but this had been devastated and the runs or range became bare, affording no incentive to the chicks to exercise and yielding to green feed. The houses were not provided with scratching litter, and the birds were inactive. Dry mash was always provided and available at all times. The birds for a long time had refused to eat much of the scratch grains provided and gorged more and more of the high protein dry mash provided. High protein, indeed; one owner whose losses have been heavy was feeding a dry mash suitable for heavy egg production.

To allow a flock, inactive, without a supply of green food, free access to dry mash, cutting down gradually on scratch feed as the birds fail to consume it, means digestive trouble inevitably. If your conditions approximate these even though you have not lost any chicks, better plan at once to remedy things. To start the flock back on the right track, the first thing to do is give a dose of Epsom salts and take away all feed for 24 hours. Then it would be advisable to feed only scratch grains for a few days gradually returning to dry mash. However, better range should be supplied at once or plenty of scratching litter provided with some form of green feed. The birds must be made to exercise and eat their complement of scratch grains.

GROWING ALFALFA IN CONNECTICUT

In respect to raising alfalfa, a new alignment of Connecticut farmers has recently taken place, according to J. S. Owens, crop specialist for the extension service. One group is now raising this splendid crop; the other is contemplating trying to raise it. The former group is small but increasing rapidly.

The large numbers of farmers in this state, very widely scattered, who are now successfully growing alfalfa, preclude the argument that it cannot be done, says Mr. Owens. When a northern state like Michigan had an increase in acreage from 74,000 in 1911 and 500,000 in 1923, and when New York state has an acreage of 160,000, Connecticut dairymen must meet competition from outside sources. Would it not be logical to meet this competition by growing alfalfa ourselves? Alfalfa has very well been called the queen of forage crops.

The last census gives the average yield per acre of all cultivated hays in this state as 1.15 tons, mixed clover and timothy hay as 1.29 tons, and alfalfa as 2.5 tons. Individual farmers who are successful with alfalfa report yields of four or five tons per acre.

Even the best adapted types of alfalfa, such as Grimm, have long roots. Alfalfa roots do not thrive in soil saturated with water. When water stands for long periods within two feet of the surface, alfalfa will be uncertain. Hard-pan at a depth of about two feet is not a serious objection provided water does not stand near the surface.

There are many soils with loose, gravelly and sandy subsoils which are well adapted to alfalfa. Many of these are so well drained that other crops suffer during a drought. In this case the long root system of the alfalfa plant is a great advantage.

The beginner will do well to select the best-drained and highest producing soil on his farm for his first trial.

In a test at the Storrs Experiment Station no plants lived through the first winter with imported Arabian seed, while 95 per cent of the Grimm plants survived. Even Northern grown strains of the common group were superior to Kansas grown of the same variety. The first essential in buying alfalfa seed is to be positive that it was grown in a climate as severe as in our state.

In a test covering five years at Storrs, the Grimm strain maintained a better stand than any other strain including the hardy strains of the purple-flowered or Common. The Grimm strain has proved itself worthy of first rank in other Northern states, and is so highly esteemed that the seed commands a premium over any other.

No one can determine the origin of seed from its appearance. Large quantities of seed which were grown in Argentine, Southern Europe, Utah, Arizona and other sections where the climate is very different from ours, are put onto our markets. It is common experience to start a crop and have it winter-kill. Seed should be purchased from the most reliable sources and no other. The seedsman must not only be honest, but he must be familiar with the methods commonly used in the marketing of seeds such as alfalfa. He should state where the seed was grown and back his statement with a written guarantee.

Information on preparing the seedbed, testilizing and liming, and seeding alfalfa, may be obtained by writing to the Extension Service, Storrs, Conn. Alfalfa can be and is, grown successfully in Connecticut. It requires attention to details and some work, but the results are well worth the effort. Once the dairy farmer has learned how to grow alfalfa successfully he rarely gives up this crop.

SCALE HAS BAD EFFECT ON BERRY CANES AND TREES

A number of berry growers and some of the city home garden owners have recently become acquainted with a new pest developing on blackberry or raspberry canes. This is a soft scale called Terrepin scale. The scales are reddish or dark brown in color, usually well raised, about 1-16 to 1-8 of an inch long and perhaps 1-2 of that in diameter, more or less corrugated or ridged on the surface. These scales principally infest wood growth. Maple, sycamore and poplar among the shade trees particularly are liable to be attacked. It has been comparatively rare for this scale to work on small fruits. However, it may be found on almost any plant which has vigorous green shoots or new growth each season, and once a berry plantation becomes infested, unless control measures are resorted to the scale is liable to do considerable damage and reappear each year until eradicated. The control measure most recommended is spraying with kerosene emulsion or lime sulphur, such as is used for spraying the San Jose and oyster shell scale, which are common orchard pests.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD USE OF APPLE THINNINGS

The apple thinnings are coming along now, and may be put to good use. They are a valuable source of pectin, which is lacking in some of the small fruits, such as raspberries and blueberries which come a little later. If the juice is extracted from the apples and canned, it may be used to supplement the pectin of other jellies which would otherwise be difficult to make, or the apples may be made into a jelly themselves as follows: Wash, cut out blossom end and slice; add one pint water to each pound; cook 10 minutes; let stand five minutes; squeeze out all juice; mix, measure, strain, through four thicknesses of cheesecloth; concentrate one-half; add sugar one-half to one; boil until done.

SAFEGUARDS FOR THE SUPPLY OF MILK

A clean, safe and adequate milk supply is one of our most important food and health problems, says R. C. Fisher of the Dairy Department at Connecticut Agriculture College.

However with present high cost of labor and equipment the real problem for the farmer is how to produce a clean, good quality milk at a reasonable price.

Outlined briefly the four principal factors in clean milk production are:

1. A Clean and Healthy Cow:

It stands to reason that milk from a diseased cow is likely to be dangerous. Moreover a diseased cow is a danger of infection to other animals in the herd and cannot be expected to produce milk profitably. All facts considered no farmer can afford to have an untested herd. Considering the fact that milk is a food principally used by babes and children, it is just as important to clean the cow's udder and flank as cleaning the kitchen table.

2. A Clean and Healthy Man:

The second rule for clean milk is a clean and healthy man. This is very important. Milk with clean dry hands only. It is as essential to wash the hands before milking as it is for the housewife to wash her hands before starting to eat breakfast.

3. Thoroughly Washed and Scalded Utensils.

The third factor in clean milk production is thoroughly washed and scalded utensils. This rule applies to the consumers as well as to producers and dealers. Always first wash utensils in hot water containing some washing soda and then rinse in clear hot water. After this the utensils should be immersed in boiling water for a minute or longer and then put in the sun to dry. Strainer cloths should be washed and then boiled for at least five minutes and then hung up to dry in the sun or still better a new one used each time.

4. Cooling Milk at Once and Keeping at 45 Degrees F. or Lower Until Consumed.

The fourth factor is prompt cooling and keeping the milk cold until consumed. Warm milk sours quickly and therefore it should be cooled at once to 55 degrees F. or lower. Milk is best cooled by setting cans or containers in ice water so that the water comes up to the neck of the can. Once milk is cooled it may be kept in a refrigerator or ice box if so desired.

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, stated that no legal action would be taken on the Federal trade commission's decision directing abandonment of the "cost plus" system.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, July 24.—Steady accumulation of the low-priced railroad shares, several of which touched their highest prices in years was the feature of today's active stock market, which, however, presented an irregular appearance as a result of the concerted selling of special issues which had been adversely affected by overnight news developments.

Pittsburgh & West Virginia assumed the leadership of the railroad group by moving up nearly three points to a new 1924 high at 52 3-4. This road, which is likely to become part of the gigantic "Nickel Plate" system being formed by the Van Sweringen interests, is expected to show a surplus after charges for June in excess of $121,439 for June of last year.

Erie issues gave another remarkable display of strength on reports that the proposed merger of that road with "Nickel Plate" and Pere Marquette, would be taken up by the Van Sweringens with George F. Baker, Erie's largest individual stockholder, on his return from Europe next week. All three issues sold at their highest prices since 1917, the common touching 35, the first preferred 42 and the second preferred 39 3-4, closing at their top prices for net gains of 1 1-2 to 2 1-3 points. New Haven crossed 30 for the first time in more than two years.

Union Pacific, whose treasury holds large blocks of securities of other railroads, led the advance in high grade issues by moving up 2 points to 143 7-8. Other dividend payers to sell at their best prices of the year were Illinois Central common and preferred, Lackawanna, Baltimore & Ohio and the Pere Marquette Preferred issues.

Omission of the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 on Bethlehem Steel common was not announced until after the market closed. This action, while freely predicted in recent weeks, apparently took some persons by surprise as the stock closed 1 1-8 points high at 45 after having sold as low as 41 1-2 last week.

Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies issues broke about 3 points each in response to legal proceedings, charging diversion of funds, brought against that company by the receiver of the Ward Line, a subsidiary. Interborough Rapid Transit common dropped 2 points as a result of the state transit commission's warning against undue speculation in the stocks, but recovered half of its loss later. Heavy trading in Transcontinental Oil followed publication of a report that a new well drilled jointly by it and the Texas company in Craigfield, Colorado, was flowing at the rate of 4,700 barrels a day.

American Water Works common jumped 8 points to 106. Other outstanding strong spots included American Express, Laclede Gas, Union Tank Car, Famous Players, Montgomery Ward and Simmons company, all at new high levels for the year.

Call money ruled at 2 per cent all day. Time money was somewhat less plentiful, but rates were unchanged. The Commercial Paper market was quiet with no change in ratos.

The foreign exchanges held firm pending further developments af the reparations conference in London. Demand sterling ruled about 3-4 of a cent higher at $4.40 1-4 and French francs were quoted around 5.13 1-2 cents.

CURB MARKET.

New York, July 24.—Operations for the rise were resumed at the opening of today's curb market but encountered stiffer opposition with the result that closing prices presented a decidedly irregular appearance. Active oil shares held firm on reports of a further reduction in crude production. Standard Oil of Nebraska jumped 5 points to 244, while net gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded by Prairie Oil & Gas, Standard Oil of Ohio, Galena Signal and Buckeye and Northern Pipes. Humble Oil was the only conspicuous weak spot, dropping 1 5-8 to 35 3-4.

Speculative interest in the industrial group was confined largely to the coal and radio shares. Glen Alden Coal standing out with a gain of 2 5-8 points. Lehigh Valley Coal certificates established a new high at 39 7-8 and then eased to 39 1-8, off 3-8. Ware Radio touched a new peak price at 30 1-8 and then fell back nearly 2 points. Dubilier showed a small fractional recession.

The feature of the bond group was the trading in Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies 5s of 1959 which dropped from 57 1-2 to 51 and then rallied to 55.

BOND MARKET.

New York, July 24.—Under the leadership of the railroad issues, bond prices today moved into new high ground for the year. Except in the rail group, where gains ranged from one to six points, however, the advance was lacking in vigor and pronounced reactionary tendencies marked dealings in the local traction liens.

Some disappointment over the failure of the federal reserve bank to lower its rediscount rate was manifested at the opening of the market, but the setback was only temporary. Renewed accumulation of the rails was a stimulating influence and steadied prices in spots where lagging tendencies cropped out.

Erie railroad bonds led in popularity today on reports that the merger of the road with the Van Sweringen's enlarged "Nickel Plate" system would be expedited upon the return of GeGorge F. Baker, Erie's largest individual stockholder, from Europe next week. The road's consolidated, general and convertible 4s mounted 1-2 to 3 points.

Gains of one to 2 1-2 points were registered by New Haven, Denver & Rio Grande, Seaboard, Louisville and Nashville, Frisco and Southern Pacific issues. Ulster & Delaware 4s, normally inactive, jumped 6 points.

Local traction issues reacted sharply following the warning of state transit commission officials that recent price movements of Interborough securities had been based on unauthorized reports of high earnings.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, July 24.—Although wheat prices today reached new high price records for the season, heavy profit taking sales made the market average lower most of the time. The suddenness of recent advances led many traders to look for a reaction, especially as black rust reports from Canada indicated that the amount of damage which might be done by rust would depend on weather developments. The close was unsettled, at 7-8 to 1 5-8c net decline, September 1.28 1-8 to 1.28 3-4 and December 1.31 1-4 to 1.31 5-8, with corn 1c to 1 7-8c off, oats 12c to 7-8@1c down, and provisions showing five to 25c decline.

Attention of wheat traders continued to focus chiefly on Canadian crop news, and some of the reports were more emphatic in the bullish character of their advices, despite assertions from other authorities that by contrast were called bearish. The top prices of the day here were reached about midday on a wave of buying that was associated with a sharp advance at Winnipeg. Increased selling here, however, resulted from the bulge, and as was the case on numerous quick upturns earlier the market again gave way. At no time, however, were prices as much as 2 cents under yesterday's finish.

One of the larrest traders in the wheat market contended that the reduction in the Canadian crop this year, as compared with last year, equals the entire exportable surplus of Argentina and Australia combined. He also maintained that equals the total crop of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas combined. In the face of talk of this sort, however, buying power today proved insufficient to absorb the offers fully and the market finished near the day's low point.

Corn and oats were governed by the action of wheat and by weather favorable for the new corn crop.

Provisions eased down, in sympathy with grain and hogs.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT WILL INSPECT SUMMER CAMPS

Connecticut furnishes ideal pleasure grounds for thousands of people during the summer months. Its close proximity to New York and the many beautiful spots available for camping, attract an increasing number each year. Camps are springing up all over the state to provide temporary homes for these vacationists who have come from the congested cities to find health and beauty and relaxation from care. The beauty is not hard to find for nature has provided this in natural form at almost every turn. The relaxation from care comes as soon as the camp is reached for the open spaces suggest play in varied enough form to suit all tastes.

To provide health for the campers a greater effort must be made The responsibility for this is assumed by those in charge of the camp. In choosing the right spot for a summer camp there are fundamentals that must be recognized. Of prime importance are safe drinking water, adequate and proper sewage disposal, a milk and food supply of good quality and provisions for keeping it safe.

To assist the proprietors in maintaining camps which conform to these essentials, the State Department of Health has added to its staff for the summer months, two men who will inspect all the camps in the state—vacational, automobile, wayside tourists, boarding houses, shore resorts and vacation homes. Inspections of these camps will be made in detail, paying particular attention to the water supply and sewage disposal; making analyses of the water; supervising the bathing facilities and the condition of the water at the principal bathing resorts.

Advice will be furnished for correcting insanitary conditions that may be observed. Reinspections will be made at intervals to see that former recommendations are carried out, and that camps, boarding houses and shore resorts are being maintained in the proper manner.

The survey blanks used by the inspectors cover such general points as location, construction, size; and medical inspection and protection of the campers; and such special factors as conditions relating to water supply, and sewage disposal, protection from flies, quality of the milk supply, care and preparation of food, washing facilities and sleeping conditions. When this work of inspection has been completed the results will be compiled. This should prove a valuable guide to all campers as revealing the best sanitary features of camp life as shown in well established camps and the conditions that need improvement before certain camps can be classified as "health" camps.

Camps can secure this inspection by writing to the Connecticut State Department of Health.

CAMP MERRITT NOTES FROM GALES FERRY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Gales Ferry, July 24—We had no "jerks" Saturday morning. This was due to having breakfast a half hour earlier, and this was due to some of the home-going girls leaving early. The new edition of the "Merritt Gleam", reached all the girls who were going away. We had swimming at 8.30. At half past ten we went on our customary Saturday dinner hike. The hike was a short one, not more than a mile from camp. Miss Studley fried all the bacon and eggs for us. Not long after we had all eaten those who were going home or expecting friends returned to the camp. The others separated into groups. Late in the afternoon the groups came together and started for camp. When they arrived they found new faces everywhere. After supper, we had a camp fire. Saturday, after all was a quiet and uneventful day.

Monday noon, the girls of Merritt Camp had a splendid surprise. When the general tinkle of silver (?) and plates had subsided into the usual singing and noisy cheering which is a part of each meal at girl scout camp, who should enter the dining room all smiles, but Mrs. Ashley of Hartford. She entered amid a volley of cheers and clapping. We were all glad to see her and hope she will come again soon and stay with us a while.

What is Friday night at Camp Merritt? Friday night at Camp Merritt we have competitive dramatics between the green and the yellow. At camp fire, green and yellow bands are awarded to those who have earned them by: 1, a certain amount of scout work; 2, being a member of a winning team in sports or duties; 3, being a good scout.

Last Friday night, ten scouts were awarded bands, of which four were yellow and six were green. Each colony was represented by at least one scout.

If an airplane were to pass over the campus early in the morning, the pilot might observe the following:

First, there are five groups of three tents each and all silent. Suddenly a white-clad figure blows a bugle and each tent seems alive. Girls come from everywhere. Big girls, little girls, girls with bobbed hair, girls with not yet bobbed hair, girls in pajamas, girls in bathing suits, but mostly girls not quite awake and very, very sleepy. Then such a twisting, such a jumping, such a sprawling of arms and legs and such merry laughing and clapping! What in the world are they up to! The scouts could not tell you. But I will whisper the secret of these centipede stunts. These are the famous "setting up" exercises. These are the "jerks" for which Camp Merritt is famous.

Dinner was over for everyone heard Miss Young tapping on her cup with a knife. Her last announcement was "ice cream today." "Harrah, harrah" came from all corners of the room. There was a general scramble for the ice cream. It was delicious strawberry ice cream and vanished like snow with the hot sun beating down upon it.

Do you know that Miss Dellamater our bugler has a birthday Friday? "Happy birthday to you, happy birthday to you."

Flag raising Sunday was especially effective because the "flag patrol", tent seven, were all in scout uniform.

Basketry evidently has lost none of its popularity. Miss K. says her class is spread all over the campus.

The inmates of tent five put a sign up on the south porch of the dining room, which told of Jean Hogan's prowess as a beauty parlor specialist. Modest Jean, however, removed and destroyed the sign.

Every fortnight new patrol leaders are elected. The following scouts were elected Sunday night.

Colony Ominotago: Janet Taylor, Wethersfield, Conn; Pearl Spirt, Waterbury, Conn.

Colony Wacheewee: Helen Walker, Rockland, Mass.; Dorothy Rose, Elmira, N. Y.

Colony Echanee: Frances Sanford, West Hartford; Marion Kelley, Waterbury, Conn.

Colony Weenonah: Esther Adams, Wethersfield, Conn.; Catherine Morse, Hartford, Conn.

BETTER WIVES AND MOTHERS

The emancipation of women as evidenced by the evolution in dress from steel stays that made a twenty inch waist and the long street sweeping skirts to the sports clothes of the present day has certainly had its effect upon the health of women. With proper attention to diet and exercise a race of better wives and mothers is assured by it. However, ailments develop as evidenced by irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness and irritability. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be depended upon to overcome them. FRENCH UNYIELDING ON THE SURRENDER OF ANY RIGHTS

All the Inter-Allied Delegates Show Disinclination to Submit to the Dictation of International Bankers—The British and French Premiers Do Not Intend, in Order to Get Support For the German Loan, to Sign Dotted Lines Anywhere the Financiers Point Their Fingers.

London, July 25.—Although the inter-allied conference marked time today there was observable tonight an unmistakable hardening in the attitude of all of the delegates against submitting to the dictation of the international financiers in formulating a protocol to launch the Dawes plans.

The French spokesmen in expressing the views of Premier Herriot were more unyielding than ever toward the surrender of any rights which France enjoys under the treaty of Versailles. In American circles it was stated that the Dawes plan was of such importance that it could not be jeopardized by the relatively unimportant disputes between the bankers and the French politicians.

Among all the experts—observers, advisers and delegates—there is a concerted effort to settle the difficulties that have beset the parleys for weeks and which at times have seemed to threaten the very existence of the conference. This afternoon Frank B. Kellogg, the American ambassador, went so far as to say that the problems of defaults and sanctions under the Dawes plan and their relations to security for the German loan would not necessarily have to be settled in London. This view, however, is not shared by the other delegations, where it was said the issue the bankers have injected into the proceedings is paramount and that as soon as it is settled the conference can consider its work completed.

Despite the delays which have occurred the atmosphere of the negotiations is described as not pessimistic, but as of "cautious confidence" and "restrained confidence." British officials said tonight the technical work of the conference had been completed and that the conferees were ready for their next plenary session Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Only three problems remain to be dealt with. The first problem is the all-important one of reconciling the bankers to the conference experts proposed methods of dealing with German violations of the Dawes plan. The second is a minor question of railroad control in the Ruhr, and the third is the question of German representation at the conference. This latter problem is expected to be settled promptly on Monday when the juridical committee reports to the delegates on the methods the conference should pursue in informing Germany how the Dawes plan will be instituted.

It is expected Berlin will be requested immediately to send delegates to London, and an arrangement will be made here for their arrival next Thursday. In settling the first and most important of the three pieces of unfinished business before the delegates, it is increasingly evident that in order to get support for the 40,000,000 pounds sterling loan Europe's two socialist premiers do not intend to sign dotted lines anywhere the international financiers point their fingers. It is declared it would be politically suicidal for either Premier Herriot of France or Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain to do so.

Their supporters say that, therefore, the premiers are ignoring as much as possible the advice of the bankers that the conference should provide better guarantees. Two French financiers are said to be hurrying to London to strengthen M. Herriot's hands. The summoning of these financiers has given rise to the suggestion in conference circles that in launching a comparatively small loan under the Dawes plan reliance need not be placed exclusively on any one international banking group.

The Anglo-American bankers resent the imputation that they are seeking to dictate to the conference the terms of guarantees, in default of which they will refuse to underwrite the proposed loan. H. H. Harjes, of Morgan, Harjes & Company of Paris, who came to London to confer with Thomas W. Lamont, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company, New York, told the French newspapermen here today that the position of J. P. Morgan & Company was outlined by Mr. Morgan in the statement he gave out in New York prior to sailing for Europe.

'Our position is very simple,' said Mr. Harjes. "We have been asked for our advice regarding the necessary basis for the sale of German obligations to the American public. We have expressed our own views of the subject, but we have not attempted to formulate any policy for the conference or even to offer suggestions bearing upon political issues. That is not our business."

SENTIMENT IN FRANCE IS FAVORABLE TO CONCESSIONS

Paris, July 25 (By the A. P.)—French opinion on the whole is waiting patiently for the London reparation conference to come to some definite decision. The press generally is moderate in its comment, but there are unmistakable signs of discouragement in parliamentary and political circles, manifested in some cases by the out and out declaration that the best thing Premier Herriot can do is to give way on the question of penalties and take the best arrangement he can get in exchange for that concession.

A deputy from the district of Former Premier Caillaux, who is known to be in the inner councils of the new majority in the chamber, declared in the lobby today that France could count in any event only upon a total sum in reparations that would be insignificant, compared with her burdens; that the maximum Germany will ever be called upon to pay France will be only about 10 per cent of the annual budget; hence, rather than prolong the uncertainty and keep France's finances in an unsettled state it would be better to give the British their way and let Germany off easy.

Similar sentiments have been expressed by leaders of the government coalition who say they hope such a settlement would facilitate an understanding between France and Germany which in the end would be as beneficial as would the payment of reparations in full.

The Quotidien, official organ of the government majority, declares the majority in the chamber is ready to pay the price for a settlement on the lines suggested by British and American bankers.

Other newspapers supporting Premier Herriot take a similar line, although some of them express regrets at the prominent part finance seems to be playing in the London negotiations.

The man in the street is generally exceedingly pessimistic and inclined to look for serious trouble with Germany, anticipating that the nationalist element would be encouraged by a French diplomatic defeat to make further resistance even if the Dawes plan were put into operation. Unless the allies come at once to a full agreement the popular fear seems to be that France will get neither reparations nor security without a further display of force.

J. P. MORGAN DEFINES THE ATTITUDE OF BANKERS

New York, July 25.—J. P. Morgan, in an official statement issued tonight on the eve of his departure for a vacation trip in Europe, stated that American bankers had no desire "to make any political suggestions, much less to attempt to enforce any loan now underway in London. Mr. Morgan reiterates that his trip had nothing to do with the London conference, but indicated that if the loan was arranged, and his advice as to terms sought, he would be glad to make sugestions for the sale of the bonds in this country.

"I am sailing for my annual holiday, in accordance with plans made months ago. My trip has nothing to do with the London conference. Our position with reference to the matters now being discused in that conference is very simple. We have been requested by the allied governments to advise as to what in our opinion are the necessary bases for the sale of German bonds to American investors. In response to that request, we have given our advice. We have no desire, nor is it within our province to make any political suggestions, much less to attempt to enforce any political views. We addressed ourselves solely to the question asked us, and it is for the allied governments to determine whether what we believe to be the conditions of the American investment markets can be met.

"It goes without saying that as bankers we should not ask the American investor to buy German bonds unless and until the allies have in their own time, in their own way, and for their own reasons determined upon a policy which will, in our opinion, give security to the bondholders. If this very simple and obvious fact is borne in mind it will, I think, be found that most of the questions now under discussion answer themselves."

GERMANS ARE SILENT ON THE FOREIGN SITUATION

Berlin, July 25. (By the A. P.)—The German government through Chancellor Marx declined to discuss the foreign situation in the reichstag today. When the nationalists participated in the debate this afternoon, the chancellor said there was no occasion to amplify the statements he and Foreign Minister Stresemann already had made and he deprecated an attempt to force a debate while an invitation to the London conference was pending. The three government parties in a brief statement announced their support of the government's position and denounced the nationalist attempt to create difficulties.

Senators to Continue Inquisitorial Work

Couzens to Align Himself With Committee Probing Revenue Bureau.

Washington, July 25—Democratic members of the special senate committee appointed to investigate the internal revenue bureau effected an unexpected combination today with Senator Couzens, Michigan, republican, who has been occasionally aligned with the LaFollette group, and successfully embarked upon a program which is expected to add a new set of fire works to the approaching presidential campaign.

The enforcement of the prohibition law by Secretary Mellon and the internal revenue bureau, will furnish the questions to be delved into and the senatorial inquisitors in their work will have the aid of special counsel versed in the intricacies of congressional inquiry. Hearings will begin September 1.

As the first move in the program today Senators King of Utah, and Jones of New Mexico, democratic members of the committee, called, with Senator Couzens, upon Senator Watson, republican of Indiana, chairman of the committee. They told him that their three votes constituted a majority, and that they intended to force the resumption of the investigation, at once, and with legal aid. Chairman Watson protested, but his third republican colleague, Senator Ernst of Kentucky, was out of the city and in the ensuing discussion, the chairman gave notice that he would resign the direction of affairs in view of the new program.

Undisturbed the majority proceeded to indicate their purpose to accept the resignation, and to elect Senator Couzens chairman, but all four agreed that Senator Ernst should be heard in the meantime. Failing to get in touch with him by telegraph, the committee adjourned until tomorrow morning when it will meet to ratify its purpose, and disband while its legal staff assembled evidence.

Pending tomorrow's discussion, participants to the maneuvering were reticent to comment. Senator Couzens was said to have the design of employing Francis J. Heney, San Francisco graft prosecutor, to conduct the case, against which Senator Watson was openly hostile, and in favor of which the democratic members were not entirely firm.

The mental reactions of both youths to the consequences of their conspiracy were detailed today in court.

Leopold, whose life, with that of Loeb, is at stake, in the hearing before Chief Justice John R. Caverly of the criminal court, expressed his sentiment and revealed other processes of his mind to the police officers who guarded him after the first joint confessions to the crime.

Originally it had been planned to hold the ceremony in Rome, but Miss Mosser several days ago visited the Fifteenth Century Castle here of Count Guidi and so admired it and the famous chapel that she insisted on being married amid the attractive middle age surroundings.

37,000 NEEDED TO HARVEST CANADA'S WHEAT CROP

Winnipeg, July 25.—Thirty-seven thousand harvesters will be required to assist in harvesting western Canada's wheat crop this year, it was decided today at a conference of representatives of the railways, the provincial governments, farm organizations and employment services. Last year 63,000 harvesters were employed.

Drouth Menaces Staple Farm Crops

Potato Vines are Wilting—Field Corn is Suffering—Tobacco is Six Weeks Late.

Hartford, July 25.—Becoming more and more serious daily, through the long drouth, the time is fast approaching when staple farm crops and all garden production will be ruined beyond recovery. A factor, also, which is aiding the damage by drouth, is the strang wind every afternoon and often through the early evening, which makes the ground still more parched and which by its incessant swaying of plants of all kinds, especially those like tobacco which stands singly, pulls on the roots and handicaps them in their downward burrowing for moisture.

Tobacco is the main farm crop of the Connecticut valley, and is sorely hit. The early tobacco is running up unnaturally and topping out long before it should. The lower leaves are burning up and all the leaves are being pinched up. The plants are not making the stocky growth essential to a good crop. There is no spread to the leaves and the growth is not that of a normal year. While this applies more especially to the early set, the late set has had little benefit from rain and is very irregular. Some of it has hardly more than got a start.

As a whole, the tobacco crop is six weeks late and much more than usual will be cut in September. Should there be an early frost, hundreds of acres would probably be "touched."

The hay crop is very light and scarce. New cut grass is hard to buy, and is very high in price.

The potato crop, generaly speaking, is a failure, and fiel dafter field of the vines may be seen with the vines wilted and practically dead.

Field corn is suffering. Its growth is very slow and the leaves are burning up.

Live Opportunities For You.

"Opportunities knock but once." So said the sage. But don't you believe it. It isn't so.

Opportunity knocks every day of your life. Every advertisement in The Bulletin is brimful of opportunity for someone. Many of them are written with you in mind. They offer you opportunities to save time, money and effort—opportunities to surround you with comforts and conveniences—opportunities to eat better, sleep better, dress better and live better.

You would live in ignorance of these opportunities were it not for advertising. Someone might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to your comfort and well being; or some better material for making shoes or clothing—but you would never know it.

Modern advertising is a boon. It keeps information up to date on the many things we need in order to live profitable, happy and useful lives in this age of rapidfire progress.

Every advertisement in The Bulletin is a real opportunity. Don't let it knock in vain.

DAVIS BELIEVES TREATIES SHOULD GO TO BOTH HOUSES

Dark Harbor, Islesboro, Me., July 25.—Treaties should be ratified by a majority vote of both houses of congress, instead of by a two-thirds majority of the senate, as the Constitution now requires, is the view of John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee.

In giving voice to this belief here today, Mr. Davis made his first declaration of policy since his nomination, but he was only reiterating a statement to the American Bar association more than a year ago at the time he was president of that organization.

"I said that and I still say it," Mr. Davis declared in reply to questions as to whether he had made such a statement. "I believe with John Hay the forefathers in their wisdom fixed it so that the kickers could rule. If I had my way the kickers would not be able to rule.

"Treaties should be ratified in the same way that laws are made. One strikes at the vitals of government no more than the other. I don't know of any other civilized government that requires more than a majority, and I do not see why it should be required in this country."

SLUMP IN COAL MINING RESULTS IN ASSESSMENT

Scranton, Pa., July 25.—The district executive board of the United Mine Workers here has levied an assessment of 25 cents a month on all union miners in District No. 1 for the month of July and until further notice, it was announced today at district headquarters.

The assessment was levied, an official statement said, to help about eight thousand anthracite mine workers thrown out of employment because of the slump in the coal market and the shutting down of a number of collieries.

The statement charged that "some individual coal operators do not respect any contract" and do not recognize the anthracite conciliation board. The board is composed of three operators and three miners who settle disputes that cannot be adjusted.

UNION LEADERS TO COLLECT $500,000 FOR LA FOLLETTE

New York, July 25.—Trade union leaders supporting Senator La Follette's candidacy for the presidency, at a meeting today, decided to undertake the collection of at least $500,000 for the campaign fund and agreed upon a plan to form an "independent labor party," which they said they hoped the La Follette followers would join.

RUNAWAY BALLOON LANDED ON TREE ON POND ISLAND, ME.

Observation Blimp Had Escaped From the Lakehurst, N. J., Air Station in a Storm—The Balloon, Which Carried No Passengers, Had Flown About 450 Miles—Passed Out to Sea Over Scituate, Mass., at a Height of 2,500 Feet.

Boston, July 25—The navy observation balloon which escaped from the Lakhurst, N. J., air station in a storm early today ended its fugitive career on a tree at the eastern end of Pond Island, Me. The derelict had flown about 450 miles. It carried no passenger. Radio reports received indicated that it was a wreck.

BLIMP PASSED OUT TO SEA OVER SCITUATE, MASS.

Boston, July 25—The navy observation balloon that tore loose from its moorings at the Lakehurst, N. J., air station early today, was the object of search off the New England coast tonight by the destroyer Putnam and the naval tug Wandank.

The big blimp, 150 feet long, has passed out to sea over Scituate at a height of 2500 feet, and a speed of about 27 miles an hour, with an empty basket, a ladder and 1500 feet of mooring cable swinging dizzily when the naval craft took up the chase. The balloon was following a course almost due east, and it was estimated that she had gas enough in the bag to keep her up until nightfall.

Tearing away from Lakehurst in a storm, which snapped the control cable that moored the blimp to a winch the balloon slipped along the lower New England coast, passing over New London, Conn., and Providence R. I., before it cut across Massachusetts to Scituate. The navy yard here had been notified from Lakehurst and the naval craft were ready to make pursuit.

The balloon, continuing on the easterly course that had carried it across Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, was sighted passing over Isle au Taut in the early afternoon, losing height, and when it was seen by Gardner Lawson, a figherman, off Bois Bubert Island, it was close to the water.

The navy tug Wandank was ordered to recover the balloon which cost $50,000.

THOROUGHLY FRIGHTENED FOR ABUSING HIS HORSE

Boston, July 25.—Michael Fruman, of Chelsea was before the municipal court today on charges of cruelty to his horse. Witnesses said he was working the broken down animal far beyond his strength.

"Take him out and shoot him," Judge Creed directed. Fruman, almost in a faint, protested that the court was going too far. "Why should I die," he exclaimed.

Then he was told it was the horse not himself, that was to be killed and he mopped his brow in relief. The case against Fruman was filed.

Some men who never forget that they are gentlemen fail to remember that there are others.

MRS. CANDLER NOT TO OPPOSE DIVORCE SUIT

Atlanta, Ga., July 25.—Mrs. May Little Ragan Candler will not oppose the divorce suit filed by her husband, Asa G. Candler, Sr., Atlanta millionaire, because of a cash payment to her of $60,000 made prior to the filing of her suit, The Atlanta Journal says in a story published today.

"Reports in courthouse circles were that Mr. Candler had settled $100,000 on his wife but it was understood that the actual figures were $60,000 and that she had waived all claims against him in the way of alimony or participation in his estate," the story says.

The suit for divorce came several months after the arrest of Mrs. Candler, W. J. Stoddard, and W. J. Keeling, business men, in an apartment house, the police claiming they were sitting around a table on which was a partly filled bottle of liquor. The charges against Mrs. Candler and Mr. Keeling were dismissed, but Mr. Stoddard was bound over to the state courts on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

The aged millionaire founder of the Coco Cola company brought suit for divorce one year after he married Mrs. May Little Ragin, who formerly was a public stenographer in the Candler building.

"While none of the principals or attorneys involved in the case would discuss the matter," the Journal's story says, "it was understood that Mrs. Candler would interpose no objection to the granting of a final decree of divorce on the ground of cruel treatment as set up in the petition filed some weeks ago."

The Journal states that it also developed that the cash settlement "was made prior to the filing of the divorce petition and that while no formal agreement was made by Mrs. Candler not to fight the case, she had determined not to do so."

Mr. Candler was married not long after his engagement was broken to Mrs. Onezima De Bouchelle, New Orleans society leader, who sued him for $50,000 alleging breach of promise. The jury found for Mr. Candler.

COOLIDGE'S FAREWELL TO GROUP OF BOY SCOUTS

Washington, July 25—Reverence for nature, for law, and for old was laid down as the fundamentals of boy scouthood and of American institutions by President Coolidge in an address delivered tonight at the white house and transmitted by telephone to a farewell meeting in New York for a group of boy scouts who will sail tomorrow to attend an international gathering of the organization in Copenhagen.

The president bade the scouts farewell in his capacity as honorary president of the American boy scouts, and enjoined the departing boys to show their foreign associates in the scout movement that they desired to protect and cherish their own country and "contribute to the well being, right thinking, and true living of the whole world."

"There was no boy scout organization in my boyhood, but every boy who has the privilege of growing up on a farm learns instinctively the three fundamentals of scouthood," the president said.

WILLIMANTIC

The automobile accessory stock of the Auto Supply company was replaced on the shelves Thursday evening, following the return to this city of one of the owner, Dr. Charles A. Jenkins. It was learned that a bond had been furnished and that the attachment and suit were practically settled. The store was emptied Thursday afternoon, during the absence of the owners, by Deputy Sheriff Addison J. Greenslit on the strength of an attachment placed in behalf of the Chief Refining Company for a gasoline bill. The employes in charge, D. C. Lovett refused to turn over the keys and as one section of the store is rented for use by another company, the proverbial padlock could not be placed and as a result the goods were taken away and stored for safe keeping. Business was being conducted as usual Friday.

The home of Alva Gilchrist, on the North Coventry road, town of Andover, is a mass of ruins as the result of a fire which started in an ell of the house from an unknown cause, Thursday afternoon about 3.30 o'clock and destroyed the building. Mr. and Mrs. Gilchrist were in the village of Andover on business when the fire was discovered by neighbors. The news of the fire was broadcasted by telephone and a band of volunteers, including the male help of the Case Paper Board company, responded. It was found, however, that the water supply about the premises was not sufficient to fight the blaze and the men devoted their attention in saving the household goods. All of the funiture on the lower floor was taken out, but the contents of the second story were lost. It was learned later that a sum of money in a box in one of the rooms of the ground floor had been consumed in the flames and that it could have been saved had the volunteers known of its location. The loss is estimated at $2,000.

He paid a fine of $200 and in the afternoon was taken to Brooklyn jail to serve his sentence of thirty days.

Considerable excitement was created at the intersection of Church and Valley street Thursday evening shortly after six o'clock when a Willys-Knight touring car mounted the sidewalk and crashed head-on into the brick wall of the J. D. Chaffee Silk Manufacturing company building, situated at the corner. C. Howard Chaffee who had been standing against the building displayed agility in vacating his position with a leap and the machine struck the wall at the spot where he had stood stood. The crash occurred after the driver of the Willys Knight whose name was not given out and Eli Blanchette of 173 Jackson street had zig-zagged about at the blind corner to avoid a collision. Mr. Blanchette was traveling westward on Valley street and just behind him came the Willys-Knight in which were two men. Blanchette slowed down to seven miles an hour to turn into Church street and apparently the other driver misunderstood the move or decided to take a chance to get by and as a result he struck the building. The stranger accused the local man of being responsible for the accident. The car was in shape to run under its own power and the driver said that he was going to report the matter to the state motor vehicle authorities in Hartford. In the confusion his name was not secured nor was the registration number of his car. Mr. Chaffee, however, picked up an envelope after the accident which gave a clue as to the man's identity. Written on the back of the envelope was "Orrin Brown, Strand Hotel, Hartford. Accident 6.05 p. m., Thursday, July 24, 1924.

There is increasing local enthusiasm in anticipation of the launching of Willimantic's ship into the sea of baildom after a week on dry-dock That the league has not been a successful venture from a financial standpoint goes without discussion, but for live-wire competition and real rivalry it is recorded as unexcelled in the history of the state for semi-pro ball. The Thread City team stands second in place and just one step behind the league leaders nevertheless there is always the chance for a comeback from low numbers and the week-end games are to be played with great care.

Carol Watson, 19, of North Windham and Frank C. Sterry, of 95 Bellevue street, this city, pleaded guilty to charges of reckless driving, in the police court Friday morning. The cases were the outcome of a collision of automobiles driven by the men, at the corner of Church and Valley streets Thursday evening. The testimony given by the accused varied but slightly. The cases were nolled on the payment of costs, amounting to $6.35 which was paid in each case.

The drivers are staying at Columbia Lake and they left for this city together. C. H. Abbott and C. C. Goodsell, of West Hartford companions of defendants, testified that the speed of the machines did not exceed the limit fixed by law which is twenty miles per hour. The assessment in each case amounted to $16.30 which was paid.

Royal Heir Turns Priest To Expiate Mother's Sin

Former Crown Prince George of Saxony, who is to embrace the priesthood at Trepnitz, to expiate the sins of his mother. Twenty-one years ago she was Queen Louise, consort of Friedrich August III. She fled the palace, eloping with an Italian pianist, leaving her five children and husband behind. A short time later, a baby was born at the time the King divorced her. After a deal of wrangling the King recognized the child as the Princess Monaco, but refused to recognize the mother. The son, now 31 years old, has lived all his life with the thought that if he did not do expiation for her soul, she would go to perdition. The mother is now teaching languages in Brussels.

The hail storm of last week was more severe in the lower neighborhood than on the top of the hill. The noon following the storm hail stones could be gathered in handsful north of Clifford Thompson's house. The destructive ice storm of last winter, which lasted a week on the hill was scarcely noticeable in the lower neighborhood. It will take years for the trees to recover their shaps if they ever do, in the upper section of Pendleton Hill, so ruthlessly were the large limbs torn asunder while other trees were wholly uprooted.

Sunday night only, superb double feature program George Arliss in The Ruling Passion from Earl Derr Biggers' story in The Saturday Evening Post. Scenario by Forrest Halsey, directed by Harmon Weight, no man is indispensable, except to his own family, says the inimitable Arliss in a role full of common sense and chuckles. Cast includes Doris Kenyon and Edward Burns.

Unblazed Trails, an Adventure production in which Dick Hatton, one of the "comers" of the current season, is starred. In these five reels of adventure Hatton is supplied with much material well suited to his individual pulchritude and he handles every situation admirably. Widely varied are the two types which he brings forth from the one character, the first a home-loving law-abiding young citizen and devoted father, and the second a rough-hewn westerner of the most extreme western tendencies. In the latter he is the more natural and is indeed spectacular in his open-breast shirt and bare arms.

Playing opposite Mr. Hatton in this picture is none other than Vivian Rich, a former star with the American Film Company. Her part is great as the daughter of the man who unknowingly sent Dick to the penitentiary for a crime which his own son had committed and only through her splendid interpretation is it made more prominent. P. Dempsey Tabler handles the role of the father and he will be remembered as Tarzan in many of the Tarzan of the Apes stories. This picture will please, for it is of the material most liked by the average theater-goer and especially the lover of the great outdoors.

Added attractions, Aesops fables, comedy Outbound and famous Palace orchestra.

Entire change of program three days starting Monday, Anna Q. Nilsson, Adolphe Menjou, Carmel Myers and an all star cast in Broadway after Dork. Ladies bargain matinee Monday July 28th 10c.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

AT THE BREED

Oh-o-h, baby's here.

Baby is Ernest Truex, the grownup featured player in the William Fox special, Six Cylinder Love, which comes to the Breed theatre on Sunday for a 3 days run That's what his adorable little wife (played by Florence Eldridge) calls him. She babies him, against his better judgment, into buying an automobile. And then the fun begins.

Along with the car, f. o. b. their bungalow, smirk the three Spongers who live for a good time at the expense of their "permanent hosts." Along with the car come gasoline, accessory and speeding expenses. Oh yes, baby has a lallapalooza time of it. Then comes the inevitable smash when baby rises to heights of indignant manhood, and with one fell swoop orders the amazed Spongers out of his house and bawls out his wife unmercifully. She's all ready to go to mother. "Go 'head," grins "baby," with tears of fury and hurt glittering in his eyes. "I deserve to lose you too."

But friend wife sees the errors of her ways when he doesn't entreat her to stay. Accordingly, with feminine perversity, she stays, and together through thick and thin, badly cooked food and some tears and laughs, they battle to a triumphant reward.

Six Cylinder Love is a picture everybody will enjoy, for it depicts a story representative of many a home today. It is directed by Elmer Clifton, who made Down to the Sea in Ships and includes in the cast, headed by Ernest Truex and Florence Eldridge, Maud Hill, Marjorie Milton, Ann McKittrick, Donald Meek, Thomas Mitchell, Harold Mann, Ralph Sipperly, Becton Churchill, Franco Tweed and Grace Gordon.

The Night Hawk, Harry Carey's latest picture which has been running at the Breed theatre, will be shown there for the last time tonight.

It is the story of a crook of the underworld whose only chance of escaping from the police is to flee to the west with a man who promises to save him if he will avenge his enemy. Out west, he falls in love with the daughter of the man he has sworn to kill and many interesting complications ensue.

Broadway Theatre

Mystery, melodrama, thrills, comedy, heart-appeal and all the rest are packed into The Bedroom Window the new William de Mille production for Paramount, which opens at the Broadway theatre tomorrow night and continues through Wednesday.

Written by the author of Grumpy Only 38, Don't Call It Love, etc., this production is our idea of well nigh perfect screen entertainment. There have been mystery dramas and mystery dramas, but never before has a story quite come up to the interesting theme running all through The Bedroom Window. Some pictures start off with a bang only to slow up as they progress. Others start slowly and close with a great smashing climax. The Bedroom Window opens with a bang and closes with a great smashing climax. That's about all need be said about any picture.

May McAvoy has the principal feminine role in this production, and Malcolm MacGregor is leading man. Other featured players include Ricardo Cortez in a more or less heavy role, Robert Edeson, George Fawcett and Ethel Wales. Mrs. Beranger wrote both original story and screen play and L. Guy Wilky did the photography.

The comedy feature will be Larry Semon in The Midnight Cabaret and is said to be just one continuous laugh.

A new Kinograms weekly will close a splendid program.

Monday Matinee ladies will be admitted for ten cents.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Returning to Danielson after an absence of sixteen years, which he has spent in California, Al L. James, visiting with his father, R. R. James, finds this town greatly changed and for the better. He has been interested and very much surprised at Danielson's growth, especially at the development of the Connecticut Mills property and at the changes in the appearance of the business section. Those who have been here as the development has gradually come on are not likly to be as much impressed with it as is Mr. James, who can compare all that has been accomplished with the town as he knew it years ago. Mr. James is now engaged in business at Gardena, a suburban section of Los Angeles.

The variation in prices at which gasoline is being sold this week in this and nearby territory is interesting to automobile owners. The range in price is from 20 to 23 cents. The 20 cent price on a gas that is sold in large quantities throughout this section was not quoted in Danielson, but at one of the nearby villages.

Worthy of special mention is the freedom from serious motoring accidents that has marked the movement of heavy week end traffic through this section during the present summer. There is a reason. State officers make regular patrols of all the trunk line highways in this part of the state on Saturdays and Sundays. The majority of drivers are well aware of this and few of them will take chances of speeding or doing other illegal things because of the fear that they will be caught at it. Things are vastly different since the patrols were established as to safety on the highways when traffic is heavy and it is due wholly to the vigilance of the state police. There are, of course, some wild drivers yet extant, but not so many wild ones as in former years. More drivers indulge now in "cutting in" than in speeding and this dangerous stunt also can be greatly reduced if drivers who do it are reported to state officers and required to pay the penalty.

Timothy E. Hopkins, who has been in poor health for some time past, was reported Friday as seriously ill at his home on Main street. Mr. Hopkins was for years engaged in the woolen manufacturing business in this town.

A few letters are finding their way in and out of Danielson via aero mail for a part of their journey. The majority of these letters are to or from Pacific coast points.

PUTNAM

Dr. Harry W. Foster, New York specialist in diseases of the throat and nose, a former Putnam boy, will again give his time during his vacation in Putnam to operating on children in this section, at a clinic to begin at the Day Kimball hospital next Tuesday. Dr. Foster is at his summer home on Putnam Heights only a short way from the Foster homestead, where he was born.

A total of 75 operations will be performed at the rate of 15 a day for the removal of tonsils and adenoids. This is a smaller number of operations than the doctor has performed in Putnam the past few years, but on account of his state of health he feels that he requires a rest after the labors of the winter as his New York practice is large. Dr. Foster allows his vacation to thus be broken into each year, through the love of children and an affection for his old home.

Visitors from abroad at Pomfret include Count and Countess Cosmo Rucellai, of Florence, Italy, who came to Pomfret from Newport and are now guests of Mrs. Elliott and Miss Elliott at Orchard House, and Simon Harcourt Smith, son of Sir Cecil and Harcourt Smith, son of Sir Cecil and Lady Harcourt Smith, of London, who arrived on the eviathan Monday and who came to Pomfret after spending a few days in New York, and is now the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Hoppin. Simon Smith is a godson of Mr. and Mrs. Hoppin. His father is director of the Victoria and Albert Museum.

While assisting at haying during a stay at his uncle's summer home in Phoenixville, Stanley Rose, 17, of Worcester, fell from the hay mow in the barn landing on a sharp stick which penetrated his eneek. He was brought to the Day Kimball hospital for treatment.

As announced, Friday, J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the state central committee, appointed Miss Katherine Byrne of Putnam vice chairman. This is an honor and distinction for Miss Byrne and for Putnam as it in effect makes her second in command of the republican organization in this state.

In the appointment of Miss Byrne party zeal and active effort have been recognized. Her activity began before woman had the ballot and has continued since their enfranchisement. She has served the district as a member of the state central committee, was a delegate-at-large to the republican national convention and has devoted a great deal of time since her return from Cleveland in lining up the women of her district behind the party nominees. As a result of her efforts nearly every town in her district, the 28th, has a well organized Woman's Coolidge club. These clubs are already at work and, by a house to house canvass, are gaining members and making voters. The men in the district have been relegated to second position in the start of the present republican campaign due to the activities of the present vice chairman of the state central committee.

Miss Byrne takes office immediately. What she has accomplished in the 28th district will be duplicated on a larger scale throughout the state. She will take an active part in directing the state campaign from headquarters in the Allyn House, at Hartford, following the state convention at New Haven, Sept. 9 and 10. Her ability as an executive and an organizer makes her eminently fitted for this appointment.

Miss Byrne is head of the Byrne company, with one of the largest stores in the city, and is its active head. She has lived nearly all her life in Putnam and si known to everyone within its borders. She is also well known throughout the county and state as an indefatigable worker in several organizations, among them the Red Cross, having much to do with the maintainance of a public nurse in this city, the grange, and in the field of politics.

In politics she first attained more than local prominence in 1920 when she served on the original advisory committee of the republican state central committee, which was appointed by Chairman Roraback. In 1922 she became the first woman member of the state central committee of the 28th district when the committee was enlarged to include a woman from each district. Previous to that she had become the first woman vice chairman of the republican town committee of Putnam. She is now president of the Putnam Republican club and is a member of the advisory committee of the Putnam's Woman's Coolidge club.

BOY PRICKS DYNAMITE CAP, USING A SAFETY PIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, July 25.—Following the explosion of a dynamite cap which he was investigating with the point of a pin, Stanley Uniewska, age 14 of Union, is resting comfortably at the Day Kimball hospital Putnam, where he was taken Thursday night after being treated at the home of his parents. His fingers were badly lacerated and pieces of metal were abstracted from his abdomen. His condition is not considered dangerous.

The family had but recently moved to Union from Worcester. The boy found the piece of metal in a box in his home. Not knowing what the thing was his boy's curiosity tempted him to investigate. Picking up a safety pin he began pricking the object. There was a sudden explosion and the lad toppled over on the kitchen floor, where he lay, screaming, until his mother ran to him.

Blood was flowing from his injured hands and his clothing was badly torn. This frightened the mother and added to the lad's terror. Dr. Pike of East Woodstock was summoned and, after giving first aid treatment, brought the boy to the hospital where it was stated Friday afternoon that he was resting comfortably.

Walter P. Chrysler Says Maxwell Now Excels Among Fours

J. J. HERBERT, Agent, 195 No. Main St., Norwich, Conn.
L. H. FRINK, Plainfield, Conn.
FLOYD BARBER, Jewett City, Conn.

In the four-cylinder field, the good Maxwell is now duplicating the revolutionary results which the Chrysler Six has already registered among the sixes.

That in brief is the story of the recent developments accomplished in the Maxwell and the Chrysler engineering staff—which, in my opinion, now stamp the Maxwell a most remarkable four-cylinder car.

These new results are so vital and so valuable that they put the good Maxwell far beyond your previous conception of four-cylinder possibilities.

Have you ever driven a four-cylinder car in which the last noticeable trace of vibration is gone?

Well, that's what you'll find in the good Maxwell of today, with its floating platform spring suspension of the motor.

The first four-cylinder car, we believe, in which vibration is practically eliminated, giving greater comfort to those in the car and far longer life to the car itself.

I don't know that you can appreciate how much this means in new steering and handling and riding ease unless you experience it in the good Maxwell yourself. And if you ride in a closed Maxwell, you'll be glad to miss the annoying rumble you've always found in closed cars.

These, of course, are the differences you would notice first. But they are not all.

As you go along, you will find the Maxwell riding the way you thought only far heavier cars could ride, and displaying a nimbleness that makes you wonder why anyone wants more than Maxwell gives.

Now turn to the other side—costs and upkeep and so on, which are materially reduced by the unusually high proportion of costly alloy steels.

You may not know that Maxwell owners are now averaging 24 miles per gallon of gasoline.

There are a dozen other things I could tell about, but do you know of any four that matches up to Maxwell in these respects?

You see now why I term the Maxwell a revolutionary car among fours. You will understand completely before you've driven a Maxwell five miles.

I can say to you with all assurance that you are going to find in the good Maxwell we are building today far more than you ever hoped for from any four-cylinder car.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kelly motored to Providence and Harrisville on Friday.

A new light has been put up at the corner of Dougherty and Pleasant streets by the Danielson & Plainfield Electric company. It is a great improvement over the last light, which showed only around the corner. Pleasant street, which is about a quarter of a mile long, has but one light to show the road. It is the darkest street in town, despite the fact that it is well settled.

Many parties left Plainfield for Sugar Brook farm, Thursday and Friday, where a carnival was held under the auspices of the Central Village church. The receipts will go toward purchasing a new organ.

The residents of Baker avenue feel grateful to The Bulletin for having the lights there improved recently. The company was not aware of the poor service being given and regretted that it was not reported sooner so that it could have been remedied. Byron Haskell has returned to Terre Haute, Ind., after spending a week at his home on Philip street. He plans to remain there for a year, as he is working on the construction of a big dam.

A recent advertisement inserted by the gas company stated that gas would be furnished the town of Plainfield. A great many persons have inquired as to what was meant by the ad.

PEACE RATHER THAN WAR.

It may not seem so but this week end marks the tenth anniversary of the outbreak of the World war. This doesn't mean our participation in it, but the beginning of that great struggle which had its inception among the nations of Europe and into which we were later drawn.

The decade has been marked by years of great sacrifices, great enlightenment. Where there was previously a desire for peace, and where it was felt that no such titanic clash of arms could ever take place among civilized nations, there is a strong and increasing demand for setting up machinery and guiding thought in such channels that the basic causes of the misery and woes due to war may be prevented.

It is no light undertaking. It calls for persistent effort, education and understanding. For a great many years there has been but one way of settling certain international problems and it will require some time, in spite of the example of the late war, to rid the world of war.

It is a most commendable ambition. The desire to overcome that great wastage which war causes is most commendable. And yet the slowness of the process cannot be disregarded. It is an undertaking which calls for everlasting stick-to-itiveness by an every increasing army of peace seeking workers. Settling disputes by law instead of war is so much better that we cannot understand the delay in a general acceptance of it, but we know with what reluctance some countries carry out their constitutional requirement of electing their presidents by ballots instead of bullets.

The time is not near when there can be an abandonment of armaments, though there may be constantly increasing restrictions thereon. We cannot in one fell swoop eliminate our defenses, discharge our army and scrap our entire navy. But we can do a bit more in setting forth the merits of the Golden Rule, in setting forth the benefits of peaceful conditions and in overcoming the hatred that is still to be found between nations. The war has furnished a stronger reason and a new incentive for such work. The lesson of that struggle which was started ten years ago should not go unheeded.

STOPPING CROSSING ACCIDENTS

Some of the worst grade crossing accidents have occurred in the state of Ohio. That is accentuated by that one this week when the lives of ten persons were quickly snuffed out and as many more were seriously injured. Whenever such tragedies occur they invariably arouse a demand for the ending of the possibilities of repetitions.

That is no simple problem, for while it is easy to say, eliminate the grade crossings, that is something that is not so easily accomplished. Such danger spots are being overcome but it is a slow and expensive job. There are many crossings to go and it isn't as easy to get the money with which to do the work as it is to suggest the outlay. Quite certain is it that the worst ones must get attention first, while all possible protection is established the others.

Safety at such points, however, should be two sided. It is important that there should be warnings, but it is necessary that there should be a proper display of personal responsibility and an adequate effort at self preservation.

This seems to be recognized by a part at least of those delegates to the grade crossing-safety first convention at Columbus, Ohio, this week where there was advocated legislation that would require automobiles to stop before crossing a railroad track. This contemplated law would be similar to legislation which is being enforced in South Carolina, and getting supporters in other states.

The grade crossing problem confronts every state. New activity in behalf of relief is stimulated by every fatality at such points, even though it is not overlooked that there is a large degree of responsibility resting upon the highway users. The stopping of all cars might not overcome all crossing accidents but it would serve to prevent a large number and it would place the machines under much better control. To stop at such points means to give recognition to the danger that exists there.

FLYING STOUNTS.

In view of the [illegible] accidents which have occurred and the fear that others may happen, it is not surprising that protest has been made to the navy department against the practice of some naval aviators flying low over the bathing beaches about New York.

Possibly there are aviators who like to do stunts before a crowd and think that the bathing beaches with their large numbers in the water or on the sand, an excellent place for such grandstand activities, and it may be that there is too little confidence in the ability of the fliers to avoid a lot of the trouble which the crowds apparently anticipate. But it is evident that it is no place to take chances. Machines have failed to do what was expected of them and have plowed through humanity at fairgrounds and swooped down into crowds unexpectedly, and against the intentions of the aviator. The low fliers have been the cause of criticism at boat races, at tennis matches and at baseball grounds, where the crowds are apprehensive of danger even if the fliers are not.

In connection with the protest against the navy fliers attention is called to the fact that aviators are required to maintain an altitude of 2000 feet in flying over New York. There was the belief that there was some protection to be gained by this requirement. That being so there is reason in asking that it be respected when it comes to the beaches, where large numbers are assembled and where they would be helpless should an airplane suddenly swoop in their midst, or swoop through the crowd through a miscalculation on the part of the aviator. The bathers about New York do not take kindly to the idea of having the naval aviators emulate William Tell. They rightly believe that their best protection lies in the prevention of such stunts. Chance taking accomplishes nothing and it is clearly open to serious consequences.

RUNNING TROLLEY ROADS.

In the past several years trolley roads have gone through some trying periods. They have experienced the effects of steadily increasing cost of operation and supplies and they have been obliged to look for increased revenue to offset them. Trolley fares that were once fixture at a nickel have been boosted one, two, three and five cents, and while the struggle has been for more revenue there has been a corresponding fight for a reduction in expenditures.

Varying results have been obtained according to locations. Where it was necessary to boost fares there have been improvements which made it possible to lower them a trifle. Some cuts have been made only to have it disclosed that lines were being operated at a loss, and a slight increase has followed.

In connection with all the advancing of trolley fares the change has been prompted by economic conditions. For many, however, it has been impossible to view it other than corporation greed. This is based upon the mistaken view that the trolley companies have some mysterious way of avoiding the high costs which no one else has.

But the experience of the private corporations operating trolley lines has been no different than those municipal ventures in that direction. In Seattle fares had to be boosted in order to overcome losses and in Detroit during the month of June there was a drop of about $23,000 in the net profit over the same month a year ago, for Detroit's municipal lines were obliged to get away from the old city rates and exact 14 per cent more from themselves for trolley fares. The special privileges of municipal operation is not always accomplish all the expected, and they are not immune from the business methods of the private corporations.

FOR HIMSELF ALONE.

There has been a listening in to ascertain what course Senator Brookhart of Iowa was going to take. Known as one of the radicals, whose sympathies have been close to those of La Follette, it has been freely claimed that he was going to throw his fortunes in with the senator from Wisconsin, that he was in other words going to be consistent and follow his inclination.

It comes therefore as a bit of a surprise when he announces that he is not going to back and work for La Follette. He has been thinking the situation over, taking into account the various conditions and realizing that he owes his place in the senate and his chance to return there to the republican party. He therefore reaches the remarkable position of deciding to get all he possibly can from the republican party, but without doing anything for it except to embarrass it whenever opportunity presents itself.

This means that Brookhart is out for himself. He is not going to leave the republican party and he is not going to give aid to La Follette, than which of course he would like nothing better, but neither is he going to speak for nor support President Coolidge.

That makes him out one of those leaches on the party which may please Iowa but which in most states would be met by an invitation to go where he belongs.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

From every point of view there is much to be said in favor of summer play grounds for children during the long vacation period. It is of benefit to the children and a relief to their mothers. Quite apart from the healthful social influence it must exert upon the young folks, it entertains them is a very helpful way by stimulating their minds as well as exercising their bodies. Mothers know that they are under right influences when at the playgrounds with their teachers, which is quite otherwise when they are running wild upon the streets. It is most of all a godsend to those mothers who are very limited in capacity for meeting the serious vacation problem. It also makes the average child willing to work outside of playground hours, and hence there is a fine balance struck between work and play both of which are important in the normal development of boys and girls.

From the economic standpoint the human family may be fairly said to be divided into two classes: First "those who can earn their bread by the sweat of their brow;" secondly, "those who earn their bread by the sweat of the other fellow's brow." at least they get, if they do not exactly earn, their bread by the other fellow's sweat. This, of course, is true of all the criminal and defective classes, and also of those unfortunates who are physically and mentally incapable of earning their own bread. I have not such people in mind in making this statement. It applies to a great many outside of jails, insane retreats, and hospitals. While this second class takes in a great many, who, if they had their just deserts would not be behind the bars, still they somehow manage to pull off their stunts of living on what the sweat of the other fellow produces without giving him his just and reasonable claims.

Our attention has been called of late to the raging fires in our western forests, causing a property loss probably running up into the millions, and also menacing human lives by the thousand. In a country so expansive as ours and such large areas of which are wooded, it is next to impossible to eliminate the fire danger altogether. In this respect it is hardly fair to compare us with Germany with its vastly smaller area to look after. Still we may learn from the fact that forest fires in Germany are practically unknown, simply because no combustible material is allowed to remain in the forests. Underbrush and deadwood are cleared away, and much greater care is taken to remove the causes of fires. Still with an extension of fire wardens, having outlooks on more of our elevations and with reserve patrols this menace to the nation's wealth might be greatly lessened.

The eyes of the American people have followed with unusual interest the Californian fliers on their earth-girdling cruise. London and Paris —not to specify other notable places— have given them ovations hardly second to what royalty receives. These men are worthier of it than many kings. Kings oftentimes receive plaudits for what the accidents of nature have created; but these men for what their intrinsic worth has shown them to be. These fliers must not only be expert engineers, but they must also have nerve and powers of endurance to correspond. Think of starting westward from San Francisco facing that mighty expanse of the Pacific with neither sleep nor rest until some bit of terra firma is sighted and utilized as a stopping place. These men may not wear the kingly diadem, but they are kingly in spirit and achievement just the same. The world will never tire of honoring such men.

If men would put as much downright energy into legitimate pursuits as they do in trying to put over trick stunts, they would be as well off money wise, and would be free from the constant fear of getting into the clutches of the law. Take the men who succeed in leading down the public with horse stocks and bonds. We will admit that it takes ability of a certain kind to fool the public even for a brief season. But in the end they are bound to fail. As Lincoln said, "You can't fool all the people all the time." Suppose the same business capacity was put at the disposal of reputable houses possibly not so much money would be gained in a given time, but it would in the longer period and it would be entirely free from the awful shadow of the penitentiary. To say that honesty "is the best policy" seems trite and tame, but observation shows it is the best from every point of view in the long run.

Why not insist by legal enactment that every automobile owner carry an insurance policy, covering, at least, personal injury and property damage. We would be less insistent on the fire and theft end of it because nobody has ever heard of one of these ten cent rattle-traps burning, and no one can possibly be so idiotic as to steal one. It could be easily traced because it could be heard all over the country from one end to the other. And yet one of these ten centers will smash a good, healthy picket fence, or run over a congressman with as little gall as a Packard of a Rolls-Royce would. Of course these latter are insured and damage could be collected. But if one of these third hand Tin-Lizzies should smash a fence or flatten out a congressman, it would be hard to collect the full damage done: that is seven dollars for the fence and seventy-five cents for the congressman.

The eighth scout law holds up before the lad a pretty stiff ideal. It reads thus: "He smiles whenever he can." (Does he, or anybody else, for that matter?) "His obedience to orders is prompt and cheery." (Is that so, with all scouts at all times? If it is true then there has been a sudden reversal of human nature that isn't generally known.) "He never shirks nor grumbles at hardships." (Is it really a fact that the scout movement has developed the perfect lad? To find a boy that never shirks nor grumbles indicates a high degree of civilization. When we produce a race of non-shirkers and non-grumblers the final act will be that of wing development.) Of course it is well to set up before the lads an ideal, but we must remember that an ideal is something that is ever before us, and never quite attained. No single organization has yet done more to promote manliness among boys than the Boy Scout movement.

Are we not a little harsh in our criticisms of the great men of past generations because they held views on various subjects which we regard as impossible? Would it not be fairer to us to judge them by the standards of the age in which they lived? We ought to remember that many a man who seems to us to have been ultra-conservative was critised in his own day as being unreasonably liberal. This due to the fact of the progressive development of the truth. With the advance of scientific knowledge many views once held seem ridiculous to us, and for this reason we ought to look at these views from the former environment. Instead of criticising those who have gone before us, it would be more reasonable to ask ourselves this question: Are we serving our day and generation as well as they did theirs? With advanced light more is expected of us than they. Are we living up to our high privileges?

COMPREHENSIVE SCHEME FOR WILD LIFE PROTECTION

In these days of summer outings the saturation of the cities with automobiles and the finest highway system in the world beckoning us toward the beyond combine to tempt us into seeking the great open places for relaxation and health.

The call of nature, the call of mother earth—particularly at this season—thrills us. With our whole being thus attuned to air and sunshine and water, we appreciate as never before the great work that is in progress for conservation of the outdoors, for health and profit. It makes us appreciate the purpose behind the national conference on outdoor recreation called here last May by President Coolidge to encourage Americans to make more of their opportunities and appropriate more of the advantages of our great American heritage of varied climes and scenery, of mountain and plain, or lakes and rivers.

Linking in with this general vision, a first practical step has already been taken in an act, which became law on June 7, authorizing the acquisition and setting aside as a wild life refuge of about 300,000 acres of swamp and low lands along the Mississippi river, between Rock Island, Ill., and Wabasha, Minn. Estimates for appropriations to carry out this project, for which funds are authorized but not appropriated, are being submitted at this time by the departments of agriculture and commerce.

Now this particular bit of outdoor conservation proposes the: a ready-made fish hatchery, created by nature, the best known breeding place for the greatest of American bass; a breeding place for migratory birds, other wild birds; game animals, fur-bearing animals, and for the conservation of wild flowers and aquatic plants, shall be preserved for our nation for all time.

Scheme Comprehensive

This initial project fits in with a far more comprehensive scheme on which legislation is pending and will be pushed when congress resumes. This is a national project, known as "the game refuge bill," or migratory bird refuge act, for which Representative Dan A. Anthony of Kansas is the sponsor, to furnish in perpetuity homes for migratory birds, the establishment of public shooting grounds to preserve the American system of free shooting, the provision of funds for establishing such areas and the furnishing of adequate protection for migratory birds. This is considered to be the only salvation of duck and goose shooting.

This is an offset to reclamation. Conservationists and biological interests have for some years been working to hold free drainage as many as possible of the suitable water areas for migratory wild fowl, fur-bearing animals and fish. We have drained during the past 50 years an area of more than 71,000,000 acres, or 11,000,000 more than covered by the five great lakes. The biological survey has worked with the game commission of Minnesota in saving Swan Lake, one of the finest areas for bird, game and fish refuge. Much of the water areas are worth far more in their natural condition than by being reclaimed as agricultural land. For example, there are several localities in nearby Maryland which pay better as muskrat fields than if under cultivation.

Nation Looks Ahead

The people of the country are beginning to look ahead and to demand that there be some forethought to save some of these natural areas before the opportunity is gone forever. One of the greatest advantages to come out of such conservation is the opportunity afforded for health-building recreation, so that men and women may be rejuvenated to carry on the work of the world. It must not be considered that this is legislation hostile to drainage and reclamation, but merely opposed to unwise drainage.

This larger project outlined in the Anthony bill has been favorably reported after extensive hearings in both the senate and the house, and early action is expected in the next session of congress.

Having taken this rather sketchy general survey of the wild life refuge legislation and the conservation it contemplates, we return to the project already authorized by congress —the new wild life refuge to be established on the Mississippi river. When the necessary appropriations are made by congress and the areas have been acquired, the Secretary of Agriculture is to have jurisdiction with respect to wild birds, game animals, fur-bearing animals, trees, wild flowers and plants. The Secretary of Commerce will have jurisdiction over the fish and other aquatic animal life. These officials are authorized to make suitable regulations governing hunting and fishing on the areas acquired.

This new law is a conservation measure of great interest in the preservation of wild life of all kinds, but it especially preserves the greatest natural fish-spawning region in the United States. It will increase the natural hatcheries of game fish 300 per cent and greatly reduce the cost.

From the area in this authorized purchase in six years' time 450,041,000 game fish were sent to thirty different states in the union. This purchase will multiply the output of these fish many times.

Scientific bodies devoted to the study of fish conservation claim that if protection is not given to the black bass during the spawning season this favorite of American game fishes will soon become extinct.

Black Bass Different

The black bass is different from any other American fish. It must select its own spawning bed, and it cannot be stripped like trout, salmon, or pike. There is no American fish so popular, and 90 per cent of all fishing tackle is made by the manufacturers to take black bass. He is found in all American fresh waters, ponds, lakes and streams. The bass is found under the firs and birches of the St. Lawrence basin, in the Everglades, under the overhanging Spanish moss of Florida, and in Louisiana, but his principal and natural spawning place is in the Mississippi river, the area which this law seeks to preserve.

This region is designed by nature especially for the conservation of the bass, and as he passes down the mighty Mississippi river and enters all its tributaries he brings food and he brings health to the smallest boy and to the oldest man.

From these upper Mississippi sloughs, swamps, creeks, lakes and ponds last year the bureau of fisheries during low water rescued 148,000,000 fish, such as pike, pickerel, perch, crappie and sunfish; and 40,000,000 baby black bass. These fish were obliged to stock the waters of thirty-two states.

The region is famous for its small fur-bearing animals, and during last year more than $250,000 worth of pelts were trapped. Government supervision will greatly increase the output.

Used in Button Making

The pearl button industry is dependent for its preservation upon this conservation measure. Few persons realize that the black bass is essential to the production of pearl buttons. Some years ago it was found that when the eggs of fresh water clams are thrown out in the water they fasten on the gills of the black bass, as one stage of development. Then they fall to the bottom of the stream and grow into shell fish, which is the basis of the pearl button industry. If this area was drained it would mean the wiping out not only of this breeding place for fish, but of the pearl button industry.

In 1923 approximately $200,000 was paid by this industry to clammers in the upper river for mussel shells. This aquatic plant life of these bottom lands is valuable and government control would greatly increase the yield of wild celery, wild rice, lotus and arrowroot because of the proper protection of their natural habitants.

Hearings on this legislation developed that the 300 miles encompassed is of incalculable value as a breeding ground for waterfowl and feeding ground during the northern and southern flights.

Two hundred and sixty varieties of song birds nest along the upper Mississippi, and it is a famous sanctuary for insect-eating birds.

Value Placed High

The value of the young bass distributed by the Bureau of Fisheries from this region each year far exceeds the total cost of the reservation, congress was assured.

Representative Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, who led the drive to have this law passed for the Izaak Walton league of some 3,000,000 members, points out that—

Possession by the national government will not interfere with navigation or the water supply of any of the states.

The present sloughs, marshes, ponds, lakes and streams act as a natural reservoir by holding floods in leash and preventing the waters from being precipitated to the lower rivers in destructive floods.

There is no more beautiful section in the United States than the 300 miles of river bottom land covered by this reserve. Artists and painters declare the natural scenery not only the equal of the Hudson, but surpassing it in beauty.

On each side of the river there are bluffs, some of them as high as 1,000 feet, and the rugged beauty is beyond description.

The timber value of the islands and bottom lands in this district is great. All types of woodland trees grow there in great quantity and very rapidly—elm, ash, oak, willow, boxwood, cottonwood, walnut, hickory, maple, dogwood, live oak and birch.

It is impossible to approximate the food value of ducks, geese, brant, snipe, woodcock, grouse and pheasants, taken from this area, but they are in the hundreds of thousands.

There is no other natural wild life refuge established by the federal government between the Rockies and Appalachians, the Canadian border and Gulf of Mexico.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

OUR FATHER'S HOUSE

"Let not your heart be troubled. I go to prepare a place for you, and whither I go ye know, and the way ye know." we know not whither thou goest and how can we know the way? said Thomas. Then Jesus told them that "the way" of which He had spoken was the way which He was even then preparing, by which men could reach the Father and enter into the many mansions in His eternal home. In fact, "I am the way," He said, "the truth and the life, no man cometh to the Father but by me."

But Philip, the man whose mind could not take in large ideas all at once, but who dwelt on details who so carefully counted the cost of feeding the five thousand turned to Him and said: "Lord show us the Father and it sufficeth us."

"Have I been so long time with you," replied Jesus, "and yet hast thou not know me, Philip? He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father."

Then he revealed to them more fully than ever before the great purpose of His mission in the world. He had come from the Father. He was about to return to the Father—for He was one with the Father, He had come to do "the works" of the Father. By His life and coming death He opened to every penitent and believing sinner, a way by which he could be cleansed from his sins, and find entrance into that heavenly rest which remaineth for the people of God. That way through His atonement is the only way, "for there is none other name under Heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." Acts 4:12. It is the true way, for by its all the claims of God's law are satisfied. It is the living way, for it moulds the daily life now, and it leads to eternal life hereafter.

As John leaned upon the bosom of Jesus and heard these gracious words from His lips, they were words of more than human wisdom and love. As we have seen before, he evidently could not separate the great truths from Him who taught them. The truth and the teacher were all one to him. Both were divine. So without any detailed unfolding of the great work of redemption, he records it as all summed up when he says, I am the way, the truth and the life—no man cometh to the Father, but by me.

Victoria's Restricted Childhood.

Victoria had no playmates of her own age, she had few of the pleasures of childhood, and almost from birth she was under surveillance and rigid training for the duties of a queen.

Alexandria Victoria she was baptised, and despite the fact that a great-uncle, three uncles and a cousin were between her and the throne, her father, the Duke of Kent, said she was destined to be Queen of England.

Before she was a year old her father died and left heavy debts that took all her mother's fortune, and the baby's first years were those of simplicity. To do her part to make the father's predictions come true, Victoria's mother gave up home and friends at Heidelberg and took the child to England to be reared.

Victoria had no little companions, and her 183 dolls and many toys did not take the place of a playmate. Wherever she went she was watched, and men stopped and lifted their hats to her. When she went to church she had to sit straight while other children could wiggle or sleep. At four she was given a state dinner by King George, was allowed in the room only a few moments, and then was taken away to a simple meal.

Death of the king and other relatives made her heir presumptive to the throne at 12 and she was subjected to training more rigid still. She was 18 when she was roused one night told that the king was dead and that she must hurry to greet the royal emissaries because she now was Queen of Great Britain. Then followed the pompous and trying ovation that gave her years of ruling, surrounded by politics, intrigue, and sometimes the trials of war.

In her third year as queen she married Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, and their married life was ideal. Nine children were born and the home was a happy one until the death of Victoria's mother, followed a year later by that of Albert.

Victoria reigned 64 years, longer than had any other sovereign, and at her death was beloved for she had been recognized as one of England's best queens and greatest mothers.

Monday—Taft Waited Many Years

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Word to Mrs. Miller.

Mrs. Editor: When it has been shown that Jesus, who is the author of Christianity, taught the doctrine of the Trinity and required His converts to be baptized into that name, what do the opinions of Mr. Rice and Mrs. Miller go for, to the contrary? Mrs. Miller—evidently a great reader of the Bible—errs in confounding her theology with her mathematics. All the texts Mrs. Miller quotes assume a Trinity. The question at issue is not the equality of the persons nor their essence, but that there are three. Let us not be diverted from the question by talk about the millenium nor about the future life, nor special translations of the original Greek. Mr. Rice declared that there was only one" passage that proved a Trinity of persons in the Godhead, but Mrs. Miller in her latest letter gives us six texts that mention the three persons, besides other influential references.

The Scriptures no where assume that Jesus ceased to exist for three days after crucifixion. As a matter of fact this statement is gathered into the creed, that "he went down into hell," and accomplished an important mission there. Even His human body "did not see corruption."

The question, however, is not on these points; but that we worship one God in three persons, and that we are baptized into that name, however imperfect may be our human conception of its mystery.

He was chosen as the British delegate to the International Railway Congresses in London and Paris, and was a member of the royal commissions on London traffic, on shipping rings, on canals, and on electoral reform, and a member of the commission to South Africa to advise on the constitution for the Transvaal and Orange River colonies. Lord Southborough was also on the staff of the present king on his visit to Canada in 1908.

GOVERNMENT AND PRIVATE OWNERSHIP IN CANADA

Power statistics which have been compiled by the Dominion of Statistics at Ottawa are decidedly in favor of Quebec as compared with Ontario, when analyzed on the basis of capital cost, price of power, expenses, etc. Consider the accompanying figures. The benefits of private ownership in construction and operation in Quebec as compared with public ownership and operation in Ontario are emphatically indicated.

	Quebec with taxes	Ontario without taxes
Capital	$167,128,587	$292,715,690
Primary power, h. p.	758,340	971,733
Revenue	21,814,289	40,460,551
Expenses	11,800,918	* 26,252,576
Employes	2,447	5,287
Output—k. w. h. (thousands)	2,539,874	3,151,460
Population	2,349,057	2,033,662
Capital per h. p.	$ 220.38	$ 301.23
Revenue per 1,000 k.w.h.	$ 8.47	$ 12.31
Expenses per 1,000 k.w.h.	$ 6.61	$ 8.33
Output—k. w. h. per employe	1,037,954	$596,077
Output—k. w. h. per capita	1,081	1,674

*Ontario Hydro and municipal plants pay no taxes. On same basis as private companies these would amount to $6,000,000 to $8,000,000 per annum, and would increase expenses per 1,000 k. w. h. about $2.10. Above figures are all for 1923.

The average capital cost per horsepower of plants in Quebec is $220 as against $301.23 in Ontario. The average revenue per 1,000 k. w. h. of output is $8,476 in Quebec as against $12,819 in Ontario with Ontario municipal and Hydro enterprises tax exempt, i. e., notwithstanding Ontario government credit and tax exemptions, average power rates in Quebec are two-thirds of those in Ontario. If proper taxes were charged Ontario rates would require to be 15 to 20 per cent. higher still.

The average operating expenses per 1,000 k. w. h. of output is $6,614 in Quebec as against $8,329 in Ontario without taxes and $10.43 in Ontario with proper proportion taxes. Quebec expenses are practically half those of Ontario.

The average k. w. h. output-per employe is 1,037,954 in Quebec as against 596,077 in Ontario. The Quebec systems would seem to be practically twice as efficient as those in Ontario.

These figures bear out the conclusions of the Committee on Public Ownership and Operation to the National Association of Railways and Utilities Commissioners that "the results of the operations of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission" in Ontario "is not equal to the privately owned and operated, in that it does not furnish as adequate, as cheap or as reliable supply of power."

They also bear out the findings of the Gregory Commission as presented by the commission itself.—(Toronto, Can.—Financial Post.)

Government Ownership in France.

There are seven large railways in France, six of which are owned and operated by private companies and one of which—the State Railway—is owned and operated by the French government. In the year 1923 each of the six private systems made earnings exceeding expenses, and their net operating income aggregated 733 million francs. On the other hand, the State Railway's operating expenses were 113 per cent. of—or 12 per cent. greater than—its total earnings, and its deficit, which the tax payers must pay, amounted to about one hundred and forty-five million francs. The private railways continued to reduce their operating expenses as they have been doing ever since the war, and therefore, increased their net earnings. The State Railway hardly reduced its operating expenses at all, the ratio of its expenses to its earnings in 1923 having been 114 per cent. and, in 1923, as already stated, 113 per cent. —(Railway Age.)

Stories That Recall Others

The Son of a Soldier

Little Dan is the son of a veteran and is loyal to America through and through. So when he went to Aunt Jane's he frowned when she boasted of her Persian cat and her Angora cat, and told how they had won prizes at different fairs.

"Well, auntie," he finally voiced his feelings on the subject, "our cat never won no prises and he's just an alley cat, but he's not a foreign animal like yours, but an American cat."

While on the Other Side

Two motorists met on a road before the drought. Said motorist No. 1, to motorist No. 2: "How's the road you just came over?"

Replied motorist No. 2: "Don't take that road. There's a big mud puddle about two miles on and you can see by the tracks on one side where many an auto has been driven in, but you can't see any tracks on the other side where they have ever got out."

When man has an opportunity to become a hero he is usually busy at something else.

OAK STAND AND BUREAU ON FIRE

A fire in the house at 47 Thames street, owned and occupied by Mrs. James Leary, resulted in calls for the fire department Friday evening at 6.12 o'clock. At first word was sent to the West Side station and it was believed it was a chimney fire but when the facts were learned Box 14 was rung in, at the corner of West Main and Thames streets.

A roomer at the house in going to supper had dropped lighted ashes from his pipe, or a lighted match, on a small oak stand. Children playing in the next yard saw smoke issuing from the building and notified Mrs. Leary, the call for the department following. The fire was quickly extinguished but the oak stand was burned badly and a bureau nearby was badly scorched. The damage is estimated at about $25.

WHITE WAY WILL PROVIDE CITY WITH BRILLIANT ILLUMINATION

The long anticipated Norwich White Way for which a city meeting voted the appropriation of $15,000 over a year ago is soon to become a reality and when it is accomplished the streets where it is installed will be so completely and brilliantly illuminated as to make Norwich an example for all cities of its size to follow, according to General Manager C. W. Taggart of the gas and electric department.

It is expected that the contract will be let next week and that the work of putting in the White Way will not take much more than a month after it is really started.

The White Way will extend along Main street from Washington square to Burnham square and on Broadway from the Wauregan house corner to and including Union square.

The type of pole, bracket and lamp that has been adopted will give a distinction to the Norwich White Way that will be very pleasing to the citizens and will win the admiring comment of visitors to the city, it is confidently believed. The steel pole will be of fluted design with an ornamental base. They will be set in the curb line with the base placed its narrow way so as to interfere as little as possible with the sidewalk width. The lights will be hung 17 feet from the ground and will be a pendant lantern of colonial design with opal glass supported on a bracket from the side of the pole. All the lamps will be of 1,500 candle power and will be provided with bi-lux refractors which spread the light in the direction desired. Besides flooding the street with light, the lamps will illuminate the fronts of the buildings.

The poles will be set about 100 feet apart in pairs, one on each side of the street, and the lighting will be so arranged that after a certain hour at night, half the lights can be turned out in which is called the staggard plan.

Along Main street the lights will be carried on trolley poles, requiring the re-setting of 59 poles between Washington square and Burnham square All the wooden poles now used for lights are to come down.

There will be sixteen of the special standards, each carrying one light, for Broadway and Union square, besides one double-light standard which will be set in the center of Union square about on the line of the crosswalk between the library and the court house. Besides this double light, there will be six other single lights about Union square. The standard in the center can serve as a traffic guide besides doing its duty as part of the White Way system.

MOTOR ACCIDENT INJURIES FATAL TO MRS. BENNETT

The death of Mary Lada Bennett, wife of Harold J. Bennett of Second street, occurred Friday afternoon at 4.05 o'clock at the Backus hospital as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident June 24 when her backbone was broken. She has been a patient in the hospital since the accident.

A week ago Friday an operation was performed by a Hartford specialist in which an incision of the vertebral lamina was made and a clot of blood was removed. Since last Tuesday she has been gradually failing, although at times she would rally and hopes were entertained for her, but Thursday her condition became so serious that it was realized she could not recover.

The accident in which she was injured was one of the most spectacular occuring in this vicinity. An automobile driven by Felix McMahon of Jewett City overturned on the Plainfield road about 2 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Bennett was the most seriously injured of the party in the machine, which included besides the driver:

Miss Blanche Petrole, 14 White St., Miss Anna Gibson, 13 Thames street, George Ferguson, 26 Prospect street and John Callihan, 604 Boswell ave., all of this city.

It was reported that the automobile party was returning from Moosup and Mr. Bennett has stated that his wife was an unwilling participant in the ride, having wished to get out when they were near her home in Greeneville but being prevented by others in the machine.

Mrs. Bennett, who was 22 years old, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lada. She was born in Willimantic and lived at 155 West Town street, Norwich Town, at the time of her marriage, March 30, 1922 to Harold J. Bennett, who is in the employ of the trolley company. They were married by Rev. Frederick C. Williams, rector of St. Andrews church, Greeneville.

MUNICIPALITIES ARE USING MORE MOTOR VEHICLES

The greatly increased use of motor vehicles by incorporated municipalities of Connecticut during the past two years is reflected in the motor vehicle department's report of registrations for the fiscal year ended June 30. During that period, 1,173 motor vehicles were registered under the state law which exempts from registration fees "motor vehicles owned by a municipality and used exclusively for the conduct of municipal business" and 335 municipal operators were licensed without charge. In the previous fiscal year, municipal registrations reached 362, or 311 less than in the past year and only 188 municipal operators were licensed. The year before that, 467 municipal motor vehicles were registered and 96 operators.

Figured at the average registration fee for all motor vehicles registered in the fiscal year just closed, which was $17.35, Connecticut municipalities saved approximately $22,000 under the fee exemption clause of the motor vehicle law last year. Most of the cars they registered were of the commercial type, 734 such being listed, as compared to 351 passenger, 16 combination, fifty-eight motorcycles, seven side cars, three trailers, one tractor, two hearses and one public service car (taxicab).

OVER 221,000 MACHINES REGISTERED IN CONNECTICUT

Registration receipts for the fiscal year just passed reached $3,917,090.50 for 221,092 machines listed, as against $3,341,989.27 received for the registration of 182,272 machines of all kinds in the previous fiscal year, according to the Connecticut motor vehicle department's report for the year ending June 30. The report showing these figures should not be confused with that for the first six months of the present calendar year, announcement concerning which was made Monday. The motor vehicle department makes reports for calendar as well as fiscal years, and for all the quarters thereof. The receipts for the past fiscal year show 19.6 per cent increase over those for the previous corresponding period. The money is used for highway improvements.

A REPLY TO DR. JAMES' ADDRESS IN THIS CITY

In the one column of English in the New York Jewish daily, The Day, of July 24, appeared the following:

Addressing recently a body of Klansmen at Norwich, Conn., on the occasion of the initiation of fifty new Knights of the Invisible Empire, Dr. Harold L. James, a national speaker for the Ku Klux Klan, explained the why and wherefore of that organization "The Klan," he said, according to the Norwich Bulletin, hopes "to implant in the hearts of all true Americans the love of country and the things for which it stands."

If this be so, it seems to us that the Klan is entirely superfluous, since the work of instilling patriotism in the American people is already being done, and that too on a scale the K. K. K. could not hope to equal, by the public schools, for which the Klan professes such love. Why, then, this needless duplication? Can it be that Dr. James fears that the lessons inculcated by the Little Red Schoolhouse do not linger long in the minds of the pupils?

If this be his fear, we confess that we share it, at least as far as he himself is concerned. For Dr. James is reported as having said further:

"We believe in freedom of speech, freedom of press, freedom of thought and the right to worship God according to our own dictates. Will you tell me who gave us these things? I challenge any one to contradict me when I say that liberty, freedom and independence which we enjoy were given to the world by Protestantism. Republicanism is not the kind of thing that Rome brings forth, it comes only from Protestantism.

Now, if Dr. James had remembered his school history, he would never have made such erroneous statements. He would have known that there was republicanism in the world long before Protestantism or even Christianity itself. He would have known that there were republics in pagan Greece and Rome (from the latter of which he got the word republic) centuries before Jesus and nearly two milleniums before Luther. He would have known that Thomas Jefferson and other Fathers of the American Republic, got their ideas of free government from eighteenth century French philosophers who were mostly Catholics by birth and freethinkers by conviction.

And as if to furnish another proof of the inefficiency of our public schools, at least in his own case, Dr. James went on to say:

"We have nothing against the Jew or Negro, religiously or personally, but we do not like their tactics. Our forefathers settled this country. The Jew never settled this country, he did not suffer and work for the building up of this wonderful land, but after someone else had done the hard work, established the country as a success, he came in to harvest the money, to undersell the very men who gave their lives for our country."

Now if Dr. James had not forgotten his country's history, could he have spoken thus? He would have known that the very voyage of Columbus (a non-Protestant, sad to say) which resulted in the discovery of America was made possible by Jewish funds and Jewish books on geography, and that there were Jews on the crews that manned Columbus' ships. Again, he would have known that Jews had settled in South America long before the Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth, and in North America shortly after the arrival of the Mayflower. He would have known further, that it was with the money lent by a Polish Jewish immigrant, Hayim Solomon, that the American Revolution was financed during its most critical days, and that this money has never been paid back; moreover that many a Jew laid down his life for American independence from the rule of King George III and his fellow Protestant Hessians, as the graves in the historic Jewish cemeteries of New York, Newport (R. I.) and elsewhere testify, and as George Washington himself testified in his famous letters to the Jews of Newport. And if the Jew comes here to harvest money by underselling the native Americans, how does it come that the best paid and best organized workingmen of America are not the native Protestant white cotton mill workers of the South, but the needle workers of New York, whose ranks are recruited largely from among immigrant Jews and whose matchless leadership is wholly so?

It is quite evident from Dr. James' address that the work of our public schools needs to be supplemented by the work of other institutions, but we doubt whether an organization of which he is the spokesman is fit for this task

WELL DIGGER TERRIBLY INJURED BY BLAST

Frank Schovich, a Polish resident of Oakdale was severely injured about the face and body and will probably lose the sight of both eyes, the result of a blast that was exploded in a well he was digging between Palmertown and Oakdale about 6 o'clock Friday night.

Schovich had reached a depth of about 20 feet and was evidently preparing a blast when it suddenly went off, blowing him forcibly against the sides of the well. Word was immediately sent out about the accident and a derrick was secured and after ropes had been fastened under his arms he was pulled to the surface.

Schovich was suffering agony, his nose was nearly blown off, his mouth and lips torn away and he had a compound fracture of the left arm. The force of the explosion had driven dirt and sand against his face and into his eyes, blinding him perhaps permanently. His face and mouth was terribly pitted where bits of gravel had struck him, piercing the skin.

Dr. John J. Donohue of Montville, and Dr. John J. Donohue, Jr., were called and rendered every assistance possible to relieve the man from pain. Word was sent to the Lawrence Memorial hospital in New London and Mr. Schovich was rushed there for further treatment.

FINED FOR FAILING TO OBEY TRAFFIC OFFICER

Found guilty in the city court Friday morning of failing to obey a traffic officer, George H. Kramer, of 319 Central avenue was fined $25 and costs He paid $39.09. The charge of reckless driving which had been made against him was dropped. His presentation in court followed an accident at the bank corner this week when the car driven by Nathan Gershon of New York, went upon the sidewalk and broke a plate glass window of the five and ten cent store. Traffic Officer Myron Morgan made the complaint against Mr. Kramer.

Mr Gershon was also summoned to court for failing to have his driver's license with him. This charge was nolled Friday when he explained that in the excitement of the accident he could not find his license and supposed it must be home in another coat. When he went back to the house to look for the license, he could not find it there and he then discovered it was in the car and had been there all the time.

DOG GOES CRAZY AND JUMPS TO HIS DEATH

A young collie dog owned by Arthur Brailford of 97 Cliff street, went wild Friday evening about 6 o'clock, evidently affected by the heat and after running furiously about jumped from a third story veranda and died shortly afterwards.

The dog ran through a neighbor's yard knocking over a little girl but fortunately did not turn to bite. Continuing its dash the dog ran home and Mr. Brailford locked it onto a veranda of the third floor and notified the police of the danger.

The police in turn called Chester Bushnell, the dog warden, who immediately went to Cliff street. In the meantime the dog jumped through the wire netting around the veranda and fell from the roof to the street a distance of three stories. Injuries from the fall evidently caused death shortly afterwards. The carcass was taken in charge by Warden Bushnell.

EARLY FILING IMPORTANT ON BONUS AUULICATIONS

Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, through its compensation committee is warning all ex-service men to file their applications for the bonus as soon as possible. Should any ex-service man die, before sending in his application, his beneficiary stands to lose a considerable sum of money. If the application is sent prior to death, the amount the government would pay would be more than twice the amount it would pay the estate with no application presented. The seriousness of this is readily seen when it is estimated that 25,000 ex-service men will die before January 1, 1924.

MOTION PICTURES SHOW BLOW THAT FELLED CARPENTIER WAS NOT FOUL

New York, July 25.—Motion pictures of the Carpentier-Tunney bout reveal that the blow which felled the Frenchman in the fourteenth round was not foul despite assertions of many ringside spectators that it was below the belt.

Carpentier and Tunney together with their managers Francois Descamps and Billy Gibson and Jack Curley, Carpentier's friend and advisor, attended a public showing of the film at a Broadway theatre this afternoon after which Descamps gave out the following statement:

"A mistaken impression prevails over the blow which knocked Carpentier to the resined floor of the ring in writhing pain. It was not Tunney's gloved fist that committed the alleged fould blow, it was Tunney's knee.

"We are making this assertion merely to give our side of the battle with no intention of registering any complaint against any of the officials or the public. We are both satisfied that the referee was fair and honest, meant us no harm, and we are satisfied to abide by his decision. In conclusion we hope for a return match with Tunney and feel confident if allowed another chance we can reverse the decision."

Despite pre-fight promises that if he lost to Tunney he would hang up his glove for good and all, there is every indication that Carpentier will continue to engage in ring activities. He is scheduled to meet Jimmy Slattery in Buffalo on August 4, but neither Francois Descamps, his manager, nor Carpentier himself would venture an opinion today as to his future plans, preferring to wait until he has entirely recuperated from the beating he took at Tunnery's hands, before making a definite announcement.

Carpentier, today, is a sorry looking spectacle. His head swathed in bandages, his face swollen and his eyes rimmed with blue and black bruises, he sat in a chair in a Park avenue apartment, where he spent last night recovering from his gruelling contest, and talked about the fight. Descamps, voluble and gesticulating with two of the boxer's ringside aides, punctuated the conversation with occasional outbursts in rapid French as they recounted incidents of last night's historic bout.

Carpentier had but little to say, maintaining his usual reserve and leaving the talking to Descamps. Asked whether he still had the aluminum protector which it is claimed Tunney dented with the alleged foul blow, Descamps said that in the excitement of the moment after he had ripped the protector off Georges, he threw it to the clamoring crowd at the ringside.

Descamps said that he did not care to discuss the decision further, having made his formal protest last night at the ringside, which was ignored, he intended to take the matter no further.

Carpentier said he would probably go back to Great Beck, L. I., and spend a few days at Jack Curley's home resting up from the fight after which he would sail for France unless he decides later to fulfill other engagements already booked for him.

Tunney today emphatically denied that the crucial blow in the fourteenth round, the final blow of the contest, was foul.

"It was an uppercut to the pit of the stomach," said Tunney.

"I had been laying for the blow all through the fight," added Gene. "It's a dangerous one to use against a man with a straight right such as Carpentier depends on. I tried the blow first in the second round and was promptly nailed with a terrific overhand right to the chin. But in the fourteenth, Georges was very tired and finally left the opening I was looking for and I took advantage of it."

New York, July 25.—The St. Louis Nationals hit the ball hard today and opened their five-game series with New York with a 13 to 5 victory.

Philadelphia, July 25.—The Chicago Cubs lost their first game of their eastward swing to Philadelphia today 10 to 4. Yankees Win Close Game

In a thrilling ten-inning game at the Academy Campus Friday evening the Yankees defeated the fast Taftville Tigers, 8 to 7. The game was exciting throughout neither team feeling assured of victory until the final out. For the Yankees Busch at short and Greene in left field starred the latter making many difficult catches. For the losers Smith at short was the shining light.

Homers Give Ponies Victory

Springfield, July 25.—Home runs by Herrera with one run and by Simpson gave the Ponies a 4 to 2 victory over Bridgeport today. Neither Mayberry nor Pillette gave a base on balls. Bridgeport's new manager, Dick Hoblitzel, broke into the game as a pinch hitter in the ninth and drove out a double.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

Baseball Expert New York Giants

Runner on first. He starts to steal second.

Should the second baseman, in covering the bag, cover it as soon as the runner starts, or should he wait to see whether the batter hits the ball?

In a situation of this kind, a second baseman has plenty of time, so he would wait until the batter has taken his swing, in order to prevent the other team making a hit and run play. Remember that most catchers are accurate throwers and that in playing second, you always have time to wait for the batter's man before running over to take the throw from the catcher.

SECOND GAME OF MOOSUP AND MARTIN SERIES SUNDAY

Moosup's last appearance on the home grounds until Sunday, Sept. 6th, will be tomorrow afternoon when at 3.30 o'clock (D. S. T.) they meet the J. B. Martin team of Taftville in the second game of their 2 out of 3 series. Moosup got off to a flying start last Sunday, taking the first game of the series by the score of 13 to 4. The Velvetmen are smarting up the walloping they received so Manager Brideck has gone to extra expense to secure "Ray" Fisher formerly of Albany to pitch, in hopes of stopping the fast going Moosup club. Moosup fans say "it can't be done" and are backing their judgment to the limit.

This will be one of the banner attractions in Eastern Connecticut and should prove to be a hard fought battle. Manager Loughran will send in "chick" Davis of the Sub Base to stop the heavy hitting Velvetmen; Allard will catch, Couillard 1b; Frechette 2b; Kendricks ss; Burns 3b; Mann lf; Noel cf; Strike rf.

The J. B. Martin lineup will be: Fisher p; Jim Murphy c; J. Joubert 1b; Cardie 2b; DeCelles ss; F. Gley 3b; W. Gley lf; E. Murphy cf; E. Joubert rf.

MUST CUT OUT ARGUING WITH UMPS IN AMERICAN

Boston, July 25.—Orders are out to speed up games in the American League. As a result, the activities on the field of Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and George Sisler, the playing managers, are to be somewhat curtailed.

In a bulletin to umpires, President Ban Johnson has directed them to cut short trivial objections to dicisions on balls and strikes—and to prevent the players from taking time to smell or inspect balls on suspicion that they have been tampered with.

A suspension of three days, to start automatically for the first offense that follows a warning by the umpire-in-chief, is provided.

HAWLEY WILL COACH DARTMOUTH THIS FALL

Hanover, N. H., July 25.—Professor James P. Richardson, of the athletic council announced today that Jess B. Hawley had signed a contract to Coach the Dartmouth football team again this fall. Hawley had been unable previously to state definitely whether he could return to Hanover.

Cy Aschenbach, last year's captain, is the only addition to the Coaching staff, his assignment being to assist Jack McAuliffe with the line men. Jackson Cannell, assistant head Coach, will return with Hawley.

SHEFLOTT, PROMINENT HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETE, UNDERGOES OPERATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 25.—A serious blow in a manner of an injury to Bulkeley High school's chance for the state high school football championship for this coming season was received today. George H. Sheflott, the captain of the eleven lies in the Lawrence-Memorial hospital, resting comfortably after a serious operation to his side for appendicitis. Sheflott will be forced to remain at the hospital for a period of three weeks, if not more, and 'even though he may be able to leave the hospital he will be unable to exert himself in any way.

Sheflott, who is an employe of the New London Ship and Engine company's plant in Groton, complained of a sore side Thursday morning. The morning was not so very old when he was gripped with a violent pain and had to be sent to the hospital in a hurry. He was in such a bad condition, physically, that an immediate operation had to be made and he was operated on at 1.45 that afternoon. While his relatives and near friends are not allowed to see him, it is reported that Sheflott was resting well under the circumstances.

The injury to Sheflott will be a shock to his many friends when they hear of his plight. The captaincy of the Bulkeley football team was awarded with the termination of the season last year, for his brilliant all round play on the gridiron. He will probably be missing from the Bulkeley ranks this autumn when the Orange and Black once more assemble to plan out the year's attack. Sheflott's attending physician stated that he would be unable to take part in any strenuous athletic games unless his condition improved by leaps and bounds in the next week or so. Even figuring at the least it is most probable that Sheflott will not engage in any football games in the early season if any at all.

Sheflott, is Jimmy Peduce's favorite athlete on the Duwell nine in Norwich, proved to be a hit in the Rose City not only because of his terrific clouting of the ball all season, but his amicable attitude and ways towards every one won for himself friends every place he went. Whether he will be able to be seen in a Duwell uniform this season will be a question that will be decided only by the progress to recovery he makes in the near future. The loss of Sheflott will take away some of the hitting power of the Duwells.

Even after Sheflott is discharged from the hospital there will be a careful noting of his play if he engages in any, so as to determine whether he has lost any of his versatility in the sports he attempts to engage in. His loss to the Bulkeley school is great and cannot be replaced. All the chances for a championship Bulkeley football eleven this coming fall will probably fall through because of the probable loss of Sheflott. His playing on the gridiron could not be improved upon. His many friends throughout the state wish him a speedy recovery and hope to once again see him at his best as an athlete.

RIVERVIEW OUT FOR REVENGE ON VELVETMEN TODAY

The Riverview club will be all primed for revenge on the J. B. Martin team this afternoon at the State Hospital diamond when these two will meet for the second time this season. Two weeks ago the Velvetmen administered an 11 to 5 beating to the Riverview club which has been a thorn in the side of the Hospital team ever since. This afternoon Riverview entertains fond hopes of inflicting a humiliating defeat on the Martin team.

The Riverview lineup will be entirely different from the one that went down to defeat two weeks. It will be the same lineup that defeated the Herrups last week, holding them to three scattered hits. Either Mills or Healy will be on the mound for Riverview. Mills reputation was made last week and Healy is a newcomer who comes to these parts with a good record. In his workouts this week he has showed plenty of stuff, a world of speed and a splendid change of pace. His hooks break sharply and his control is good. The rest of the team will be Couillard 1b; Joe Barry, 2b; Joe McInnis ss; Eddie Burns 3b; Laffey, a fleet-footed boy, in left; Harry Noel, another outfield flash, in center; and Allard, a heavy hitter, in right.

Morin will be the choice of the Velvetmen for mound duty as he pitched good ball against Riverview in the last game. Jim Murphy will catch with J. Joubert 1b; Cardie 2b; DeCelles ss; F. Gley 3b; W. Gley lf; E. Murphy cf; E. Joubert rf.

Hank Morin, who has given the fans such excellent satisfaction in previous games, will be the umpire in today's game. It is a pleasure to watch this umpire in action and it is a smart player that can put anything over on this boy. The game will start at 2.45 sharp.

SUB BASE PLAYS AT STAMFORD ON SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 25.—Contrary to the regular run of the Submarine Base schedule of activities on the diamond this season, the regular Saturday afternoon contest will be a Sunday game instead and away from home. The game is with the St. Mary's baseball nine of Stamford and will be played at that distant city. This is the only peculiar game on the entire Base schedule and it will also leave the gobs free from duty Saturday on the diamond. The regular run of the Base schedule has a game for each Saturday afternoon at the Base diamond for the duration of the season, and the fans who have formed a habit of attending the customary game at the Base will have to go elsewhere for their baseball game.

With a long train ride facing them, it is most likely that the Base will find the St. Mary's nine a hard nut to crack. The previous meeting between these teams found the Base just about forging ahead by a count of 5 to 4 in ten innings. With seven consecutive victories already in the bat bag, the gobs are taking an unusual chance to have this winning streak broken. Regardless of the excellent shape the team left in from the local station, there is bound to be some of the nines affected by the long and tedious train ride. This adds to the uncertain prediction of the outcome of the game.

The St. Mary's team will have an excellent chance to return victorious if the former Stamford High twirler, Kuczo, is on the mound. His efforts on the mound against the Base in the earlier meeting between these teams has resulted in a high recommendation from the fans present. Sunday for the Base, ofty Harrell, who usually twirls for Moosup on the Sabbath day will be seen in the gobs' uniform. There lies a choice for the receiver between three men and who will be given the chance to catch Harrell will not be decided until the game gets under way.

Worcester on Hitting Rampage

Worcester, July 25.—Worcester defeated New Haven today 17 to 6, by terrific hitting making 23 hits off Greenfield and Lambke. New Haven could do nothing with Graham, the final runs being made with him lobbing up the ball and no effort being made to prevent base runners going from one bag to another. Roser hit his 27th home run during the game.

Out After The Nuggets

Sports Editor: I would like you to allow me space in your paper in order to take exception to an article that appeared in your issue of Friday the 26th in regard to a bunch of ham ball players who represented themselves as Cigarmakers. I wish to state that there were no cigarmakers on that team of misfits and that the cigarmakers feel that their reputation has been made little of.

Now Mr. Editor the cigarmakers have appeared on the diamond a number of times in the past and have yet to meet defeat and feel as though we had ought to be given a chance to prove that we are just as good as ever.

Therefore we issue a challenge to this gang of would be ball players, the Nuggets for any night it is convenient to them. The only stipulation we ask is that that Big Chief Madden will do the twirling and we guarantee to choke him off forever.

UNCAS PAPERBOARD TEAM TO PLAY INLAND A. C. SUNDAY

The only real baseball attraction in Norwich for Sunday will be the game at the fairgrounds between the Uncas Paperboard team and the team representing the Inland A. C. of Versailles. This is the second meeting of these two clubs, the Inland team winning the first contest at Versailles several Sundays ago. There is keen rivalry between the two clubs and a good game can be expected.

Both teams were reluctant Friday evening about giving out their lineups and the Inland team is keeping their team strictly under cover until game time. The Uncas team was more liberal and while refusing to give out the battery said that the following would be found in their lineup: Fitzgerald 1f, Shea cf, Kamos ss, Joe Busch 3b, Isbicki 1b, E. Busch rf and Connors 2b. In regards to the mattery Manager Chalmers said that the fans would see the best that the eastern part of the state boasts of in the line of battery work.

The game will start at 3 p. m. prompt and a large crowd is expected.

Fitchville Not at All Afraid.

Fitchville, July 25.

Sporting Editor: I was surprised and pleased to note in the columns of Thursday's Bulletin an open letter from the pen of Harry Weisner, manager of the Norwich American Woolen Company baseball team. The communication was surprising because I believed I had the above-mentioned nine scheduled for a game Sunday and that both teams were cognizant of the fact. Apparently the American Woolen Company team must be notified by telephone, by letter, by telegram and through the medium of your esteemed paper.

It was pleasing in that the pilot of the visiting team stated that he had signed up several new stars and would come up stronger than ever. The Fitchville management compliments Mr. Weisner upon this fact and expresses the hope that his new men can play the game as well as he can sing their praises. With due deference to Mr. Weisner's ability as a manager and judge of players I have no hesitation in saying that he will have to bring up better than "Hewitt" the mighty first sacker of Chapman Tech and the galaxy of professed stars if he expects to record a victory over Fitchville. Why should Weisner mention the fact that he has a Chapman Tech man on his roster? Does the record of that school justify considerable faith in any player developed there?

Other managers, too, have suffered from undue pride before visiting Fitchville and I fear Mr. Weisner is following in their footsteps. On Sunday he'll learn that premature boasting brings its own reward.

Just to make this Norwich mentor easy in his own mind I can assure him that we are expecting his wonders on Sunday and that our regular team will be ready for his big league prospects at the usual hour Sunday afternoon. For my lineup he can consult the columns of last Monday's Bulletin.

W. McMANUS,
Fitchville Manager.

Stars Slaughter Tabs.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 25.—The Fort Trumbull Stars, under the leadership of George O. Gadbois, and who are contemplating changing their team name to the New London Independents, slaughtered the Tabs at Morgan park this evening by a 14 to 5 score and went into a tie for first place in the City league.

The game was slow and uninteresting from the start, errors being made frequently. The Tabs used two twirlers, Toolin and Morris Brown. The former was knocked off the slab in the second, five runs being made off him. Brown was also ineffective. The Stars also used two twirlers but it was not necessary for one would have held the weak efforts of the Tabs batters to connect with the ball safely. Hewitt and Havens prodded out homers. Johnny Brown had a triple but was put out at the plate when he tried to stretch the hit into a homer.

Objects to Write-Up

Sports Editor:

Your account of the Socony-City Hall ball game of Thursday evening includes several features that might give the reader a wrong impression.

You state that "Dazzy" Parisi—except for the support he received" would have been on the loser's end. As a matter of fact Parisi fanned twelve men, which is a fairly good record for any pitcher in a six inning contest. A twirler who can retire two thirds of the opposition on strikes is rather useful to have around.

You write that the infield work of the City Hall nine was 'by far snappier and cleaner than that of the Oil Cans". Yet the errors were four and three, with the Socony team on the more respectable end. And the fielding feature of the game was made by Higgs, the Socony shortstop, who made a shoe-string catch of a wicked drive, and threw from a difficult angle to Weinrick, the second baseman, completing a fast double play.

The base running is not mentioned. In this department of play the Socony team did not suffer in comparison. Especially so, after Joe Barry tried to stretch a triple into a homer, leaving third base while the Socony second baseman held the ball ready to make a play. Some may partly excuse Barry by the fact that he had previously fanned and was out to redeem himself. The pity is that he failed so miserably.

New London, Conn.

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 25.—A bit of real estate on Main street, New London, owned by Norwich parties is to be disposed of at auction, it is understood, in a few days. The sale if the property now on the land is demolished and a new structure erected will involve something like $100,000. A hearing will take place next Thursday afternoon before Justice of the Peace J. A roulette wheel valued at several hundred dollars, was the most expensive part of the layout seized. It is now in possession of County Detective William Lewis, who was at the head of the force of raiders. The raid was conducted for the purpose of obtaining evidence of the prohibition law being violated and resulted not only in liquor violations being established, but the finding of the gambling outfit on the second floor. A Barrel Post Office.

On the Galapagos Islands, off the coast of Ecuador, there is the strangest post office in the world. It is a barrel in which letters are semi-occasionally placed for distribution. The United States postal service and in fact, all mariners in those waters, know about this impromptu post office and when passing that way they collect mail there.

In many parts of China the women attribute magical properties for the cure of certain diseases to water drawn after midnight of the seventh day of the seventh month.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Surprise Present.

Over the bumperty bumps and stones.
Fast enough to rattle a fat man's bones.
Went the Luckymobile with the bunnies two Till the Dear Old Bramble Patch came into view.

"Here we are," exclaimed dear Uncle Lucky, the nice old gentleman rabbit, hopping out and opening the little gate in the white picket fence. "I hope Lady Love isn't over at Cousin Cottontail's." But she was.

"Here we are," exclaimed Uncle Lucky.

Wasn't that too bad? Nobody was in the little white bungalow, although the bunny boy shouted "Mother! M-o-t-h-e-r!" three times and a half.

"We'll just wait a while," said the old gentleman bunny, dragging the old arm chair out on the front porch. "I'll smoke a cabbage leaf cigar and you can play with your cho-cho car."

By and by, the dear old gentleman bunny fell sound asleep. He didn't mind the n[illegible] that his small bunny nephew made with his toy. Dear me, no. Parents don't mind happy noises. It's only when children quarrel that poor Mother gets nervous.

And I don't blame her, do you, dear little reader?

All of a sudden, a sweet voice cried: "Here I am," and there stood Lady Love, the little rabbit's pretty bunny mother, her apron filled with wild strawberries and two pink roses, one on either cheek.

"Goodness me!" exclaimed dear Uncle Lucky, rubbing his eyes. "Did I fall asleep?"

"Are you wide awake enough to hull the berries?" asked Lady Love, tickling the sleepy old bunny rabbit's left ear.

"Just try me," answered dear Uncle Lucky. "Only don't watch me, I might eat a berry or two, but I'll promise to leave enough for you."

"Run out to the garden for some lettuce," whispered Lady Love to her bunny boy. "Uncle Lucky loves lettuce, and I saw some fresh, crisp leaves in the garden this morning," and away she bustled to put on the kettle for the Turnip Tea.

Pretty soon the table was set and the three little bunnies sat down to eat, while the Three Little Grasshoppers and Little Miss Cricket made pretty music from the edge of the Sunny Meadow. They had left the woodbox behind the kitchen stove as soon as the warm weather had set in, but they never forgot to play a sweet tune at meal time. No, indeed, they never forgot that all through the cold winter Lady Love made them comfortable in the wood box in the little warm kitchen.

"Now I'm going to give you a surprise," said Uncle Lucky, as he folded his napkin. And taking from his rocket the package he had purchased at the Three-in-One-Cent Store, he handed it to Lady Love.

Dearest me, bov[illegible]d girls! When the pretty rabbit lady opened the box and saw the lovely diamond pin, she hopped over to dear Uncle Lucky and kissed him without a word. But kisses often say more than "Thank you!" Yes, sometimes we are too happy to speak.

POETRY

Hymn of Pan

From the forests and highlands
We come, we come;
From the river-girt islands,
Where loud waves are dumb,
Listening to my sweet pipings.
The winds in the reeds and the bushes,
The bees on the bells of thyme,
The birds on the myrtle bushes,
The cicale above in the lime,
And the lizards below in the grass
Were as silent as ever old Tmolus was,
Listening to my sweet pipings.

Liquid Peneus was flowing
And all dark Tempe lay
In Pelion's shadow, outgrowing
The light of the dying day,
Seeded by my sweet pipings.
The Sileni, and Sulvans, and Fauns,
And the Nymphs of the woods and waves,
To the edge of the moist river-lawns,
And the brink of the dewy caves,
And all that did then attend and follow,
Were silent with love, as you now, Apollo,
With envy of my sweet pipings.

In sang of the dancing Stars,
I sang of the daedal Earth,
And of Heaven, and the giant wars,
And Love and Death and Birth.
And then I changed my pipings—
Singing how down the vale of Maenalus
I pursued a maiden, and clasped a reed;
Gods and men, we are all deluded thus;
It breaks in our bosom, and then we bleed.
All wept—as I think both ye now would,
If envy or age had not frozen your blood,
At the sorrow of my sweet pipings.
—Percy Bysshe Shelley.

The Leash

She had held feeling on a leash too short.
Tight-twisted round her hand, the cord bit deep,
Cutting the flesh that checked the straining leap
Of feeling only asking her for sport.
Then, once she dared that heavy leash to slip,
And eager feeling sped toward joys half-guessed,
Following in hope and then in wild unrest.

A sunlit cloud, a cup dashed from her lip,
Through starless, windy nights, unwanted morning,
Feeling, a shivering outcast, learned new pain,
Too vast the void, too chill the keen wind's warning,
And feeling whimpered for the leash again.
And now the hands are healed; and where the dead
Dull feeling goes; there is no pull to heed.
—Helen Ives Gilchrist in Scribner's.

"My dear," remarked Jinks, who had just finished reading a book on The Wonders of Nature, "this really is a remarkable work. Nature is marvelous! Stupendous. When I read a book like this it makes me think how puerile, how insignificant is man."

"Huh!" sniffed his better half. "A woman doesn't have to wade through 400 pages to discover that!" — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The honorary secretary of the British war graves department says that the original wooden crosses from the war graves of France and Flanders can be claimed at the cemeteries by relatives of the fallen men, when permanent headstones are erected.

When the warm weather set in Mrs. Walter Jones, of Chester, Pa., stuffed $120 in the kitchen stove, her favorite hiding place for money in summer for many years. But there came a cool, rainy day, when Mrs. Jones's memory failed her just long enough to let her kindle a fire and warm her hands before she remembered her cache. Now she has opened her first bank account with the $120 that the government gave in return for a sheaf of ashes.

The British governmental committee for the study of the commercial possibilities of trans-Atlantic telephony has recommended the setting up for experimental purposes of a 200-kilowatt radio telephone transmitting plant at Rugby. It is hoped to develop apparatus that will make possible regular two-way conversations between subscribers in England and America, at least during the favorable conditions of the winter months. Reliable service under all conditions is a much more difficult problem.

The first application in America of the process of hardening railway rails after they have been laid is reported from Toronto, according to the Electric Railway Journal. A blowpipe is mounted on wheels and passed over the surface of the rail at a speed that gives a temperature of 850 degrees centigrade to all points heated. Immediately after heating, a jet of water is played upon the rail, the effect being to harden the surface and prolong its wearing qualities. The process is effective to a depth of from two to three-tenths of an inch, according to the pressure used in the blowpipe.

The cars that travel the "rocky road to Dublin" would have a much rougher time of it if their wheels were like those that the Mongolian peasant uses on his ox cart. The two wheels, says A. S. kent in "Old Tartar Trails," are unprotected by iron tires, and therefore with constant use over stony roads they soon lose their roundness and become first octagonal, then hexagonal and then pentagonal. At that point the Mongol begins to think that he ought to have new wheels; but before his caravan has reached a place where he can find a Chinese to do the work the wheels have passed the rectangular stage and have become triangular, and the vehicle will go no farther.

MYSTIC

Equipment and supplies to be used in connection with laying the new roadway through Water street, are being assembled at the lower end of the street, which looks as if the contractors intend to start work soon. While a considerable amount of traffic goes over this road at all times, now there are detours in and out of Mystic this road is used more than ever. Many people go to or come from New London by way of Noank, rather than make the bothersome detours otherwise necessary. If work is begun on this road at once and it is closed to traffic with Baptist Hill unfinished, it will be decidedly inconvenient and will make local traffic conditions about as bad as they could be. Everyone wants to see this road built but the hope is commonly expressed that it will not be closed to traffic until the other road is open.

SUFFERED SINCE YOUNG GIRL

Words Failed to Express Benefit Received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Texas. — "Words can not express how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. Every month I would have cramps and headache, and I felt like I was freezing to death. I suffered in this way from the time I was a young girl, and all the doctors said was 'operation.' For months I had a tired, sleepy feeling all day, and when night would come I would be so nervous I couldn't stay in bed. Our druggist recommended the Vegetable Compound to my husband and he bought four bottles. I have taken every one and I think I have a right to praise your medicine." — Mrs. J. B. Holleman, 2214 E. Marshal St., Greenville, Texas.

For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been used by women from girlhood through middle age.

It is a dependable medicine for troubles common to women. Such symptoms as Mrs. Holleman had are relieved by correcting the cause of the trouble. For sale by druggists everywhere.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY TILL DEATH

Make me no vows of constancy, dear friend—
To love me, though I die, thy whole life long,
And love no other till thy days shall end—
Nay—it were rash and wrong.

If thou canst love another, be it so;
I would not reach out of my quiet grave
To bind thy heart, if it should choose to give—
Love should not be a slave.

My placid ghost, I trust, will walk serene
In clearer light than gilds these earthly morns,
Above the jealousies and pangs keen,
Which sow this life with thorns.

Thou wouldst not feel my shadowy caress,
If, after death, my sould should linger here;
Men's hearts crave tangible, close tenderness,
Love's presence warm and near.

It would not make me sleep more peacefully
That thou wert wasting all they life in woe
For my poor sake; what love thou hast for me,
Bestow it ere I go,

Carve not upon a stone when I am dead
The praises which remorseful mourners give
To women's graves—a tardy recompense—
But speak them while I live.

Heap not the heavy marble on my head,
To shut away the sunshine and the dew;
Let small blooms grow there and the grasses wave,
And raindrops filter through.

Thou will meet many fairer and more gay,
That I—but, trust me, thou canst never find
One who will love and serve thee, night and day,
With a more single mind.

Forget me when I die; the violets
Above my rest will blossom just as blue.
No miss thy tears; ev'n Nature's self forgets:
But while I live be true.

DARKNESS

Oft have I stood upon the foaming strand
Watching the moonlight tremble on the sea;
Oft have I seen the stars fade silently
When gleaming dawn drove night across the land;
Oft have I watched the storm lift o'er the sand
The ocean in his might and majesty:
Now are these joys a mockery to me
Since on mine eyes, God, Thou hast laid Thine Hand.
Have I too much exulted in the light,
Forgetting Thee from whom these glories rise,
That Thou hast struck me with this darkling blight,
Robbed me of day and of the sunny skies,
Transforming them into continuous night—
Is it for this that Thou hast shut mine eyes?

GREETINGS FROM JIM.

Dear Folks of the Social Corner: Just a few lines to say I wish to answer to the roll call. I think it is a grand good idea, as I have always thought the Social Corner was from its beginning. Not having written for so long a time I dare not make excuses, except to say that procrastination is a thief of time.

Rural Delivery: I, too, am interested in the radio, which is one of the most wonderful discoveries of the present century. What is the name of your set? Your suggestion to Uncle Henry is good. I wonder if you speak from personal experience, as I do, as my helpmeet's pen name of the Social Corner was California Poppy. We have been sharing our joys and sorrows for over a year now. We both in early years were old schoolmates. Will ring off as time is up.

JIM.

GOOD SOCIAL TIME AT TWICE TWENTY'S

Dear Social Corner Friends: I expect my name will appear in this weeks roll call, as will respond on time. It has been pretty hot weather but hot weather doesn't seem to diminish the enthusiasm for the Corner.

So often I think during the months of warm weather. How glad I am I live in the country.

As I stand washing dishes I look out of the window at a pretty scene. First comes the flowering quince and spirea. They stand side by side and the bright red and pure white blossoms make such a pretty contrast. Then come the purple and white lilacs and what is so beautiful as a lilac bush in full bloom?

Then the syringa blossoms come and then a white rose and two pink ones. And just now the three yuccas are doing their part, lifting up long stalks covered with pure white bells. Not only the flowers are a delight to the eye but the trees as well. First the light delicate green of the new leaves on the maples, and now the dark green heavy foliage and dark shadow beneath the trees.

Then I can look farther away at a line of hills sometimes with a blue haze hanging over them. Not so bad washing dishes when on can "lift up ones eyes to the hills."

I was conversing with a friend this spring and she said, "Everything comes back year after year. I dont see how any one can doubt there is a God. There must be someone up there to keep things going."

Well I have just returned from the picnic at Twice Twenty's and will finish this letter.

It has been a beautiful midsummer's day. About forty were there. I was so glad to renew acquaintance with some of the sisters I only see at our annual picnic and to make the acquaintance of others. We missed Delilah Deal and hope she may gain in strength and be with us next time.

The tables were decorated with beautiful flowers and sit under the spreading branches of a fine old oak. With good food and pleasant conversation we all enjoyed the dinner. No games or program were attempted as it was so warm; so we just had a good time.

Our most hearty thanks are due Mr. and Mrs. Twice Twenty for their hospitality.

MAY B.

A SOCIAL CORNER FLOWER GARDEN

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Saw my name in the roll call and am pleased to answer present. Have been a member for seven years and always enjoyed the letters and gatherings very much indeed.

We had a beautiful day for our picnic at Elizabeth park, the sisters were having lunch when Mary France and I arrived. We came by train so that auto delights, saving time made us a little late. Was surprised to see so few there. I wondered where Canterbury Bell, Wide Velvet, Marie and the rest were. I surely thought would be there. Only numbered seventy in all, and everybody had a good time.

The park is a beautiful place to spend the day. We had the afternoon amongst the flowers which were wonderful. Have been wanting to see the garden for years and was thankful for the chance. My little Social Corner flowers garden is looking O. K. The Sweet William from Canterbury Bell has been a delight to the eye bridal daisy from Mary France is in bloom, red balm from Bob White is fine, just full of blossoms, and plants from Necia's garden are doing well.

There were no flowers at our place when we moved here two years ago and now I have quite a garden thanks to Social Corner Sisters.

Bob White: Will take that trip you spoke of next time in August. Just let me know when, and I will be ready.

Nema: Later you may have some of my Sweet William. I was told that you admired it.

Lucy Acorn: Hope you are enjoying the summer. How is Mr. Acorn? Best wishes.

MARIGOLD.

THE PICNIC AT ELIZABETH PARK

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I am glad to say present, in answer to my name on the roll call. I have found many pleasant hours in various ways, in being a member of the Social Corner. I contributed my first letter in Oct. 1915. I have attended seventeen club meetings and picnics and always enjoyed every gathering. I have found many new friends and acquaintances, whose friendship I admire and appreciate.

Many helpful suggestions have come to my attention through the columns of the Social Corner page. If in return I have ever helped others, I am very glad also. On July 16th we enjoyed a quiet but lovely day in the beautiful Eyizabeth park at Hartford. There were about twenty of us who met together, visited and ate our lunch amid the shady grove of trees, one of the many delightful spaces that are to be found in this wonderful site of nature. Those of us who live near by were glad to see all who had come from quite a distance. I am sure they must have felt repaid to see the beautiful rose gardens, for it really seems as if nothing among flowers could be more lovely. The many arches of the crimson, pink and white ramblers, can not be compared to anything. They must be seen to realize what it means. Not thousands of choice roses of every color and size, produced, by expert cultivation, beautifully arranged in plots and for the most of them each variety in separate beds. One can hardly decide where to select the most beautiful roses in this garden. The pure white are so delicate without spot or stain, the pink, yellow and various red colorings are perfect. Great variety of other flowers are also attractive, each in their turn of bloom in the season.

The pond lilies floating on the surface of the water, resemble cups of wax, among the pads of leaves. Here are the ducks of all sizes, swimming around the pond, and coming near to the shore, where they are fed by children, and others from a portion of their lunch baskets. I hope all members of the Social Corner, who can find it convienent to attend the picnics, will improve the opportunity and enjoy a social and pleasant day. I have never changed my pen name and shall continue the same.

Best wishes to all Corner friends.

JENNIE.

"THEY WERE SO UNTIDY"

Dear Social Corner Sisters: A mother who complains about her two children says: "I had the shock of my life one day last winter. It opened my eyes to a good many things. I always thought my children were the best ever. I do not mean that they had no faults but that they were well mannered, obedient and lovable. That had been the verdict of friends and strangers alike. That is the reason the shock was so great."

Thus my next door neighbor confided to me one afternoon. Like hundreds of other women I was in the habit of gathering up after my family. I cleaned the bathroom after one or more took a bath. I cleaned up nights after they had all gone to bed. I put their clothes away. I straightened up their rooms and I loved to do it. What true mother does not and that is the thorn. My oldest boy is fourteen years old. I allowed him to spend a week at the home of a school friend who had moved to the city. I gave him a hundred reams of advice. He gave me a fine report when he came home. Imagine my consternation when it came to me in a round about way that my son was a hard boy to have as a guest; he had made so much extra work. Naturally they had not liked to tell him to hang his coat where it belonged. He had left the bathroom in a terrible mess, his room was never picked up and so on about a number of things. At first I was mad clear through. Then I began to see that the boy was not at fault. I had always cleaned up after him. I had taught him to be untidy by doing the work he should have done. To see if I really was at fault. I sent Julia the second child who was 10 years old to my sister-in-law. I made her promise to be tidy but the result was the same. I made them both tell me the truth. Now I am telling what I should have done fourteen years ago. It is proving to be a strain on all of us. A husband and four children who have never put their own things away will take an immense amount of training and patience. I hope that other mothers will profit by my confession and teach their children to be tidy while they are young.

PAULA.

PICNIC AT MALVINA'S

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I notice my name has been called on the roll so will not delay in answering. Present. We have been so busy with the haying that the Corner page hasn't had its usual attention and I may overlooked a write-up about Malvina's picnic. However, I think such a good time as we all had should not pass by, without letting those who could not attend know about it. There were sixty of us present and such a dinner as we all enjoyed. Five tables were set, each decorated with flowers, and laden with good things to eat. Baked beans, escalloped potatoes, rolls, pickles, pie, doughnuts, salads, cake and coffee were served. After dinner we enjoyed listening to musical selections on the piano and victrola and worked on fancy articles. Malvina deserved a big vote of thanks for the fine time she gave us. Mr. Malvina also spent much time in getting extra chairs and tables and returning them and helping to make the picnic a success. Mr. and Mrs. Malvina proved most hospitable host and hostess.

We have a "Skipper" in the Corner if not in the paper and I am wondering if that name isn't soon to adorn our Corner page.

How many of the sisters have taken an auto trip to Stamford by way of Middletown, Meriden, Waterbury and Danbury? I had the opportunity a few weeks ago and it is a very pretty ride with some fine scenery. The reservoirs and pretty park near Meriden and the drive through Sandy Hook are two of the beauty spots on the trip, but there are many other pretty views.

Will stop now before the editor consigns me to the waste basket.

MERRY FARMER BOY...

SOME QUESTIONS ASKED

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I wish to answer Present to my name which has appeared in the roll call, and to ask some questions.

Will U. C. E. please tell me if she uses soda, and how much, in her recipe for sour cream cookies published on our page May 24th?

To Hone Cobweb I want to express my thanks for her enthusiastic comment on Chautauqua. It has not reached my town, yet, but her message has made me look forward, to it more eagerly.

I would be very glad if the rest of the poem by Dr. J. E. might be published.

Can any of the sisters give me the initials, or address, of the Miss Marshall who gave a lecture on Shawls in Norwich recently?

Glenwood's letter, last week was particularly interesting to me. I wonder if she knows the poem: Just for Today?

This quotation, which I often use, pleases my friends:

"Yesterday has gone,
Tomorrow may never come,
Today is thine—improve it!"

HELIOTROPE.

BUSY DAYS

Dear Corner Folks: Should you call and ask, Where are you, and why the silence? Let me say June found be busy with the usual graduations, weddings to attend, and guests.

Today I am seated on the veranda of one of the finest cottages at Gales Ferry, where I have full view down the glorious old Thames.

It has been my pleasure to enjoy a real vacation here, to listen and to watch the water, and view the glorious sunsets, not forgetting to let you know of rowing and swimming and all the shore sports I love.

Vacation days are ending and when you all read this I'll be at home.

Scotie, Diamond and Calla Lily: Didn't we visit? Was glad to go to Scottie's home. Wish I might have seen more of you or 'phoned you, but my book was elsewhere.

Balsam Fir: So disappointed. You left one day too soon. Had arranged to see you on Sunday.

Roll call is so interesting, and such a lot of names, some of us would never have known about.

Cordial Greetings.

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY.

ABOUT CALIFORNIA

Dear Social Corner Friends: Gla. I notice in your letter in the Corner page you want to know the drawbacks of California. It is New England that has the drawbacks and not the golden state of California. If you have never been there it would be impossible for me to picture the wonderful sights. You can see huge mountains in any direction one can look, which are a mile high or more, with snow on the top the year around, while at the base the flowers are in bloom and the orange and lemon trees loaded with fruit. In New England we have never seen the true beautiful blue color of the sky as there is a mist here which is never seen in California as the air is so dry there. It is a fine sight especially on a full moonlight night to see the pretty blue sky which can never be seen in its true color in the east. The grass is also two shades darker green than in Connecticut. The beauty and many many comforts of life one can have there would be impossible to one and all in New England. The climate there is the same the year around and roses are in full bloom when we are shoveling snow and laying plans for Santa Claus.

There can be no place in the world that has better state roads than California for hundreds of miles which never need repairing as they do here for there is never any frosts to destroy them in the springtime, and as one drives along through the orange and lemon groves with the trees loaded with orange blossoms, the perfume is very sweet.

With thousands of wild poppies on either side of the road it makes a fine drive. California has many good things no other state can produce. A few are oranges, lemons, prunes, English walnuts, apricots, grapes and many others we cannot mention. The orchards cover thousands of acres, the land is level and no end of the rows of trees can be seen on either side of the road as far as one can look. We saw twelve thousand acres of grapes in one vineyard which grew the raisins the Corner writers put into cake and puddings.

The woman who said she would not live in California for the whole state will find plenty of women there who would not live here for the whole New England states. It is just a matter of choice where we live and how we live. There is no place on earth made just right for us all. The city of Pasedena is like the picture of fairyland compaired to this part of the east. I think it is generally understood that California is a better place for the rich man than the poor man and there are no comforts of life that cannot be had there if you have the money. All the fruit and nuts are picked by the pound by Mexicans with their broad brimmed hats. No man from the east would like to work with those big husky fellows. For entertainments California stands at the head. They have the best theatres money will build and in Hollywood and Los Angeles they raise the best theatrical people on the stage. Many think that southern California is as warm as Florida which is not true. In the middle of the day it is warm but in the morning and evening one needs wraps the year around. Ole, I have given you only a few good points of the Golden Gate state. There is much more that could be said but space will not permit and I'll stop for fear this letter goes into the waste basket.

RURAL DELIVERY.

MY GIFT BOX

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been a long time since I have written to the Corner.

I have been wondering what I could write in answer to the roll call that would be of interest. This morning I went to my gift box for a birthday present for a friend and as I came down the stairs I said to myself, "There, I will tell the Social Corner sisters about my gift box."

I put in the box anything that will make a useful gift—stamper, buffet sets, scarfs, centerpieces, etc., towels and colored thread for lace for towels ends.

I am very careful to put in my gift box things I would like for a gift myself.

How many times when we are shopping we see something that would make a nice gift that is not expensive but still is useful!

It does not take long to embroider simple designs and many times they are more attractive than the more elaborate designs.

And what a help my gift box is at Christmas time!

I am embroidering this summer pieces to put in my box for Christmas.

I am glad my name was remembered in the roll call.

Best wishes to all,

BLUEBIRD.

LINES FOR IOLA

Dear Social Corner: I promised Sister Iola to send the lines which I think she wished for. They were sent to me in a letter from a friend who had passed through a great sorrow in the loss of a twin son at Princeton University, who died there suedenly. It was the first terrible sorrow in the 30 years of her happiness in home and family.

These are the lines:

I will not say and I cannot say
That he is dead.—He is just away.

With a cheery smile, and a wave of hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be since he tingers there.

And you, oh you, who the wildest yearn

Think of his gaining on as dear
In the love of there as the love of here.

Think of him still as the same I say,
He is not dead—he is just away!

TROTTIE (JULY 20.)

SUMMERING AT THE SHORE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I wish all the sisters were having as nice a time as I am having at the shore. Last Saturday Sister August and I came down. She had to return to her home Monday.

Our host and his wife took us for an auto ride. Then we left August at New London where she took the trolley for Willimantic. We continued on and got back for our one o'clock dinner.

August: Suppose you are in Holyoke now?

White Clover: Hope to see you while I am at the camp ground. Wasn't it lovely of California Girl to take us over to Windham?

Practical Polly and Wee Wee: Did you have a pleasant time at the lake?

Hope Cob Web: The bat is all O. K. but will take better care of it next time. I am watching ducks swim.

Aunt Alice: Many thanks for yellow ribbon. Hope to meet you again soon.

Keturah: Hope it will not be so long again before we meet. Many changes since we were neighbors.

Priscilla and Jennie: Hope the pictures will be good, would like to have one.

The season will soon be over. It has seemed very short to me. Although I am better and having a very pleasant summer.

Am afraid this letter is getting too long so no more this week.

HOW J. E. T. MAKES BREAD

Editor of Social Corner and Members: What one throws away another finds use for. Using clean wrapping paper I sever the garbage pail with two thicknesses and make a hole the size of a cup in the center. I put a large colander on top of the paper and use it for draining a boiled dinner. It keeps the grease from the sides of the pail.

For ten years I have made bread, mixing at six in the morning. I dissolve my compressed yeast in a third of a cup of tepid potato water. Sift three pints of flour, teaspoon of sugar, one-half teaspoon of salt, lard the size of two small eggs and rub into the flour with finger tips. Pour the yeast in by drops. Use more potato water and have as soft as possible and cover with a woolen blanket. Kept out of the air it will raise in four or five hours. Then remold and raise again and bake. It makes two small loves and three biscuit. I bake twice or more a week.

Bread crumbs are used in many dishes. Save, grind, dry and put in paper bag for future use.

J. E. T.

WRITE, IF ONLY A SHORT LETTER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It was my intention to answer present to the roll call last week. This is just a busy time for us all or I think there would be more answers to the roll call.

If we can't write long letters let us write a few lines just to let one another know we are still interested in the corner page. I am glad to see you are having so many nice picnics. Some have been where I would dearly love to attend if circumstances had permitted me to.

Eugenia: Where is your answer?

Dorinda: Tank you for the invitation. Will write you later. As blueberries are plentiful now, will send the sisters a recipe for Blueberry Cake: One cup sweet milk 1-2 cup of sugar, piece of butter size of an egg; 2 eggs, 2 small cups of blueberries, 1-2 teaspoonful of soda dissolved in the cup of milk, 1 teaspoonful cream tartar, salt, flour to make a good batter. Thank you for birthday cards.

KENSEY

WESTERLY

In spite of the heat, there was a large attendance at the regular session of the third district court Friday when Judge Michael J. Turano came in and Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., read the following docket: Civil docket, new writs, Blesso Magna, vs. Margaret Conway. Continued two weeks, one week for special pleading.

At the conclusion of the docket, Judge Turano took up the criminal docket and called William Carston, 57, charged on July 24th with having in his possession intoxicating liquors containing alcohol in excess of one-half of one per cent. He pleaded guilty to the complaint which showed a ten-gallon keg of wine, 4 jugs full of wine and one jug half full. The defendant told the court that the stuff was fresh made and that he was keeping it for himself and not for sale. The judge told him that he had broken the law and imposed a fine of $50 and costs, which were paid.

Raymond E. Carr, 19, was presented on a complaint that July 20th he operated a motor vehicle on the Post Road at a speed greater than 25 miles per hour. He pleaded guilty. Solicitor Ferguson stated to the court that a traffic officer followed the defendant and that he travelled at a speed of 40 miles per hour and passed one car in the same direction and four going in the opposite. Defendant was fined $25 and costs which he paid.

John Pallazzolo, 30, pleaded not guilty to the complaint of exceeding 15 miles per hour, July 20th on Elm St. The defendant and the town solicitor were ready and the case was passed for a short time.

Anthony Sorcha, 23, entered a plea of guilty when charged with exceeding 15 miles per hour in an automobile on Elm street July 19th. Town Solicitor Ferguson reported that the traffic officer followed the defendant the entire length of Elm street in which distance two cars were passed in the same direction and one in the opposite. The fine of $25 and costs was paid.

Charles Weston, 15, was accused of operating an automobile July 20th on the Watch Hill road without first obtaining a license from the Rhode Island state board of public roads. Guilty was his plea. Solicitor Ferguson said that little consideration should be given the defendant for he had been warned for fast driving and had operated an automobile for two years. His fine of $25 and costs was paid.

Patsy Gabriel, 23, said he was guilty when complaint was made that on Elm street July 19th, he drove an automobile at a speed greater than 15 miles an hour. Attorney Ferguson said that the offence occurred at 4.30 in the afternoon and a speed of 24 miles an hour and the passing of two cars in the same direction and one in the opposite, was Gabriel's accomplishment. He was fined $20 and costs which were paid.

Frank Sposato was called but did not appear in court.

Thomas Montgomery, 33, was in court for operating an automobile without a license July 26th, on the Watch Hill road. Town Solicitor said that defendant was in an accident at Watch Hill, had no license and that his employer lived in Oklahoma. Montgomery's license expired in June and that he came to Westerly on July 6th. He was found guilty and fined $25 and costs, which were paid.

At the session of the Third District court a week ago Clerk M. W. Flynn, read the following docket: civil docket:

New writes, Granite Street Garage vs. Concetta Ligita. Continued one week, with enter of plea specially and a bill of particulars requested.

Joseph Stedman vs. Earl F. Wills. Continued one week.

Old docket, Clarence E. Roche vs. Jennie Ostman. Continued one week.

Granite Street garage vs. William F. Louden. Placed on the nisi docket.

James M. Pendleton, town treasurer of Westerly vs. Raymond W. Champlin. Continued one week.

Philip Goldberg vs. Antonio Antoch. Continued two weeks.

Judge Michael J. Turano called the case of the State vs. Charles W. Moore who had been summoned into court previously on July 9th for driving an automobile without securing a state license. As the state board of public roads had not convened in Westerly as promised Town Solicitor Ferguson asked that the case be discontinued with the payment of costs. Judge Turano so directed.

Judge Turano asked if there was anyone to claim 6 gallons of gin, so-called, seized on the place of Everett Marshall, in Richmond. Hearing none, the judge declared the liquor forfeited to the state.

That seized June 1 at the place of John Brady, alias, on the road leading from Carolina to Beaver River road, so called in Richmond shared the same fate. The liquors 1 gal. jug full of whisey, 1 other gal. jug full of whiskey, 1 qt. bottle full of whiskey, 1 qt. glass jar full of whiskey, one oak cask one-half full of whiskey and one small still found on the place. They are to be sold or destroyed as the court directs.

Children playing with matches was the cause of the Westerly fire alarm bell being sounded from box 36, School and George street, Thursday evening at 5.45 o'clock. The children playing around the house of Bertram D Kennedy, 16 Chester avenue were cautioned about playing around the house with matches and promptly moved to the rear of the lot near the garage, where they proceeded with their play. The result was that the garage was set afire and the Westerly department was called out. Three lengths of hose were coupled to the hydrant in front of the house and the flames which had ignited the roof and side of the small structure were extinguished before much damage was done. The recall sounded at 6.35.

Norwich visitors at Watch Hill the past week registered at the Ocean House were Mrs. T. T. Woodward, Lloyd A. Hall, Philip Hall, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Osgood, Rev. William A. Keefe. At the Plimpton hotel, H. E. Carpenter and wife, Mrs. C. E. Carpenter, A. J. Johnson, W. C. Ruggles.

Registered at Weekapaug at the Weekapaug Inn were Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Comstock, Mr. and Mrs F. R. Smith, Mrs. J. Dana Colt, Miss F. Dana Colt, Grosvenor Ely, Jr.

The services were conducted by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church, of Westerly. Burial was in the cemetery in Stonington, the bearers being Noyes and Walcott Maine, Louis Stanton and William A. Wilcox.

BAPTIST MINISTER GIVES TANLAC FULL CREDIT

No greater praise can be accorded a medicine than the voluntary testimony of a ministry of the gospel. The preacher's high calling puts a grave responsibility on his every word, and he will not jeopardize his reputation by commending a thing without first assuring himself it is all right.

Tanlac has been endorsed by numbers of prominent ministers. They have put Tanlac to the test of personal service and their words carry conviction because they say what they know to be the truth.

One of the latest to speak out in behalf of Tanlac is Rev. B. E. Bell, a retired Baptist minister, 107 Elm St., San Antonio, Texas, who says:

"Before taking Tanlac I had suffered from stomach and nerve troubles for over 20 years and there were times when my condition was such that it required almost superhuman effort for me to prepare my sermons and go through with my Sunday services. Indeed, my work seemed like some great obstacle across my pathway—a burden too big to carry in my weakly physical condition.

"But in six weeks' time Tanlac transformed my entire outlook, giving me what seemed like a new set of nerves and a brand new digestive system. My appetite became ravenous, my nerves steady, my liver action regular and I could sleep sound for the first time in years. Whenever I have the slightest symptoms of trouble now I always resort to Tanlac, am taking some at present, and it never fails to smooth things out for me. I certainly have the best of reasons for feeling grateful to Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation: made and recommended by the manufacturers of Tanlac.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS FIRM

New York, July 26—Stock prices displayed a firm undertone in today's stock market in the face of a suspension of dividends on Bethlehem Steel Common stock. Although the steel shares were naturally reactionary and signs of heaviness appeared among some of the other industrials, bullish demonstrations were continued with unabated vigor in other sections of the list.

Railroad shares retained the leadership of the upward movement with fresh buying power developing in the coalers, most of which attained new peak prices for the year. Buying of this group was stimulated by the publication of the semi-annual report of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad showing net operating income of $7,281,000, or more than any other six months period in the road's history. Lackawanna moved up nearly 3 points to a new 1924 top at 130 7-8 and then eased to 128 3-4.

Seventeen rails, more than half of which were eastern coalers, broke through the new high levels for the year. They included Delaware and Hudson, Lehigh Valley, Chesapeake and Ohio common and preferred, Baltimore and Ohio common and preferred, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Erie first preferred, the extreme gains ranging from small fractions to four points. Chicago northwestern, Kansas City Southern common and preferred and Omaha also sold at their best prices of the year.

Bethlehem Steel opened 3 points lower at 42 in direct reflection of the omission of the dividend but it recovered 1-2 of it's loss before the close. United States Steel common showed a net loss of 3-8 at 101 1-4, the other independent issues showing only nominal changes.

Reports of improving business conditions contained in the weekly mercantile reviews and the continued ease of money rates had a favorable effect on sentiment. Good buying was noted in the mail order, sugar, chemical and public utility shares, the list of new highs including Sears-Roebuck-Montgomery Ward, American Express, People's Gas, LaClede Gas and Texas Gulf Sulphur. Other outstanding strong spots were General Electric, Cuban Cane preferred, Adams Express, Associated Dry Goods, Goodyear Tire preferred, Kelsey Wheel, Kinney and Company, Manati Sugar, Punta Alegre Sugar and Western Union, all up 1 to 5 points. Except for a drop of about 1 1-2 points each in the Pan-American issues, the oils and motors were practically featureless. Wilson and Company issues fell back sharply on publication of reports, later officially denied, that friendly receivership proceedings were to be brought against the company. Union Tank Car broke seven points.

Call money again held at 2 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates turned reactionary on reports of a deadlock in the German loan negotiations in London. Demand sterling dropped more than a cent to $4.39 1-8 and French francs ruled about 6 1-2 points lower at 5.07 cents.

CURB MARKET

New York, July 25—Heavy profit taking sales gave today's curb market an irregular appearance.

The oil group was particularly mixed, losses of one to six points in Standard Oils of Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio, South Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana and Buckeye Pipe, Solar Refining and Magnolia Petroleum, Woodley Petroleum touched a new high on the current movement at 11 on reports that the company had obtained a total daily flush production of over 15,000 barrels on the six wells drilled since May 5.

Speculative interest in the industrial group was divided between Glen Alden Coal and Hazeltine Radio, which established new high records for the year at 105 1-2 and 27 respectively. Most of the other radio stocks fell back on profit-taking. Lehigh Valley coal certificates, the most active feature, crossed 39 for a small fractional gain.

In the bond group, heaviness again cropped out in Atlantic Gulf and West Indies, 5s of 1959 which dropped two points to 53.

BOND MARKET

New York, July 25—Cross currents of prices gave today's bond market an irregular appearance, but the main trend was unmistakably upward. Several individual issues reacted on profit taking and unfavorable news developments, but their weakness failed to check the general advance.

Improvement in liberty bonds, some of which attained new high records, was a feature of the day's trading. Continued easy money rates and expectations that another cut in the federal reserve rediscount rate eventually will be made contributed to the advance.

Erie railroad issues, after an early display of strength, encountered profit-taking and closed a point or so lower. Demand for other speculative rail liens, however, continued unabated bringing gains of a point or more in Missouri Pacific 4s, Frisco Income 6s, New Haven 4s and St. Paul and Kansas City 4 1-2s.

Omission of the Bethlehem Steel Common dividend influenced some selling of the company's bonds, the 5s falling back a point. Reports of a friendly receivership planned for Wilson and Company, which later were officially denied, caused a reaction of 4 to 5 points in the Wilson Convertible issues.

New financing in prospect for next week was said to include $20,000,000 public service corporation of New Jersey 6s, proceeds from the sale of which will be used to retire issues bearing higher interest, and a $12,000,000 bond issue for the newly organized Duke-Price Power Company of Quebec, several railroad issues offered today were readily subscribed.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, July 25—Export business by way of the Gulf of Mexico together with an unexpected advance in Liverpool quotations led today to new high price records for the season in the wheat market here. Closing prices of wheat were unsettled at 1 1-4 to 2 1-2c. net gain. Corn finished 3-4 to 2 3-8c up, oats 1-2 to 1 1-8 a 1 1-4c. higher and provisions at a rise varying from 10c to 30c.

Surprise over the action of the Liverpool wheat market was augmented by notable strength shown at Winnipeg, but resulting price bulges here were temporarily checked by increased hedging sales and by sales to realize profits. For a while, too apparent absence of export buying was a hindrance to the upward movement of values. Later, however, indications that export business in United States wheat was in progress as well as at Winnipeg helped to send the market here upward, notwithstanding that about 1,000,000 bushels of wheat were bought today to arrive in Chicago.

Crop news from Canada continued to exert a decided bullish influence of wheat traders. In this connection it was asserted that Canadian authorities were reducing their estimates of yield in districts where been prevalent. The outloo as to black rust in Manitoba was also sharply watched. Despite late realizing sales which brought about a setback from the day's top, the market ended at the highest closing level on the crop.

Corn and oats followed wheat upgrade. There was heavy buying of corn on the part of leading speculators, and considerable attention was given to government reports about unusual lateness of the corn crop.

Provisions [illegible] hog values, which reached 9.50, a new high record for the year.

FUNERAL

Miss Mary Hannar Eaton.

Another of the older generation of Canterbury people passed away on Sunday, July 20th. Born in 1838, Miss Mary Hannah Eaton, 86, was one of the oldest persons in the town where she had spent her long life. Her parents were Marcus and Ora Austin Eaton and their home, her birthplace, was near Canterbury Plains, on the place now owned by Albert Hicks. When that home was broken up Miss Eaton came to the Green and lived for many years with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray. Since their death she has occupied her home for about eighteen years, living alone most of the time. She was an old time seamstress and often sewed in various families in the vicinity. For four years she was employed in Netherwood, N. J. She had been in declining health for a number of years, but was able to go to Worcester, where she spent the past winter with relatives. Shortly after her return she began to fail and died after an illness of eight weeks.

The funeral was held at 11 o'clock, Tuesday, at the church on the green, in which she was always interested. Rev. Ralph Knight, the pastor, conducted the service. Two hymns were sung by the choir. Burial was in the family lot at Carey cemetery. Relatives present were Elmer Eaton and family of Providence, Miss Mary Eaton of Worcester and Henry Turner and children of Greeneville, R. I.

In the death of Miss Eaton Canterbury loses another link with the past. Possessed of a vivid memory she was often referred to as an authority on questions arising in connection with past days and events. Of a social disposition she was always ready to welcome old acquaintances, and her passing from the village life leaves a vacancy which can never be filled.

TAFTVILLE

Merchants Avenue is being treated to a coat of tarvia.

Huckleberries are very plentiful in this vicinity this year. It is no unusual sight to see children start early in the morning with their pails and come back in the early evening with a "heap" on every pail.

Hormisdas Lambert of Merchants Avenue leaves today for Canada. While there Mr. Lambert will visit many of his friends and relatives.

Moving pictures of the Fourth of July parade in Taftville were shown at the local theatre on Thursday and Friday nights. Not a few in the audience recognized themselves on the screen.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Despres have returned from a visit to relatives in Canada.

The Maennerchor Turning Section is planning an outing in the near future.

Miss Julia Kozlowski has resigned her position with the Ponemah Mills.

NORWICH TOWN

"Moses," was the subject at the Thursday evening prayer service of the First Congregational church. The leader divided the life of Moses into different periods and gave to different members the birth, education, commission and helpers of Moses for study, to be reported at this meeting. From these members much was learned about him as each contributed to the general fund of information. It was brought out that Moses lost, or did not have a name, till the princess named him. He went to college in Egypt, afterwards took a long term at University of Arabia, for forty years. Like a great many men he had some good advice from his father-in-law, which he wisely made use of. He made a serious mistake, for which he and Aaron were punished, all of which proved that this great man, great in so many ways, was human, like other mortals. His whole career shows him to have been directed of God, made brave when he was naturally timid; he trusted God fully at all times and under all circumstances.

REPUBLICAN DINNER WILL FIRE OPENING GUN IN STATE CAMPAIGN

Republican leaders from all parts of the state will gather at Savin Rock for a dinner and social session this (Saturday) afternoon at 2 o'clock at which the opening guns in the state campaign for the election in the fall will be fired. About 100 are expected to attend.

Lieut. Gov. Hiram O. Bingham, who is expected to be the party's nominee for governor, will be the principal speaker, and among the other speakers will be J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the state central committee and Connecticut member of the national committee.

An invitation has been sent to Senator Frank B. Brandegee at Washington and if it is possible for him to get away from urgent business at the capitol, the senator will be among those present.

Among those to attend from this part of the state will be Albert J. Bailey of this city, state central committeeman from this district; George H. Bradford of Montville, committeeman from the Shoestring district; Daniel M. Cronin, committeeman from New London; Senator Ernest E. Rogers and Theodore Bodenwein of that city.

Col. W. Ellery Allyn of Waterbury, chief field deputy of the internal revenue bureau had planned to be present with his chief, Col. Robert O. Eaton, but illness is now expected to prevent him from attending. Colonel Allyn is assistant adjutant general on the governor's staff, and last Thursday, the day before Governor's day at the Niantic Camp grounds, flew over to Mitchell field in an aeroplane. The trip brought on a violent illness which has kept him in bed ever since. Miss Kathryn Byrne of Putnam has been appointed vice-chairman of the republican state central committee by Chairman J. Henry Roraback to fill one of the two vacancies caused by the death of Mrs. Samuel O. Prentice last month, and Mrs. John B. Russ of Shelton was appointed to membership on the republican national committee. Mr. Roraback announced the appointments after a conference which followed the meeting of the state central committee at the Allyn house in Hartford Thursday.

Both Miss Byrne and Mrs. Russ were delegates-at-large to the republican national convention. The former is a sister of Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne and has been an active republican worker in the state for several years. Mrs. Russ is president of the Connecticut division of the Coolidge Clubs of America. Immediately after the state convention, which will be held in Music hall, New Haven, September 9 and 10, Miss Byrne will be at her headquarters at the Allyn house to assist in handling the campaign.

The formal call to the convention, issued after the meeting, points out that each town is entitled to twice as many delegates as it has members in the house of representatives. The town of Orange is entitled to two delegates, and each senatorial district is entitled to two delegates. City conventions will be held August 25 and senatorial district caucuses on August 30.

XENS HAVE DISBANDED AFTER EIGHTEEN YEARS

The annual picnic of The Xens of the First Baptist church held at Happyland on Thursday of this week was destined to be the last social event of the organization. At a meeting held that afternoon it was voted to disband and such property as was held by them including a substantial balance in the treasury, was distributed among various allied organizations. It was thus that after a very successful career of eighteen years, this society whose object was to promote social and philanthropic ideals among its members and friends passed into history.

The Xens was organized April 1, 1906 with Miss Martha A. Ward as its first president and from the beginning it prospered and numbered among its membership, not only people residing on the West Side but those from every part of the city. During its existence it has been widely known for its social events, for many years maintaining a steady interest among its members and always winning the support and favor of an increasing number of the people of the city at large. Since its beginning it has had the satisfaction of always knowing that an ample treasury was theirs, ready for any personal need, or to help minister to such objects as needed their assistance and aid. It can be truthfully said that "peace and good-will" was its motto for it has been eighteen years of true fellowship free from anything that savored of friction or ill feeling, a spirit of true friendship that would be well for any society to emulate. During these years the Xens have numbered hundreds on its membership roll, very many of which have left only the memory of their comradeship, and those who from far and near will never forget the many happy events and hours spent together.

While the organization is disbanded yet it is planned that reunions will be held from time to time, and those members who are in good standing to July 1st, will be invited to participate in them. A committee composed of Walter M. Cowan, Mrs. Herbert Willey and Mrs. John B. Oat was appointed to look after these future events.

WESTERLY SCOUTS HAVE TREAT AT GARDNER LAKE CAMP

St. Michael's Boy Scouts of Westerly, R. I., have been spending a week at Camp Wakenah, the New London Council Camp, located on the shore of Gardner Lake. This is the third season that the boys have visited this camp, and they are enjoying themselves to the utmost.

Their pleasure was heightened on Wednesday through the generosity and thoughtfulness of Rev. John J. Fitzgerald of Naugatuck, former pastor of St. Michael's, Westerly. The Boy and Girl Scouts were organized during his administration, and as proof that he is still interested in them, he sent enough watermelons, bananas and peanuts to the camp to provide a treat not only for the St. Michael's boys, but for Troop 10 of St. Mary's church, New London, as well.

NEW LONDON K. OF C. CARD FOUND IN LONDON, ENGLAND

The National Catholic Welfare Council's News Service of the present week carries notice of the finding of a K. of C. traveling card in London, England. The card, which eventually found its way into the hands of the London police, was issued to J. D. Conway, New London, Conn., a third degree member of Seaside Council, No. 17. It is signed by J. N. Cranker, grand night.

The News Service suggests that an official of Seaside Council claim the card from the police station, Bow St., London, to prevent it falling into improper hands, in case the owner should not be located.

Flashing Beacon at Occum

First Selectman William S. Murray and Second Selectman Charles P. Bushnell had Contractor Patrick F. Sweeney place the flashing beacon at Occum Friday. The beacon was placed on the corner where several accidents have occurred. The turn at this corner is at the foot of a steep grade and it is believed that the flashing beacon will prevent a recurrence of accidents at this point.

CAMP LIFE DELIGHTS FOR NORWICH SCOUTS

Eating, sleeping, swimming, roaming the woods, rowing over the waters of the lake, mixtures of lazy living and healthful activities of play and of work, of restful hours and of periods of instruction and self-improvement make up the great life of Boy Scouts at Camp Tippecan.

The ideal situation on the camp at Beech pond, Voluntown on high and dry grounds by the side of the ever-refreshing waters of Beach Pond, adds much to camp life where the meals are spread for hungry boys in a pine grove jutting out into the lake, always fanned by invigorating breezes. Boating and swimming, tramping and tracking in the woods, studying nature and taking various scout tests are assisted by the conditions.

The camp is thoroughly organized and is run on a definite daily schedule which allows for variations in the program. "First call" wakes the boys at 6.30 in the morning, followed by "reveille" wake up drill and a plunge in the lake. Breakfast, camp-duties, inspection and instruction take up a part of every morning. Then the swimming period prepares for dinner, after which there is a quiet hour for resting, letter-writing, reading, etc. Scout games, feats, exploring trips and boating occupy the afternoon. The afternoon swim comes at four, allowing ample time for "colors" and supper at six. In the evening there is fun, camp fires, stories, songs, etc, with "taps" at 9.30. Making bows and arrows, building a log cabin, making totem poles, base ball and volley ball give opportunity for constructive activity and team work. There are long and short hikes and over-night hikes.

Needless to say, the boys develop a fine spirit of comradeship and fraternity. They come from Norwich, Plainfield, Jewett City, Willimantic, North Stonington and Taftville.

NATIONAL GRANGERS WILL TOUR IN CONNECTICUT

About 800 National Grange Tourists forming a caravan of some 250 automobiles will tour into New Britain on August 17th on their trip from the Great Lakes to Plymouth Rock. The Executive Offices of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce is preparing a map of the itinerary through Connecticut and copies will be presented to members of the visiting party by the State Grange. These maps will also contain matter descriptive of the points of interest along the route through this state.

It is understood that this party organized in Michigan and plans to travel to Plymouth Rock, Mass., via Ohio, Pennsylvania, Southern New York and Connecticut. On Sunday the Grangers will enter Connecticut at Ridgefield, traveling on to New Britain where they will camp before entering on the last leg of their journey along the East Side route to Springfield, Boston and Plymouth.

The New Britain Chamber of Commerce and other local organizations may cooperate with the State Grange in making arrangements for the camp site and entertainment of the guests.

George B. Chandler, secretary of the state chamber, has been asked by the State Grange to extend a welcome to the visitors at New Britain on the afternoon of the 17th, gaming the historical and industrial characteristics of the Connecticut Yankee.

FARMHOUSE NEAR YANTIC BURNED TO GROUND

The home of Michael Kalada, located about two miles north of Yantic off the Fitchville road, known as the old Austin place, was burned to the ground Friday morning. There was no telephone at the house, and the nearest one was over a mile away so that word was not received by the Yantic engine company in time to save the house.

The department responded, however but as the road leading past the house was under repair the Yantic company could not make the run. Chemicals were sent by a light automobile and were used to prevent a comparatively new barn, located across the road from the house, from being destroyed by fire. In their fine work in saving the barn the department was assisted by neighbors. Lack of water on the farm also prevented much work in trying to save the burning house. The loss of property will amount to over $2,000.

GEORGIA PEACH RAISERS LOSE ON THEIR CROP

Georgia peach growers who threw some 4,500,000 bushels of peaches into rivers of that state, nearly enough to fill 8,000 cars, should have lived nearer Norwich, for they would have received prices high enough to do business on, judging from the cost of peaches here, which varies from 10 to 20 cents a quart.

The price in Georgia fell to 3 cents a basket and in most cases to 20 cents a crate. Prices given for New York City were at 40 cents a crate and the growers of the southland dumped the peach crop into the rivers as the cost of shipping was not enough to pay to get them into the market.

The reason given is that the entire peach crop ripened at the same time swamping the market, and the growers have been begging people to go into the orchards and pick the peaches take all they wanted, for thousands of bushels will only rot on the trees.

YANTIC COMPANY RESPONDS TO GRASS FIRE CALL

A call was sent in to Central Fire station about 10 o'clock Friday night for a grass fire in back of the Norwich Golf club grounds. As this was outside the city limits Deputy Chief Taft notified the Yantic Engine company. This company with about 18 men went down the back road making a quick run but before they arrived neighbors had succeeded in putting out the fire. For a time the fire threatened houses and a large pine grove and it was because of this danger that the call was sent for the

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion is to hold an all day picnic on Thursday of next week, rain or shine, at the home of Mrs. William F. Bogue on Broad street. Members are asked to come in the morning and remain through the afternoon. The committee in charge of the plans for the picnic comprises Mrs. Bogue and Mrs. John B. Oat and any member planning to attend is requested to get in touch with the committee to see what is needed. It is planned to have every member bring something to add to the line of eats for the day. Plans are being laid for entertaining about 20 members but it hoped that nearer forty will notify the committee that they are planning to attend and make the picnic one of success and enjoyment for all.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

At its meeting Tuesday evening R. E. Hourigan Post, No. 594 with commander A. J. Turner in the chair voted on and accepted six new members.

It was voted to have a clam bake at Barn's Point Aug. 3. Athletics events will be held and a baseball game between the married men and single men. A committee will be in the post rooms every evening to assist ex-service men who desire to make out applications for the bonus.

ODD FELLOWS.

At the regular meetings of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, and Uncas lodge, No. 11, held this week in Odd Fellows' hall on Main street, routine business was in order. Plans were laid out for coming activities and the entertainment committees indicated that banner programmes would be in line for the members of the lodges in the fall. Club nights and ladies' nights have proven to be popular in Odd Fellowdom in Norwich and many more happy events are scheduled for the fall and winter months.

AMERICAN LEGION.

The compensation committee of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, headed by Webster D. Copp, has been busy three nights this week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 7 until 9 o'clock, assisting ex-service men and women in Norwich in filling out application blanks for the bonus.

This service, given free to all ex-service men and women, whether they are members of the legion or not, has proven of great assistance and the work of the committee has been greatly appreciated. Over 200 applications have been filled out and mailed by the committee and over 100 blanks have been given to service men who are filling them out themselves.

The local post is planning to send a delegation to New London Sunday to attend the county meeting at the state armory and it is also expected that over 25 local members will join the Volture at the big ceremonial in New London, in August.

EAGLES.

Norwich Aerie, No. 367, held its regular meeting Monday night at Eagles' hall with Worthy President Timothy Fields in the chair. There was a good attendance at the meeting and the members discussed attending the Grand Aerie Convention to be held in Providence in August. Many signified their intentions of attending the convention.

The Aerie is making plans for an extensive membership campaign to begin next fall, plans being to double the present membership. Every member pledged himself to get back of the campaign managers and secure at least two new members.

The baseball committee reported that plans for forming a lodge team were meeting with success as the managers are out looking for games with other fraternal orders in the city. The committee recently appointed to discuss plans for an active campaign to raise money for the old age pension made a report of progress further plans to be announced at some future meeting.

Following adjournment a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS.

Unique methods of transportation will be employed by many of the posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, scheduled to take part in the silver jubilee of the national organization meeting in Atlantic City, Sept. 8-13, and at which time General John J. Pershing, one of the pioneers in the order will be honored by a review of the gold stripe veterans, survivors of Americ[illegible]fields, 1846-1917. Extensive preparations are being made by the state and city to properly entertain the distinguished host. An appropriation of $35,000 has already been allotted by the state legislature to form the nucleus of the encampment fund. Governor Silzer of New Jersey has accepted the invitation of the citizens' reception committee to extend the state's welcome to the visitors and will be answered by General Lloyd M. Brett, medal of honor commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The U. S. S. blimp, J-1, will sail from Lakewood, N. J., from Atlantic City, carrying as a crew U. S. S. Shenandoah Post 433, all overseas veterans and members of the V. F. W. PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Norwich grange, No. 172, had a class of 18 in the third and fourth degrees at its meeting Wednesday evening in Greiner hall, when the degree work was preceded by a supper with the new feast committee in charge, Mrs. Andrew Crowe, chairman, Mrs. Vera Sterry, and Mrs. Irma Burns. A novel table arrangement made an interesting feature of the evening, separate tables being provided for the officers, candidates, visitors, tableau members, degree team and grangers. The decorations were in red and white and the menu included boiled ham, salad, pickles, rolls, coffee and cake. About 100 were present.

In the business meeting it was voted to contribute $5 to the Salvation Army fund.

FORESTERS.

Despite the warm weather there was a large attendance at the regular meeting of Court City of Norwich No. 63, Foresters of America, Tuesday evening, with Chief Ranger Maurice B. Looby in the chair. Four candidates were obligated and several applications were received and referred to the investigating committee. The headquarters committee reported progress and expect to make a final report in the very near future. As far as the committee has gone in their work they have received the full co-operation of the members which is very gratifying to the committee. It is expected that the entire personnel of present executive council will attend and the Companions from New London are making preparations to take care of all and they have promised an enjoyable social time after the meeting.

TROLLEY JUMPED TRACK ON WEST MAIN STREET

Passengers on the West Side trolley that left the square at 4 o'clock were given a scare and shaking up Friday afternoon when the trolley jumped the track at the foot of West Main street hill, opposite the entrance to Forest street.

The forward trucks left the iron and the car swerved to the left, the trucks coming to a stop in the gutter with the car only about a foot away from two large telegraph poles. Fortunately no one was injured.

Traffic was blocked except on one side of the street, where there was just room enough to get by. The car was later hauled back onto the rails and the West Side trips continued. There is a slight rise at this point and it is believed this caused the car to rock and jump the track.

VOL. LXVI—No. 180 POPULATION 29,685 NORWICH, CONN., MONDAY, JULY 28, 1924 10 PAGES—70 COLUMNS PRICE TWO CENTS

DECISION IS FAVORABLE TO CONNECTICUT COMPANY

Public Utilities Commission Finds That Three Tokens For 25 Cents is Not Unreasonable—Decision Was Reached After Briefs Had Been Filed by the Cities Interested and by the Company—Petitions of Cities of Hartford, New Britain and Stamford, Which Asked For a Reduction, are Denied.

Hartford, July 27.—The public utilities commission in a decision made public today rules that the token fares established by the Connecticut company, whereby three tokens are given for 25 cents, are not unreasonable. The petitions of the cities of Hartford, New Haven, Waterbury, New Britain and Stamford, which claimed that the rates were too high and asked for a reduction are denied.

The commission further finds that the token fares in Bridgeport and adjoining communities should be increased from seven and one-half cents or two tokens for 15 cents, to eight and one-third cents or three tokens for 25 cents. The petition of the Connecticut company for these changes in Bridgeport is granted.

The commission also rules that it is not justified at this time to make any arbitrary segregation of the Connecticut company's railway system or to change the existing divisional lines.

The decision was reached after briefs had been filed by the cities interested and by the Connecticut company.

The commission in its findings shows that on Oct. 20, 1920, the maximum rate of fare allowed to be charged by the Connecticut company was ten cents, except in the New London division. On November 1, 1921, the company established a maximum fare in its New London division of ten cents.

On March 1, 1922, it is further pointed out, the Connecticut company, while still retaining its maximum cash ten cent fare, voluntarily reduced its fares by the use of tokens, selling three tokens for 25 cents. On April 1, 1923, the company made a further voluntary reduction of its token fares from three for 25 cents to two for 25 cents.

On April 1, 1923, a five-cent radial zone fare, without transfer, in the city of Bridgeport, was changed to a maximum cash flat fare of 10 cents and a token fare of seven and one-half cents or two tokens for 15 cents. This resulted in a uniform rate of fares on the company's entire system, excepting in Norwalk, with this distinction, that the token fares in Bridgeport and adjoining communities were established by the public utilities commission and could not be increased without its approval, while all other token fares were company-made rates.

The claims of the petitions were that the eight and one-third cents token fare is unreasonable, whether the value of the company's property, its revenues and expenses be considered as an entity, or solely with reation to the several cities filing petitions and the lines and territories connected therewith and tributary thereto that a principle or plan of segregated operating and accounting divisions for the company's entire system should be ordered by the commission. The areas to be included within such divisions were not set forth.

The Connecticut company claimed that the eight and one-third cents token rate of fare is no more than just and reasonable and at less than what the company is constitutionally entitled to earn as the return upon the fair value of its property devoted to the public service; in the fixation of rates, the company should be considered as an entire system and to segregate the company's system into separate operating and accounting divisions, other than the present divisions and to the extent they now maintain, is not necessary, is disadvantageous to the public welfare and illegal.

Included in the commission's report is an income statement of the Connecticut company as a whole for the year ending December 31, 1923. This shows that the company received from all sources or revenue about $14,780,000; that the wages, maintenance of property, power and general expenses were $11,673,000; that the federal, state and municipal taxes amounted to $577,000. This left, according to the report, a balance available for depreciation, return on property and reasonable surplus of $2,530,000.

The revenues for the year, 1923, the report continues, were about $287,000 more than in 1922, but the expenses increased $513,000, so that the balance available for depreciation, etc., was about $256,000 less than in 1922. The increase in revenue for 1923, the report continues, is found in the first five months of that year when the eight and one-third cents token fare was in force. The last seven months of that year, during which time the seven and one-half cents token fare was in force throughout the state, including Bridgeport, shows a decrease in revenues of $200,000, and an increase in expenses of $410,000, as compared with the same months of the years 1922. The result was a decrease in gross income for that period at a rate of $54,000 a month, or a decrease at the rate of about $1,000,000 a year, compared with 1922.

The company still owes the state of Connecticut nearly $802,000 in overdue and unpaid taxes. The company also owes an assessment for the construction of the Washington bridge over the Housatonic river, amounting to $487,000.

In reference to the proposed regrouping of the system into other operating and accounting divisions, the commission finds that the only advantage would be the establishment of a rate of fare which might be lower for some divisions so created, although higher for others. Such re-arrangement, the commission finds, no matter how carefully planned, would not eliminate certain fixed charges and inter-related expenses applicable to the company as a whole and which would have to be allocated among the several divisions.

"Since it appears conclusively," the report continues, "that no division as at present constituted is earning a fair return on the fair value of the property in that division, it is obvious these can be no advantage in regrouping of existing divisions resulting in an increase in the rates of some and probably in no case resulting in a decrease in rates for others."

SCEPTRE OF KING DUNGI IN THE U. OF P. MUSEUM

Philadelphia, July 27.—What Babylonian scholars have regarded as the clapper of a bell since it was found at Nippur in 1907, has proved to be a priceless treasure—the bronze sceptre of King Dungi, of Ur, who ruled in 2270 B. C., the University of Pennsylvania museum announced tonight.

The sceptre was found by the archaeologists of the university museum. It was supposed to be a bell clapper with a broken shaft, it weighs ten ounces and is six inches in length with cuneiform inscriptions at the enlarged end. When the bronze piece was held as though it were suspended in a bell none of the scholars could read the inscription. The object was placed in the vault at the museum with other Babylonian material for further study, remaining there 17 years.

Recently Dr. Leon Legrain, curator of the Babylonian section, was cleaning the collection. He chanced to pick up the supposed clapper and hold it as though it were a blackjack. In this position the cuneiform was decipherable. He instantly recognized the word "Dungi." Then began the task of deciphering the entire inscription, which states that it is the royal sceptre of the ruler of Ur. This is followed by the name of the king—Dungi.

LOEB-LEOPOLD DEFENSE WILL REQUIRE TEN DAYS

Chicago, July 27.—Ten days will be required by defense witnesses to present to Chief Justice John R. Caverly of the criminal court the evidence of "mitigating circumstances" upon which Richard A. This was announced early today after conferences between defense counsel and alienists.

The defense witnesses will include the corps of alienists which has been examining the two youths for the last several weeks, relatives of Leopold and Loeb, and, it was intimated, the boys themselves.

Details of the general plan of the defense, that of seeking to establish that the murderers were not mentally competent at the time they kidnapped the schoolboy neighbor and killed him, were outlined by Clarence Darrow, chief of the defendants' consel. He, with Attorneys Benjamin and Walter Bachrach, conferred with Dr. Bernard Glueck, New York city, Dr. William Healy, Boston, and Dr. H. S. Business in J... Showed R...cession

Decrease in Both Wholesale and Retail Trade Disclosed by Report of Federal Reserve Board.

Washington, July 27.—The federal reserve board in its summary of general business and financial conditions for June made public today again presents a gloomy picture of conditions. As was true in May, the reserve board says that production of basic commodities and factory employment showed further large declines during June. There was also a recession in trade during the month.

The summary disclosed that both wholesale and retail trade decreased during the month and was in smaller volume than a year ago. It mentions, however, some bright spots in the wholesale business, but does not give hope for increased trade in any particular section or in any single commodity.

"On the basis of the board's records, the production in basic industries, adjusted to allow for seasonal variations, declined about 9 per cent. in June, which placed it at a point 22 per cent. below the level of the first two months of this year. The most marked curtailment of activity was shown in iron, steel and cotton manufacturing industries. The decreases were general, however, in most other industries.

"The reduction in factory employment prevalent in April and May continued in June, when a further decrease of 3 per cent. was noted in the metal, automobile, textile and leather industries. Some of the other industries showed large cuts in their working forces, but the most notable reduction was observed in the four lines mentioned.

"The slackening in general business was reflected in railroad shipments, which in June were more than 15 per cent. less than for the same month a year ago. The reduction in the railroad movements was noted in the smaller loadings of all classes of freight except grain and livestock, which continued to move in satisfactory quantities.

"Relative to wholesale trade, which on the basis of the reserve board averages was 11 per cent smaller in June than in June a year ago, there was reported slightly increased sales of hardware, drugs, shoes and dry goods. Department and chain stores sales showed more than the usual seasonal decrease during June and were considerably smaller than a year ago. There was, however, less than the usual decline in mail order sales, which were almost on a parity with June of last year.

"The summary indicates that the principal department stores of the country have further reduced their stocks of merchandise but increased slightly their outstanding orders. Whether this means a renewal of general buying by the larger stores is not discussed by the board, but some treasury officials believe that the end of the year-long policy of operating on a hand-to-mouth basis of the purchase of stocks is in sight, with a consequent beneficial reaction upon manufacturing industries.

"The easy money market that has prevailed for several months bids fair to continue, and in this condition, some officials declare, lies hope for an early return to business activity that would spell increased production and increased employment of labor. The fact that all interests that may need money can now borrow at low rates is regarded by most treasury officials as being likely to produce a revival in business. None, however, will express an opinion as to how soon this revival may be expected.

Week End Marred by Many Fatalities

Three Persons Killed at Grade Crossing — Four Persons Drowned in Mississippi River Near Memphis.

Philadelphia, July 27.—One man, two women and a boy were killed, and five persons were injured, four seriously when a Reading train crashed into an automobile tonight at Willow Grove park, on the outskirts of the city.

Those killed were: George Maxheimer, engineer of the train, Mrs. Morris Stein, Mrs. Helen Morningstar and the latter's son, Jerome Morningstar.

The injured are: Julius Stein, his wife and son, and daughter, Leonard and Elaine Stein, and Roy Templeton, the fireman. With the exception of Templeton, who was only slightly injured, all are in a critical condition. All lived in this city.

The accident occurred at the Willow Grove crossing of the Reading. Witnesses said either Mrs. Julius Stein, who was driving the automobile, became confused as she approached the crossing or that the brakes of her car failed to hold. Application of the emergency brakes by Engineer Maxheimer, caused the rails to spread, derailing the locomotive, tender and two cars. The locomotive turned over on its side and was badly wrecked. DECLINE IN EARNINGS AND HOURS OF WORK

New York, July 27.—A sharp decline in weekly earnings, in employment and in average hours of work during the month of May is shown in statistics made public today by the national industrial conference board.

The average weekly earnings of workers in 23 industries during May was $26.19, the lowest level since March, 1923, and a decrease of 2.1 per cent. from the previous month. There were small increases of earnings in nine industries, the report shows, but there were declines in 14, notably in the automobile, iron and steel, rubber, foundry and machine shop fields.

A slackening in manufacturing activities is indicated by the drop of the average hours of work per wage earner during a week to 46.6, an hour less than in the previous month. This is the lowest point since 1921.

Employment is shown to have suffered its most severe reduction in one month since 1920. The heaviest reductions occurred in agricultural implements, automobiles, boots and shoes, iron and steel, leather tanning, meat packing, paper and pulp and wool lines.

AT POMFRET LANDING MAN, 80, SLAYS HIS BROTHER, AGED 72

Edwin T. White Was Shot at His Farm by His Brother Benjamin—Victim Was Prominent in Affairs of Pomfret Landing and a Prosperous Farmer—David Naison, Who Went to the Aid of Edwin, Was Wounded—No Motive Other Than Insantiy Found For the Shooting—The Alleged Murderer Escaped to the Woods, Carrying Gun With Him.

Putnam, Conn., July 27.—Edwin T. White, 72, was shot and killed this afternoon at his farm in Pomfret Landing, by his brother, Benjamin, 80, who made his home with the slain man. David Naison, of Hartford, who went to the aid of Edwin was wounded.

The alleged murderer escaped into the woods back of the farm and up until a late hour tonight had not been found. He carried with him the gun with which he did the shooting and fourteen rounds of ammunition which had been kept in the barn with the gun for use whe ncrows invaded the corn field nearby.

Practically no motive other than sudden insanity has been found for the shooting. Edwin White's daughter, Sadie Phillips White, found her uncle in the barn with the gun in his hands. She rushed to her father, who was in the house, and notified him of what she had seen. Edwin started to the barn and had reached within twenty feet of the door when Benjamin appeared. Without warning the latter levelled the gun at his brother and fired. Edwin fell to the ground fatally wounded and died within ten minutes.

Visiting at the farm was Naison who is engaged to Miss White. Hearing the shot he rushed into the yard and seeing what had occurred, went back into the house for another gun. When he approached the barn, he attempted to use his gun on the alleged murdered but Benjamin again fired, the shots entering Naison's leg. He was attended by a physician who declared that the wounds were not serious.

Howard White, a nephew of the alleged slayer also went to the aid of Edwin and also was fired upon by Benjamin. He threw himself on the ground, however, and the shots went over his head.

Benjamin then made a dash for the woods which are out a short distance from the barn and reached cover before anyone could stop him. Citizens attracted by the shooting formed themselves into a posse and under the direction of the state police searched the woods for Benjamin. Despite the fact that they were aided by a trained police dog, the men were unable to find the alleged killer.

By this time, the neighborhood was terror stricken and a strong guard was maintained at the White home tonight through fear that Bejamin might return.

The wedding of Miss White and Naison is to be held next Saturday and elaborate arrangements had been made for the ceremony. Because of the tragedy, a quiet family wedding will be held.

It is thought that the excitement of the approaching wedding might have had something to do with the shooting. The brothers had never quarrelled and it is the belief of the family that sudden insanity on the part of Benjamin is responsible for the fatal shooting.

Edwin White was prominent in affairs of Pomfret Landing and a prosperous farmer. He had served as selectman for a number of year and also as tax collector. The funeral will be held at the home next Thursday.

INTER-ALLIED CONFERENCE RESUMES SESSIONS TODAY

London, July 27 (By the A. P.).—Important developments relating to the part the United States has played in the inter-allied conference are expected when the experts who have been dealing with the questions of defaults and sanctions under the Dawes plan reassemble tomorrow morning in Downing street.

Since the conference was deadlocked a week ago on the question of security for a loan to Germany there has been a growing feeling in American official circles against recurrent reports that the whole difficulty has been caused by the unyielding attitude of American bankers who, according to the newspapers, have sought to put their views on political as well as economic questions before the conference.

Frank B. Kellogg, the American ambassador, has expressed the opinion that there has been considerable misrepresentation of the efforts of the American bankers to protect investors in a German loan, and tonight from other authoritative sources it is intimated that the American observers are unwilling that the misconception of what actually has happened should continue.

The subject of the activities of the American bankers likely will be brought up when the experts meet tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock to reconsider the report which they formulated July 19 and which proved so unsatisfactory to the British and American financiers whose advice was asked with regard to the security provided in the report.

WILLIMANTIC

Roderick Francis Lussier, 29, city constable and dog warden of the town of Windham, died at his home, 1349 Main street shortly before one o'clock Sunday from diabetic coma. His death followed an illness of over two years. He was born in this city November , 1894, a son of Oliver C. and Maria Rohargo Lussier. He is survived by his father, two sisters, Mrs. Charles H. Popple and Mrs. Charles H. McChamber and four brothers, Ralph E., Reno W., Arthur G. and Lawrence O., all of Willimantic. Although a young man Mr. Lussier was a prominent party worker in republican political circles in Windham. He ran for the office of city sheriff at the last city elections but was defeated through a democratic landslide. Previous to the outbreak of the World war he was assistant foreman of the city street department for several years. During the universal conflict he was connected with the intelligence department of the United States army, serving at Camp Devens and Camp Upton with the 42nd Infantry, 12 Division. He received honorable discharge at the close of the war and joined his father in the grocery business for a short time, when he entered the automobile repairing business with his brother-in-law, Charles F. McConnell. His health, however, became so impaired that he was forced to retire. He traveled for a few months and returned here again become assistant foreman of the street department under Superintendent Irvin Wood. With the advent of the democratic administration he engaged in repairing business, which he has continued to the time of his death. Three years ago he was appointed dog warden by Commissioner of Domestic Animals James L. Evidence for the state was heard Saturday morning in the case of John Thompson of Windham Center, tried in the police court before a packed gallery of spectators. Thompson is charged with harboring a dog or dogs which create a disturbance contrary to law. Attorney H. S. Gaucher states that the state's evidence was closed and he asked for a continuance of the case until next Saturday morning which a number of witnesses for the defense will be present. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton agreed to the proposal and a recess was taken by Judge Foss granted the continuance. The charge against Thompson involves his dog keeping which is alleged to be a violation of Section 3412 of the general statutes. Thompson pleaded not guilty and the defense stated its evidence would be that the dogs in question, one of whom were women [illegible] the assistant prosecutor [illegible] to squeeze in a knee pad [illegible] case, or when offered [illegible] to the dogs by the dogs was made to appear to be prior to [illegible] was the time fixed by the warrant. The complainants had prepared well for the case, but had to admit that the testimony would be secured through questioning of the witnesses for both sides. Richard G. Waterous is one of the complainants he will be the first witness called to the witness stand. He lives on a 50 foot road from the Thompson premises and says the barking of the dogs in the kennels had been a source of irritation and nervousness to himself, his family and guests for a period of [illegible] months. He visited the owner to make a peaceful request, but to no avail. He wished to make it plain that the complaint was not made through spite, nor was it in any way malicious. He was seconded in the remarks of the witness by statements that the complaint did not originate with Mr. Thompson, but was strictly confined to the dogs. Upon cross-examination, Mr. Waterous said that on three occasions the dogs were likely to bark practically all day and most of the night. The next witness, Miss Frances Campbell, testified to the same effect. She was unable to sleep and hear the barking of the dogs. She said that the noise had been a source of annoyance to her, but she thought she had reached the limit of discomfort from the barking dogs. Although naturally a sound sleeper the barking dogs woke her last night and the noise prevented her from going back to slumberland. She had noticed that the disturbance had been abated with in the past few days. She firmly believed that the dogs barked when Mr. Thompson was away as he would control them if he were at home. She loved dogs but could not stand the commotion created by them.

John P. Beckwith said that there was no reason why a dog should be a barking dog and the dog concert issuing from the kennels was most unpleasant inside for residents of that vicinity. William Popple said that he often passed by the Thompson place and saw and heard the dogs bark. Ida Raymond held nothing against Thompson personally and she did not like to testify but she had cause to agree that the disturbance in question was quite unbearable. Maude Stokes further established that the dogs had been a disturbance. William P. Maine testified also. First Selectman Russell A. Andrews testified that last fall he had received a complaint that a black dog owned by Thompson bothered the neighborhood. Thompson was notified and he duly disposed of the animal in some manner. July 8 the selectman received another complaint, coming from Mr. Waterous alleging that the Thompson dogs created a disturbance. Thompson was again notified and once more he agreed to comply with the order. A third complaint was registered against the dogs and Selectman Andrews informed Thompson that he would have to remove the dogs to the rear of the house. This was done a few days ago. In the meantime action had been taken, the complaintants had signed up and the warrant was issued. At this point the state rested and the case went over for a week.

The city water supply situation is becoming acute although there is no danger of a real famine. Rain has held off for so long that the pumping station pond at Mansfield, from which water is forced to the reservoir for household distribution is now 27 inches below normal depth. The pumps at the station house have been in operation for the past five weeks, according to Supt. Willard N. Bowen. The work of keeping the reservoir on Horner mountain filled has become a somewhat difficult proposition. If this condition continues it is likely that an order will be issued to have the householders refrain from using water to spray lawns and other purposes which have no direct connection with the actual conveniences of life. A day or two more of drought will bring the situation to a climax. In case of an emergency, it will be necessary to purchase water for the city from the Hall storage reservoir in Westford. This practice of buying water from Westford was resorted to a few times in previous years by the city.

Reports have been in circulation for the past two or three days that the water supplies at the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs and the State Hospital and Training school at Mansfield were running low. That statement is true, but there is no danger in either case of a water famine, at least for some time. Both institutions are equipped with gunnese storage tanks which hold many thousands of gallons and these are being kept filled up by means of pumps which have been working during the daytime.

WESTERLY

Librarian Basil B. Wood, of Westerly Public library will in a few days complete his duties there. Since Mr. Wood began as librarian the library has grown in size and usefulness and the number of patrons has greatly increased. In 1920 the Westerly Public library had as librarian Rev. J. L. Peacock and the number of volumes was 43,627 and in 1924 with Librarian Wood the number of volumes is 55,-555, this being the second in size in Rhode Island. The Providence Public library has about four times as many books while Reborah Cook Sayles library in Pawtucket is third in Rhode Island with 41,631. Mr. Wood has not announced his plans for the future but will remain in Westerly for some time.

Sunday afternoon and evening Miss H. Louise Ayres of Westerly entertained the members of the S. D. B. society of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day church at her summer cottag at Weekapaug. A basket lunch and social time was enjoyed.

Members of P. S. Barber Fire company, of Pawcatuck, held their annual bake and outing Sunday at the Daisy farm on the North Stonington road. Baseball besides other games furnished the entertainment which preceded the feast.

The outing was marred by an accident which befel two of the baseball players, Francis J. McMahon, the West Side patrolman, was playing third base and in endeavoring to field a foul ball he collided with his nephew, Francis McMahon. Officer McMahon sustained a bad cut just above his left eye while his nephew, besides being knocked out for a time, got a bad cut on the forehead and a wrenched knee. The injured men were taken to Dr. Michael H. Scanlon who found it necessary to take three stitches to close the cuts on each man. The accident happening at about 3 o'clock stopped the ball game and shadowed the remainder of the day's outing.

Antonio Italiano, 17 Downer street, Pawcatuck, was operating his brand new Hudson touring car, O-2538 Conn., F. S. 10.106, with a number of passengers up Liberty street about 9 o'clock Sunday afternoon. When opposite the store of M. J. Shea, either by sideswiping a passing car or in some way the control was lost with the result that the car crossing the junction of Noyes avenue and Liberty street crashed into the fence on the corner of the property of James Crowley, 43 Liberty street. A stone post was knocked down, the fence rail and pickets brushed aside as the touring car continued across the front lawn and stopped only when it struck the front door of the house, ripping off two clapboards on the house. No one was injured and there was no one in the path of the auto which had the radiator stove in, the windshield broken and the frame twisted. Supernumerary Patrolman Adin B. Sheldon who was doing traffic duty at the corner of West Broad and Liberty streets, made an investigation. State Policeman Stanton of the Groton barracks was present as was Night Patrolman Charles Conners. The automobile was backed out under its own power and proceeded when assurances were made that damages would be paid. This is the third automobile accident that has happened at this place.

Police Officer Michael Curtin received a call about 5 o'clock Sunday morning that there were two boys on a westbound freight train. The officer went to the Westerly railroad station and had the exceptionally long freight train stopped. Conductor A. Dauron, 18 Pine street, Taunton, Mass., of train No. 1 turned over to the Westerly officer Henry B. Luke, 16, of 26 Blundell street, Providence, and Henry Boutin, 17, of 300 Public street, Providence. The boys who said that they without funds and on their way to New York to ship on some boat were taken by Officer Curtin to the detention room of the Westerly police station. At the Westerly station the boys were given a hearty breakfast and were released Sunday evening to return to their homes in Providence.

Late Friday night Robert M. Carr, who resides on Beach street, was aroused by the restlessness and the growling of a puppy in his home. Going to a window of the second story of the house above the front porch he could see a man, who appeared to be a negro on the front porch with a flash light apparently trying to gain admittance. At this time a neighbor's dog came around the house and the midnight visitor fled across the lawn of an adjoining house. Saturday night a jitney man who happened to pass the house at a late hour reported to Mr. Carr that he saw a man standing on the front lawn with a pocket flash light.

Senator James Graham of Norwich, R. F. D. No. 4, has reported to Traffic Officer George Madison that he has been visiting Watch Hill for the past thirty years and that he is surprised to find that he is unable to visit the top of Watch Hill, so-called, as it has been fenced around with wire and a No Trespass sign prevented one from visiting that sightly lookout on the East beach near the Watch Hill coast guard station. He stated that he would gladly donate $200 towards a fund to purchase the site and to convert it into a public park, that the general public might at all times have access to this elevated point. For the past quarter of a century the location has been one to which Watch Hill visitors were conducted, and many have beheld their first view of the Atlantic ocean from this spot.

Not entirely unexpected was the death of Col. Eugene B. Pendleton of Westerly, which occurred Thursday night at Stamford Hall, Stamford, Conn., where he had been for nearly three weeks. Mr. Pendleton five weeks ago contracted a severe cold. From that time on he commenced to grow weaker until the end came.

He was the son of Enoch B. and Mary E. Chapman Pendleton, born in Westerly June 18, 1849, and was educated in the public and private schools of the town. He was graduated from a commercial school in Providence and in 1866 entered the postoffice as clerk. In 1872 he was appointed assistant postmaster. In 1875 Mr. Pendleton was made postmaster of Westerly and held the appointment until April 1, 1887. During this period many valuable innovations were made, a delivery system projected and under his successor introduced, and the office so conducted as to win for its incumbent the approval of the public.

Mr. Pendleton was a trustee of the Niantic Savings bank and was one of the originators of the Westerly Business Men's association, the prosperity of which he did much to advance. He was a member of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F and A. M., Palmer chapter, No. 28, R. A. M., and sentinel for a number of years in Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, and Westerly Masonic club, a member of Franklin lodge 54 years, Palmer chapter 49 years and Narragansett commandery 49 years. The last 24 years he was marshal of Franklin lodge.

In 1866 he joined the Westerly Rifles. When the outfit was divided into two companies Mr. Pendleton was made captain of Company B, in 1884.

During the World war, when the call went out for men to enlist in the state guard for home defense, Mr. Pendleton was one of the first to volunteer his services, becoming a member of the Fourth company, R. I. S. G., and upon his 70th birthday was a sergeant in that organization.

It was largely through his instrumentality that state appropriation was obtained in 1877 by which the armory of the Westerly Rifles was remodeled and enlarged. In 1888 he was appointed aide-de-camp on the staff of Governor Taft.

In 1866 Mr. Pendleton joined the First Baptist church of Westerly and was a regular attendant upon the services of Calvary Baptist church, of which he served as secretary and treasurer of its Sunday school as well as church treasurer.

Mr. Pendleton was appointed town moderator in 1907, which position he held up to the time of his death. He was also appointed moderator of the Westerly Fire district and had held that office for seventeen years. At the time the town was divided into two representative districts Mr. Pendleton was elected from the First district and held the office continuously. He was a master in chancery and notary in Westerly for many years.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. B D. Hahn and Miss Ellen F. Pendleton, president of Wellesley college, and three brothers, Capt. Edwin Pendleton, U. S. A., retired, of Washington, D. C., Charles H. Pendleton, postoffice inspector, with whom he had made his home for several years, and James M. Pendleton, town treasurer.

The funeral service of Mrs. Marshall Taylor was held Thursday afternoon at the home of her niece, Mrs. Elisha Burdick, on School street. Rev C. A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church, officiated.

Burial was in the Watrous family plot at River Bend cemetery. The bearers were Everett B. Watrous, Elisha C. Burdick, William H. Noyes, John C. Loughhead, Edward Congdon and Albert F. Crandall.

The job was bid in on a yardage basis and the contract price is approximately $50,875. The New Haven Road Construction company was the successful bidder and the work will be under the direction of Mr. Lawton, who had charge of building the road from Staffordville to Wales. "SOULS" OF ANIMALS

M. Bouquet, a member of the staff of the Paris Museum of Natural History, is the author of an interesting article, recently published in the Paris Revue d'Historie Naturelle Appliquee, on the treatment of animals in medieval times. At that time animals were supposed to have souls and a knowledge of good and evil, so were often brought into court for their misdeeds and tried, or duels were arranged between them and human beings. A story is told of a handsome dog whose master had been found murdered in the forest. The dog insisted upon fiercely attacking a certain man whenever he met him, so that the latter was suspected of having committed the murder and sentenced to a duel with the dog. A club was named as the man's weapon and the dog was allowed a kennel to take refuge in. The dog won.

HOW FORT RACHEL, MYSTIC CAME TO GET ITS NAME

In a copy of The Mystic Pioneer, published June 11, 1859, appears the following interesting article written by the late Rev. Frederic Denison, a brother of the late Isaac Denison of this place, and an historian of that time, in regard to the building and name of Fort Rachel, one of the historic spots of the village. "Previously to the war of 1812, there was no fortress whatever on the banks of the Mystic river. In fact, until that time there was no considerable village demanding one. On the breaking out of the last war especially during the blockade of the coast by Commodore Hardy when the English barges were continually plotting against Mystic, and had even stripped one vessel and burned her near Pine Hill, a fort became indispensable. And as the Federal government had neither time nor the disposition to erect one, the citizens ever ready to meet the largest demand of duty took the work in hand themselves. One of the hills on the west bank of the river south of the village was small in diameter, of good elevation and precipitous on three sides, the east, south and west; on the north it sloped gradually to the village. This eminence is in fact a natural rampart of rock with an area at the top of about seventy-five feet diameter. On this height the citizens of Mystic centered their labors of common defense. Walls of stone were constructed to bring up all sides to a level and to furnish a bulwark, enclosing an area about sixty feet diameter. The surface of the rock within the walls was floored with earth. The walls were topped and rounded with heavy sods of sedge and marsh grass resembling at a distance a wall of huge bricks or blocks of red sand stone. The whole was suitably furnished and ornamented with greensward. For an extemporaneous piece of engineering and military architecture wrought by voluntary effort it was really highly creditable. The fort was built in 1813. Sailors, farmers, merchants, mechanics, men and boys—all the citizens—readily toiled in the patriotic task. The labor occupied less than a month.

Immediately the fortress was furnished with a four pounder that could readily sink barges as far away as Mason's Island, and could sufficiently annoy them at Sixpenny Island and the Riding Way. Sentinels occupied the fort during the continuance of the blockade. For nearly a month in the winter of 1814 a regularly organized guard of fifteen men, having their headquarters in the house belonging to Jonathon Miner, and later occupied by Abel Eldredge, held the fort and guarded the village.

This guard consisted so far as we have learned the names of the following persons: Elam Packer, Eldredge Wolfe, Peter Rowland, John Burrows, Joseph Fitch, James Sawyer, Oliver Dewey and John Fish. During the services of these guards no incident of battle transpired, and no event worthy of record unless it be the unfortunate burning of the guard-house, which occasioned more smoke and mirth than lamentations. Near the fort lived "Aunt Rachel," for which all called her, who was greatly favored with the gift of speech. She was social and communicative, and could be grave or gay, philosophic or patriotic, according to the exigencies of the times. Moreover she was an adept in the choice and use of potent herbs, in the exposition of current superstitions and such like practical affairs. The fortunes of young men and maidens alike with the councils of our country, were detected and revealed by her horoscope. Aunt Rachel was born under a benignant star. She dwelt beneath the hill when the fort was in process of erection and so fell on a historic period. The weary workmen on the fort often descended the hill to imbibe from the bubbling spring near Aunt Rachel's door refreshing draughts with animating drops commingled.

As in duty bound, they generally extended the hospitable cup always welcome to heart and lips as adding inspiration to the oracular gift—and in return they imbibed new lessons of wisdom and gathered new incentives to their patriotic task. And as a friendly recompense for the edification and cheer received, the patriots, jocosely at first, but effectually and irrevocably at last, perpetuated their regard for the generous gifts and graces of their Delphic priestess, by giving to their fortification the name of Fort Rachel."

Flitation is like a piece of chewing gum—the longer you keep at it the less satisfaction you derive from it.

BROADWAY THEATRE

The Bedroom Window, a William de Mille Paramount production, featuring May McAvoy, Malcolm MacGregor, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Edeson, George Fawcett and Ethel Wales, was shown for the first time in Norwich at the Broadway theater yesterday and will continue through Wednesday.

The story, an original for the screen by Clara Beranger, is a comedy-mystery even better than Grumpy. It opens with the murder of a wealthy New York banker. The victim's sister-in-law, a writer of hair-raising thrillers, comes up from Greenwich Village bent on solving the mystery for herself, and she greatly resents the entrance of the family lawyer into the case.

Who is the guilty one in this production? Of course, having seen the picture, we know, but the management has asked his patrons not to reveal the secret to others. It wouldn't be fair. So you'll just have to wait until you see The Bedroom Window for the answer. Needless to say, it's the best thing either director or author have brought to the screen.

Charles Ogle, Medea Radzina, Guy Oliver, Lillian Leighton, George Calliga and many others play in the strong supporting cast of the production.

Larry Semon furnishes a riot of laughter in his new comedy The Midnight Cabaret.

A new Kinograms completes a perfect program.

PALACE THEATRE

Broadway After Dark, the attraction at the Palace theatre, is said to be a midnight drama of New York, replete with all the glamorous escapades which stir the imagination and which cause hundreds of thousands annually to exchange their home towns for the glitter and gayety of Broadway. It will begin its run next Monday and continue throughout the week.

The wickedness, the sham, the fascinations and disillusionments of this iron-souled town are incorporated in this screen version of the Owen Davis melodrama, a Warner Brothers' Classic of the Screen. The direction is by Monta Bell, who was associated with Charles Chaplin in the making of the latter's important picture.

A cast of stellar proportions interprets the Broadway types. They consist of such well-known names as Adolphe Menjou, Norma Shearer, Anna Q. Nilsson, Edward Burns, Carmel Myers, Vera Lewis, Willard Louis, Mervyn LeRoy, Jimmy Quinn, and many others equally brilliant.

Added attractions, Our Gang, comedy One Terrible Day, latest Pathe news and famous Palace orchestra. Wanted for Thursday, Friday and Saturday 50 young men and 50 young women to act in moving pictures to be produced on the stage, get into the movies, apply at the box office now.

AT THE BREED

Amid gales of laughter, the William Fox screen version of William Anthony McGuire's stage hit, Six Cylinder Love, with Ernest Truex in the role he created on Broadway and the road for two years, was shown to a large and appreciative audience at the Breed theatre last night. Here, this comedy-drama of a young married cople will reel along for a three day run.

Elmer Clifton, he who gave us that sea classic, Down To The Sea In Ships, is the director. Here is a director with a keen eye to detail and to artful characterizations. The settings are tasteful and the cast is splendid. Opposite Mr. Truex is Florence Eldridge. Though this is her first screen appearance, she deports herself like a "camera veteran." Many players in the original stage version are also in the picture, including Donald Meek, Ralph Sipperly, and Berton Churchill. Others in the cast are Marjorie Milton, Maud Hill, Ann McKittrick, Grace Gordon, Harold Mann, Frank Tweed and Thomas Mitchell.

Briefly, the story has to do with the young Sterlings (Ernest Truex and Florence Eldridge) whose married life is nearly wrecked through their buying an automobile and becoming "permanent hosts" to three Spongers. How Mrs. Sterling discards these luxuries to help her husband redeem himself in his employer's eyes by living in a flat goes to make Six Cylinder Love a delightful source of amusement as well dramatic in its scope.

When a man gets in a hole he is always willing to be done by as he should do.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

About all the communities hereabouts were represented at the garden party given Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Norman White's Sugar Broke farm, a short distance west of Central Village.

Mr. White, a resident of Boston, opened his splendid estate for the party for the benefit of the Congregational church at Central Village and many were the devices and forms of entertainment that helped make the affair such a success financially and such a delight to all who attended.

Pony riding, canoeing on one of the logaons at the estate, bathing in a big swimming pool, dancing and motion pictures were among the diversions. Many found delight in strolling about the grounds, inspecting the flock of turkeys, of wild geese, the ducks and other attractions.

Hundreds of electric light bulbs and Japanese lanterns were used in the decoration of the grounds. A diving exhibition Saturday evening was one of the events that interested the large number present.

An alarm from Box 45 called out the fire department shortly before Saturday noon to subdue a blaze that broke out in a dump on upper Mechanic street. Though the fire resulted in little damage, it stirred up a lot of rushing about and there was the usual dangerous stunt of racing automobiles to the vicinity of the fire. This practice has been condemned, but persists. A suggestion heard Saturday that, no other effective means being found to stop the practice, was that drivers of cars such as cause complaint may be brought into court, either on a reckless driving charge, or violation of the law pertaining to the speed at which a motor vehicle may be operated.

Sergeant Field and Officer Keith from the Danielson barracks of the state police were at Woodstock Sunday, working on a case that involved a search for a man who entered a home in that town during Saturday night and attempted to chloroform a 14 year old girl. The unusual bit of crime created community revulsion against the perpetrator.

In connection with the project of erecting a new parochial school building of St James' parish on Franklin street the convent of the Sistres of St. Joseph on the church property will be moved to another location that the site of the proposed school be cleared.

The wear and tear on roads of the town because of lack of rain is said to be materially greater than would be the case were the highways wet down by showers occasionally. Motor traffic helps cut up these dirt roads and riding over them today means riding in a cloud of dust.

Dr. George M. Burroughs, who is at Eastern Point with his family, spent Saturday in Danielson.

Railroad men from this section were at Red Top Sunday to attend an outing arranged by the New London Division Athletic association.

The 100th anniversay of the founding fo the North Foster Baptist church will be observed Wednesday of this week. There will be service at 11 a. m. and in the afternoon. Rev. Searles B Young has prepared and will read a history of the church, which is located just a few miles over the border of Rhode Island from East Killingly. Several former pastors of the church will be in attendance. There will be a program of musical exercises during the day.

The North Foster church is an outlying section of the country hereabouts, but has attracted attendants to service through all the hundred years of its existence, and many people of this vicinity are familiar with it and have worshipped there.

Rev. Raymond Veigard, M. S., ordained in Switzerland some time since, is en route to the United States and will come to Danielson, his parental home and where he began the early studies that eventually led to his rodination.

Charles Bragg of Central Village left Saturday night for a visit with Mrs. Bragg, who has been spending several weeks at York Beach, Me.

Shortage of rain all through this territory has created a condition that is really serious for growing crops. Unless relief comes soon—and a copious amount of rain is needed—serious losses will be sustained.

The conference of religious education that has been conducted at Northfield for some time past is continuing throug the present week and will end on Saturday. Several from Danielson are in attendance

Owners of woodland are making a special appeal that outing and camping parties use particular care against setting a fire. Immense damage is likely to be caused at this particular time should such a fire get out of control.

In accordance with a schedule established in the earlier part of the season, the Quinebaug mill will be closed during the present week. Numbers of operatives in the plant have planned their vacations for this time.

Rev. H. H. Proctor, D. D., will speak at a service to be held in the Congregational church here Thursday evening of this week. Dr. Proctor, one of the foremost colored preachers of the United States, will come here from Brooklyn, N. Y. His subject will be The Meaning of the Negro Migration

Next Sunday, in following out a prearranged schedule of summer services, union morning services and vesper services are to be held at the Westfield Congregational church.

As a change from the regular summer schedule of low masses the last mass of the day at St. James' church on Sunday was a high mass, in observance of the feast of St. James, which this year come on Friday of last week.

It was observed Sunday that motor traffic had fallen off materially from the volume that customarily moves through this section on such days at this time of the year.

A. L. James and daughter Katherine of Gardena, Cal., will leave today for a three days' visit in Providence and Newport.

Henry B. Marsden of Pawtucket visited friends in Danielson over Sunday.

Danielson's general health situation continues very satisfactory, with only a small group remaining in quarantine.

Rev. H. H. Conklin preached at the union vesper service at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon.

When the registrars meet for the work of making an enrollment of the voters of Killingly they will meet by districts—in Danielson, in Dayrville and at East Killingly.

There is a considerable summer colony just now a Lake Chabaumaug, familiarly known as Old Killingly pond, where a number of cottages have been erected during the past few years.

Alphege Brouillard, who was overcome by the heat about a week ago, after participating in one baseball game and being an onlooker at another one, was reported a very much improved Sunday. The boy was unconscious for two or three days.

PUTNAM

The three members of Camp Utopia, arrested two weeks ago for disregarding the order of the state commissioner of health, forbidding bathing in Roseland Lake, Woodstock, or its tributaries, it being the source of the city of Putnam's water supply, are to appear before Justice of the Peace Charles M. Perrin, at North Woodstock, at 10 o'clock this (Monday) morning.

Since the three arrests were made there has been nothing heard concerning the possible outcome of the arrests. Grand Juror S. Howard Peckham, who signed the complaints, stated Saturday afternoon that the cases would come to trial as far as he had heard or been advised. When asked if he anticipated a contest in the justice court he stated that he did not know, that he had heard nothing further regarding the cases but they were down for trial Monday and he supposed they would be tried at that time.

When the order to stop bathing in Roseland Lake was first issued, statements were made that the legality of the order would be tested out in the courts and that eminent counsel in this state and New York had been retained for this purpose. Whether the contest will begin with the hearing this (Monday) morning is not known. As far as could be learned Sunday no Putnam lawyer will have any part in the defence of the Utopians.

The Day Kimball hospital ambulance passing through Main street shortly before 5 o'clock Saturday evening attracted attention and people thought there had been an accident. The ambulance was called to the home of Dr. E. R. Pike, East Woodstock, to get a patient and to remove her to the hospital.

A woman had an attack of faintness on Main street Saturday afternoon in front of the Congregational church. A large crowd quickly gathered. She was assisted to a drug store across the street where, after a rest, she was able to leave for her home.

The building will be a two-room school with all modern conveniences constructed of brick. The location is north of the old schoolhouse on the opposite side of the road, about half way between the old building and West Thompson trolley station.

Herbert Davis Keith, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Keith, of School street, died Saturday at the home of relatives in Eastford where he went some weeks ago on account of failing health. Besides his parents he leaves a younger brother.

The young man was a pupil in the Putnam high school and had not failing health overtaken him, he would have been graduated with the class of 1924 last June.

He was born in Eastford, the son of Edward and Mary E. Bowen Keith. The family moved about two years ago to Putnam where Mr. Keith was employed. The boy developed heart trouble and it became so acute that he had to leave school and was sent back into the country in the hopes that the change would be beneficial to him.

Henry Labonte, injured when his motorcycle was in collision with an automobile at the turn just west of the Windham County Temporary Home, a week ago Sunday morning, is in a serious condition at his home on Providence street and it is feared it may be necessary to amputate his leg. The leg, from which a large piece of flesh was gouged, is giving a great deal of trouble and concern.

Mrs. Freeman of Boston, sister of the late John G. Johnson of Putnam, while visiting at the home of Mrs. H. L. Burt, tripped and fell while walking across the room, Saturday morning, fracturing her right hip. Mrs. Freeman was on her way home from a visit with her sister, Mrs. Douglas Fenwick, in New York, and was stopping over a few days with her friends in Putnam. When she fell Dr. Bullard was summoned to attend her. Dr. Bullard summoned Dr. S. B. Overlock in consultation and Mrs. Freeman was ordered to the hospital where she was taken by Mrs. E. H. Burt in her automobile. An X-ray picture revealed the fractured hip.

Through an investigation conducted by Captain William Jarvis, of the Putnam police a flock of crows in the southern outskirts of the city has been exonerated. For a number of days a resident of that section had been finding his growing corn pulled up by the roots. When the potato vines began to share the same fate the man complained to the police.

Captain Jarvis did not work long on the case before having before him a number of small boys 11 to 12 years of age. Nor were the lads long before the captain before they admitted to him that they and not the crows were responsible for the depredation in the farmer's field. Why they did it they said they didn't know. What the captain said to them he does not say, but is confident that those youngsters will not do so again.

REV. B. M. DONNELLY HONORED ON SILVER ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, July 27.—Sunday was the silver anniversary of the priesthood of the Rev. Bernard M. Donnelly, for fourteen years pastor of St. Joseph's church, North Grosvenordale. The name of the beloved priest was on the lips of every citizen of Thompson during the day in words of veneration and praise. Regardless of creed or nationality, the citizens of the town were a unit behind a man who, as the leader of a parish that has greatly expanded during his pastorate, has been such an important factor in the spiritual and moral wellbeing of the village and town during his fourteen years' ministration. The whole town united Sunday in a fitting observance and a loving tribute to the priest and the man whom they have come to esteem so highly.

The observance of Fr. Donnelly's silver jubilee was formally begun at the 10 o'clock mass at St. Joseph's church. The church was crowded to the doors. Rev. Father William A. Keefe of Greeneville delivered the sermon in English and eulogized Fr. Donnelly's work in a manner emphasized by heartfelt sincerity. Again were words of commendation and approbation listened to by the large congregation as Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault of Occum paid tribute to the pastor in the French language. Members of all parish societies attended the mass in a body and there was special music by the choir.

In the evening there was a service of jubilation on the grounds of St. Joseph's school. This was attended by nearly every person in the village, by many visiting priests and by people from nearby cities and towns. There was music by the Canadian band in addition to vocal selections, declamations and short addresses.

Father Bernard M. Donnelly was ordained to the priesthood 25 years ago and fourteen years ago succeeded Rev. Thomas H. Cooney (27 years pastor) as pastor of St. Joseph's. Fr. Donnelly has been an indefatigable worker in advancing the material as well as the spiritual interests of his parish. During his pastorate the present St. Joseph's church was built, in 1910; also the rectory and the parochial school buildings, all modern in construction and equipment.

Fr. Donnelly has taken an interest in the affairs of the town and has been behind every movement for his betterment. His advice has often been sought by his fellow townsmen in matters of public concern and he was greatly interested and actively engaged in matters pertaining to the location and dedication of the beautiful Tourtellotte Memorial high school.

Fr. Donnelly radiates love of humanity. He is especially fond of young people and they feel him to be their friend and advisor, as well as their spiritual leader. He is untiring in his ministrations to the sick, suffering and needy of his parish and his is an inestimable influence for the uplift of the village of North Grosvenordale and for the whole town of Thompson in which the village is situated. The evidence of love, respect and esteem of the populace, as manifested by the united participation in the observance of his silver jubilee, must have in grateful measure compensated the able and modest priest for his zealous labors of the past 14 years.

Maria Edgeworth is regarded as the inventor of the novel with a purpose, of which kind Castle Rackrent, which sent her name into immediate fame in 1800, is a typical example. Her success with her Irish novel had much to do with turning of Sir Walter Scott to the writing of prose fiction.

THE AIRSHIP.

Before long the United States expects to bring to this country an airship that is being built in Germany for the United States government, and Americans are now at the factory in Germany to become acquainted with the operation and maintenance of the huge dirigible. Navigation of airships over such long distances as this one will have to negotiate to reach this country has not reached such a certainty that it will be sure to reach here after it has started.

Public interest in dirigibles has recently been aroused by a spirited debate in the London Saturday Review in which one expert maintains that there is a place, military and commercial, for the dirigible, while the other contends that the development of the dirigible has merely proved that the airplane is the air craft of the future. The American army and navy have reason to conclude that the dirigible lacks a good many qualities which give a successful air craft value. In the military field, its advantages in night flying and in hovering are more than offset by its inability to maneuver against an airplane and by its extraordinary possibilities as a target. Commercially too there appears to be but a limited field of usefulness for the airship. Since Zeppelin attached his name to these great creatures of the air ten years ago, intensive experimenting has done little of great moment to bring them beyond the stage where he left them. At the same time remarkable strides have been made in the development of the airplane. There may be some justification for spending government money for more airships on the ground that Americans cannot afford to be out of touch with this branch of air navigation, but aside from this, most of the money used in this way seems to be wasted, and at a time when the country should be giving serious attention to airplane development.

A STICKING POINT.

A preliminary essential for Japan to sign an agreement with Russia will be for the soviets to recognize all the debts that have been contracted in the name of Russian governments, czarist, socialist or bolshevist. Japan will insist that there shall be no repudiation.

This is the usual sticking place of all the negotiations between Moscow and the other capitals. The payment of debts is the thing that the soviets most desire to avoid, probably more because they have boasted about repudiation than for any other reason. If negotiators had been willing to admit that Russia could wipe out her debts as with a sponge and still maintain friendly relations with other nations, settlements might have been made long ago in several instances.

Assurances are issued by Japanese statesmen that an agreement with Russia will be completed soon. But it is not so certain that all obstacles have been removed and this matter of recognition of debt may well defeat the negotiations. Russians are intent upon saving their faces in this debt matter, having made a celebration of repudiation, and they cannot yield now without losing a certain amount of prestige with their adoring followers.

STEEL STATUS CHANGED.

The outstanding event in connection with American industry in the week that has just closed was the announcement of the federal trade commission directing the United States Steel corporation to abandon that price fixing policy known as "Pittsburgh plus." Under this method of determining the price paid by purchasers of rolled steel products there was first the actual price of the product plus the cost of freight from Pittsburgh whether the steel was produced there or at a plant of the steel corporation much nearer the point of delivery. All steel, wherever manufactured, paid freight charges as if it were shipped from Pittsburgh. It is to be admitted that the Pittsburgh plus plan runs counter to the American idea of a square deal. It is widely regarded as transforming for the benefit of the steel makers mythical freight charges into actual hard cash, which in the aggregate runs into the millions of dollars. The federal commission declares that it retards progress in all steel centers except Pittsburgh, adds $30,000,000 to the prices of steel purchased by farmers in eleven western states and increases prices generally.

If forecasts are borne out there promises to be, with the end of Pittsburgh-plus, a general stimulation in the middle west of steel manufacture and fabrication. With products sold at a base price fixed in Pittsburgh, with freight charges from there included regardless of where the commodities were made, that city dominated the market. If it continues to do so it will be on a basis of lower costs in production and not on an artificial advantage that was conferred by Pittsburgh-plus. Special privilege, once grafted on an industry, is hard to remove. If the trade commission decision on Pittsburgh-plus is accepted or sustained in case there is legal action, there promises to be substantial benefit to consumers, and even to the steel business, through increased consumption at lower prices.

Industry and the general public are often submissive to such impositions as Pittsburgh-plus. It required a vigorous campaign of education to arouse people to its drawbacks. Steel is a highly protected commodity, yet it has been asserted by those in close touch with the industry that such protection is not needed. American mills have for years successfully met competition in foreign markets, which is a point that furnishes food for reflection.

THE SUMMER HAZARD.

More than ever since the advent of the automobile are we brought to the realization that summer is a hazardous time of the year along with the pleasures it brings. Each Monday morning one picks up the paper and reads the Sunday toll of life. So many people have been killed in motor accidents; so many have been drowned. It seems as if with the constant harping on one subject, precaution, some results ought to come, and as if this unfortunate record ought not to be a necessary accompaniment of the summer season.

Summer days see the roads crowded with automobiles. Everyone wants to get as far as he can from the hot city streets. Everyone wants to see the country, the sea, the mountains. Most motorists are willing to observe the speed laws, to drive with care. Others are not. Their time is too valuable—they must speed. They are such good drivers that nothing could ever happen to them! They have no feeling for the majority of those on the road. They forget that others are not as good drivers as they imagine themselves to be.

Summer days see the ponds, the lakes, the sea and the rivers crowded with pleasure seekers. And among those bent on recreation; there is a great number who do not know how to swim, how to handle a boat or a canoe, how to do any of those things that they should know when they venture upon the water. We read daily of their catastrophes. If only they were the sufferers! But for almost every man, woman or child who drowns, there is a man, woman or child who tries to save the endangered one. And the total number of persons who have drowned while attempting to save others from a similar fate probably reaches to the hundred thousands.

The two classes who contribute so largely to the roll of those who die the "summer death" are really one. They are the law breakers. There are man-made laws against speeding and driving automobiles at the risk of the public safety; there are natural laws against boating when one knows nothing about it. The class, and it is a large one, is a product of the apparent lack of willingness in this country to observe law of any kind. Some of the offenders pay, but, as often as not, it is the innocent bystander who is the victim of their lawlessness.

TYPES OF DRIVERS.

In all sports there is one correct way of performing. This correct way is known as "form." Not to perform in form is almost the same as not performing at all, according to the sticklers. Once in a while some phenomenon comes along who knows no form and beats all his competitors. There is no set form, however, for position at an automobile wheel. Positions and actions vary, in fact, almost as much as do the different makes of cars. There is the precise driver who sits behind the wheel like a soldier at attention. His back has no acquaintance with the back of the seat. His arms are held rigidly to his side, not rested in the car window. He looks neither to the right nor the left. Such a driver, as a rule, will not be arrested for exceeding the speed limit.

His exact opposite is the young chap who sits behind the wheel on the small of his back. He drives with a nonchalance to fit his position. He would be considered as entirely without the pale of proper drivers by the man who sits rigidly erect. The wonder is that he sees anything ahead of him at all. He is likely to drive fast and recklessly.

A third type is the man who sits neither as erect as a ramrod nor as sprawled out as a porch swing. He leans against the back of the seat. His left arm hangs easily over the window sill at his side. The casual observer looks at him as he breezes by and wonders how he gets a block without an accident. He gazes about in all directions. He points out interesting spots to his passengers as he moves along. He lets his gaze travel. He will reach into a pocket as he drives, extract a cigarette and a match and light up, his eyes apparently engrossed in that job rather than on the road ahead. He gives the person not used to riding with him several scares in a short ride.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To sweeten any kind of frying fat, cook fresh sliced potatoes in it until they are done. The fat will become sweet, no matter how rancid it was.

Milk will scorch less easily and the pan is more quickly cleaned afterward if it is rinsed with cold water before the milk is heated.

To clean dried currants, sprinkle the fruit with flour, put into a colander and rub the currants vigorously. This separates the stems and they will come through the holes in the colander.

Hams that have been cut and put away often mold. To prevent this spread lard over the lean part and put away as usual. When you want to cut another slice you will find the meat fresh and free from mold.

Save all the jelly from the bottom of the glass that no longer tempts the appetite. Put all these little bits together in a saucepan with a small amount of water and melt. Mold the jelly in a jelly-glass and it will be as appetizing as fresh jelly.

One-third more juice can be extracted from lemons if they are put in a hot oven of a stove for two or three minutes or submerged in hot water before using them.

So often in cutting cheese especially rich cheese, it sticks to the knife-blade and spoils a nice slice. To prevent this, put the knife-blade in boiling water just before cutting, and the slices can then be cut as thick or thin as desired and not crumble or break.

To poach eggs successfully, grease the pan, have the water boiling, stir vigorously and drop egg into the middle of the swirl. Eggs never separate when prepared this way.

To prepare baked apples, take out the cores with an apple-corer and fill the cavities with peanut butter, sugar and bake. When done place a marshmallow on top of each apple and return to the oven and brown slowly.

BATHROOM IN COLOR

Tile is the ideal thing for the bathroom, but where it cannot be considered on account of expense, paint makes an excellent substitute.

A bathroom, with cream flat wall paint, the white of the ceiling extending down the walls from six inches to two feet (depending on the height of the room) is very attractive. The solid color should be relieved by a simple stencil border, blue being a good selection. This painted wall may be washed without losing its freshness and is durable.

With white enameled woodwork and floor painted a dark color the room will catch and reflect every ray of light, and with a small amount of effort may be kept bright and spotless. A light bathroom is essential.

The blue border note may be repeated on the rubber curtain around the shower. A blue panel painted on the door would be effective. Blue curtains and a rug, a spotless mirror, shining nickel trim and red and blue bordered towels complete the scheme.

FOR CELLAR CEILING

If you will cover the beams with wall board and then apply two coats of battleship gray paint—or a lighter tone if you prefer—dust from ashes, coal and cement floor will not sift into the upper rooms. If cellar floor and walls are painted, dust will be further prevented and lighting improved. Outline corners in white. Germs and vermin do not find the painted cellar attractive.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

If children will not drink milk disguise it by adding a little strawberry juice.

For washing baby's bottles or in fact any bottles nothing can excel soda and water. Be generous with the soda and the bottles or decanters will sparkle. Soda cuts the grease and makes the cleansing of glassware easy.

If you are annoyed at night by the ticking of a watch silence it by placing over it an inverted glass tumbler. This is particularly good in the case of an invalid, for the time can be seen clearly through the glass, but the annoying sound is eliminated.

When the skin shows a tendency to develop heat rash or prickly heat, apply witch hazel. Let it dry and powder liberally with pure talcum powder. If the skin is oily, a lotion made of two parts of rose water to one part of lemon juice will be found effective in preventing such skin irritations.

MOTH PREVENTION

All trunks, boxes and chests used to hold winter wraps and draperies should be lined with newspapers.

Nothing should be stored away unless it is absolutely clean and free from spots and soil. No amount of camphor or newspaper can keep moths out of soiled garments.

The tar bags that can be bought so reasonably now are splendid for particular clothing. There is a hanger inside to hold the garment and keep it in shape while in it safe summer home.

MODISH FOR SUMMER

Organdies' place in the summer's modes is not to be ignored, for no longer is it reserved for the very young person, but it takes its place among the materials considered for occasions of more or less formality. Now that organdie has been subjected to processes that give it a permanent finish its possibilities are increased and nothing could be more exquisite and flowerlike than the colors. Hand-embroidered organdie fashions some of the loveliest of the summer frocks and is often combined with net or real laces. Pale pink, delicate mauve, peach color and a faint misty blue are shades chosen for frocks which in not a few instances are given character by the touch of silver lace.

WHEN NEWLY PAINTED

To prevent windows sticking the thing to remember is that for two or three days after the frames are painted each window should be opened and run up and down two or three times a day. Unless this is done the windows are almost certain to stick.

WEAVE OF NEW FABRICS

Practically all of the new fabrics are tightly woven and closely shorn with a natural bloom that reflects the unusually fine yarn used and a touch markedly similar to that of soft fawn and kid skins. A large percentage of them is made of cashmere, the rest being of selected merino wool.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Many heavy dull black silk coats and hats are seen.

A few navy or red and white polka dotted scarfs have been seen.

Gray stockings and very sheer black ones are being chosen in preference to nude colorings.

Silver and pointed fox scarfs with the tailored suit is the latest style verdict.

Purple and cerise satin with gold embroidery is used for the straight-line evening dress worn with a cerise and gold evening wrap, and purple satin slippers.

Red leather under-the-arm bags are being carried.

A great deal of navy is seen around smart restaurants this summer—also hats as well as coats, suits and dresses.

Yellow, so far this season has been restricted to millinery, but a coat of buttercup-colored broadcloth with which a white fox scarf and a pale yellow cloche were worn, is good.

Matrons' coats with allover braided treatments applied on dull silk, either all black or -combining- black and brown are in evidence.

Wide bands of brick-colored duvetyn are used on a three-piece costume of navy blue twill, being attached by means of embroidery and brick-colored paillettes.

A smart cloche worn with a printed frock is a black Milan with a large bouquet of silk poppies posed at one side.

A smart print with a black ground shows a green and white decoration and with this is worn a black straight-line coat colored in white armine. Broadcloth worked into squares on the reverse is used for the entire surface of the wrap.

An unusual trimming for the blue twill coat frock is a huge rosette of clipped wool ends in royal blue which marker the fastening at one side, the same blue being used for the pipings as well.

FORECAST FALL MODES

Long tunics are in the forefront of the new fashions. Smartly dressed women are appearing everywhere in Paris and at the races in the forty-inch tunic. Whether this long over-blouse is elaborated or simply designed for out-of-door wear, it must reach to the knees and below and show long, clinging lines.

The long tunic gives further assurance of the increased length of the coat this fall, for it will be a most important part of the three-piece suit. It will also be worn with the satin skirt or slip and rival the dress in both design and cut.

The wide belt is seen everywhere. No longer is the waistline anchored around the hips, and with the gradual acknowledgment of the normal line has come the three-inch leather belt as one of the surprises and successes of the season. Soft, pliable white kid and suede in brilliant colors and stunning buckles are used to exploit a fashion that has all the charm of an absolute novelty. So frequently is the leather belt seen that there is every indication that it will be an important—almost inevitable—accessory of fall frocks on both sides of the Atlantic.

SMART BATHING SUITS

Colors may come and colors may go, but the black silk bathing suit remains the choice of the fastidious woman. This season there is a wide choice of black suits, either all black or with a touch of white or color. A very smart one seen recently is black satin and boasts the new circular skirt with much flare at the sides. The pockets are of white oilcloth, with a design of black oilcloth stitched upon them. The effect is extremely good.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Never starch linen that is to be stored for a long time, as it is apt to crack. Rinse the articles quite free from starch, dry and fold away, if possible, in blue paper, which keeps them from turning yellow.

Serge dresses can generally be freed of spots by rubbing with a solution of boiling water and ammonia. Keep adding fresh boiling water as you use it. If a serge dress is in good condition, but badly spotted, it is quite worth while to send to a good cleaner, who for a small sum will return it equal to new.

Embroidered muslin dresses should be ironed on the wrong side to raise the pattern. Dotted muslin should also be ironed on the wrong side, unless the dots are rather far apart, when it may look better ironed first on the right side to give the muslin a gloss, and afterward ironed over on the wrong to press out the dots. In ironing colored muslins do not use the iron too hot, as too much heat is apt to destroy the color. The pressure of the iron must be even, and the iron lifted as little as possible. The material must be ironed till perfectly dry, and then aired, or it will become limp. Muslin trimmed with lace should have the lace ironed first and then the muslin itself.

COOLING AND DELICIOUS

For the summer party or dance a frozen punch made according to the following directions is delightfully refreshing: Use 3 cups water, 4 cups sugar, 1 cup lemon juice, 1 small bunch mint, 6 cups tea or ginger ale, 5 cups orange juice.

Boil sugar, water and mint together for five minutes. Cool, add fruit juices, strain and freeze. Have several freezers full of this simple water ice, and serve it at intervals throughout the evening. Serve from a big punch bowl, into sherbet cups. It is no more trouble to serve than punch, except that spoons must be provided. But it is much more cooling than any drink ever is, because eaten slowly.

FRESHENING THE GAS STOVE

If use and age have rendered the gas range unattractive, it may be washed in strong soapy suds. After the burners are cleaned and adjusted, a coat of black paint made for such surfaces may be applied. This dries to a glistening black. Do not forget the back of the stove, for it is as just as liable to rust as any other portion. Hood and ventilating pipe above should be painted.

FRINGE PUT TO NEW USE

It might seem as though all the variations possible had been played upon fringe since its introduction some time ago. But now the newest gowns, invariably adorned with fringe of a surprising length, have this fringe run through the material by hand.

NEW SHADE OF GREEN

A peculiar shade of greenish yellow is seen here and there today. A little felt hat in this shade is strikingly trimmed with cocardes of ostrich tips in apple and violet.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Dove gray is Queen Mary's favorite color in dress.

Queen Marie of Rumania has written and published several novels.

A bill to raise the legal marriage age for girls from 12 to 14 years is to be introduced at the present session of the Louisana Legislature.

Miss Sarah M. Sheridan, vice president of the Detroit Edison Company, fills the most important executive position held by any woman in the electric lighting industry.

The first prize in the American Legion's second annual essay contest was won this year by Miss Sarah H. Heyaham of Norristown, Pa.

Mrs. Grace Amick, only police woman in Spokane, Wash., recently led the entire force in target practice, scoring 47 points out of a possible 50.

The Congregationalists in the United States have 76 women who have been ordained as ministers, of whom 17 are in sole charge of churches.

TO REMOVE RUST

Rust may be removed from knives if they are soaked in kerosene a little while. The oil loosens the rust.

RENOVATE LEATHER

Renovate shabby leather by whipping the white of an egg into a froth and smearing this gently over the surface with a piece of soft linen.

RECIPES

Puffy Omelet: Separate the whites and yolks of four eggs; beat the yolks until thick and light; add one-half teaspoon salt, a few grains of pepper and four tablespoons of hot water; beat the whites of eggs until stiff and dry, then cut and fold them into the beaten yolks until thoroughly blended. (Do not prolong this part of the process, or much of the lightness will be lost.) Melt two tablespoons of butter in a No. 3 iron frying pan, butter the sides well, turn in the mixture and spread evenly. Place on the range over a moderate heat where it will cook until well puffed, then place pan on the middle grate in a moderate oven and finish, cooking on top. The omelet is done if it is firm to the touch when lightly pressed with the tip of the finger. Have ready a hot serving platter. With a sharp knife make two incisions one inch long opposite each other in each side of omelet; take the frying pan in the left hand and with the aid of the spatula turn the side of the omelet nearest the handle of pan toward the opposite side and let the omelet slip on to the platter, folded. Pour around tomato, oyster or cheese sauce. Sprinkle omelet with finely chopped parsley. Serve at luncheon or supper.

Brown Top Pudding: For a pudding hastily put together and one which will use the cake that is not fresh any longer. Brown-Top cannot be improved upon. Make a custard of four eggs, a quart of milk, sugar to taste and flavor. Pour this over the cake which you have sliced and put in the bottom of the baker. The cake will rise to the top. Put in the oven and bake like custard.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Complains of High Rents

Mr. Editor: I see in this morning's paper (Saturday, 26) that Norwich is to have the long anticipated white way. We need it. I think if the money was spent on cheap houses to accommodate the poor families it would do more real good. How can a man with a family of children and small pay live in rents at $30, $25 and $40 or even $25 a month and have proper food.

But I suppose as long as we have that white way that will cover all the other inconveniences of the city.

Taft Waited Many Years

Early in life William Howard Taft chose his goal of endeavor, but not until he had passed the age he set as the limit for one to accept the honor, did he reach it.

Son of a prominent attorney in Cincinnati and descendant of a family of legal leaders, he choose to be a lawyer. He attended Cincinnati schools, then went to Yale, where he was salutatorian of his class, and entered Cincinnati Law school, at graduation dividing the first prize with another.

At 23, studying law in his father's office, he set the United States Supreme Court as his life aim. He became court reporter for Cincinnati newspapers, next was assistant prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county, and then assistant county solicitor.

Tall, heavy set, smiling and obliging, he made friends. He was married at 30. The following year he was chosen judge of the Superior Court of Ohio, then was solicitor general for the United States and afterward United States circuit judge, all steps toward his goal.

When he was sent to the Philippines the climate was hot, the natives were fighting, but he became interested in the Filipinos' problems, and was made civil governor of the islands. Roosevelt twice offered him an appointment to the Supreme Court but Taft felt he could not then leave the Filipinos.

Congress demanded an accounting of his work. He prepared to submit it, was taken ill, underwent an operation, was brought home, and the doctor said he would not survive if he returned, to the Philippines, but he went back and completed his task.

Next he was Secretary of War in Roosevelt's cabinet, then was sent to Cuba and other places on official missions.

Returning home in 1908, he found his boom for President of the United States fully launched. He was 52 when he became president and while in the White House he decided that the maximum age limit for appointees to the Supreme Court should be 60. In 1912 he was defeated for re-election and a year later became Kent professor at Yale.

And in 1921, he at 63, was appointed Chief Justice of the United States.

CHILD TRAINING

THE BREAKFAST
Florence J. Ovens

"You are not going out of this house until you've eaten your breakfast, Leon," said his mother emphatically.

Leon let go of the front door handle, threw down his cap and school book, and went to the dining room, scowling. In about three minutes he was back again. His mother had gone upstairs, but she heard him.

"Leon," she called, "you haven't finished? You can't have eaten anything at all!"

"I've had all I want," was the answer, and the next moment he was gone.

With slight variations this scene had been enacted every morning during my three weeks with the Thornton's. More than a year elapsed before my next visit, but I soon found plenty of evidence that the performance had been continous.

Another nine months passed; again I was with these friends. But a change had taken place. Each morning Leon sat quietly down to breakfast when I did, his mother sitting with us though she had eaten previously. He ate each course in turn slowly with evident enjoyment. I was surprised and so glad that, on the morning I was leaving, I could not refrain from commenting on the transformation. Leon had gone to school and we were just sitting down for a final chat.

"It came about through the Parent-Teacher Association," said my friend, smiling. "If Bob and I both go we have to take Leon. One evening we all went and listened to a particularly clever lecture on Nagging. The next morning while Leon was dressing, he said, 'Mother, the man last night didn't say anything about breakfast, did he?'

"'Breakfast?' I said.

"'Yes — well — that's the only thing you ever nag me about.'

"I was amazed, and for the moment, angry.

"'Do you think that's a very nice way to talk to Mother?' I asked.

"'I didn't know you didn't want to talk about it,' he said, in a perplexed tone.

"'All right,' I said, 'you had better try to eat your breakfast properly every morning so that we shan't have to discuss the subject.'

"But after he had gone to school I thought the matter out. Leon was right, I did nag him about his breakfasts. What was more, they were a source of daily worry to me. I often felt that he was going out without being properly fortified." She paused thoughtfully.

"You know," she continued, "Bob has to leave here before seven, and I like to have my breakfast with him. It hasn't seemed wise to waken Leon so early so of course he has had to eat his breakfast alone. I had not been particular about having his rise at any regular hour and often he had to hurry in order to reach school in season. Usually, by the time he was dressed, some of his schoolmates would be here waiting for him.

"As I thought about it I realized that these conditions were far from being conducive to a quiet, orderly breakfast. I therefore determined to change them, and I did. Leon gets up regularly now at seven o'clock. By half-past seven he is ready for his breakfast, the other children have not yet arrived and he doesn't feel hurried. I can't eat a second meal, but I can and do sit at the table with him. I plan to talk with him, at this time, about things in which he seems particularly interested.

"At first, when I sat down in this way, numberless little duties would suggest themselves to me and it was hard not to get up and be about them, but I have learned to be deaf to most of these calls, and it has paid. Leon eats his first meal of the day properly. He looks better and he is better; he has more self-control and is doing better work in school and I don't have to nag."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

SAO PAULO

Sao Paulo, Brazil, scene of a reported rebel uprising, is the source of the morning aroma from millions of steaming coffee cups all over the world, remarks a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Sao Paulo, the city, is the prosperous and beautiful capital of the richest of Brazil's twenty states. The city has half a million people. The state of Sao Paulo is larger than all New England and Pennsylvania combined. It comprises only one-thirty-second part of Brazil's vast area, but contains one-eighth of the country's population.

"To the visitor it seems as if the state had two major products, coffee and—statistics. Its aggregate acreage of coffee trees exceeds the combined areas of Delaware and Rhode Island. There are more than seven coffee trees in the state for every man, woman and child in the United States. At thirty cents a pound the world pays Sao Paulo about $240,000,000 annually for her 1,125,000,000 pounds of coffee produced. As a specialized wholesale grocery her coffee business is only to be compared with Cuba's sugar crop.

"Geography, religion and romance are strangely blended in Sao Paulo's coffee. Solomon, for all his wisdom, overlooked a potential source of great wealth, for coffee is generally believed to have originated in Abyssinia, where Solomon's descendants reign to this day. It was not introduced into Brazil until 1723.

"A Portuguese sailor was the Captain John Smith of Sao Paulo. He married the South American Pocahontas, daughter of the chieftain Tibirica. That was about 1500. Then came Jesuit missionaries, who are accredited founders of the state, and when they celebrated their first mass on the anniversary of the conversion of St. Paul they named the country for that apostle.

"Curiously enough, coffee rules in Brazil, while two indigenous South American crops, corn and the Irish potato, are mainstays in North America.

"Sao Paulo, the city, is purposefully modern, so much so that some of the social and engineering projects were put into effect there while they were still 'paper programs' in North America.

"For years now when a new schoolhouse is built in Sao Paulo the school physicians have passed upon the lighting, the kinds of seats to be used, and other hygienic details. Indeed, they must even approve the type and its spacing in textbooks before they are adopted.

"An unusual sight of the city is the snake farm. The snake houses, looking like bee hives, cover a large tract. The snakes are the sources of serum used to treat sufferers from the bites and other venomous reptiles.

"The railroad from Sao Paulo to Santos, the world's foremost coffee port, is famous among engineers the world over. There is a drop of 2,600 feet in seven miles over one section. Steel cables, stationary engines and especially equipped locomotives are required for the 35-mile run between the two cities. There are thirteen tunnels but the trains emerge from each to disclose some surprising new panorama of wooded mountain, valley of banana or coffee trees, torrential stream, or gorge of dizzy depth.

"The road is said to be one of the best paying in the world. Since the dividends are limited by law its earnings have gone into sumptuous stations, fine rolling stock and perfected equipment until one visitor remarked that all remaining to be done was the gilding of the tops of the telegraph poles.

"The steep railroad climb from Santos to Sao Paulo gives a hint to the peculiar geography of the state. For nearly 400 miles along its coast is a low belt, narrow in the north and widening to about 80 miles in the south. Here the weather is hot and moist and the crops are bananas, coconuts, vanilla beans and cacao. This lowland is marked by a line of hills back of which is an undulating plateau, cooler and dryer, where the coffee finds ideal growing conditions.

"Sao Paulo is notable for its varied architecture, ranging from chalet types, Moorish palaces and buildings of the French Renaissance period to modern office structures. Its outlying streets are as plenteously planted with trees and as well interspersed with flower-planted parks as Washington, D. C.

"The port of Santos is given over principally to shipping but lacks the squalor of many older ports. It has a beautiful beach, where the sand is packed so hard that automobiles may drive to the water's edge.

"The city has a remarkable theater, with a telescopic roof. By means of an electric mechanism this roof may be removed in ten minutes and the building converted into an open air auditorium. The orchestra chairs are removable so that shortly after the curtain falls a ballroom is available for dancing."

In the Heat of the Story.

"Suddenly I became aware of the fact that I was alone on the battlefield, but I fought on, unhesitatingly and unconcerned."

Need of common standards of civic righteousness, public health, and family life is stressed in a circular recently issued by the United States Bureau of Education entitled Parent-Teacher Associations and Foreign-Born Women. It analyzes the problem and contains valuable suggestions for helping foreign-born women to adopt higher standards of living.

THE CHRISTIAN MAN AND SABBATH DAY

At the Sunday afternoon service for men at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. a discussion followed the opening exercises of scripture reading and prayer. The topic discussed was The Christian Man and the Sabbath Day.

The scripture used as a basis was the commandment concerning the Sabbath and the occasion where Jesus and his disciples plucked the corn on the Sabbath. The following points were brought out during the discussion period. The Pharisee's idea of the Sabbath was a very strict observance according to the latter rather than the spirit; the Pilgrim Fathers were also very strict about Sabbath observance. It was decided that while possibly the Pharisees were altogether too strict as to the letter of the law, the present day observance is altogether too loose, and Sunday has almost become a holiday instead of a holy day. It would be better in the long run to be too strict than too loose in the matter.

The Sabbath is for rest and worship, but by the manner in which very many men use the day it has largely lost its spirit of wirghop and certainly contributes little rest to the tired body. The matter of buying and selling on the Sabbath was discussed and the opinion was that such use of Sunday was not in accord with the will of God. It was suggested that the average shore resort does not bring to those who spend the Sabbath there much rest, nor does it tend to build up morals as a rule. As regards the Sabbath as well as other things, the Christian is supposed and exhorted to "abstain from the appearance of evil."

The surest way to observe the Sabbath pleasing to God is to do nothing except works of necessity and mercy, and to seek quiet rest and be sure to participate in sincere worship. It is not necessary to transform the Sabbath into a holiday in order to get the benefits which the Almighty intended should come to the human family. Cooling refreshments were served after the discussion. The hour was a pleasant and profitable one.

FALL DOWN CHURCH STAIRS RESULTS IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Injuries sustained in a fall in the Greeneville Congregational church, Sunday morning, shortly before the morning service, resulted in the death of Kate A. Hayes, 69, widow of Thomas Robert McClure, at the W. W. Backus hospital at 12.10 o'clock Sunday noon.

With her sisters, Mrs. William Brown and Miss Ellen T. Hayes, Mrs. McClure had prepared to furnish the floral decorations for the church Sunday morning. She left the Johnson Home, where she has made her home for some time, on the 9.40 trolley and started for the home of her sisters. Seeing them coming towards her she went to the church. When Mrs. Brown and Miss Hayes arrived their sister was not to be found. Looking about they saw the light burning in the church basement and Miss Hayes noticed her sister, unconscious, at the foot of the stairs.

With assistance of other church people Mrs. McClure was carried upstairs and the ambulance was sent for. She failed to regain consciousness, however, and death followed about two hours later from a fractured skull. Mrs. McClure was subject to dizzy spells, according to Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve, who was called on the case. It is believed that she was seized with one of these attacks while near the stairway and fell headlong to the basement floor below.

Mrs. McClure has many friends in this city, where she spent practically all her life, and those who knew her will learn of her death with deep regret. A woman of kindly and pleasing manners, she readily made and kept friends. Her death cast a shadow of gloom over the church family Sunday.

Mrs. McClure is survived by four sisters, Mrs. William Brown and the Misses Ellen T. and Mary F. Hayes of Norwich and Miss Susan Hayes of Brooklyn, N. Y. There are also one niece and four nephews. She was the daughter of Patrick and Bridget Hayes.

DAVID HALE FANNING IS HOSPITAL PRESIDENT

Worcester, Mass., papers note that a former Norwich resident, David Hale Fanning, who will be 94 in August, millionaire manufacturer and philanthropist, was last week elected president of the Worcester Hahnemann hospital at a meeting of the directors, succeeding the late Dr. John K. Warren, who died June 26. Following the election of Mr. Fanning the directors elected George A. Bigelow first vice president and Ernest P. Bennett second vice president.

Mr. Fanning's election recognizes the great service he has done the Hahnemann hospital both in personal effort and in a material way, it was pointed out. With Dr. Warren, he was one of the originators of the present hospital and was one of the incorporators when the corporation was formed in June, 1896. Since that time he has been a member of the board of directors and has also been the first vice president. He selected and bought the site for the present institution, which he donated outright to the corporation. He has been a constant and generous donor throughout the life of the institution and when the last drive was made to raise funds for the building of the addition, now under construction in Lincoln street, he was the largest contributor.

Mr. Fanning is one of the best known industrial leaders in New England. He was the founder and has always been the president of the Royal Worcester Corset company.

He achieved his greatest triumphs at and after the time most men retire to their hearths and firesides. He takes pride today in being at his office on time in the morning and looking after the affairs of the company in the same manner he has for the last 50 years.

GRANGE TOURISTS SOON TO VISIT CONNECTICUT

National Grange tourists forming a caravan of more than 250 automobiles will enter New Britain on Aug. 17 on their trip from the Great Lakes to Plymouth Rock, Plymouth, Mass.

The executive offices of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce is preparing a map of the itinerary through Connecticut and copies will be presented to members of the visiting party by the state grange. These maps will also contain matter descriptive of the points of interest along the route through this state.

It is understood that this party organized in Michigan and plans to travel to Plymouth Rock, Mass., via Ohio, Pennsylvania, southern New York and Connecticut. On Sunday the Grangers will enter Connecticut at Ridgefield, traveling on to New Britain, where they will camp before entering on the last lap of their journey along the east side route to Springfield, Boston and Plymouth.

The New Britain Chamber of Commerce and other local organizations may cooperate with the state grange in making arrangements for the camp site and entertainment of the guests.

George B. Chandler, secretary of the state chamber, has been asked by the state grange to extend a welcome to the visitors at New Britain on the afternoon of the 17th, naming the historical and industrial characteristics of the Connecticut Yankee.

CITY'S WATER SUPPLY IN GOOD CONDITION

Notwithstanding the continued drought which it is feared will cause heavy losses to crops in this state unless rain comes within a few days, the water supply of Norwich is better than in past years. Supt. J. J. Corkery reports the water in Fairview reservoir to be down two and one-half feet and Stony Brook reservoir down five and one half feet.

The rainfall for June and July has totalled only two and one-half inches, which is almost a record for dryness in the history of the local department. Usually the rainfall totals about three and one-half inches during this period. The amount of water stored in the two reservoirs this summer is accounted for when it is remembered that the spring was wetter than usual.

The present supply is about the same as in 1923 at this time of year and Supt. Corkery looks for a steady fall of water in the reservoir until October 1st, when the fall rains usually begin and the reservoirs again reach full pond.

The only danger for Norwich would be lack of rain in the fall of the year and this is unlooked for by those who keep keen in touch with weather conditions for many years.

MAKING QUICK RECOVERY FROM TWO OPERATIONS

The many friends of Supt. F. Leon Hutchins of the William W. Backus hospital will be pleased to learn that he is now on the road to recovery from two serious operations which he underwent at Dr. Mayo's hospital in Rochester, Minn., and is expected to arrive home about August 12th, if his condition steadily improves.

Word was received by Mrs. Hutchins, Saturday, to the effect that Supt. Hutchins was gaining daily and that all danger is over. The major operation was performed two weeks ago Saturday, and Supt. Hutchins rapidly improved in condition.

HUNDREDS ESCAPE CITY HEAT AT MOHEGAN

Mohegan park becomes daily of more and more importance to Norwich as a place of recreation and comfort for hundreds of people who visit the park to escape the heat of the city. Since the starting of the bus-line to the park, more than ever before have people been taking advantage of the cool and shady spots in Mohegan park, or have gone there with children, to allow the youngsters to enjoy the swings and other attractions.

Saturday and Sunday were hot days for city people and the crowd at the park grew rapidly. Sunday, one of the largest crowds that has visited the park in many months escaped the heat of the city by going there for the day, many taking lunches with them.

With swimming and boating, there was pleasure there for those desiring that kind of recreation. The swimming beach was also crowded, several hundreds enjoying the cooling water of the lake.

As usual the monkey house was a center of attraction and the latest addition to the park family continued to amuse his little friends with antics on the ropes and bars. Being a pet, the new monkey allows the youngsters to pet and handle it and seems to enjoy eating from their hands, all the time jabbering away at them in a gibberish that evidently means, "Thank you."

People are beginning to appreciate Mohegan park this year, more than ever before. Strangers in the city who have visited the park have always spoken in praise of its beauty of natural scenery and have wondered why more people did not take advantage of the park.

Park Superintendent Kroan has had men working at the park improving the roads and buildings and things are now in first class shape. It is also understood that the raft at the park, used by the swimmers, is to be hauled to the bank and new barrels placed underneath, to raise it above the water. Six barrels have been placed under the raft but three of them have become filled with water. This has caused the raft to list badly, making it impossible to use the diving plank unless swimmers line the opposite side of the raft, thus raising the plank to a sufficient height to allow diving.

PRAISE FOR CONN. INTERNAL REVENUE OFFICE

Colonel Robert O. Eaton, collector for Connecticut, is in receipt of a personal letter from H. D. Blair, commissioner of internal revenue at Washington stating that Connecticut is rated as one of the two or three leading internal revenue districts of the country in the matter of management and efficiency of operation. For the year ending June 30, the Connecticut office attained the highest official rating, that of "excellent". Colonel Eaton paid a glowing tribute to the personnel of the local office, saying that only through the most hearty co-operation of the force were such gratifying results obtained.

The first consignment of approved refunds on full-paid tax assessments, returnable under the new tax law have been received at the revenue office and 400 checks were immediately mailed out to taxpayers.

INDUSTRIAL THRIFT PLAN OF CHELSEA SAVINGS BANK

The culture of thrift is being carried on along most progressive lines at the Chelsea Savings bank, Norwich, and while it may not bring a large income to the institution, yet, measured along the lines of community upbuilding, the results are most gratifying.

One branch known as industrial thrift is dominant. During the World war banks assisted the buyers of Liberty bonds by taking installment payments and in this way not only aided the government but taught the buyers the lesson of thrift, for in nearly every case the bonds were bought without feeling the loss of payments made, and in return a gain in ownership of bonds was secured. With these problems over and with the thought of further opportunity for service to the community the industrial thrift club was organized and is conducted in nearly all the factories in this locality.

Members of the bank's well organized staff, through the courtesy of the managements, call at the institutions and address the employes in groups, classes or individually along the lines of the club's operations. In all cases no coercion is used. By the plan the employe fills out and signs an authorization slip which shows his desire to save some stated amount from his payroll and these slips are tendered to the paymaster. On payday a non-negotiable slip is enclosed in the pay envelope as each deduction is made. The company then forwards to the bank a duplicate list of employes under the plan, giving the name, address and the amount deducted for each one, together with the cash.

The bank acknowledges receipt, then opens a passbook for each member and forwards it to the owner, who becomes a regular depositor of the bank, entitled to all the privileges of its customers. From time to time, the employes appear at the bank and present their authorized receipts taken from their pay envelopes together with their passbook and have the amount entered to their credit. The amounts of deduction from the payrolls may be decreased, increased or discontinued as desired and credits may be withdrawn from the passbook along the same lines of any deposit. A separate record is kept of the transaction under company headings for reference purposes.

The employes appear to take much pride in their membership and seldom break away from this form of saving, for many who have felt that they could not afford to save freely acknowledge that this habit of saving a small sum has been without discomfiture and are proud to feel that they own a bankbook with a growing and drawing interest sum.

The managements have filed many letters of compliment for the benefits rendered the employes and have been glad to offer the extra clerical services needed. Without doubt, this is one feature conducted by the Chelsea Savings bank that has done much to prove that "the best way to have anything is to save up regularly for it." The Chelsea Savings bank slogan is "The Bank of Community Service" and the bank staff exercises every effort to merit it.

In speaking Sunday with Arthur E. Story, the assistant secretary and assistant treasurer, he stated that, while the new system increases the work greatly, there is no department which is giving more satisfaction to the bank management, due to the keen interest of these new depositors.

CHURCHES URGE RETENTION OF BUTLER IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, July 27—Nearly 500 congregations of churches of all denominations today adopted resolutions urging the retention of Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler as director of public safety, the action was taken in response to a call issued by the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Lynch, the president of the Philadelphia Federation of Churches.

Some of the congregations sent communications to Mayor Kendrick, urging him to "resist the machinations of the political bosses who desire to get rid of General Butler" and to sequest President Coolidge to extend his leave of absence from the marine corps so that he may continue as director of public safety after next January. Others simply asked Mr. Kendrick to "stand by" the director. One of the resolutions adopted by a large West Philadelphia congregation said Director Butler's dismissal would be "bad business, bad politics and bad faith."

Mayor Kendrick has declined to make a definite statement as to his intentions regarding General Butler. The general said tonight that he planned to go to Washington tomorrow or Tuesday to see Major General John A. LeJeune relative to his assignment in the marine corps in case he is not retained here after the expiration of his leave on January 5.

"I am not going to quit," said General Butler. The mayor hasn't said one word to me about wanting me to get out and so long as he seems satisfied with the way I am carrying out his pledges to the people I am going to stay on the job. The only reason for my wanting to see General LeJeune is to find out just what orders he wishes me to carry out in case I am not wanted in Philadelphia after January 5."

K .K .K. Meeting at Ashaway

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, July 27.—Washington county Ku Klux Klan held a ceremonial Saturday evening at the Ashaway Grange fair grounds beginning at 8 o'clock. The estimated number of automobiles, with license plates from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, ranged from 600 to 800 with an attendance of nearly 2,500 klansmen and friends, a large number of those present being women. The speaker was Dr. Morgan of New York, a minister, who in his half to three quarters of an hour's emphatic talk, among other subjects touched on the need of the protection of pure womanhood, his opposition to bootlegging and attendant evils, his opposition to the Catholic systems which he quoted authorities as being followed and the high percentage of foreign element involved in the criminal record of the country. The speech was made from the rear of a bunting-covered autotruck. At the conclusion of the ceremonial three large crosses were lighted and a soloist sang "That Old Rugged Cross."

Rocco Ricci of 46 Poquonnock avenue, Groton, was arrested Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock by Westerly Police Officer George H. Champlin at the junction of Broad and Main streets. He was presented before Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., acting judge, Saturday evening in a special session of the Third District court on complaint of operating an automobile without a license. He was fined $15 and costs, amounting to $18.80, which he paid.

While Officer Champlin was directing traffic he raised his hand for an automobile to pass down Main street. Ricci operated his Ford touring car in such a manner that he crashed into a similar car of LeRoy Edwards of Bradford, R. I. In the investigation conducted by Officer Champlin it developed that Ricci never had obtained a license, and his arrest followed.

AMERICAN ATHLETES ARE PRESENTED 45 FIRST PLACE MEDALS

Olympic Stadium, Colombes, France, July 27.—(By The A. P.)—The eighth Olympic games, in which the United States scored a triumph, came to a formal close this afternoon in the Colombes Stadium, where was fought out the main battle for athletic supremacy by representatives of forty-five nations from all parts of the globe.

More than 15,000 persons were present for the closing spectacle marking the official conclusion of games which had been in progress for more than seven months.

Ninety-eight of the 361 Olympic medals awarded this afternoon went to the United States. Prizes were awarded for the first three places in each event, although six places counted in the point scoring. Colonel Robert M. Thompson, president of the Olympic committee, required aid in carrying away the share of the Americans in the trophies, which amounted to nearly one-third of the total and comprised prizes for forty-five first places, twenty-six for second places and twenty-seven for third places. Finland with thirty-seven firsts, France with thirty-six and Great Britain with thirty-one were next on the list of the twenty-seven nations which received prizes. South America was represented on the list by Argentina and Uruguay. Argentina had one first place to her credit, one second place and two third places. Uruguay had one first place.

Only a handful of the heroes of the stirring athletic games was on hand when the Olympic victory prizes were awarded and fully half of these were Americans, who were accorded an ovation.

The official pronunciamento of Baron De Coubertin closing the Olympic games was followed by a salvo of five guns and appropriate music by a band and a choir. The closing ceremonies also were participated in by the competitors in these and a brilliantly uniformed bugle corps of the Republican Guards. Less than half the nations which received awards for the performances of their athletes were personally represented. France acted on behalf of the absentees, among whom were the Argentines, whose representatives departed homeward several days ago.

The American delegation, practically all of whom will depart tomorrow on the steamer America on the homeward voyage, was by far the largest and most representative. The stars and stripes were born by Clarence Houser, University of Southern California, the shot put and discuss champion. Other notable Olympic performers in the procession included Jackson V. Scholz, New York A. C., the 200 metre champion; F. D. Tootell, Boston A. A., the hammer-throw king, and Francis Hussee, the New York schoolboy sprinter who helped the American 400 metre relay team to set a world's record.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the Olympic flag was turned over to the custody of the city of Paris, which will retain it for four years and then hand it over to the Dutch authorities to be used in the 1928 games in Amsterdam.

GASTON'S WILDNESS GIVES WHITE SOX HECTIC GAME

Chicago, July 27.—Gaston's wildness forced in the winning runs which gave Chicago a 7 to 6 victory over the New York Yankees, ending a hectic ninth inning rally in which Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel contributed errors, while Waite Hoyt and Bob Shawkey were forced to retire. Hoyt who had pitched a masterly game blew up in the ninth.

Incidentally the pitching record of Tonie Thurston who has won ten consecutive games, was unbroken although he was taken out with his club three runs behind and Charles Robertson, of perfect game fame, credited with the victory, in his first start since the latter part of April when he had several bone splinters removed from his pitching arm.

SUB BASE LOSES CLOSE GAME AT STAMFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Stamford, July 27.—The string of consecutive victories hung up by the Submarine Base came to an end this afternoon at the hands of the St. Mary's A. C. at Hallowe'en Park here. The game was forced to go extra innings and was not decided until the eleventh inning when a double to left, a fielder's choice and clean single to right gave the home team their winning margin, the final count being 3 to 1 against the Gobs.

The game was an intense struggle throughout and only the good playing of the base nine forced the contest into extra innings. Bunk Harrell, doing mound duty for the base, was found regularly but inability to bunch hits by the home team, and good field work by his own mates saved him from embrassment early in the game. Kuczo for the home team displayed good stuff and had the sailors well in hand with the exception of the second inning when the visitors made their only run of the game. Anctil's double followed by Harrell's single brought in this only tally and incidentally it was the only instance when two hits were bunched in a single frame off the Stamford pitcher.

It looked as though the game was to be won by the base by the narrow margin of one run. It was the eighth inning and a close decision at the plate gave the St. Mary's athletes the tying run that prolonged the contest. The decision in question seemed to be unfair to the visitors for it looked as though Anctil, the Sub Base catcher had the coming in to the plate blocked off the base.

UNCAS PAPERMAKERS EVEN UP SERIES WITH INLAND A. C.

Sunday afternoon before a large crowd at the fairgrounds the Uncas Paper Co. defeated the Inland Paper Co. by the score of 11 to 2 in the second game of the series. Roy, the State Hospital twirler, was on the mound for Norwich and had the Inland boys at his mercy. He was held up by Joe Belair, who with Ishicki were the batting stars of the game with three hits each. The battery for the Inland team was the strongest part, both men getting two hits each.

Manager Chalmers will lead his team against the Eagles at the fairgrounds tomorrow night and he hopes to add another scalp to his belt. He would like to hear from Robert Gair for a game for next Sunday. Score:

FRENCH BICYCLE RIDERS WIN OLYMPIC EVENT

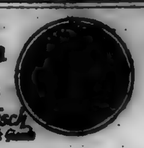
Municipal Olympic Velodrome, Vincennes, France, July 27.—The Olympic bicycle competition was brought to a conclusion today with the running of the final events before one of the largest crowds of spectators that had witnessed any of the Olympic games.

Frenchmen won two of the four finals, these wins, added to the French victory in the road race of Thursday, made France the winner in three out of the five cycling events. The standing of the nations for the five cycling events is as follows: France 41 points; Holland 15; Italy 13; Belgium 9; Great Britain 9 and Poland 7.

With William S. Fenn, Jr., of Newark, N. J., the only representative of North or South America, qualified to compete in the 1,000 metre event today stopped after he had gone a short distance. He was ailing from a bad cold. The race was won by Michaux of France, with Meyer, of Holland, second and Cugnot of France, third.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham Baseball Coach



Third inning. Score 2 to 2. Runners on second and third, and one out.

Is it good baseball to walk the next hitter if the catcher and pitcher are next up?

During the early stages of the baseball game, it would be good baseball to walk this hitter and then take a chance that the catcher will hit into a double play. If the catcher is a dangerous hitter, your pitcher should try to make him hit at a bad ball. If he is not a dangerous hitter the opposing team would probably put in a pinch hitter at this stage and the pitcher should pitch to him in the same way.

AMERICAN ATHLETES LEAVE FOR HOME TODAY

Paris, July 27.—(By The A. P.)—More than 200 American Olympic athletes, comprising virtually all those who remained here for the concluding ceremonies of the eighth Olympic games, will start tomorrow for Cherbourg on the steamer America, which brought the conquering band to France just a month ago.

The returning contingent comprises only about one-half of that which came over in a body, the other members either having returned home or are taking sight-seeing trips about Europe or have decided to remain in Paris.

The coaches and the officials of the American party today expressed satisfaction over the performances of their charges and gave voice in praise for the treatment accorded them by the French.

"We owe a big debt of thanks to France," said Walter Christie, the head coach of the American field contingent. "Those in responsible positions have taken great pains to make our stay pleasant. The boys are all going back much the better for their experience."

JOHNSTON WILL PLAY IN SEABRIGHT TOURNEY

New York, July 27.—William M. Johnston, second ranking player of the country, will make his first appearance of the season and enter his first eastern competition during the 31st annual invitation tennis tournament of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket clubs, which opens at Seabright, N. J., tomorrow. Norman E. Brookes, of Australia, will be present as a spectator in the later stages of the tournament and will play an exhibition match August 2.

Miss Mary K. Browne making her reappearance in the east, will be the principal performer in the women's singles.

Parke to Ride Whitney Horses

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 27.—Kentucky tracks will probably lose the sensational rider, Ivan Parke, who will leave this week for Saratoga to wear the silks of the Harry Payne Whitney stable. Moss Goldblatt, Cincinnati turfman, who developed Parke, said that Whitney held a contract on the saddle artist.

Parke is at Raceland, Ashland, Ky., where he is leading all of the riders in the number of victories.

It is rumored that George Madden manager of the Nuggets has accepted the challenge of Jiggs Donohue of the Cigarmakers and that the game will be played at Duwell field next Friday evening. Big Chief Madden declines to comment on the game.

VELVETMEN BEAT RIVERVIEW CLUB WITH SEVENTH INNING RALLY

After holding the J. B. Martin team scoreless for six innings and piling up nine runs for themselves, the Riverview team completely blew up in the seventh inning Saturday afternoon at the State Hospital and allowed the visitors to score 11 runs after two were out. The Martin team finally won the game 12 to 9. The game, although loose, was featured by some hard hitting and close plays that made it interesting to the fans.

The Riverview team exhausted its supply of pitchers in a desperate effort to check the visitors after they had once tasted blood in the seventh inning. Mills, who had pitched good ball for six innings, was relieved in the seventh inning when seven hits for a total of seven runs were made off his delivery. Healy took up the burden and passed the first man and the second crashed out a double. Healy did not look well in the box and he was yanked in favor of Roy. Roy was ordered to pass Morin and in trying to throw high balls to Belair he made a wild heave that let in a run. This was followed by a single that drove in two more runs. The inning ended here. Roy pitched to three men in the eighth inning, one hitting a high foul to Belair, and the other two getting hits, one a single and one a double. This ended Roy and the old reliable Paul Zemke was thrown into the breach. Paul, however, held the Martins without a hit, although one run was scored through an error.

The Riverview team showed such a reversal of form in the seventh inning that it took everyone by surprise. The game had been one-sided and it was almost a sure bet that the Velvetmen would be shut out, but baseball is an uncertain quantity, which makes it so fascinating. The Riverviews scored twice in the third inning on a single, an error and two scarifices. In the second inning two squeeze plays had failed to bring results. They scored three in the fifth inning, when three bunched hits and another lone single netted three tallies. In the sixth inning four runs were scored through bunched hits and errors. The scoring might have continued had not Eddie Murphy in center field made a beautiful leaping catch of Allard's long drive to left center. The ball was labeled for at least a triple if not a homer. This ended the scoring for the home team, although they threatened in the eighth frame, but a fast double play spoiled all chances of evening up the score.

Bill Gley was the heavy hitter for Taftville, getting three hits, one being a triple. Harry Noel led the attack for Riverview, getting three hits, two of them being infield bunts that he beat to first. The score:

LOWLY MERIDEN CLUB WHITEWASHES THREADMAKER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, July 27.—Willimantic's pennant aspirations received a rude setback in a Connecticut State League game here Saturday afternoon when they were administered a coat of whitewash by the tail-end Meriden outfit. The Silver City team scored one run in the opening inning and another in the fourth. These looked as big as a mountain as the game wore on with "Charlie" Yale twirling wellnigh invincible ball. The threadmakers got men on bases often enough but, could not bring them around, nine runners being stranded on the sacks.

"Pete" Wood on the other hand pitched well enough to win most any kind of a game but his team-mates could not hit behind him. The big fellow fanned eight of the opposition and allowed only one pass against two strike-outs recorded by his adversary on the mound and three free tickets to first.

Meriden started away on the right foot when Kai Kee, Yale second baseman singled cleanly to center and stole second. After Landry had struck out, Houlihan came through with a double down the first base line, admitting the Oriental. After Wood issued his only pass of the game to Smedick he put on steam and fanned both Hallback and Hart.

In the fourth "Eddie" Hart led off with a single. Ruby and Thomas both attempted to lay down bunts but their efforts went for hits when the Willimantic infield staged an Alphonse-Gaston act. Wood got Yale on strikes but Kai Kee poled out a long fly to Sharpe and Hart crossed the platter.

Willimantic had men reach first in every inning but two but could not bring them around. In the second Kamyk worked his way around to third with two away on an error by Smedick, his steal of second, Thomas' misplay and then tried to pilfer home but was called out on a close play, by Umpire O'Loughlin. The latter came in for considerable razzing from the fans throughout the game and did seem to be off on some of his decisions.

There were a number of good fielding plays in the game, Kai Kee, Landry, Houlihan, Hallback and Hart excelling in this respect for the winners and Kamyk, Sharpe, Adams and Wood for the home club.

Thomas and Kai Kee each collected a brace of hits for Meriden while a poke by Yale was the hardest hit ball of the day, the Meriden pitcher only taking second on the blow which was good for a triple. No Willimantic player was able to secure more than one safe blow apiece, their sum total being seven. Score:

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES
A WITNESS FOR THE DEFENSE

The women who have never borne a child
Are always hard on boys; they seem to think
A boy's not human;
"Oh, he's tough!" they say—in such a heartless way—
When I have cautioned mine: "Don't work too hard!"
And if I keep him home from school, they wink.
And smile, sarcastic-like. It makes me wild!
Because I know my boy, and, knowing him,
I am made free of Boyhood's magic world—
Its high ideals—its stern and stringent code
Of honor, which no boy will ever break,
For anybody's sake:
A boy stands by his chum through thick and thin;
Rather than "tell," he'll suffer for the sin.
Heroically silent, he'll obey
The knightly code that graced King Arthur's day.
To be condemned as "mulish" by the world,
That cannot understand—that calls it whim";
For only mothers know; and so they say:
"His mother is a fool! She pampers him!"

I pamper him? Not so; he pampers me:
The boyish hug; the little tender name;
The strong arm offered when we walk at night;
His willing steps, that my feet may be free
To rest at home.
Ah, no; you must not blame
A mother when she hangs up hat and coat;
Thrown down in eagerness; or gives assent
To some quixotic, ardent boyish plea;
Here, in his soul, she finds her girlhood dreams
Of chivalry and ardor born anew:
To be handmaid of her own young Knight
Is every mother's right!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE AWAKES

During the past few days we have been reading of terrible things that have happened to boys and girls who have failed to obey their parents and had run off, only to do the very things they had been told not to do.

Seven little children disappeared from Bridgeport, in our own state, last week and the canoe in which they had been riding was found floating bottom side up the next day. What happened to the children is a mystery, but it is believed they were all drowned.

Little dolts children think of the worries of their mothers and fathers when they do the things they have been told are dangerous and should not be done. Right here is the chance for every Wide Awake to make his and her mother and father happy, for your parents are surely bound to be happy if every Wide Awake obeys them and relieves them of worry.

When your mother or father points out something to you, that is dangerous, tells you that you must not do this or that because you are liable to be hurt, they are looking out for you and are giving you the benefit of something that they themselves have learned from the school of experience.

Every one of you can remember, if you will but try, many, many times when you have done something that your mother or father warned you not to do, and, after trying it out for yourselves, I found that they were right. This you learned by some small injury that for a time caused you pain.

The little pain you suffered, however much it hurt you, was nothing to the pain suffered by your mother and father. Every little hurt you received, they felt also, because they love you. But, there is always another hurt for them, one that you did not suffer; the pain caused by the knowledge that their little boy or girl had done something that they had been told not to do.

No matter how old we become, there is always someone older and more experienced than we are, and, if we would but heed their warnings, we would escape suffering many times.

Uncle Jed hopes that every Wide Awake is being a true sport, playing the game squarely and winning or losing with a smile. Another rule of the game is to be truthful and do the right thing. The boy or girl who lives and plays by this rule of the game will be safe and happy, and, in doing so, will make their mother and father the happiest parents on earth.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES
THE BEAUTIFUL PEARL NECKLACE

Dear Uncle Jed: Mrs. Pearson had company at her home one evening. The gypsies were camping nearby so she invited her guests to go and have their fortunes told. Mrs. Pearson wore a beautiful pearl necklace, which was worth thousands of dollars. When she returned, her necklace was missing. Her niece, Grace Pearson, said she had noticed one of the gypsies watching her aunt very closely, so they thought the gypsies had taken the necklace. Mrs. Pearson called the police but when they arrived the gypsies were gone.

A few weeks later Grace was motoring with her friend, Ruth Bently and her brother, Tom Bently, when suddenly the car broke down. The nearest house was six miles away. Tom told his sister and companion to wait while he went to get help. When he had gone, the girls began to get frightened but as they were very tired, they soon fell asleep.

While sleeping two Gypsies came up to the car and carried the girls away to their camp. They were put in a wagon, with the Gypsy Queen. She was very old and looked like a witch. When the girls awoke they were lying on bunks built on the side of the wagon and they knew the Gypsies had kidnapped them.

Soon the caravan stopped and by the noise outside the girls knew that a camp was being pitched. The girls were let out of the wagon but were closely watched and the Queen told them they were being held for ransom.

About noon a Gypsy came running into camp and everyone gathered about him. The girls thought they had a chance to steal away. They stole to the edge of the woods and were getting into a boat at the edge of the lake when they heard the Gypsies coming after them with the bloodhounds. Ruth was in the boat and Grace was just stepping in when a bloodhound came up and caught her by the skirt, holding her fast. She told Ruth not to wait for her, but to get away in the boat and bring help. Just as Ruth started to row away the Gypsies came up. They tried to swim after her but could not catch her. They took Grace back to camp and stained her hands and face and dressed her as a Gypsy.

The Gypsies packed their things and moved on again. This time they stopped on an island.

When Tom came back for help, his sister and Grace were gone. He did not know what to do. The next day he returned to the same place and as he was about to leave saw a boat coming toward the river bank. Soon he was surprised to see that his sister was rowing the boat. She told him all that had happened to them. He sent her back to the town and dressing like a Gypsy, searched until he found the Gypsy camp.

The Gypsies thought he was one of their own kind and welcomed him. Letting him stay in the camp without suspicion. That night when the Queen thought Grace was asleep, she went to an iron box in the corner of the wagon, opened it, and glowered over the jewels in it. One was a beautiful pearl necklace. Grace was not asleep and saw what happened.

The next day Tom connected that Grace was hidden in the Queens wagon, and he dropped dope in the food a Gypsy girl brought to the Queen. That night while Grace was asleep the Queen again went to the iron box, but suddenly she fell asleep. A face appeared at the window, Grace being awake by this time recognized Tom, who motioned to her to be quiet. He came in, took the pearl necklace from the box and then he and Grace made their escape. On the way home in the automobile Tom proposed to Grace and she accepted him.

ABOUT ISRAEL PUTNAM

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide Awakes a story about a brave man and his name is Israel Putnam.

When the English first settled in Connecticut there were many wild animals living in the woods.

The wolves killed sheep. One morning a young farmer named Israel Putnam went to his barn and what do you think he found? Seventy sheep dead. He knew this must be the wolf, so five neighbors set out to find it. Putnam was the first to see the wolf and he took aim at its eyes which were blazing like fire. At last Putnam captured the wolf.

It was ten o'clock at night when Putnam pulled off his coat and vest. He was going into the cave. He tied one end of a long rope around his ankle and told the men to hold the other end. When he kicked they were to pull him back.

The wolf growled fiercely and snapped it's teeth and Putnam kicked the rope and his friends dragged him out of the den so quickly that his skirt was pulled over his head and he was scratched and cut by the big and rough stones. I hope some day that the Wide Awakes will grow up and be as brave as he was when he went into the den to get the wolf.

MY BIRTHDAY PARTY

Dear Uncle Jed: It has been a long time since I wrote to the Wide Awakes. It was my birthday July 11th. I was 12 years old. Mama had promised me a party when I was twelve. So I had it. I invited twelve little girls about my own age. They were all school friends. We certainly had a lovely time. Mama took several pictures of us before the party broke up. Then papa took us all for a nice ride, dropping all the girls as we came by their homes. I received many nice gifts. I hope all the girls enjoyed the party as much as I did. Well school time will soon be here and then I will enter the seventh grade. I love to go to school. I hope all the Wide Awakes will enjoy their vacation as much as I am enjoying mine. Best wishes to all the Wide Awakes.

MY PET DOG

Dear Uncle Jed: My pet dog is a French poodle and his name is Snowball. He is my best friend. I have a big yard and he plays with me so I thought I would surprise him. On July 15th he was one year old so I went out to my friends who had dogs and told them to come to the party. I went to the store and got dog biscuit and a little meat.

At one o'clock the little dogs came so Snowball was very glad till a big Collie dog came. He was so afraid of him I could not find him for he went into the house and he hid under the bed. I brought him out again and took him over to the Collie dog. They kissed each other and they were good friends after that.

I gave them their meat and each a biscuit and it was fun to see them After they were through eating they played till they were good and tired. At four o'clock they went home tired but happy. I hope I will be able to have another party for Snowball next year.

TOOK AUTO TRIP

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have ever written to you. Every morning I read the little Jack Rabbit story and like it very much. Yesterday my father took me for a ride to Woodstock, forty five miles.

We went up on a high hill and when we came home we saw a deer. It was afraid and ran up in the woods. It was a small deer. The road went near Alexanders lake.

THE CONSTITUTION OF CONNECTICUT

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the present constitution of Connecticut. The present constitution of Connecticut was adopted in 1818 and there have been several amendments to it at different times. The legislative power consists of a senate and a house of representatives. The members of the house of representatives must be electors of the towns for which they are elected. Members of each house are elected for the term of two years. The governor must be an elector of the state and be over 30 years of age. His duties include the adjournment, or the legislature when necessary, the granting of reprieve's until the end of the next session of the general assembly, and the supervision of the execution of the laws. Every bill passed by both houses requires the assent of the governor, who may within three days remit it for reconsideration to the house in which it originated, if then the bill be approved by a majority in each house it becomes a law.

DAVID'S DISCOVERY

Dear Uncle Jed: Here is a short story I made up David's Discovery.

As David came whistling on his return home from fishing he thought of a path going through the woods which ended at the barnyard. Taking this he walked slowly along, noticing every object as he went, squirrels, birds, butterflies, bees and flowers, besides naming all the different kinds of trees he saw, for David loved nature.

But, what was that shining substance on the rocky hill? Investigation showed it to be a kettle just outside an opening in the rocks.

David did not hesitate one minute but rushed inside and, finding no one there, looked around.

Observing everything as he crawled along he finally came to a large chest. Wondering what it was used for, he tried to open it, but was unable to do so.

He looked and felt around the cave for a key but could find none. Suddenly he put his hand in his pocket and pulled out an old key he had found, near the brook, while fishing.

He inserted it in the lock. It just fitted and the chest opened easily.

What a dazzling surprise met his eyes, for the chest was full of gold, silver and jewels from foreign lands.

Staring at it with sparkling eyes he handled it over, Murmured something to himself, but did not take any as most boys would have done. He locked the chest and started for home with his eleven trout. Whistling gayly as he went.

A NIGHT AWAY FROM HOME

Dear Uncle Jed: "Dorothy dear," said Aunt Belle, "hustle along to bed and tuck yourself in tight for cousin Betty will be here soon and is going to sleep with you."

I couldn't fall asleep but laid there thinking how my cousin looked for I had never seen her before. All kinds of pictures flashed through my mind as I lay there with my eyes half open.

I don't know how it happened, but I am sure that the sandman must have suddenly come and dropped some sand in my eyes; for it was morning now and my cousin was in bed with me.

"We had better hurry up and get dressed," she said, "or we will be late for breakfast."

This is the story I told to mother about my first night away from home.

THE TIMELY SHOT

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you for some time.

There was a family of people living on a steep mountain.

They had a little two year old boy. His parents were afraid that the eagles might take him away. They guarded him carefully. One day the father had to go out to work and told mother to watch baby.

When he was working he heard a noise and looking around he saw the eagles flying around something. He went closer and saw that it was his little boy whom they were beginning to eat. When coming to work a few hours before, he brought his gun with him. He ran under a tree to get it, and shot an eagle. The rest were frightened and flew away.

He thanked God over and over again for saving the life he so dearly loved.

OUR HOMES

Dear Uncle Jed: The buildings in which we live and work are made of wood, metals, brick, stone and cement.

There are many different kinds of wood. Some kinds come from trees that grow in our country, other kinds from different parts of the world.

The trees of the forest are cut down, the branches trimmed off, the trunks cut into logs and the logs are then taken to mills where they are sawed into lumber.

The metals are found in ores that are dug from the earth. First all impurities are removed. This is done by melting the ores in big furnaces, the pure metal being made into useful articles which are used in making houses.

Most bricks are made of clay. They are molded in small boxes and are burned until they are hard. When bricks were first made red clay bricks was almost the only kind manufactured, but now they make bricks of all colors.

To have good stones to build buildings with, the surface is cleared, then the solid rock is cut in blocks. There blocks are used in making parts of houses also.

Cement is a powder made from a burnt mixture of lime and clay. It is used in making homes.

In making buildings men use the trees of the forest, metals, clay and rocks from the earth.

MY GARDEN

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my garden. In my garden I have planted some radishes, tomatoes, peas, beans, watermelons, turnips and a few other vegetables. Every day I go and hoe some of my vegetables. When they are big enough I am going to sell them, and the money I get for them. I am going to put in the bank. I hope the Wide Awakes have a garden and save their money as I do.

OUR SCHOOL PICNIC

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first letter I have written to you. I hope the Wide Awake readers will enjoy it.

The day after school closed our school had a picnic. We went into the woods by a lake which was quite large. We had frankfurters, marshmallows, lemonade, cake and candy. We built three fires to roast the frankfurters and marshmallows. Some of the children let them fall into the fire and then there was a great scramble for them. We had a boat to carry over some of the heavier provisions. The graduates asked the teacher to go out for a row with them.

While they were gone the rest us hid and it was a long time before we were together again.

After a long wait for the teacher we played games.

We played Charades, and thought that was great fun. Then we played Three Deep and many other games As we saw it was getting late we thought we had better go home and when we got home we were tired but happy.

THE WISE OLD WEASEL

Little Jack Rabbit is out for a hop,
I wonder just when he will come to a stop.
But he did when he came to a hill strewn with rocks.
Where Danny Fox tiptoes around in his socks.

Yes, sir, little Jack Rabbit came to a stop on reaching a low stone fence that ran along the base of the wooded hillside. The little bunny knew that not very far away Danny Fox had his home where he lived happy and content with Mrs. Fox and Bushytail and Slyboots, his two small sons.

Old Man Weasel stopped short.

All of a sudden, as the little bunny stood well-hidden behind a bush, he saw Old Man Weasel creep out of a cranny in the old stone wall. It was here that the old weasel made his home, in a deep crevice which he and Mrs. Weasel had lined with dry leaves. It was a safe place to bring up their four little ones, for the opening between the stones was narrow,—so narrow that no one but the weasel family with their long, slim bodies could enter.

"Dear me," thought the little rabbit, "I'm glad Billy Breeze is blowing toward me. Otherwise Old Man Weasel would smell me in a minute."

Just then the old weasel spied Squirrel Nutcracker. Up the tree he went like a flash of lightning. Out on a branch and down another, over a limb and on to the next one dashed the frightened gray squirrel. Old Man Weasel was hungry and he meant to bring home something for supper. Closer and closer he came, when, all of a sudden, with a leap, Squirrel Nutcracker landed in a nearby tree. Old Man Weasel stopped short, nearly toppled off the end of the outstretched limb.

"Bother ation!" he snarled. "I almost had him. Maybe I could have caught him had I dared jump, but we weasels can't do that,—not a long leap like this," and sliding down to the ground, he walked off in the direction of the Farmyard.

"Maybe I can find a rat," he said to himself. "I've noticed lately that the Farmer's barn is overrun with rats and mice. If I let the chickens alone, the Farmer will be glad to see me."

Now wasn't that wise of this old weasel? Well, I guess it was. For rats and mice eat corn and the Farmer was only too glad to have Old Man Weasel get after them, provided, of course this old robber let the chickens alone.

"Dear me," sighed the bunny boy. "I guess I'll hop through the Shady Forest. I don't want to meet Old Man Weasel. He eats rabbits and chipmunks, too. I'll keep away," and off went the little bunny, clipperty clip, lipperty lip, down the Shady Forest Trial until he came to the cave of the Big Brown Bear. But that nice old furry animal was nowhere about, so the little rabbit picked up a lollypop that had fallen from the Lollypop Tree and sat down on the big wooden bench to rest.

THE ROSETTA STONE

The Rosetta stone is a slab of black basalt 3 feet long, 2 1-2 feet wide and 10 inches thick discovered in 1799 near Rosetta, Egypt, by M. Boussard, an officer in the French army of occupation. It was conveyed to England in 1802 and deposited in the British Museum. This stone bears a trilingual inscription in honor of Ptolemy Epiphanes, written in hieroglyphic or sacred, demotic or common and Greek characters, and was deciphered by Dr. Thomas Young in 1818, and through the labors of Champollion, in 1822. The Rosetta stone furnished the clue for the decipherment of the Egyptian hieroglyphics and is chiefly famous on that account.—Kansas City Times.

THREE NEW YORK MEN DROWNED, BETWEEN BLOCK ISLAND AND N. LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 27.—That Harold D. Hudson, 98 Queens avenue, Flushing, N. Y., Edward Riconda, Elmhurst, N. Y., and John Boden, insurance broker, 108 Williams street, Manhattan, N. Y., have lost their lives in the Sound there is not the slightest doubt, for the skiff that was a tender to the sloop Amateur, upon which the three young men were cruising has been found capsized. No trace of the Amateur, however, has been found, nor have the bodies been located.

The trio left New York the 11th inst., and had spent much of their time in the vicinity of Block Island. Relatives of the men received word from them that they would arrive home last Sunday, but no trace of them and their craft, excepting the finding of the skiff, has been obtained.

Hudson, Riconda and Boden left Old Harbor, Block Island, at 10 o'clock the 17th inst., for New London. At 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon an unusually severe local squall came up, the wind attaining a velocity of 75 miles an hour. Although the three vacationists were expert boatsmen, it is believed that the Amateur foundered for the skiff was found bottom-side up between Block Island and Fishers Island the 19th inst and was taken to Old Harbor, where it was identified Saturday by H. D. Hudson, 34 Malone avenue, Bellevile, N. J., as the tender of the Amateur. Word has now been sent all United States Coast Guard stations that a watch may be maintained along the Sound for the bodies of the three men.

Hudson was an employe of Quintan Perry & Johnson, a Flushing insurance firm. He was prominent in college athletics, at one time being captain of the track team of Columbia university. He was also a student at Cornell and served during the World war with the 29th division. He won a citation and the distinguished service cross. He is married and his wife and infant are now at Darien, Conn.

H. D. Hudson arrived in New London this evening on his way from Block Island, where he identified the skiff as belonging to the Amateur's. He later left for his home in Belleville, N. J.

Another bathhouse robbery occurred at Ocean Beach this afternoon. Harry Pumerants of Montauk avenue, and Harry Weiss, of Brooklyn, occupied the same bathhouse, because of the great throng of swimmers and while they were in the surf a thief entered the house and stole what money he could find in the clothing of Pumerants and Weiss, about $12.

It is believed that when the government gets at work on the conversion of its steam propelled vessels into oil burners the business of the New London Ship and Engine company will be increased very materially. The plant has been installing the Deisel engines in marine craft for a considerable time and these engines burn oil, so that the conversion of the craft from steam to oil power must make business for the plant.

Automobile traffic was very heavy today. The number of automobiles on the streets in the mid-forenoon was much greater than any day this season yet, and in the afternoon there was an increased number of cars in use. A very large number of the machines were from outside the city.

This afternoon the Niagara Engine company was summoned by still alarm to the Broad street dumping grounds where a quantity of rubbish had become ignited.

Lieut. Edward Mather, stationed at the Submarine Base, was taken into custody tonight by State Policeman Henry Albright, of the Groton barracks, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Mather furnished the surety for a bond of $200 for his appearance in the Waterford town court tomorrow night.

An automobile owned by John Christopherson, 31 West Pleasant street, became ablaze tonight on Main street, near the corner of Federal. An alarm was pulled in from Box 35, corner of Main and Federal streets, and, with the arrival of the department, the fire was extinguished by use of chemicals and without serious damage. The cause of the blaze was a short circuit beneath the car.

Col. Charles W. Burpee, Hartford is anxious to obtain a wrist watch, which belonged to him and which was stolen from his son, while the latter was a guest at the Hotel Mohican last boat race day. The watch was a gift to Colonel Burpee, presented to him by his staff, March 17, 1914, at which time Colonel Burpee was adjutant-general of the Connecticut National Guard. The watch was left on a washstand at the hotel a short time and when the young man returned for the timepiece it was missing. The police have been unable to locate the watch and Saturday Chief of Police Farrell, Hartford, requested the New London police to renew their endeavors to recover the watch.

Frank Scovish, 25, of Montville, is in a critical condition at Lawrence hospital, suffering from a shattered head and face, broken arm and the loss of the sight of both eyes, the injuries having been suffered Friday night by a premature blast. There was a very slight improvement today in the condition of the patient, who this forenoon requested that his wife be summoned to the hospital. But little hope is held out for his recovery as told in The Bulletin Saturday. Scovish was at work at Oakdale where a well was being made. A stick of dynamite and percussion cap had been inserted in place in a rock and Scovish was being hoisted to the top of the well when the blast was set off.
